The recent article upon the above theme by Rev. Fitzgerald Sale Parker was calculated to arouse our dormant faculties to an appreciation of it, owing largely to the purpose for which it was intended. I, for one, was greatly benefited by a careful perusal of it. I fully agree with the brother in most of the positions taken by him. The increasing light of modern science has tended to specialities. The truth of this is seen in every department of knowledge, and, in order to excel in any department, the student must confine himself to one branch of the tree of science. It is only by this method that he will fully take the master degree in his calling. This is applicable to the ministry as well. True science beautifies and explains many passages of Scripture, and will always be found in perfect harmony with it. A preacher's chief study should be the Word of God, with a view to presenting the gospel in such a judicious and an alluring manner as will incite his hearers to a holier life. The knowledge of astronomy, geology, physiology, psychology, anthropology, geography, chemistry, mathematics, logic, ancient and modern history, mental philosophy, etc., together with associating with the Christian poets and philosophers, will not only expand his own intellectual capacity, but will also give him an extended view of the immensity of creation; will give him greater insight into all of the divine attributes of his Maker; will strengthen his faith, and fully equip him for his position as an ambassador of heaven's King.

The economy of the spiritual kingdom, in its redemptive scheme, has never changed. It is true, mankind has passed through many dispensations, but the gospel has always reflected the essence and nature of the unchangeable One who gave it. We can but deduce from this that the gospel has always exhibited a sameness in its presentation to men, and has been as potent in one age as in another. A preacher's chief study should be his Bible, for nine-tenths of the noble characters who have graced the pages of history have owed their fullest development to a study of its pages.

It is admitted by all that "knowledge is power" in every calling of life. The greater a person's knowledge, the more potent for good or for evil. Such being the case, we should clearly, adequately, or fully define the term of, or in what a true education consists. To say that a person "is educated" carries with it no idea that the moral nature has been developed in conjunction with the intellectual. In the sense in which the subject of "education" is generally taken, it signifies instructions in letters, human sciences, and in the various accomplishments of body and mind. This does not, in all instances, convey to our minds the idea of religious care as having been exercised over one, either in childhood or riper years. This definition is too short, and would not be good even were man not in a state of probation for a future home. It is not infrequently the case that the most that can be said for some "educated" people is, that they "are painted walls and whited sepulchres;" hence we readily see the limitations to the term "education;" also the carefulness that should be exercised in the opening of the youthful intellect to human science.

Mr. Hooker defines the term "education" to wit: "Education is the means by which our faculty of reason is made both the sooner and the better to judge rightly between truth and error, good and evil." This is by far the clearest idea I have ever elicited from "connaissance sur cette sujet." No one (and I say it without fear of successful contradiction) can or will ever have any rightful claims to being called a pure or deep thinker whose heart or inner man (moral nature) has not been purified by the purifying fires of divine grace. A stream can not be purer than its source, or the spring from which it draws its supplies. A person may appropriate the pure ideas of others, but I speak of originality in that sense where an idea is conceived and given birth to by the "ego ipse."

Christianity, in order to save the world, must "educate" the race (or uneducate it). All conversant with the subject of "education" are fully aware of the fact that it is harder for the mind to unlearn its error than to learn. I agree most fully with Bro. Parker, viz.: that the world needs and demands a truly "educated" ministry. He succeeds best who knows his calling most fully in all its parts. There are some exceptions to this rule; but, as exceptions do not make rules, we shall not discuss the wherefores of it.

Paul's Epistle, or rather charge, to Timothy, wherein he exhorts him to "study to show himself approved of God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth," is applicable, collectively and individually, to ministers of the gospel. I, for one, never felt more the force and extent of Paul's words to Timothy than since my call to be a teacher of "spiritual things"—"a teacher sent of God."

In order to advance in intellectual attainments, a person must know himself physically, mentally, morally, spiritually. He must fully realize the purposes of his creation, and use all the means and opportunities that conduce to said end. He should carefully study his God-given senses or mediums through which he derives knowledge of the forms, qualities, and relations of the various objects with which he is surrounded. The study of the nature and powers of the mind will enable him not only to properly imbed the ideas in the cells of the memory received through external senses, but also enable him to communicate his knowledge to others. The power of memory, like a child, should be carefully nursed from the cradle to the grave. It is the memory to which we are to look for every step in the path of mental or intellectual improvement. The power of memory in the retention of ideas, and its vast susceptibility of improvement, is so great as almost to transcend belief. Cicero, Cyrus and others are notable examples. One has said, "Great memory, little common sense," but this proverbial saying is "weighed and found wanting." The law of association can never spring an idea out of an empty cell.

Man, having been created for action as well as for contemplation, he is expected to cultivate the powers, principles, instincts, feelings and affections which belong properly to his moral nature. These, like the intellectual, are susceptible of vast improvement and expansion by exercise, trials and afflictions, etc., and never fail to promote one's own happiness and incite him to promote the happiness of others. "One best serves the coming generations who serves properly the present generation."

It is the duty of every Christ-like person (or Christian) to "study to show himself approved of God." We often hear ignorant persons pleading the ignorance of some of Christ's apostles in excuse for their own. That Peter and John were, in a certain sense, uneducated when Christ called them to be disciples, it is true; but that they were ignorant after having sat at the feet of heaven's King in learning for three years, and after receiving their fiery diplomas on the day of Pentecost, I deny most strenuously. The writing of Peter ("the Goldsmith of the New Testament") and those of John indicate the contrary.

Bro. Parker asserts "that the self-made man is not as frequently met in positions of leadership in any line as formerly." Possibly he may be able to substantiate his position with indisputable facts; but it is equally true that the history of the poets, philosophers, and the noble statesman that have steered the ship of thought of every clime, have been men whose shadows never darkened the threshold of a college wall, but, notwithstanding their earlier drastic conditions, rose to heights that even the college graduates never even hoped to attain. That these men would have risen to sublimer heights had they had helping hands to assist them in their difficulties and researches, and that they would have risen faster, is admitted. One great blessing which surrounded them was, they were not puffed up, but had an eye to the betterment of human conditions, as a rule. I would not, by the above, mean to say aught against a college training, but the rather encourage brethren who have lacked these earlier advantages not to despair of obtaining a creditable education, and possibly surpass a great many of the college graduates in not only intellectuality, but also in spiritual power. We have in our Conference a brother preacher who never attended a school three successive months (so I am informed) in his life, and who today is noted as a man of deep thought and of great spiritual power. He had the capacity for the acquisition of knowledge; had untiring energy, an unbending will-power, and never doubted the potent power of his senses, faculties and powers. His advancement has been prodigious, not only in knowledge, but in high places of trust and honor in the church. On the other hand, my memory reminds me of a candidate for admission into the Conference (a college graduate, and at present a student at a university of learning, who had been two years at this university at the time of his examination for admission) who, when questioned by the Examining Committee, could not differentiate etymology from syntax. Possibly he had forgotten more than some of us will ever know. The purpose for which these two cases are cited is simply to insist upon thoroughness in the work of education.

In conclusion, I will say: Let us, as members of "one family," band our energies to the education of these noble young men to whom Bro. Parker refers, and at the same time continue to equip ourselves for our work of teaching the gospel.

The Helped Must Be Helpers.

BY THE SECRETARY.

Statistics are dry reading, but afford a great deal of knowledge, and are, therefore, conducive to development and amendment. The late Minutes of the Louisiana Conference, though they cost (some of us) 22 11-12 cents per copy, are well worth the reading, especially from the standpoint suggested by the caption of this note.

I have examined the available statistics of twenty-one charges receiving help from our Missionary Board, aggregating over $1,200. The contributions returned from these charges aggregate about $375—$213.45 of this amount coming from four charges, viz.: Covington circuit, Carrollton station, Port Vincent circuit and "Franklinton and Mission," leaving $161.55 from all the other eighteen charges. In these eighteen charges a membership is reported numbering 3,067, omitting Cane River, not reported; also Floyd, not reported in the Minutes. From these eighteen charges the membership gave for missionary work a fraction over 5 cents each, while they consumed over 32 cents per capita, or six times as much as they gave. Worse than this. Six charges, with membership of 1 555, contributed last year only $22.75!—or a fraction over 2 cents each! Still worse. Four charges, with 751 members, contributed only $7.85—a fraction over 1 cent each.

If the above is bad, how is this? Two charges, having 371 members, gave for the cause of missions in the year of grace 1895 $1.00! O! the people in these two charges it required three members to furnish one cent for the spread of our Master's kingdom! Plead with the Lord not to curse these people, but spare them a little longer.

Correspondence.

Natchez District.

To-day finishes my first round of appointments; and, to my regret, I am at home nursing a spell of la grippe. Under great disadvantages I managed to hold all of my Conferences. The preachers have all been at their places hard at work, but on account of so many rainy Sundays have not had as large results as they have desired. Our district is well manned, and will make a good showing at our next Annual Conference.

W. B. Lewis ("our St. John") is serving out his fourth year at Jefferson Street, and bids fair to do his best year's work in that charge. So he has kept the best wine till the last.

M. M. Black, a young man of great gifts, rare culture and deep piety, is serving his second year at Wesley Chapel; growing in favor with the people, and will no doubt do a fine work this year.

E. T. Breland is serving the Washington circuit. Although he has only been in charge of this work since our last Conference, he has captured the hearts of his people. With his deep piety, godly judgment and untiring zeal, he is sure to do a good work.

G. M. Hull is serving the Roxie charge. His people are delighted with him. They say, "We don't understand how we got such a fine preacher." We are expecting large things from the Roxie charge.

J. G. Galloway is holding the fort at Fayette. His people are charmed with him. They have great confidence in his piety and zeal for Christ. Bro. Galloway is among our best preachers and field workers. Whatever he does he does well. Fayette is blessed in having such a man to live among them and preach for them from Sabbath to Sabbath.

R. E. Rutledge is in charge of Barlow circuit. We have in our Conference none that excel "Bob" in sweetness of temper, in devotion to duty, in singleness of purpose, and in zeal for Christ. Paul's description of love is a fair description of his character.

D. F. Gilce is holding up our colors at Gloster, and from all reports is attracting the people Christwards. He is taking firm hold upon the town. Bro. Gilce is said to be an elegant preacher and a diligent pastor. He is making a fine impression, and will no doubt have a splendid year.

J. N. Tucker is in charge of the Amite circuit. His people are unanimous in his praises. Bro. Tucker is among our ablest preachers. As a preacher he has few equals. As a pastor he is tender, loving, careful and painstaking. With the assistance of Bro. Gallin, his junior preacher, who is a live coal off the altar, he is certain to bring up a cheering report to our next Annual Conference.

B. S. Rayner is serving the Centerville charge. Bro. Rayner is one of our best men, true and tried. He had eminent success last year in building up the walls of Zion in this district. His preaching, evidences thoughtful, prayerful preparation, and is impressive and convincing.

B. F. Lewis is stationed at Woodville. Bro. Lewis is a strong preacher, and a man of irreproachable religious character. He is planning for large things at Woodville, and if supported by his church, will put new life into that old-time honored station.

M. J. Miller is stationed at Percy Creek. People and preacher are delighted each with the other. "Mat" is a lovable character. Strong and fervent in prayer, eloquent and powerful in preaching, he moves his hearers into a higher life whenever they listen with receptive hearts and minds.

E. L. Cole is serving the Wilkinson charge. Bro. Cole was for years a minister in the Campbellite Church. He came to us at our last Conference. He is adjusting himself to his new environment, and seems to be determined to make himself a successful, available Methodist preacher.

R. S. Gale is serving his second year on the Meadville circuit. Bro. Gale made the best report last year that went up from the Natchez district, and up to date is ahead of anything reported in the district this year. Under his care the Meadville circuit is developing into one of the best circuits in the district. Bro. Gale is winning the hearts of all.

May the Lord bless these dear brethren in their labors of love, and enable them to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, and to be filled with all the fullness of God.

Sunday-School Tribute.

To the Sunday-school of the M. E. Church, South, Sardis, Miss.:

Your committee directed to present suitable resolutions touching the death of our late lamented pastor, Rev. T. B. Hargrove, beg leave to report as follows:

A little more than three years ago Bro. Hargrove came to us a comparative stranger, assuming pastoral charge of the church and us. He entered at once upon an earnest, persistent and zealous crusade against sin, and upon the upbuilding and strengthening of the spiritual condition of the church. After three brief years of noble service he entered a new field of labor, only to be soon suddenly called to his reward.

The breadth of his information, the depth of his learning, and the thorough consecration of his life to the service of Christ attested his ability and worth as his Master's chosen vessel. He left his impress on everyone who was so fortunate as to come under his benignant influence. We count ourselves blessed that we were permitted to have his spiritual direction and guidance.

He was an able and effective laborer in the Master's vineyard; a pure, devout, consecrated Christian character.

His kind words of encouragement in well-doing, his gentle warnings from wrong-doing, his fervent handshake, and his kindly interest in their welfare, won for him a place deep in the affections of all his flock. He was an ideal pastor.

Bro. Hargrove has gone to his reward. He fell at his post while in faithful discharge of the high trust confided in him by our heavenly Father. His departure was a fitting one. He had indeed fought a good fight, had kept the faith, and for him truly there was a crown laid up in heaven. Then he had but to cross the dark valley and enter the beyond.

To his stricken family we can but extend our deepest sympathy, and implore for them grace from on high. We can not find words adequate to express to them our condolence.

Resolved, therefore, That we will strive in our daily lives to pay strict heed to his many earnest admonitions; that we will emulate his lofty virtues; that we will obey his parting injunction to "fight a good fight," to "have faith in the Lord Jesus Christ."

Resolved, That we extend to his bereaved family our sincerest condolence in their deep affliction, and that we speak for them the light of a Divine Providence in this, their darkest hour, comforting and sustaining them.

Resolved, That these feeble expressions of our feelings touching the departure of our late lamented pastor and brother, Rev. T. B. Hargrove, be spread upon the Minutes of the Sunday-school, and a copy thereof be presented to his family; that a copy be furnished the Oxford and Columbus papers, the Southern Reporter, Nashville Christian Advocate and the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

A Wise Move.

The Methodist ladies of Holly Springs have introduced a plan in their church work which, I believe, will be found productive of so much good that other places will follow the example. The auxiliaries of the P. and H. M. S. and W. F. M. S. have decided to hold a joint social meeting every month. The business meetings will be held separately, as heretofore. To do otherwise would be unwise, and would probably result in awkward complications; but it is very sweet and appropriate for the two societies to come together socially, the sisterly fellowship—even the breaking of bread together—tending to bring them into closer touch. Mrs. Moon kindly furnishes the following account of the first meeting. MRS. H. W. FOOTE.

At the Febuary meeting of the Parsonage and Home Mission Society, in Holly Spring, Miss., it was decided to unite with the W. F. M. S. in a social meeting to be held once a month, that the two societies might be brought in close touch, enlightening, strengthening, encouraging one another.

Our first meeting was held at the hospitable home of our efficient district secretary, Miss Lucy Matthews, on Feb. 28. Devotional exercises were held, after which appropriate readings from both societies. The meeting was largely attended; much interest manifested. We felt that it was good to be there, and surely God will honor these united efforts to push forward his glorious cause! At the conclusion of the meeting our hostess was tenderly thoughtful in serving to us most dainty refreshments.

FLORENCE MOON.

The W. P. and H. M. Society of the Magnolia Church observed and fully carried out the programme arranged for February Week of Prayer, with the exception of the Sunday night service, it being necessary to dispense with this. The exercises proved instructive and entertaining, and were attended with unflagging interest by the members, they becoming more enthused at every meeting, so much so that inclement weather could not prevent their attending.

We congratulate ourselves upon having such a leader as Mrs. H. F. Edgar, our pastor's wife. She is so thoroughly consecrated, and is perfectly in love with the work of the W. P. and H. M. Society. Her earnest talks and prayers were enjoyed by all who attended, and we went away feeling that it was indeed good to be there, and impatient for the next afternoon to come. Truly the week's exercises proved a spiritual blessing to all. The envelope collection amounted to $10. May God continue to bless this grand connectional organization! is our prayer.

Selections.

Reverence.

Reverence is to be cultivated and irreverence to be avoided! All our aspirations after what is pure and exalted have their root in reverence; if we have little reverence for holy things we shall have but little desire for them, and there will be in us no upbuilding of a noble character. I have small hope of one who does not profoundly respect all that is exalted in thought, in sentiment, in the nature of its being. The greatest of all thoughts is the thought of God, to whom we are responsible in every word and deed of our lives. If, then, you will take the name of God out of all holy associations, bring it into your conversation upon ordinary and vulgar topics, use it upon all sorts of trivial occasions, treat it as a common and unclean thing, you are smothering within you the sentiment of reverence, and making it unlikely that you will rise to any considerable intellectual, moral or religious height.

That it is really "a good thing to give thanks" everyone may discover for himself by making the experiment. Many a cloud has been driven from the spiritual and mental sky by a breath of praise. It is not a good thing to count over our sorrows and losses and perplexities; as a rule, we make them worse by doing so; but the counting of our mercies has an invigorating effect, and we are often surprised to find how much richer we are than we had thought.—New York Christian Advocate.

From Phillips Brooks' Year Book.

Eighth month, 21st.—"Lo, I am with you always," Christ declares. Many of your souls, my friends, have found the rich fulfillment of his promise.

Sometimes it comes to us with a strange surprise. When we are living as if we lived alone, when we are sitting working silently in some still room, which we think is empty but for our presence, when we are busy with some work, which seems to us our own work, to be done as we should please; slowly, sweetly, surely, we become aware of a richer Presence which is truly with us, of love which enfolds us, of an authority which controls us. We are not alone. The work is not our work, but his. The strength to do it with is not to be called up out of the depths of ourselves, but taken down from the heights of him. The room is full, the world is full of Jesus. He is doing as he said he would. He is with us as he said he would be.

My restlessness to still;
Thy quickening life flows all around
To nerve my faltering will;
Thy presence fills my solitude,
Thy providence turns all to good.

—Samuel Longfellow.

Crowd It Out.

Life is very much a matter of emphasis. Just as some books, according to Bacon, are to be tasted, others to be swallowed, while some few should be chewed and digested, so it is with objects of interest and pursuit. Some things may without injury slightly occupy us, which would inevitably degrade us were we to become wrapped up in them. If men would sit down quietly with their conscience and settle on the things of primary importance, and then pursue those things with all diligence, letting other matters fall into the background, the occupation of the preacher would be gone. If men would edit their lives with half as much painstaking as a good newspaper is edited, crowding out and crowding in according to a fixed, ruling principle, instead of following the whims of the hour, we should see better results. They would care less about condition and more about conduct, less about dollars and more about duties, less about pleasures and more about principles, less about fortune and more about faithfulness, less about trouble and more about truth.—Zion's Herald.

Idolatry in China receives colossal sums yearly from a vast army of givers. In this heathen land all families give something to idolatry; in Christian lands some families give much, others give nothing to their religion. Heathenism depends upon everyone, Christianity upon a few. I know only one solitary thing that heathenism can teach us, and that is how to raise vast sums of money from a great army of small, but particular contributors.—Golden Rule.

We are ruined, not by what we really want, but by what we think we want. Therefore never go abroad in search of your wants; if they be real wants they will come home in search of you. For he that buys what he does not want will soon want what he can not buy.—Colton.

Do not be disturbed because of your imperfections, and always rise up bravely from a fall. I am glad that you make a daily new beginning. There is no better means of progress in the spiritual life than to be continually beginning afresh.—Francis de Sales.

David said: "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice." The overworked people who take upon their shoulders all the responsibilities of the world might do well to read over that text once in a while and strive to get into its atmosphere.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. M. H. Moore, Terry circuit, Mississippi Conference: "Since Conference $230 of the parsonage debt has been liquidated; $13 raised for worn-out preachers; four have been dismissed by certificates; four have died in the faith; one infant has been baptized; one has been received on profession of faith; sixteen have been received by certificate; one Juvenile Missionary Society organized; one Epworth League, with 32 members, has been organized. Congregations have increased. Prospects encouraging for prosperous year."

Rev. I. T. Reames: "We frequently read from the brethren words similar to the following: 'We have just received a pounding,' or 'Were the victims of a storm a few days ago,' etc. Well, I have been taught that some poundings were unpleasant, and that a storm was an object of dread by all, except those just ready for translation to other realms. We have not been stormed or pounded; but, that is far preferable, a gentle breeze has been blowing in the direction of the Lafayette parsonage from our arrival to the present, bringing in many articles which add to our comfort and happiness. Our second Quarterly Conference is over. On account of sickness in person, our presiding elder failed to reach us. We are moving along reasonably well. Brethren, give us your prayers."

Rev. W. T. Currie, P. C., Montgomery, La.: "The first Quarterly Conference on this work was held last Saturday and Sunday, and it was the most spiritual one I was ever in. Rev. V. Skipper, P. E., in the chair. He is the right man in the right place. He preached three good sermons, and called to the congregation that this report was the banner report so far of any work in his district. We had been conducting a meeting here the week previous; had good attendance, good Sunday services and one accession. We closed last night with, at least, 35 or 40 asking interest in prayer. We have been busy repairing the parsonage and grounds. A number of young ladies are collecting money to put in a cook-stove. We are looking forward for great things this year in the Master's vineyard, and ask the prayers of all. God bless you and the ADVOCATE."

Rev. P. H. Howse, P. C., Walnut Grove circuit, Miss.: "I reached this charge on Sunday, Dec. 22, after a journey of 205 miles, riding one horse and leading another, and a checkered experience, which I will not trouble your readers with at present. My family came to me on Dec. 24, and Rev. John Miller opened his door to preacher and family, where we were made to feel at home in sharing the hospitality of that Christian home for a week. During the time doors were opened and hearty welcomes extended to us from all quarters. This is a noble people and I believe that if the Lord blesses them this year with a moderate degree of prosperity, that they will show him their appreciation of it by taking care of their preacher, his servants and building a nice, comfortable parsonage. Our Quarterly Conference was held on Feb. 10. Bro. W. W. Simmons was with us, and preached a splendid sermon, and impressed the people with the self-evident fact that he is a good preacher and presiding elder. He presides with ease and dignity. It is his first work in this particular field; but he appears natural in his official capacity. We also had with us W. M. Sullivan with us, and he preached us a good sermon. Pray for us that we may do this people a great deal of good."

Rev. Tatum M. Wafer, P. C., Bienville, La., March 5: "We arrived on this work during the Christmas holidays, and were kindly received by this good people. We preached our first sermon on this charge in the new town of Benville to a good and appreciative congregation. Since then we have visited the different preaching-places here, and in our feeble way proclaimed the blessed gospel of the Lord Jesus, in most instances to large and attentive congregations. This work is improving rapidly, showing many signs of returning vigor, for all of which we have been praying. Now that the Lord has seen fit to answer in part, we feel thankful. When we were assigned to be changed from the Water-Valley charge, on account of my wife's poor health, we felt very much cast down, for, indeed, we dearly loved those people on that circuit. They were so kind and good to us, and were our continual prayer that the Lord would bless Bro. Hill and his people in anything that they ever enjoyed, spiritually and financially. But, however much we love those dear people, we feel very much drawn towards these people here, and we are trusting the Lord for help and guidance, that we may be a blessing to this work. Our Quarterly Conference has just been held. While we were sorry that our beloved presiding elder could not be with us, our hearts were made glad in that he found so able a representative as our friend, Harry W. May, who preached us three excellent sermons. To show you what we are doing, I herewith give my financial report for first quarter: Amount raised for the support of the ministry, $92.75; amount paid on parsonage, $90; for other things, $3.80. We have also received into the church 16 members by letter. With best wishes for the ADVOCATE, I'll close this long letter."

Rev. G. R. Ellis, Whitlington circuit, Seashore district, Mississippi Conference: "I took charge of this work Dec. 26, 1895. Found things in rather a dilapidated condition, especially about the parsonage; but by the use of carpenter tools the place presents a much more cheerful and inviting appearance. Improvements amounting to $50 have been added to parsonage. Numerically this is a large work, numbering about 575 members. There are a great many noble Christian people here of the old Methodist type. They believe in the doctrine of holiness, the old way, and are trying to live it rather than profess it so much. They are true to their preacher, and true to the church. A few years ago this circuit was considered the banner circuit of the Seashore district, financially and spiritually. The preacher and his people have set out by the grace of God to make it so again. May the Lord help us! Our first Quarterly Conference was held at Colevilla Church, Feb. 29 and March 1. There was almost a full attendance of official members. The stewards made a liberal advance on last year's assessment for preacher in charge, and say they intend to pay it, and a little more besides. Rev. C. A. Powell, P. E., was at his post, discharging his duties in the chair and in the pulpit faithfully and in the fear of God. He preached four sermons—all of which were full of thought and spirituality and were greatly enjoyed by the large audiences which assembled at each service, as well as by this scribe. The Seashore district has a man at the helm who is possessed of backbone and grit, and a heart as tender as a woman's. To his preachers he is a loving friend; to God and the church he is loyal and as true as steel. Congregations throughout our borders are fairly large and steadily increasing, and are very attentive to the preaching of the Word. Prospects for a fruitful year in this part of the vineyard are, I am happy to say, very flattering. To correct an erroneous report that has gone out relative to the Palmer Creek Camp Meeting next Fall, I will say that, the Lord permitting, there will be a camp meeting held there at the usual time. May God bless you, the ADVOCATE and all of its readers, and finally bring us all to the saints' eternal home. Pray for us."

Rev. C. C. Evans, P. C., Chapman, Miss.: "We are here in Jesus' name, doing what our hands find to do for his cause. We thank God for the many blessings received during our stay of three years on the old Hillsboro charge, and earnestly pray his choicest blessing on the true sons and daughters of our beloved Methodism in that part of the vineyard. We trust that this may be a grand and glorious year for both pastor and people in that, our old field of labor. Our first Quarterly Conference convened with John's Church, Feb 22, 1896 with Bro. W. W. Simmons, P. E., in the chair—the right man in the right place. He manages the business affairs of Quarterly Conference admirably. I did not see but what he did as well as Bishop Duncan or Galloway could have done. But best of all, when he got in the pulpit we had a feast of good things. His sermons were full of the Holy Ghost and power, and the people were delighted with him as a preacher of the Word and presiding elder. We are looking for grand results this year on the Brandon district with this grand man of God in the lead. Let all the preachers, from the least to the greatest, stand firmly by their leader, and we may be sure that some of the distressing clogs that have been holding down the wheels of Zion will be shaken off. When the twenty-seventh question was called, it brought with it some very important business. After two months' experience on the Shiloh circuit, we found, like almost every preacher that has been here for quite a while, that the parsonage was in the wrong place, and we set our wits to work to see if a remedy could be found, and we found it. The Quarterly Conference passed an order to have the parsonage moved from Cato to Shiloh, and to-day we are living at Shiloh, and before this year closes we expect to have a nice parsonage somewhere near the Shiloh Church; and if you could have seen us when we landed at Cato two months ago, and then witnessed the sight that took place here last Monday eve, you would not blame us for wanting to move to Shiloh. I don't think any preacher of the Mississippi Conference—even you, Mr. Editor—need to be afraid to besent to Shiloh now. We have been firing and falling back, flanking right and left, and sometimes charging to the front for four days on what those good people left at the parsonage, and the battle is still raging. Please don't talk this too loud. I do not know how many hungry preachers may read this, and they might get after Bro. Simmons to let them come down here and fill up. I want just here to tip my hat to the kind people of this place, and say, 'Thankee, mam.' We are planning, praying and working for a mighty move in the camps this year. We are expecting the best camp meeting this year that Shiloh has ever known. Can't you come and be with us? This would be a good time and place for you to spread yourself, and besides it would be such a treat to both pastor and people. Shiloh is not what it once was, but we have every assurance that it soon will be. 'The promise is unto us and our children.' We ask God's divine blessing on you and yours, and the ADVOCATE. Pray for us."

GRENADA DISTRICT.

Were you ever a presiding elder? And did you ever take a trip into the interior? If not, you are lacking in valuable experience, which our wonderful itinerant system supplies free of charge. I am just home from such a trip. Pittsboro, Ezey, Chapel Hill and Slate Springs were the charges visited. Bros. M. Huggin, Benj. T. Rayner, W. W. Williams and J. M. Massey are the faithful pastors. These charges lie mainly in Calhoun and Grenada counties, but also touch Chickasaw, Webster and Montgomery. This territory is known as the piney-hill section of the Grenada district, though has much fine productive land, possessing, as it does, both Lucey Scooner and Yalla Busha rivers, with their numerous and large tributaries, and many splendid farms. The people, as a rule, are far behind this progressive age in intelligent and Christian liberality, especially in support of our connectional interest. These four charges the past year, consisting of fourteen hundred and ninety-six members, paid for foreign missions sixty-four dollars and sixty-five cents—a little more than 4½ cents per member, and domestic missions twenty-two dollars and forty cents—a little less than 1½ cents per member. The record humiliates me as I write it. Mark you, I am censuring no one, but stating a fact. This record must change for the better. Brethren of the ministry, let us turn on the light and pay as the Lord prospers us. Brethren of the laity, let us arouse ourselves as never before, or else "Ichabod will be written" on our Methodism—"the glory of the Lord is departed from us." I started out to tell you about my trip; and look where I have wandered! Well it is said, "from the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." My heart is full of missions. I was gone from the parsonage eleven days; traveled on horseback one hundred and twenty miles, visited sixteen families and prayed with most of them. One of these had been overlooked by the "saddle-bags crowd" for some five years. How that saintly invalid mother rejoiced as we knelt together at a throne of divine grace, just after dinner, before bidding adieu and thanking them for their kindness. As pastors, we frequently miss more than the people when we failed to visit such homes. Held four quarterly meetings and preached ten sermons. Some children were baptized, and the sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered twice. The rite of matrimony was also solemnized. A most delightful and helpful feature of our country quarterly meeting occasion is the bountiful dinner which comes between the Saturday sermon and the session of the Quarterly Conference. I am now ready for the second round, strong in body, mind and soul, standing on the invulnerable promises of my loving Lord." H. C. MORRHEAD.

Water Valley, Miss., March 6, 1896.

Not a day passes over the earth but men and women of no note do great deeds, speak great words, and suffer noble sorrows. Of these obscure heroes, philosophers and martyrs, the greater part will never be known till that hour when many that were great shall be small, and the small great.—Charles Reade.

A Veteran's Story

Jos. Hemmerich.

Mr. Joseph Hemmerich, an old soldier, 529 E. 146th St., N. Y. City, writes voluntarily. In 1862, at the battle of Fair Oaks, he was stricken with typhoid fever, and after a struggle of several years in hospitals, was discharged as incurable with Consumption.

Doctors said both lungs were affected and he could not live long, but a comrade urged him to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had finished one bottle his cough began to get loose, the choking sensation left, and night sweats grew less and less. He is now in good health and cordially recommends as a blood purifier and tonic medicine, especially to comrades in the G. A. R.

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to March, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1.25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

THE ELECTROPOISE WILL DO ALL THAT IS CLAIMED FOR IT.

A MISSISSIPPI MAN WHO HAS TRIED IT IN EXTRAORDINARY CASES WITH REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

I have been using the Electropoise for more than four years, and it has been a success in all the ills that I have tested it on, especially in la grippe, colds, typhoid malaria, etc. I might mention some extraordinary cases that have come under my observation, such as rheumatism, paralysis, blood poison, etc. I am satisfied that it will do all that is claimed for it.

My wife and I, who are both past 72, find great comfort from the Electropoise for the ills of old age.

Marvelous Results.

SINCE SHE BEGAN USING IT SHE HAS IMPROVED IN EVERY WAY—HER VOICE REGAINED BY ITS USE.

I bought an Electropoise in July for my little granddaughter. She has been partially paralyzed since birth. When she was put upon her feet her ankles would turn; she was very nervous and could never hold her straight. Since she has been using the Electropoise one ankle is straight and the other one is getting all right. She is not nervous now, except occasionally, and she holds her head like any other child. She can feed herself all right now. She could not talk plain, but now she talks as plain as most children of her age. She has improved in every way. She is now 6 years old.

Woman's National Sabbath Alliance.

We gladly give space to the following, and invoke the divine blessings upon these good women in their noble work:

Reference has been made in many of the religious journals to a meeting recently held in Washington, D C., among women prominent in society, for the better observance of the Sabbath. It will be a pleasure to many who rejoice in this earnest protest against encroaching social customs in our national capital, to know that there is a general movement among the women of the entire country for this very purpose. The effort at Washington was not merely the result of local circumstances which made this social protest necessary, but was the outcome of two meetings of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance held in Washington, December 17 and 18. The first meeting was held in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, where the Washington Branch of the Alliance was organized with Miss Morton, sister of the Secretary of Agriculture, as president. The second meeting, at which several of the ladies of the Cabinet were present, was held at the residence of Miss Morton on the following day.

The Alliance is an outgrowth of and auxiliary to the American Sabbath Union, and was organized in New York in February, 1896.

At that time a Constitution for the Alliance and an address to the women of America were sent out by a committee of New York women, of which Mrs. Darwin R James is chairman. The Constitution immediately received the signatures and hearty endorsement of prominent women in Washington, Princeton and elsewhere.

Meetings similar to that in Washington are being held in other places, and the interest with which women are entering into the movement shows that the time is ripe for it, and God's hand is in it. A large gathering was held in the spacious parlors of Mrs. William E. Dodge, in New York, recently in the midst of one of the most furious winter storms. We hope to enlist the co-operation of women in every city and town in this important work. The headquarters of the Alliance is in the office of the American Sabbath Union, 203 Broadway, New York. The secretary, Miss Matilda Kay, will answer correspondence, give information, and send documents to all who communicate with her. In behalf of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance.

MRS. J. H. KNOWLES.

Rev. N. G. Augustus has been appointed as pastor of West Point station, in place of Rev. T. B. Malone, deceased.

"Letting Down the Bars."

The Christian's heart may not inaptly be compared to a fertile field surrounded by a high fence, outside of which predatory animals pace restlessly up and down, seeking to effect an entrance. As long as the fence remains intact, the destructive beasts are kept out; but if a single break occurs, in they rush, and ruin the growing crops. What avails a long and solid line of fence, if there be weakness at one point? In like manner, our spiritual fence must be kept unbroken, else the heart will soon be ravaged by the unclean beasts of sin. If through neglect of prayer and Bible study, or through imperfect consecration, one sin or evil habit gains admittance, the fair crop of Christian virtues and graces is in great danger of being despoiled. Unless the whole line of defense be well guarded, some prying sin or persistent temptation will creep in, and undo what months of prayerful effort have built up. "Letting down the bars" at any point in the spiritual fence of Christian experience means the retarding of growth in grace, and may result in the loss of all religious attainments.

It is hard for us to realize the importance of excluding all sin from the heart, of making no provision for the lusts of the flesh. Nothing short of absolute freedom from every sin and evil habit should be the Christian's aim. God will not abide in any heart that knowingly and willfully cherishes even one sin or one vice, small though it may seem to human eyes. "If I regard iniquity in my heart," says the Psalmist, "the Lord will not hear me." "What fellowship hath light with darkness, or what concord hath Christ with Belial?"

We can not help but be amazed at the cool indifference of some professed Christians towards the plain teaching of the New Testament with regard to holiness. A large class content themselves with keeping the majority of the commandments, and seem to think that having done so, they are entitled to liberty to violate the others when they see fit. As was the case with the Pharisees, there is a strong temptation with all of us to be partial in our obedience and service. We are apt to imagine that faithfulness and diligence in the performance of some duties give us license to be lax as regards others. But as many as are led by the Spirit of God seek to please him in all things. The flesh with all its affections and lusts must be crucified. One flaw or inequality in a building stone may render the whole wall insecure. Likewise, one pet sin, one evil habit retained, one command disobeyed, will endanger the stability of the whole superstructure of character. Macerating the flesh will accomplish but little, if all the while the spirit be allowed to foster pride, envy, selfishness, wordliness, malice, covetousness—any of these. The man who in consecrating himself to the Lord, forgets to include his pocket-book, leaves a huge gap down in his spiritual fence which no amount of praying or religious feeling will repair or atone for.

Others, again, "let down the bars" by reading impure literature. The perusal of one bad book or one unclean story paper will often negative the good impressions produced by hearing a dozen sermons. Reading the Bible and other good books will not avail much if the mind also be allowed to revel in the reeking filth with which may modern novels and papers abound.

Many a person who is to all appearances blameless in his outward life, gives free rein to his thoughts and imagination, indulging in mental pictures that, if thrown upon the canvas and made public, would bring the blush of shame to his cheek. Such unholy indulgence, however, is sure to manifest itself in due time in a lowered standard of living, if not in a harvest of wickedness.

Some Christians who in other respects bear a good name, are guilty of listening to and relating vulgar, or worse than that, obscene stories. The man who lends a willing ear to slander and obscenity, though he be liberal, honest, and truthful, "lets down the bars" for the overthrow in him of all holiness and virtue. Well has Paul said that "evil communications corrupt good manners." The word "manners" here used should be translated "morals."

Pleasure-loving church members insist on "letting down the bars" just a little for a game of cards, for a dance, for a theatre. What avails a strong defense of many virtues, however, if at the gap of partial consecration the gaily attired devil of worldliness can squeeze through? Other spirits more wicked than he will soon follow.

The buying of papers on Sunday, not to particularize the purchase of other unnecessary things, is another way in which not a few "let down the bars" of their spirituality. If it is not wrong to buy a paper on the Lord's day, then it is no harm to buy a coat or anything else that we happen to want. If Christians make an exception for the Sunday newspaper, or for Sunday travel, then we might as well do away with all Sunday legislation.

While many are careful enough at times to prevent the entrance of sin, their watchfulness is not steady or constant, being oft-times restricted to Sundays and revival seasons. "Putting up the bars" on Sunday amounts to little when they have been down all the week. Some are watchful on all ordinary occasions; but let a holiday come, let them go on an outing, or get away from home, and at once their vigilance is relaxed. Growth is always slow; the work of destruction very quick. Cattle can destroy in a few hours the rich product of months of cultivation. "One fraud," says Dr. Marcus Dods, "spoils the character for honesty which years of upright living have earned. And this is also one of the greatest dangers of the spiritual life; that a little carelessness, a brief infidelity to our high calling, or a passing indulgence suddenly demolishes what long and patient toil has been building up. It is like taking out of a pin or a ratchet that lets all we have gained run down to its old condition."

It will not do to say, however, that after yielding to one sin, we might just as well give way to others. It is far easier to repair one break in a fence or a wall than it is several, or than it is to reconstruct the whole. Evil habits, however, are like fence-breaking cows, which, after having two or three times gotten into a field, are more than likely to do so again.

Max O'Rell in New Orleans.

Max O'Rell lectured in Odd Fellows' Hall, in this city, on the tenth. It was the rainiest night New Orleans has had for six months. The streets were flooded. On such a night most speakers would have found themselves minus an audience. Curiosity to hear the celebrated author of "John Bull and His Island," and "Jonathan and His Continent" was strong enough, however, to bring out quite a respectable audience. The lecture fully met popular expectation. It was bright and witty, but the wit only served as a medium for the conveyance of truth.

One who hears O'Rell does not need to be informed as to his nationality. His Frenchiness of manner and gesture are unmistakable, and gives additional zest to his utterances. It is greatly to be regretted that the unpropitious weather interfered with the attendance and thus reduced the receipts. With good weather we are sure quite a handsome sum would have been realized for Centenary College.

At Hazlehurst.

By invitation of the pastor, Rev. I. W. Cooper, we took a trip recently to Hazlehurst, lecturing on Friday night and preaching on Sunday. Dr. Cooper is in the midst of a very successful pastorate, his church being well organized and in fine working order. He expects very soon to make the last payment on the elegant new church which was built a few years since under his supervision. He has one of the best parsonages in the Conference. He is in high favor with his people. We made headquarters at the parsonage, but also enjoyed the hospitalities of our friends, Hon. J. S. Sexton and wife and Sister C. Mayes. We spent several hours very pleasantly with Rev. M. L. Burton and Rev. A. B. Nicholson.

We wish to say to the Methodists of Mississippi that they can do a good deed by making contributions for the relief of Bro. Nicholson. He has no income except what he receives from the Conference Fund, which is entirely inadequate to his support. He has been confined to his room for six months, and though now much improved is unable to do any kind of work by which he can earn a living. We make this statement without the knowledge of Bro. Nicholson. He has been a faithful minister, and should not be allowed to want in his old age.

Dr. Cooper and his wife are now afflicted by the illness of one of their children, which, however, we hope will not prove serious.

Millsaps Law Department.

HON. E MAYES ELECTED PROFESSOR OF LAW BY THE TRUSTEES.

The announcement that a Law Department has been established in Millsaps College will be pleasant news to many readers. Jackson has every needed advantage for a law school. The Supreme Court in session during the entire college term, and the privilege of one of the finest law libraries in the United States, the sessions of the Federal and other courts and frequent visits of the most eminent lawyers of the country, will afford young men exceptional opportunities.

The name of Hon. Edward Mayes is a guarantee of thorough instruction. For nearly sixteen years he was Professor of Law in the University of Mississippi, and is recognized as without a superior is profound legal learning and accurate scholarship. It is understood that he will associate with himself distinguished men in the profession, to deliver lectures from time to time. Many of the leading young lawyers in the State were prepared for their professional careers by Dr. Mayes. The session will open in September next. Full particulars, including course of instructions, etc., will appear in the forthcoming catalogue.

The X Rays of the Sun.

Though the sun has been shining for countless ages we are only beginning to find out all the secrets he has stored up in his rays, for a new one has just been discovered, which for the present is called the X ray, or the unknown ray. By means of this ray, photographs have been made of the bones of the hand, the skeletons of rabbits, bullets imbedded in the flesh, etc. The photographic plate is enclosed in a small, flat photographer's box and the hand held in front of it. The cover is not taken off. These rays are not refracted, but penetrate matter—penetrate the fleshy part of the hand, but are obstructed by the bones, and they reflect them back to the plate in the camera. It looks now as if we should be able to use them eventually to see into matter, to see, perhaps, the circulation of the blood, the workings of our internal organs, brain, heart, lungs, stomach, liver, etc. Is it too much to hope that the result may be favorable to our study of hygiene and the promotion of human health? We think not.—Journal of Hygiene.

Anti-Gambling Bill.

Mr. Gillett, of Massachusetts, in the House of Representatives, February 12, 1896, introduced the following bill, which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and ordered to be printed:

A BILL

To protect State anti-gambling laws from nullification through interstate gambling by telegraph, telephone, or otherwise, by extending to such gambling the penalties provided for interstate gambling by mail or express.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That any person who shall be a party to the transmission by telegraph or telephone or mail or express or otherwise, from one State or Territory into another State or Territory, or from or into the District of Columbia, of any gambling bet, or report of such bet on any race or prize fight or other event, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable in the first offense by imprisonment for not more than two years or by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars, or both, and in the second and after offenses by such imprisonment only.

We hope the bill will pass. Let every good citizen do what he can to secure its passage.

BOOKS.

THE DICTIONARY OF BURNING WORDS OF BRILLIANT WRITERS. A Cyclopædia of Quotations from the Literature of all Ages. Designed for the use of the Senate, the Bar, the Pulpit and the Orator. Compiled by Josiah H. Gilbert. With an introduction by Charles S. Robinson, D. D.

The book is a standard one, good for all time, and just what is needed by public speakers, preachers, pleaders and teachers wont to enrich their addresses with the bright utterances of brilliant men, and they will here find a mine of wealth. We heartily recommend the volume as a solid source both of recreation and instruction. The work has been admirably done. The subjects and arrangements are in every way most excellent, and the indices, both by authors and subjects, are most complete. Theodore L. Cuyler, D D., says of this book: "There is more solid ore and less trash in this volume than in any similar work I have met with; nor is it tainted with any poison or bad theology." One volume, 8vo, cloth, 688 pp. Price, $2 00, postpaid. Wilbur B. Ketcham, publisher, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

The material in this volume is new, freshly gathered from truth-proven sources, and has been tested by the author in his own parish with good results. A title is suggested at the beginning of each chapter. The "object used" is given after such title, then the "Scripture basis," which is a more flexible designation than text, follows. The author then gives in simple language, suggestive and helpful, a description of the object. The chapter headings are varied and cover many subjects. The pastor will here find suggestions for his "five minutes' sermon" previous to the regular service, or his talk to the Junior Epworth League or Christian Endeavor meetings. The volume is tastefully bound in cloth, 12 mo, 304 pp. Price, $1 50 postpaid. Wilbur B. Ketcham, publisher, 2 Cooper Union, New York.

NOTES.

Mrs. Thompson, mother of Rev. G. H. Thompson, of the Mississippi Conference, was buried at Bethel Church, on the seventh. We sympathize with our brother in his bereavement.

***

Rev. W. G. Forsythe, of the Mississippi Conference, let the light of his countenance shine into our sanctum recently. He has been spending some days with relatives near Clinton, La.

***

Rev. J. W. McNeill died at his home near Crystal Springs, Miss., on the fifteenth. He was formerly a member of the Mississippi Conference, but has been for many years in the local ranks. He was a good preacher and a most excellent man, taking an active part in every important enterprise of his church and community. A suitable memoir will doubtless appear in due time.

***

The popular evangelists do not all speak the English tongue. In Mexico a man who has been, for twenty years, a Presbyterian pastor, has given himself to evangelistic work, and is becoming very effective in ministrations to his countrymen. Senor Morales travels long distances, gathers large congregations, and preaches with great earnestness and simplicity. The churches are quickened by his preaching, and new converts are multiplied. —Presbyterian.

***

With the exception of the book-buying residents of large cities, comparatively few people know how to obtain a book that they may wish to purchase. Every newspaper office knows how frequently letters come asking, "How can I get a copy of such and such a book, published by so and so?" As an accommodation to its large constituency of readers, the Sunday-School Times has just announced that it will supply them, at the publishers' advertised prices, postage free, with any proper books, religious or secular, that are in the market. This should free the readers of that paper, at least, from further trouble in book-buying.

***

The many friends of Bro. C. W. Reed, who was at one time a member of the Mississippi Conference, will regret to hear of his death, which occurred at the home of his brother, Mr. Thos. Reed, in Natchez, Miss., on the twenty-eighth of last month. His last illness, though long and painful, was borne with cheerful resignation. He passed away sweetly trusting in Jesus. The funeral services, which were largely attended, were held in the Jefferson Street Church, Revs. W. B. Lewis and M. M. Black officiating. A suitable memoir will shortly be furnished the ADVOCATE by the pastor of Wesley Chapel, of which he was a member.

"It was an impressive occasion at Oxford when the remains of Bishop Haygood, followed by a distinguished procession of people including statesmen, educators and ministers, were borne to the college chapel between the long lines of students with uncovered heads," said President Thirkield, the chairman of the day. "But it was a still more impressive incident when, on the previous day, over two score men, with bronzed faces and strong arms, gathered voluntarily in the cemetery and asked the privilege of digging the grave of the departed Bishop, saying they did not want this great friend of 'our brother in black' to lie in a grave that man had been hired to dig."—New York Independent.

I do not see how our church ever got along without a church extension organization. By a little timely help here and there it has, in the thirteen years of its existence, encouraged over 3,000 congregations to build houses for themselves and made their success possible. It has given to the gospel homes in hundreds of places where before it was merely a wayfarer. It has improved to an unspeakable degree by the distribution of selected building plans the architecture of our houses of worship, so that convenient and beautiful churches are rapidly replacing the ugly and uncomfortable "meeting-houses" of two or three decades ago. Our motto is: "A church for every congregation; a parsonage for every pastor."—Rev. D. Morton, D. D.

***

Often we hear of churches making the imperious demand for a minister "who will draw." When put just in that way it always smacks not a little of carnality and worldly pride and a human standard of success. But to take the "drawing" as an accepted bit of church language of to-day, we might well change the demand and let the preacher insist, as his requirement, on having a church that "draws." Let fastidious and exacting church members think of that side of the equation. Are they doing "what in them lies" to win, attract and hold the strangers and the non-church goers, and thus themselves be an influence to "draw?" Who can say the pastor is alone responsible for a "full house" at the time of church worship? Mr. Spurgeon once well said: "It is the minister's duty to fill the pulpit: it is the people's duty to fill the house."—Mid-Continent.

Baton Rouge District.

The Baton Rouge district is moving on finely. We have just finished up the first round; have met each appointment on time. All the preachers were prompt in getting to their charges, and are at their posts, faithfully discharging their duty as ministers of Jesus Christ.

There seems to be general satisfaction on the part of the people and preachers—so much for the wise planning of that faithful man of God, Bro. P. A. Johnston, whose four years of arduous work as presiding elder of this district ended at the last Conference.

We are praying and laboring for a glorious revival in all the charges this year. To this end let all the preachers put forth indefatigable effort.

Centenary College, true to her noble history and unsullied character in the past, is doing a grand work for the Church as well as State. I think I am not mistaken when I say that the moral influence, religious training and intellectual atmosphere of Centenary College is not surpassed by any other religious institution in Christendom. Her president, Dr. Chas. W. Carter, is too well known throughout Methodism and his goodness and greatness too well recognized by all Southern Methodists, and especially Louisiana Methodists, to need mention by this writer. Having the assistance of an able corps of professors, he needs but one thing to enable him to crown Centenary with the glory she richly deserves—that is, the hearty co-operation of Louisiana people and preachers. What Centenary needs is what every other college needs, and must have or fail—money and boys. And when the preachers and people of Louisiana Methodism wake up to their individual responsibilities as regards the Christian education of their boys, then Centenary's treasury will be full of the one and her halls abound with the other. May the great Head of the church move the heart and purse of Louisiana Methodism to old Centenary—glorious, because of her past; glorious, because of what she may and must be in the future.

The District High School (Johnston Institute) at Greensburg, is having a very prosperous beginning. It has enrolled up to date ninety pupils. This school is to be a feeder for Centenary. Their large handsome building will be ready by the time for their commencement exercises. Prof. Ladner, graduate of Centenary College, is principal, assisted by three other able teachers. Bro. G. D. Anders, their agent, is actively engaged securing funds for the new building and students for the schools. But I have written more than I had expected for this time. I will write again. R. W. TUCKER.

Relief of Rev. David Merchant.

Some time since an appeal was made through the ADVOCATE by Rev. R. B. Downer for Bro. Merchant. In response to this appeal I have received the following amounts:

R. Harrison, New Orleans	$10 00
Miss Willie Rinder, Barnett, Miss.	5 00
Dr. Austin, per Rev. G. A. Gnice, Oak Ridge, Miss.	5 00
Collected by Rev R. B Downer, Laurel, Miss.	3 05
Mrs. Barfield, Meridian, Miss	2 50
Carthage Sunday-school, per Rev. W. M. Sullivan	2 15
A Friend, Greenwood, Miss	1 00
Rev. W. W. Hopper	1 50
W. N. White, Lake Providence, La.	1 00
Miss E. Howard, Amerinna, Miss	1 00
Mrs. L. Barton, White, Tenn	1 00
	$33 00

I have paid out $10 for lumber, and Bro. Merchant's boys have the house nearly ceiled. It will take about $15 in addition to that I have received to make the dear old brother's house comfortable. I trust those who have sent the above amounts will accept this as a receipt. F. M. KEEN.

Did You Ever Make Money Easy?

MR. EDITOR.—I have read how Mr. C. E. B. made so much money in the Dish Washer business, and think I have beat him. I am very young yet and have had little experience in selling goods, but have made over eight hundred dollars in ten weeks selling Dish Washers. It is simply wonderful how easy it is to sell them. All you have to do is to show the ladies how they work and they can not help but buy one. For the benefit of others I will state that I got my start from the Mound City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Write to them and they will send you full particulars. I think I can clear over $3,000 the coming year, and I am not going to let the opportunity pass. Try it and publish your success for the benefit of others. J. F. C.

Science Hall, Millsaps College.

I had some fears at first about being able to raise the funds to build the much-needed Science Hall; but I am growing more confident every day. I have received words of encouragement from many broad-minded business men in several parts of the State. And all the preachers have received me so cordially that the work I so much dreaded to undertake is now a real pleasure to pursue. I hope this will be a year of usefulness. T. S. WEST.

Vicksburg District Conference.

According to cordial invitation and authoritative appointment, this body is to convene at Edwards, March 26-29, inclusive. We are expecting a specially interesting and gracious meeting. The signs point that way. Our people extend a hearty greeting to their hospitable homes. More than usual of distinguished "visiting brethren" are expected.

Brethren, first and continually let us pray for the divine presence and power among us. Then, with cheerful hearts and voices, let us join to make the occasion a blessing to each. We need the inspiration of such a meeting. We can have it. Let all arrange to stay over Sunday. It was appointed to embrace a fifth Sunday with this end in view. Don't disappoint us! Get "certificates" at starting points, and you may be able to return for one-third fare. Trains leave Vicksburg, going east at 4 P. M.; leave Jackson, coming west at 9.55 A. M. Local freight, with caboose, leaves Vicksburg (east-bound) at 9 A. M. Any further information gladly given on application.

I hope, your brother,

J. P. DRAKE.

The Greenville District Preachers Association

The Spring session of the association was held at Lula, Miss., March 5 and 6. Eight of the seventeen preachers in the district were present. Some were kept away by sickness. Two came in after adjournment. The heavy rains interfered seriously, but it takes a great deal of rain to make a Methodist preacher back down. He doesn't mind the pouring as much as some other people.

The Fall session is to be held at Shaw. These meetings can be made very profitable. We hope to have a better attendance and a more profitable meeting next Fall.

Rev. J. A. Randolph was elected president; H. P. Crowe, vice-president; R. H. B. Gladney, secretary and treasurer, and J. W. Bell, critic.

E. S. LEWIS.

The New Crawford Street M. E. Church.

W. A. Stanton, architect, has just completed a pen and ink sketch—a very spirited drawing, it may be said—of the front elevation of the new Crawford Street M. E. Church, for which plans were adopted by the church authorities some time ago, and whose construction, it is understood, is now fully decided upon. The sketch in question will be engraved for and published in a forthcoming number of the New Orleans Mechanic, Dealer and Lumberman, and was prepared by Mr. Stanton for that purpose. A copy or two will probably be placed on exhibition in the city also, it is likely, as several photographs will be made.

The reporter had the pleasure of seeing the sketch yesterday. It shows a building of a decidedly Gothic type, with picturesque gables and a very graceful spire; handsomely proportioned, and in all respects an attractive addition to Vicksburg's stateliest edifices. The spire is to be 152 feet in height, towering about 100 feet above the apex of the roof of the building. The edifice will cover an irregular space 105 by 124 feet, and will be built of pressed brick with terra cotta or stone trimmings. It will comprise an auditorium seventy feet square and with a seating capacity of 538 persons, a Sunday-school room capable of seating 276 persons and an infant department for 125 persons. There will also be an Epworth League parlor, pastor's room and choir-room.—Commercial-Herald.

Mistakes in Minutes.

In the ADVOCATE, of March 12, Bro. Hoffpauir calls attention to some errors in his report, as published in the Minutes. As far as the values of church property goes, his statement is correct. The statistical secretary is responsible for the error, and not Bro. Hoffpauir. I do not propose to try to explain how it was made, as it is one of those unexplainable cases.

From the statement of Bro. Hoffpauir in regard to the Minutes reporting Boyce and Colfax circuit as having 15 Sunday-schools it would seem that Dr. Sawyer had gotten out at least two editions of the Minutes for this year, as the copies I have only report 9 schools, and it is clearly seen by the total of only 33 schools for the district that there is an error of six schools somewhere. The originals show the correct number (three) to have been reported by Bro. H. and entered on the statistical secretary's book. It is clearly a typographical error.

There is said to be only one man in the world who claims infallibility, and I am not that man. I will cheerfully take the vow proposed by Bro. Hoffpauir. "I hereby promise the Conference and the whole church that I will be more careful in the future" in filling out my statistical reports, and now I will invite the 116 brethren in charge of appointments in the Louisiana Conference to join with us and let us have statistics that can be relied upon. Some of them need to take this pledge very much. WM. G. EVANS.

A Rare Chance to Make Money!

I am convinced that anyone that will hustle, can make from $10 to $15 a day selling Oilmax Dish Washers. They give such good satisfaction that every family wants one. You can wash and dry the dishes in two minutes, without danger of breaking dishes or without wetting the hands. In the past six months I have cleared over $20 a day without canvassing any; people either come or send for Washers, and my trade is increasing all the time. This business is equally good in country, town or city, and any lady or man can make money anywhere if they will only try. After careful examination I find the Oilmax decidedly the best Dish Washer made. The Oilmax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio, will give you full instructions. Go to work at once and let us hear how you succeed. It is certainly our duty to inform each other of these golden opportunities.

The Latest and Best Dishwasher Out.

The new Mound City Dish Washer, of St. Louis, Mo., that is being placed in the market is, no doubt, the best Dish Washer sold. It operates on truly scientific principles, viz.: Displacement of water with automatic reaction and duplex motion, and is so simple that a child can operate it. It performs its work to perfection, and makes one of the most disagreeable features of house keeping, (that is, washing the dishes), a pleasure. It prevents the chipping and breaking of dishes, and keeps the hands from being reddened and chapped by immersing them in the hot water, the old way of washing dishes. It's a time saver, money saver and dish protector. Its name should be a household word and dear to every American heart. It is being sold in every State and Territory in this country, and every mail brings words of praise to the manufacturers of the Mound City Dish Washer Co., of St. Louis, Mo.

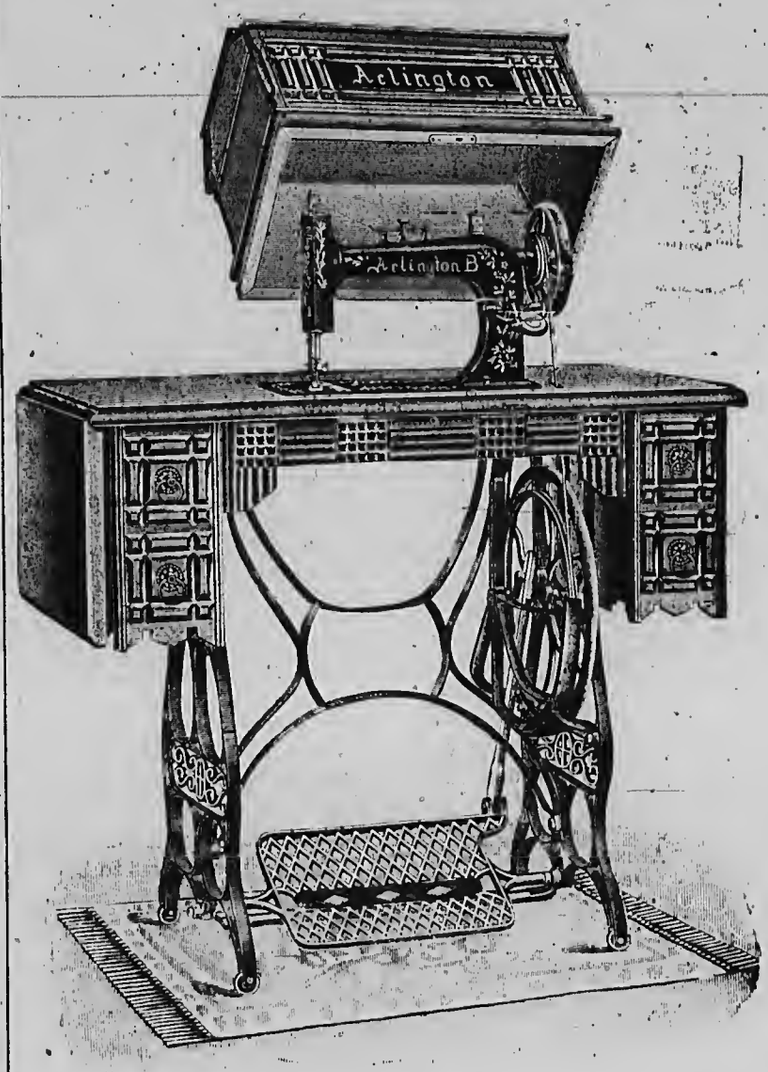
Our Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



"ARLINGTON B."

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take up, convenient foot-rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction hook.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned, and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearings polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—THE "ARLINGTON B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short diagonal and long shank, insuring great strength; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

THE OLD TRUNDLE-BED.

BY JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY.

O, the old trundle-bed where I slept when a boy!
What canopied king might not covet the joy?
The glory and peace of that slumber of mine,
Like a long, gracious rest in the bosom divine;
The quaint, homely couch, hidden close from the light,
But daintily drawn from its hiding-place at night.
O, a nest of delight, from the foot to the head,
Was the queer little, dear little, old trundle-bed!

The stars through the window, and listened with awe
To the sigh of the winds as they tremblingly crept
Through the trees where the robins so restlessly slept;
Where I heard the low, murmurous chirp of the wren,
And the katydid listlessly chirrup again,
Till my fancies grew faint, and were drowsily led Through the maze of the dreams of the old trundle-bed.

O, the old trundle-bed! O, the old trundle-bed!
With its plump little pillow and old-fashioned spread;
Its snowy-white sheets, and the blankets above,
Smoothed down and tucked round with the touches of love;
The voice of my mother to lull me to sleep
With the old fairy stories my memories keep Still fresh as the lilies that bloom o'er the head

Bringing Up.

"No device has ever been invented that will take the place of being brought up."

So pithily said one of our prominent city divines in a recent sermon. And the saying is worthy to be framed and hung up where every day it may come under the eye of the mother. Bringing up is a matter of day by day, week by week, year by year. It is a matter of social and moral atmospheres; it is a matter of example far more than of precept. Right habits must be formed, vicious tendencies checked, high principles implanted, noble impulses fostered, healthy appetites gratified and encouraged. Who is sufficient for these things?

We do not expect a fountain to rise higher than its source, and ought we to expect children to surpass their parents in essential nobility and worth? They may, in consequence of better advantages than their parents enjoyed, surpass their parents in some things, move farther on along the lines that reach upward and forward.

The parent, who would bring up his child aright, must begin with himself, must be, so far as it is in his power, what he wants his child to be, must so lay the tracks along which he wishes his child to move, and adjust the grades he is to climb, as that the tender feet may easily advance along the chosen way, holding the parental hand, cheered by the parental voice, strengthened by the parental example and companionship.

Those parents who make companions of their children, who enter into their sports, their enthusiasms, their ambitions, their hopes, their enterprises, are most successful in giving their children a good bringing up.

May we not congratulate mothers of the middle classes that they are compelled to bring up their own children instead of trusting them to the tender mercies of a hired nurse? A lady who spends a part of every fine day in Central Park, says she can tell by the face of a child, before she glances at its attendant, whether the latter is its mother or not. The mothered child has a serene and happy look, wanting in the face of the nurse-attended child. In its tenderest and most plastic years it is molded and formed by the unhired hand of maternal love and devotion.

"My mother has made life easy for me by the habits she formed in me in my childhood," said an old lady yesterday. "She taught me never to put anything out of my hand without putting it in place. She taught me that 'the right way was the best way and the easiest way.' She abhorred deceit, lying in every shape, company manners, dishonesty, debt, dirt, bad grammar, backbiting, idleness, extravagance, meddling. She loved knowledge, virtue, honor, integrity, honest toil, humanity, the church, the cause of Christ. Her ways were ways of peace."

A good bringing up is a better investment for a child than any amount of money in bank, and the best thing about it is that parents who can put no money in bank can give their children this priceless endowment, and send them out into the world to make their own way, with no capital beyond a good bringing up.—New York Christian Advocate.

In Training.

"That," said a sophomore in one of our colleges to a visitor, "is John Black." He pointed to a wiry, muscular young fellow, who in boating costume was making his way to the riverside. "He is going to take a pull on the stream for an hour. He is completely in the hands of his trainer now."

"He regulates his whole day. John gets out of bed at a certain minute every morning; he exercises with Indian clubs; is rubbed down; runs a couple of miles on the course; takes a cold bath; is rubbed down again, and so on until night. Every mouthful he eats is prescribed by the trainer. The day is strictly divided into hours for exercise, for rest, for bathing, and for work. The life he leads is as hard as the life of a galley-slave."

"Why does he do it?"

"He is to run against the college champion. He must put himself in training if he wants to win the prize."

"What is the prize?"

"A gold medal."

The visitor was also a young man. He did not want to run or jump or row for a prize, but he had a great ambition to live a high, noble, helpful life.

It occurred to him now, that he had not been working so hard to that end as this other boy was working for a gold medal. When his companion left him, he walked on alone, thinking of it, and he made a resolution which may seem fantastic to some of the readers of this article.

He would put his soul in training. Every morning he would give an hour to his Bible, and seek to bring his thoughts and motives into comparison with the thoughts and motives of Christ.

He would then exercise his judgment as this athlete did his body, to make it stronger. For instance, in the circle of his family and friends, his thoughts were likely to be harsh and censorious, for he was naturally a severe judge. But he would compel himself to find some good feature in each character, to think of it, and look at his friends through its kindly light.

The runner gave part of the day to climbing a steep mountain in the neighborhood; he thus gained power and health by the muscular exercise and by breathing purer air than that of the town.

He, too, would try to leave behind the gossip, the trivialities, the coarseness on the dead level of his daily life, and climb to the height of some noble thought, or of some great truth of science.

Moreover, as the daily bath was necessary for the body of the athlete, so must it be for his soul. He would, by self-examination, seek to cleanse it of all the impurities that might originate within, or be gathered by contact with the world from without.

Why, he thought, if this boy puts his body in such severe training to gain a coveted honor in his college life, shall I not train my soul to win a life that is gentle and true and merciful, and that takes hold of the "life that is to come."—Youth's Companion.

Keep a Clean Mouth

A distinguished author says, "I resolved, when I was a child, never to use a word which I could not pronounce before my mother." He kept his resolution, and became a pure-minded, noble, honored gentleman. His rule and example are worthy of imitation.

Boys readily learn a class of low, vulgar words and expressions which are never heard in respectable circles. Of course, we can not think of girls as being so much exposed to this peril. We can not imagine a decent girl using words she would not utter before her father or mother.

Such vulgarity is thought by some boys to be "smart," the "next thing to swearing," and yet "not so wicked;" but it is a habit which leads to profanity, and fills the mind with evil thoughts. It vulgarizes and degrades the soul, and prepares the way for many of the gross and fearful sins which now corrupt society.

Young readers, keep your mouths free from all impurity, and your "tongue from evil;" but in order to do this, ask Jesus to cleanse your heart, and keep it clean, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."—The Christian.

How to Make Mother Happy.

"Why, mother, how bright and cheerful you look to-night! What has happened?"

"I feel very happy, my dear, because my little boy has really tried to be good all day. Once, when his sister teased him, and he spoke quickly and crossly to her, he turned around a moment after of his own accord, and said he was wrong, and asked her to forgive him. I believe I should grow young, and never look tired or unhappy again, if every day my little boy and girl were as thoughtful, unselfish, and loving as they have been to-day."

Here's a grand secret for you, little one; and now that you know how to make mother happy, may you keep her face always full of sunshine!

The happy hour of the day should be the hour of going to bed. The mother who feels it her duty to correct a child's fault, should find another time to do it than the time of the good-night kiss and the good-night prayer. Never send a little child sobbing to bed. Let the bed-time hour be the mother's hour for the little talk, the story, the cuddling and kissing which the children love.—Richmond Advocate.

HYGIENE.

Importance of Pure Air.

The season of colds, at least the season accepted as such, begin upon us, it is well to remind ourselves that the best authorities ascribe the prevalence of these distempers to bad indoor air rather than to severe outdoor air. "Cold air," says a writer in a recent magazine, "does not cause throat and lung diseases, but only bad air." The fact that there is a marked increase in these diseases during cold weather he fits to his theory by declaring that such disorders are produced, not by the cold air, but by the indoor life that accompanies the season.

"An open fire in every living room in every house," says another enthusiast on the same subject of ventilation, "would do more to lower the death rate from respiratory diseases than any medication or other existing remedial agency." Barring this, he urges frequent airing of rooms constantly occupied, but also insists that the ventilation be done on principles of common sense. "Steam-heated rooms," pursues his carping critic, "particularly in apartments, usually reach a temperature of eighty degrees. This, I may say, is a mild statement. Any persons living in such places endure this greater heat until it becomes intolerable, and then throw windows open recklessly. The temperature is lowered too suddenly, a chill is sure to follow, and often serious mischief. Why not take the pains with our own lives that a florist does with his plants? The air in a greenhouse is regulated by a thermometer and kept even and pure without a sudden chill or overheating. It is the high temperature and bad air of our houses that has made us a race of catarrhal wheezers, and not at all, I believe, climatic conditions. —New York Times.

Self-Interest and Temperance.

Self-interest, or selfishness, is often an important factor in progress. This is so in regard to temperance. An intemperate man finds usually great difficulty in getting a position where he can earn a living. The railroad companies do not want him, for he might, when under the influence of liquor, wreck a train. Large corporations, banks and similar institutions will not employ a man whose intemperance is noticeable, because he can not do his work so well. Few things are more annoying to a good business man than to have around him an employee who incapacitates himself from drink. In manufacturing establishments when labor is scarce, they often employ the least competent for a time, and thus a man who is intemperate may often get work, but when the demand slackens, these are the first to be discharged. The great army of tramps which abounds in our country are, or have been, mainly of this class. Total abstainers stand a far better chance than the intemperate of being kept at work, even during hard times, when employers must do it with disadvantage to themselves. Thus may we see that self-interest, or selfishness, may act as a mighty lever in promoting progress.—Journal of Hygiene.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

VIRGINIA MOLASSES CAKE.—Cream one cup of butter and one cup of sugar, add three eggs well-beaten, one tablespoonful each of ginger, cinnamon, and powdered cloves, one cup of molasses and two cups of flour. Just before putting into the pan, dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in one-half cup of sour cream, buttermilk, or cream, stir this into the batter. Bake in a modern oven about an hour. Served with cream it makes a very nice dessert.

PRUNE AND TAPIOCA PUDDING.—Soak one-half cup tapioca over night. In the morning cook until transparent in just water enough to prevent burning. Stew two cups of well-washed prunes in one quart of water. Add the juice of one lemon and two tablespoons of sugar. Boil until the syrup becomes thick and rich. Turn the prunes into a pudding dish and cover with cooked tapioca, seasoned with grated lemon rind. Bake and serve without dressing, or with cream and sugar.

Rev. Joe Wells.

Bro. Wells was never calculatious nor puffed up. He was as humble as the poorest in property and intellect. His stalwart frame served him well in his daily vocation of farming. He often, even in the later part of his life, held the plow handles himself, always producing an abundance.

His preaching was of high order, attracting large audiences of all denominations. He was a Methodist, believing in the creeds and doctrines of his church, and he was especially strong in the defense of them; and whilst his education had not been in the ancient languages, to be applied to the interpretations of the Scriptures, he applied that great, good common sense of which he was so strongly endowed. His arguments were always attractive and forcible. He was recognized as one of the ablest defenders of the doctrines of the church. His thorough preparation, his keen satire, his logic, his repartee, made him a strong debater, and in the many discussions with able divines of other churches his defense of his own church ritual was satisfactory to himself and his church. He was on all occasions relied upon to defend his church. Col. Wells' sermons, not on controverted points, were able and exhaustive, and should be preserved in print; but as he always spoke extemporaneous, it will be impossible to collect them.

When the tocsin of war was sounded, he left the plow handles and the pulpit, and girded on his sword, and from Fort Donaldson to Selma at Greensboro, N. C., he was ever at his post. His stalwart frame, his powerful voice, filled him for a commander.

Col. Wells, in my opinion, was one of the greatest men that this country has ever produced.—J. M. Bynum, in Prentiss County News.

HIGGINS—Early on Friday morning, Dec. 20, 1895, after a night of wind and rain, the sun rose bright, bathing the earth with its warm light. One ray entered through the window of the grief-stricken room, and rested like an angel's hand on the tired brow of our dear friend, Mrs Sarah Higgins, ere her spirit was borne across the bright crystal sea to find the loved ones gone before waiting to welcome her on that beautiful shore and to bear her to the great white throne with an anthem of praise and thanksgiving swelled by the celestial host until the whole heavens are filled with the shout of glory.

Mrs Sarah Higgins was born May 6, 1828, of respectable parentage; was removed to this State at an early age by her parents; was married to John Higgins on Front Creek, Catahoula parish, May 25, 1845; was for many years a member of the Methodist Church, and discharged her duty consistently as a faithful member. She was a devoted wife, a fond mother, a true friend as well as a kind, efficient nurse in sickness, and it was the faithful discharge of these duties that rendered her loss irreparable in the community. She leaves a large circle of affectionate relatives and friends to lament the bereavement. Even now the tears of sorrow dim my eyes as I think of her quiet, gentle kindness. It is a sad consolation to the dear ones left behind to know they were all with her at the last, even the youngest grandchild, and being perfectly conscious, kissing each loved one goodby, asking them to meet her in her Father's house, where parting is unknown.

She bore her long and painful illness with patience and fortitude, despite the zealous and faithful efforts of her medical attendants, and loving care of the family and friends, who were ever ready with willing hands to attend to her every want. There is a darkened home and a vacant chair.

A Friend, H. S.

WIMBERLY—Mrs. Mary A. Wimberly was born in Orangeburg district, S. C., Jan. 8, 1824. She came to Mississippi with her parents when a child, and at a very early age she professed religion and joined the M. E. Church at Shiloh, Rankin county, Miss., of which she remained a worthy, consistent member till the time of her death, which occurred Feb. 4, 1896.

Sister Wimberly was the mother of six children, three of whom, and her husband, I. O. J. Wimberly, survive her. She was a loving wife, a precious mother, a good neighbor, and devoted Christian woman. She loved God, the preachers, and the church; and while she made no loud professions of religion, her humble Christian walks led all that knew her to love her and regard her as a genuine servant of God.

Sister Wimberly has been in feeble health for several years, and at the Shiloh Camp Meeting, in October last, she remarked that she was holding herself in readiness to meet the summons whenever it pleased the Master to send it. Having been a faithful servant of God, he did not allow her to suffer long nor severely, nor to pass through the dark valley alone. She became ill on Sunday, and died Tuesday following. She was not under the influence of opiates, but in her right mind, and perfectly conscious to the last breath. Before leaving she called those of her family and friends present around her, told them good-by, and left a good-by for those who were not present, requesting them all to be good Christians and meet her in heaven. She told them that she had crossed the dark waters, and now all was bright. She gave directions concerning her funeral, selected Hyma 601, quoted two stanzas of it as expressive of her feelings, and named the preacher to conduct the exercises. As she was passing away she told those around her that she saw the Savior; that he was extending his arms and beckoning her to come to him. In her last moments she exclaimed, "Oh, how bright!" and when asked what was so bright, she answered, "The Savior."

Thus passed away from the walks of life a noble Christian woman, leaving in the minds and hearts of those who knew her renewed evidence of the fact that God does not forsake his faithful children, nor leave them comfortless in the dark valley of the shadow of death.

McGAVOCK Whereas, Mrs. David H McGavock, foreign secretary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, M. E. Church, South, has, in the infinite wisdom and mercy of God, been called to the reward that awaits the faithful; And, whereas, Our beloved sister has, during the period of seventeen beautiful, progressive years, with wonderful skill, never-failing devotion, and invincible faith, made and carried out successfully large plans for woman's work for women and children in China, Mexico, Brazil, and the Indian Territory; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, the members of the W. F. M. Society of West End Church, Meridian, Miss., assembled to-day, bow in humble submission to God's will, knowing that our loss is her eternal gain.

Resolved, That we feel keenly her loss, realizing that her place will be hard to fill, owing to her splendid achievements and invaluable service rendered the cause of missions.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to her sorrowing loved ones.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Nashville and New Orleans Christian Advocates for publication.

GRAY—Resolutions of New Salem Sabbath-school, Sunflower county, Miss., in memory of Mr. T. B. Gray:

Whereas, Death has removed from our fellowship and association on earth our beloved brother, Bradford Gray; And, whereas, Bradford was one of our most zealous and highly esteemed members; And, whereas, New Salem Sabbath-school feel it their duty to pass resolutions in memory of their beloved brother; therefore, be it

Resolved, That by the death of Bradford Gray, New Salem Sabbath-school suffers a deep loss of one we loved.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to his aged parents, and his brothers and sisters, and pray that the Spirit of God may fill the vacancy in their hearts.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes, and a copy be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

The name of Jesus is not only light, but also food. It is likewise oil, without which all the food of the soul is dry; it is salt, unseasoned by which whatever is presented to us is insipid; it is honey in the mouth, melody in the ear, joy in the heart, medicine to the soul; and there are no charms in any discourse in which his name is not heard.—Bernard.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D., Brooklyn, New York, in the "New York Evangelist:" "Of all Bibles yet issued in our country, the most superb in execution and completeness of contents is the 'Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teacher's Bible.' Sabbath-school teachers will find this elegant volume a little library of information in itself."

REV. ALVAH HOVEY, D. D., President of and Professor in, the Baptist Theological Seminary, Newton Centre, Mass.: "It pleases me very greatly. I regard the help which it affords to a correct pronunciation of Scripture proper names as doubling the value of the edition. I trust the book will be received as it deserves to be."

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25 (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to March, 97. (A little later it will be April, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2 45.

THE DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

Contains 1024 large octavo pages printed on excellent paper, is finely illustrated, and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth, measuring 9¼x6¼x2 inches.

It contains every name in the Bible and Apochrypa, of which anything can be said. It gives an account of each of the Books of the Bible; it explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs of the Jews, as well as of the various nations mentioned or alluded to in the Scriptures, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves, and worthy of separate publication.

It embraces the results of the most successful and approved Biblical labors and researches, including those of Layard, Rawlinson and others condensed for wide and common use, and constituting an indispensable aid to Ministers, Teachers, Families, Sunday-School Superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

This is undoubtedly the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The publisher's price of the above work is $4.50. We will send it to any address on receipt of price, or we will send it free to any person who will send us two new cash subscribers at the regular rate.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

REV. W. C. BLACK, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF SAINT PAUL.

By the Rev. W. J. CONYBEARE, M. A., Late Fellow of Trinity College; Cambridge; and the Rev. J. S. Howson, D. D., Principal of the Collegiate Institution, Liverpool.

Contains 1014 large octavo pages, many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc., is printed on the same quality of paper and is the same in size as Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and bound in uniform style.

It eloquently portrays the early Life, education, conversion, teachings, labors, travels, sufferings, perils, persecutions, and missionary career of St. Paul, thus constituting a Living Picture of the great Apostle himself and of the circumstances by which he was surrounded.

The work also embodies the results of a profound and appreciative study of the true inner life of St. Paul exhibited in his letters which delineate the motives which impelled, and the faith which sustained him in all the troubles and sorrows of his twenty year's conflict, and from which we learn what is told of Paul by Paul himself, and which will continue to live upon the lips and in the hearts of all the faithful until the final consummation of all things.

It is NOT an ABRIDGEMENT but an EXACT RE-PRINT of the greatly improved "People's Edition," prepared with much care and labor, in pursuance of an original plan of both writers, "for a wider circle of readers," and differs from all other editions by the SUBSTITUTION OF ENGLISH for the Greek, Latin and German quotations.

Dr. Howson in his preface to this edition says,—"Those readers have, throughout, been kept in view who, though well educated, would not find it easy to refer to Greek or German books." "The text (he also says) is unaltered, with the exception of a slight verbal change suggested in the course of a thorough re perusal."

The publisher's price of the above book is $4.50. We will send it free of charge to any person who will send us two new cash subscribers with the cash—$4 00. We will also send it to any address at the publisher's price.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Capt. W. I. Hodgson, the president of the Board of Auctioneers, and a citizen who had many progressive movements, died in this city last week.

Small-pox, which at one time threatened to become epidemic in this city, has decreased largely during the past week. During the past week about 3,000 persons were vaccinated in this city.

An anti-cigarette law has been passed by the Legislature of Iowa. The bill prohibits both the manufacture and sale of cigarettes and cigarette paper except by jobbers for use outside the State.

Senator Hawley has made a favorable report on the bill authorizing the Secretary of War to issue Springfield rifles to each State and Territory for the national guards thereof, in exchange for other rifles now held by them.

The movement recently started in Massachusetts in favor of raising a monument in honor of the late Gen. Benjamin F. Butler has provoked strong opposition. Citizens have been prepared for signatures protesting against the project.

The Alabama coal operators have effected a deal with the Southern railway for the permanent occupation of the immense coal market among the Mississippi river sugar plantations south of Greenville. There is now used in that section a million and a half tons of coal annually.

In aid of the cutters who are now out on a strike in Chicago, 8,000 Chicago union garment workers, on March 12, declared a sympathetic strike. This vast body of workers will necessarily be joined by many more, for whom there will be no work during the idleness of the cutters and tailors.

The conference committee on the Mississippi Senate Capitol bill failed to agree both as to cost and location, and the conference of each house has asked to be discharged. The Senate wants $1,000,000, and favors the penitentiary site, containing an eight-acre square, for the location. The House favors $550,000 and the present location.

A perforated bullet for which great destructive power is claimed has just been finished by an inventor at Anderson, Ind. The bullet has a hole one-eight of an inch in diameter bored from the front end almost through its entire length. This air chamber, the inventor says, gathers air under strong pressure, caused by the rapid flight of the bullet, and the air expanding, when the bullet finds its mark, causes an explosion of great destructive force.

FOREIGN.

It is said that the Spanish troops in Cuba are shooting women and children.

Miss Frances Willard is going to England to assist Lady Somerset in her reform work there.

It is reported that the Emperor of Austria and the Emperor of Germany will meet King Humbert of Italy at Genoa in a few days.

The Shah of Persia has accepted an invitation to be present at the coronation of the Czar, and will take along his son and heir to present him to the ruler of all the Russias.

The details of Emperor William's Mediterranean trip are still kept secret, but it is understood that he will join the imperial yacht, "Hohenzollern," at Genoa, where his majesty may meet the Emperor of Austria and King Humbert.

Germany throughout the week has been visited by snow storms and heavy rains, and as a result there are floods almost everywhere in the northeast and center parts of the country. There has been much damage, and telegraphic and telephonic communication has been frequently interrupted.

There now appears to be no longer any doubt that Great Britain is about to send another expedition into the Soudan. The ostensible purpose of this expedition is to render the Southern Egyptian boundary more secure and incidentally to create a diversion in favor of the Italians operating in Abyssinia.

Inquiries made at the United States embassy in London confirm the report that the Secretary of State for the Home Department, Sir Matthew White Ridley, has refused to reopen the case of Mrs. Florence Maybrick, the American sentenced to imprisonment for life, after having been convicted of poisoning her husband.

It is said, in connection with the reopened Egyptian question, that the British government consulted and obtained the approval of a majority of the powers before deciding upon the advance on Dongola. This makes the Soudan campaign of far-reaching political importance in its bearing upon Great Britain's relations with the European powers.

Out of the terrible storm of popular anger which swept over Italy when the news of the defeat of the army under Gen Baratieri reached there little remains but a feeling of great resentment against the Italian commander. All rioting has ceased. The reserves who fled from the country sooner than go to Africa at the call of the government are returning, and it is not believed any steps will be taken to punish them.

Impoverished Blood causes that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, giving new life and increased vigor and vitality.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to March, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

BY REV. HENRY H. ARRENS.

Theme for Prayer Meeting.

CHRIST IN TEMPTATION: TO PRESUMPTION.

1. Temptation.

(1) Temptation is not sin. Their liberated presentation may illustrate a source of spiritual danger, but we are not responsible for same.

(2) Actual sin sets in when we consciously yield to the temptation to do wrong. Said Dr. Krummacher: "We can not prevent birds flying over our heads; but we need not permit them to build nests in our hair." Said permission is sin.

(3) Though the sin to which we were tempted may never be committed. Willingness to commit same is tantamount to actual committal. Yielding is sin.

2. Tempting Christ, Satan quotes Scripture. He is perfectly familiar with the contents of the Bible.

(1) Mere knowledge of divine revelation does not operate remedially. Though said knowledge is necessary, it is compliance with the behests of the Bible which secures spiritual life.

(2) Among these behests the chief are: Repentance and faith in Christ.

3. In resisting Satan's tempting suggestion, to cast himself from the pinnacle of the temple, Christ, too quotes Scripture, teaching thereby that preconceived designs should not go begging for scriptural support; but that the Scripture should create and model the design.

(1) One short Saxon monosyllable will always frustrate Satan's wicked designs. It is "No!"

(2) When tempted to touch the intoxicating bowl, to participate in Sunday excursions, to attend a dance, the theatre, circus, etc., simply say, No! and the victory is won.

Men of all professions and trades, ministers, lawyers, merchants and mechanics, unite in indorsing Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the old reliable cure for all bronchial and pulmonary troubles, as the best household remedy in the market.

DIVINE PROVIDENCE.

BY OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

Thou wilt not hold in scorn the child who dares
Look up to thee, the Father dares to ask
More than thy wisdom answers. From thy hand
The worlds were cast; yet every leaflet claims
From that same hand its little shining sphere
Of star-lit dew; thine image, the great sun,
Girt with his mantle of tempestuous flame,
Glares in mid-heaven; but to his noontide blaze
The slender violet lifts its lidless eye,
And from his splendor steals its fairest hue,
Its sweetest perfume from the scorching fire.

Faith Must Be Genuine—Ought to Be Correct.

It is wonderful to see how deeply some old questions are rooted in the public mind. When people get set a certain way while they are young, it is almost impossible to change them when they are old. If they are set right, this is a good thing; but if set wrong, it is an evil thing—any way, it is one of the laws of the human mind. This fact—for fact it is—greatly increases the fearful responsibility of parents and others who have the care and training of the young. They are doing work that will last for a life-time—yea, throughout the eternal years. There are, comparatively, few men or women that ever get entirely free from a wrong bent or bias of their earlier years. Notwithstanding the freedom of the human will and the natural depravity of the human heart, the good impressions made, and the sound principles instilled, in childhood remain through life. They are not forgotten, are not lost. They abide as the permanent heritage of the life.

Among the people, generally, not one in a thousand of those reared under Calvinistic teaching and influence ever become thorough Arminians, and the same is true of those brought up under Arminian instruction—they do not, and can not, see through Calvinistic glasses. This fact ought to make us liberal and kindly towards the views and feelings of other people. They do not, and can not, see some things through our glasses.

Many good people are incapable of making or of appreciating an argument on any question, specially so if the argument is contrary to their preconceived opinions and life-long prejudices. You may talk a man of this kind down, may confound him with argument till he can not open his lips, and he holds the same opinion still. What views he holds on some questions were ground into him, and they are a part of himself. The man would have to be made over, to begin a baby, and be reared again under other influences, to change his views; and, even then, he might inherit a Calvinistic or an Arminian bent of mind. It is a great thing to come of a long line, and to be reared in a home where there are convictions and a firm belief in Christian doctrines. All this lays the foundation for, and goes into the building of, character. Strong men and women are made in this way, and there is good hope for still stronger men and women in the generations to come.

The fact herein stated, or hinted at, accounts largely for the strong convictions of many good people on the doctrine of baptism—the mode, design, and subjects of baptism. What they believe they took in with their mother's milk and mother's talk in infancy and childhood. They believe this or that because they were taught that way. They could not state the question, could not reason on it, could not give a scriptural reason for their faith—they believe it just because they believe it, and that is an end of it. This is just as true of some Methodists as it is of some Baptists. This ought to make Methodist people generous towards Baptists, and Baptists liberal and kindly towards Methodists. The earnestness and honesty of people on some subjects is no proof of correctness. Indeed, one's faith may be genuine and not correct, or correct and not genuine. It is genuine faith that saves. In the nature of the case, it is genuine faith that saves, and it is well for it to be correct, too. It must be genuine; it ought to be correct.

This accounts for the fact that many, very many, good people hold many incorrect views of Scripture doctrine. In the one thing that saves, all are agreed, come in the same way, by the same door. This one thing is the genuineness of faith. As for the correctness of faith, why, that is another matter. This depends on many things—on education, training, associations, intellectual ability, on a knowledge of Scripture and systematic theology, on preconceived opinions, on prejudices, and other things. A genuine faith is known by its fruits, by holy living. A correct faith is known by the creed it holds or writes. The one has to do with the living and the life; the other with the views, theories and doctrines held and taught.

This accounts for the fact that there are thousands and tens of thousands of good, godly men and women in churches that, according to your view and mine, are almost, or entirely, heretical on some great doctrines of God's Holy Word. If one is living, or striving to live, an upright, godly life, I want to give him my hand and bid him God-speed, no matter how far off he may be on some points very dear to me.

GILDEROY.

Rev. T. B. Hargrove.

Thomas Bressie Hargrove, oldest son of Capt. W. H. and Mrs. Savella B. Hargrove, was born in Lowndes county, Miss., Feb. 4, 1849, and died in his pulpit at Coldwater, Miss., Jan. 26, 1896. About the age of sixteen he entered the high school at Green Springs, Ala., where he spent three years under Prof. Tutwiler. From there he went to the State University, Mississippi, where he spent three years, graduating in June, 1871. On Feb. 4, 1873, he was married to Miss Mary Lipscomb, oldest daughter of Dr. W. L. Lipscomb, of Columbus, Miss. He was licensed to preach at Artesia, Miss., Dec. 1, 1888; admitted into traveling connection of North Mississippi Conference on trial, at Starkville, December, 1888; ordained deacon at Grenada, Miss., Dec. 14, 1890, by Bishop Galloway; ordained elder at Corinth, Dec. 4, 1892, by Bishop Granbery. His first pastoral charge was Pleasant Grove, Sardis district, where he remained one year; then Greenwood, Winona district, where he remained three years; from thence to Sardis, and at the close of the third year there was sent to Hernando and Coldwater, Sardis district, where his labors ended.

In childhood and manhood Bro. Hargrove's life was above reproach. As a boy, he was a positive denial to what a great many people think an absolute necessity—that is, that a boy must sow his wild oats. He never sowed any, and, thank God! he had none to reap. He never learned to drink, swear, or use tobacco; neither was he guilty of any other sin common to boys, but was pure and good, loving and obedient to his parents, gentle and kind to all around him. He was a model boy, and had the love and confidence of the entire family and community. He was converted in boyhood, but could never perfectly recall the time and place. Never a doubt was entertained as to the fact, showing us very plainly that, no matter what the disposition may be, or how far preventing grace may go, there is still the necessity of being born again.

Bro. Hargrove served the church as a private member, as a steward, and as Sunday-school superintendent, and into each position he carried all the force of his noble Christian manhood. The local church he served loved, respected and admired him for what he was, as well as for what he did.

As a man, he was universally beloved by all classes of men; so gentle, so considerate of others, so full of sympathy to those in trouble, that everyone was drawn to him. In the home, he was all that a husband, father and brother could be; ever tender, thoughtful, and unselfish.

As a Christian, he represented and beautifully set forth the divine characteristics of love as depicted in I. Cor. xiii. 4–7. God planted this love in his heart, and unto this he added those graces set forth by Peter (second epistle, first chapter, fifth, sixth, and seventh verses). These traits of character were exerted by him everywhere—in his own home, in the social circle, in his general deportment, and in all his associations with his fellow-man. This is not saying too much of him.

Bro. Hargrove was called of God to the work of the ministry when quite a boy. He would have been the last man in the world to take this ministry upon himself without a direct, unmistakable call from God. There were two things which kept him from yielding at once to the call. First, his father died, leaving a large family and an estate with heavy debts on his hands. Only those who have passed through similar experiences know what this meant to him. Suffice it to say that he came out with a clear conscience, a stalwart faith, a spotless character, and money enough to get to his first appointment—a stock in trade that men can't buy, neither devils take away. Second, his extreme modesty also prevented him from going into the work sooner. He was the most humble man I ever knew. After yielding to the call to preach, it was his fixed purpose to go to some destitute region of the West, not because he wanted to leave his native State, but because he thought there were no people here he was capable of instructing, and he also desired to get where no one knew him; and but for the interposition of his pastor, he would have gone West.

Bro. Hargrove ranked among the best preachers of his Conference. Though late in starting, he adjusted himself to his calling with wonderful rapidity, and developed real pulpit power. He was thoroughly educated, yet there was never any effort at display. No one would ever have known from his sermons that he was familiar with the languages. At times he was truly eloquent; his heart full of the love of God, his face radiant with the light of heaven, and his whole being thrown into his subject. It was an eloquence that reached the hearts of men, and moved them towards God and a better life. A classmate of his once said: "Bro. Tom is afraid to get off anything great, for fear some one will compliment him." Yet all his sermons were great—great in simplicity and deep spirituality. The children understood him. He was finely adapted to the Methodist pulpit, and Methodist theology suited him. In fact, all his preaching was the outgrowth of two great thoughts that ran all through his life—the fatherhood of God and the universal brotherhood of man. He delighted in these themes, which gave him an opportunity of holding up Jesus Christ as the only Savior of men. No one could attend upon his ministry without being deeply impressed with the fact that he was in earnest, and that that earnestness was the result of his fervent love to God and his fellow-man. He won for himself the reputation of being a good pastor; naturally social, genial, large-hearted, and intelligent. He was at home among the wealthy members of his flock. Kind, sympathetic, and loving, he could bind the poor to him with cords of love that will never be severed. How far his gifts in this direction extended nobody knows but those who have followed him in the pastorate. His people never tire of telling of his ministries of love. Every department of church work prospered under his care. Sinners were converted, saints edified and strengthened in everything that pertains to life and godliness.

His death was a suitable closing scene for such a life. Having been at his new field of labor long enough to start everything upward, needing no further preparation, he left his congregation for heaven with the parting exhortation, "Have faith in the Lord Jesus Christ." Could he have known this was his last sermon, he could not have chosen a more appropriate text, for all who knew him in life can testify that "he kept the faith."

Beautiful life, glorious death; one moment preaching Christ to lost sinners, the next singing the song of Moses and the Lamb with the redeemed in heaven.

H. P. GRAVES.

Correspondence.

Letter from Chattanooga, Tenn.

BY REV. CHAS. F. EVANS, D. D.

MR. EDITOR: The fact that I am housed, nursing a bad cold, furnishes me the long-coveted opportunity of dropping you a promised letter. I am surprised to find myself so far from Louisiana, and would feel very lonely but for the weekly visits of your paper, the copy of last Louisiana Conference Minutes, furnished by Dr. Sawyer's courtesy, and the company of Dr. F. A. Grace and Edgar McVoy, formerly of Louisiana; my whilom friend, Dr. Henry D. Moore, of the Alabama Conference, and now and then old friends from Mississippi, Louisiana, and Arkansas.

This, the Holston Conference, is the home of Dr. E. E. Hoss and Dr. W. G. E. Cunnyngham, our Nashville celebrities, and the birth- and burial-place of Drs. W. G. E. Munsey, E. E. Wiley, and Jno. McTeer, of great renown among us. Our last "Annual" reports 217 preachers, and nearly 53,000 members, about $5,000 for foreign and $4,000 for domestic missions, and $1,600 for church extension. The map tells me that this is a very mountainous country, some four or five mountain ranges running parallel with the Atlantic, and I draw the inference that nearly every grade of arable land and change of climate obtains, with a preponderance for extreme rigor in Winter, and rather impracticable soil. It is in the belt which geographers and tourists pronounce the paradise of this continent for beauty, health, and productions, both agricultural and mineral.

The city of Chattanooga nestles between mountain ranges which completely invest it, and which furnish the most beautiful views my eye ever rested on. Tourists from our own land and Europe, who visit us frequently, unhesitatingly say that nothing they have ever seen in Italy, Switzerland, or the Rhine, equal the views delivered by Lookout Mountain for majesty, picturesqueness and suggestions of both natural and political grandeur.

This is about the real center of Southern Methodism. The sea in Virginia, Maryland, the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, or Louisiana, or the Mississippi river in Tennessee, Kentucky, or Missouri, is not more than twelve hours' run from this point, and eleven lines of railway furnish us easy access to any point on the periphery. Centenary Church, which I serve, is a beautiful structure without and within, as the young Leaguers here last Summer found out, and has a membership of about 900 members, 150 of whom have been added this Conference year. It is worth visiting us just to look into the faces of the magnificent congregations which weekly assemble there. It is no leisurely office to look after the spiritual interests of this mass of immortals, and I can assure you I have no use for slippers and a morning gown. My buggy goes rapidly from morning till night, and every nightfall finds me behindhand with every kind of work. But I and my family are healthy, happy, and, thank the precious Savior! successful in our work; and if I am frequently tired, I sleep and eat well. This, I reckon, is all my friends care to know of a personal nature.

The spiritual condition of this city is at a higher level than I ever saw before. I do not mean to say that all varieties and grades of crime are not to be found here (though I think in less quantities than in other places where I have lived), nor that the entire membership of our church have attained even the "first blessing." Some, I fear, never had this; and some who did, have lost it just as everywhere else; nor that any church enterprise undertaken goes without pushing or pulling, but more people are accessible to religion. You do not find the subject of personal religion resisted in conversation either by contradiction or evasion in the homes of the rich or poor. People seem eager to talk of their personal relation to Christ, and anxious to hear what they must do to be saved. Some of the most notorious and audacious sinners of this section have been recently converted in meetings held by laymen, and have become the most enthusiastic and self-denying workers for salvation of others—converting their saloons and gambling "pens" into preaching-places. We do not need, nor is there a disposition to call in the aid of evangelists or specialists; nor is there the use of their methods in revival work. The gospel is preached without extraneous sensation, in the old-time way, and sinners are being converted like they were forty years ago. The Holy Spirit is in advance of the preachers, as I have seen the people, and we have only to state the plain gospel, and urge it upon them lovingly and firmly, to find them yielding and subservient. A physician of celebrity recently telephoned one of my stewards to come to his office, and, when there, informed him that he had been converted, and "at that desk I knelt and gave my heart to Christ." Very recently my League conducted a series of services, at each of which I was present, and concluded with an exhortation, or short sermon, which resulted in thirty to forty conversions, and twenty-five accessions to the church. My design was primarily to drill the young people for steady and constant work of this nature, and my purpose is to repeat these public exercises at short intervals.

This reminds me to say that Tennessee is getting into line with the organization of a State League Conference. You may imagine the proportions when you recollect that there are three Annual Conferences in the State whose church rolls aggregate 175,000 members. Your correspondent opens the grand convention with a devotional service on the twenty-eighth proximo in Nashville, and we expect from the Holy Spirit the anointing and guidance for a larger, better approved and more successful work than ever in our history. The young people, like mettled steeds upon a frosty morning, seem to drink in the inspiration for work, and to be restive till they are allowed to pursue it. Surely the Holy Spirit is moving upon the reapers to put in the sickle where he has ripened the harvest.

Without the Bible.

BY H. L. HASTINGS.

But some skeptics claim that the Bible is a great burden upon humanity, a yoke of bondage, and a hindrance to progress. Let me ask you to look over this whole inhabited earth, which is now open to the explorer, and tell me where you can live in peace and quietness, with property secure and family life sacred, education possible, society civilized, old age reverenced, and infancy protected, unless the Bible has gone there before you to make such a state of things possible. And when you find that place, if you think you would like to go there, we will wish you good-speed. But, in fact, there is no such place on the face of the earth, and skeptics are in no hurry to find a home beyond the reach of Christian influences. I notice they like to live beneath the shadow of the church spire, and in lands enlightened by the Bible, where they can curse the minister, and swear at the deacons, and abuse the church. But if they are so distressed by these things, they can easily escape from them. You can go to Gibraltar, and from there in three hours you can cross to where the Bible will not trouble you. You will not find Bibles, or churches, or Sunday-schools, or Christian Associations; neither will you find a carriage there, except one state carriage sent by Her Majesty, the Queen, as a present. You will not be likely to find even a wheelbarrow. You might ride a donkey, and be thankful for the privilege. You will not find a mill to grind corn there, except one that a Christian Englishman has introduced. But you will find ignorance and slavery, and men and women bearing the marks of oppression, degradation, and cruelty.

In the Living Present.

Twenty-five years ago a man worth twenty thousand dollars died in Los Angeles, Cal., intestate. The heirs could not agree, and appealed to the court. Only recently the case has been finally decided. Court and lawyer's fee amounted to nineteen thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine dollars and sixty cents. Remained for the heirs forty cents. But in the meantime all the heirs had died.

The Benedictine distillery in Fecamp, France, destroyed by fire a few years ago, has been rebuilt and formally opened with religious ceremonies, the Archbishop of Rouen, Surrien, officiating. In Pennsylvania the Benedictines brew beer; in France they distill whisky.

Since the fall of Khartoum and the death of General Gordon the Mahdists have been dominating in the country of the Upper Nile—part of Egypt—with a high hand. Though the Mahdi is dead, his successor, Osman Digma, is no less fanatical and aggressive. Recently the Mahdists made common cause with the Abyssinians. Hence the defeat of Italy in Abyssinia endangers England's claim in Egypt.

In a provincial town of France an actress of questionable reputation died. Though a Catholic, the parish priest refused to officiate at her grave. Indignant, a fellow-actor agreed to take the priest's part. He succeeded in carrying out the program until he was to have "said" the Lord's Prayer. Here he broke down. He had forgotten the prayer.

"Memento mori!" One-fourth of the human family die before the age of seven years is reached. One-half die before seventeen Summers have passed. Of a hundred, only six persons attain to the age of sixty years. Of five hundred persons, there is only one octogenarian. The average age of man is thirty-eight years.

The Babst and Schlitz Brewing Associations have agreed to build and endow an industrial school for negroes in Tallahatchie county, Miss. The enterprise is entirely secular. But even though a church were interested, what of it? The devil's possessions are acquired by robbery. There is certainly no harm in taking back the robber's spoils.

IGU DIES.

IN HIS FOOTSTEPS.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain;
He liveth long who liveth well
All other life is but a pain.

Be what thou seemest! live thy creed!
Hold up to earth the torch divine;
Be what thou prayest to be made;
Let the great Master's steps be thine.

"Obedience to Rule."

During the last forty years, or more, there has been a class of men—and some of them both good and great—whose views of the source of authority has led to questionable conclusions as to the power in our church which must be recognized.

In a recent number of the Advocate Nashville the editor gives us a little more than a column on the subject which heads these lines. Therein he compares Episcopal Methodism and the Salvation Army. I quote as follows:

In no organizations of the present day is the spirit of obedience more manifest than in Episcopal Methodism and the Salvation Army. Both have respect to the apostolic injunction, "Obey them that have the rule over you." The reasonableness or the scripturalness of either form of government we shall not stop here to consider, nor shall we undertake to say how near either system comes to meeting the demands of the times as spiritual agencies. Both exist as moral forces, and are as nearly perfect in their respective spheres, and as successful in their operations, as any Protestant and Evangelical Church of the day.

Dr. Hoss seems to ignore the fact that the Salvation Army is organized on a strictly military plan, and has no Legislature, no judiciary, and no court of appeals. It has no organic law. All these sources of authority are centered in the commander-in-chief, Gen. Booth, and there is none other to obey—it is all individual. Is this the case with Episcopal Methodism?

Methodism has its organic law—the Restrictive Rules; its By-laws—the General Rules; its Legislature—the General Conference; and its court of appeals—the Conferences. It has its code, wherein its laws are promulgated; to which all its members are held in strict obedience.

The question which we may raise, and which will lead us to a view of the subject overlooked by many who plead for obedience to the individual, is this: What is the source of authority in the M. E. Church, South, and to what do its members owe allegiance?

In this discussion everything depends on a correct answer to this interrogatory. If the General Conference—as has been decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in the Publishing House case—is "the church," there can be no question as to the object of our obedience. Or, if the General Conference has at any time, in any way, farmed out its authority, to that extent there are other objects of obedience.

I want to examine this question with a view to a correct answer. The first witness is our organic law—the Restrictive Rules—after which we will look in our code—the Discipline—to see who, and if any, to what extent they share authority with other sources of power. I think all reasonable persons will readily concede the sufficiency of such investigation, however few may be the witnesses. Nor will any thoughtful person deny that the Restrictive Rules are of the nature of a constitution, limiting the scope and power of our legislative body. And it is equally certain that the Acts of our legislative body, as published from session to session, are to all intents and purposes a code of laws for the government of all our people, both official and unofficial, in their relation to the church.

There are six Restrictive Rules, all of which are negative in their provisions, prohibiting the General Conference from doing either of thirteen things which are specified therein. It is remarkable that in all these Restrictive Rules there is not one positive provision. The General Conference is not required to do anything whatever. These organic provisions have been changed from time to time, and constitutional amendments foisted on the church by the act of its legislators, and without any reference to the people. This, however, as far as this writer knows, has not been done, except in matters relating to the constitution, or making up, of the General Conference. Rule 6 has been violated over and again by a vote of the General Conference, appropriating "the proceeds of the Publishing House" to pay the salaries of officers and the running expenses of newspapers.

We started out in 1844 with these organic provisions, and the apparent violation of them by our legislative body does not abrogate them. Their existence shows the plan of authority in our church. The General Conference, and no other body, is recognized as having authority in the church. No one would suggest that since the General Conference can not change our General Rules, it is in order for an Annual Conference, or the Bishops, to do so.

Without elaborating the thoughts suggested above as to the exclusive right of the General Conference to make laws, it is in order to see what laws, if any, the General Conference has enacted conferring authority upon the lesser bodies, or the individual members within its jurisdiction.

Paragraphs 50-67 (1894) delegate certain powers to Annual Conferences, but confers no authority to depart in any matter, small or great, from the will of the General Conference as expressed by its acts. ¶ 68-76 define the powers of a District Conference, beyond which that body can not go in anything. The same is true of the Quarterly Conference (¶ 77-87) and of the Church Conference (¶ 88-94). ¶ 98-108 define the duties of a Bishop, viz.: To preside; to make the appointments (under certain restrictions); to choose presiding elders (restrictions); "to change, receive and suspend preachers" * * * "as the Discipline directs;" to ordain; to decide questions of law (restrictions, ¶ 103); "to hear and decide appeals * * * on questions of law;" to superintend the formation of districts (restrictions); to superintend the formation of circuits; to travel through the districts in the Conferences over which he presides; to employ preachers (restrictions).

This, I think, is a full statement of the authority conferred on the Bishops by the General Conference. There are a few incidental statements of the duties and authority of a Bishop elsewhere in the Discipline, but none which are not in line with those above specified.

The authority of the presiding elders is contained in, or rather conferred by, ¶ 109-119. These may be briefly summarized as follows: To travel over their districts, preach, and superintend all affairs of the church; in the absence of a Bishop to "take charge" of all the preachers in his district; to dispose of them "as the Discipline directs;" to be at all the quarterly-meetings and preside; to decide questions of law (restrictions); to see that the Discipline be enforced; to promote the cause of missions and Sunday-schools and Sunday-school literature, and report delinquents to Annual Conferences; to attend the Bishops when present, and report to them when absent "of the state of his district;" to direct candidates for the ministry to the course of study; to secure and furnish the Annual Conference the necessary statistics; to supply vacancies; to employ preachers (restrictions).

In the above summarization of the duties and powers of the presiding elders nothing is found which commands obedience except "as the Discipline directs." The same is true as to the Bishops and all the minor Conferences.

The duties and powers of the pastors may be briefly stated thus: To preach, and "in the absence of the Bishop and presiding elder to control the appointment of ALL SERVICES held in the churches of his charge;" to follow the Discipline in receiving, trying, and expelling members; to appoint and change leaders; to see that the ordinances and regulations of the church be observed and the General Rules be read; to see that fast days be observed; when the presiding elder is absent, to hold Quarterly Conference; to meet the leaders and stewards once a week; to make certain reports to the Quarterly Conference; to report to his presiding elder; to look after the circulation of our books and papers; to keep a directory; to inform his successor of the condition of his charge; to see that "a permanent record be kept;" to keep a register of his charge; to promote the cause of missions and the American Bible Society as the law directs; to report Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools to the Quarterly Conference; to preach on Christian education; to report the condition of claimants on the Conference collection to the Joint Board of Finance; to furnish certificates to those moving from his charge; not to unite in marriage divorced persons, "except in case of innocent parties."

It is needless to pursue this line through all the various minor offices of the church. There is nothing in all this which demands the obedience of anybody to anybody else.

Much has been said about the ordination vows where the word "obey" occurs with reference to other individuals. Suppose a superior officer—as Bishop or presiding elder—should desire to run with a young deacon or elder "into all excess of rioting," should he go with or obey such an elder or Bishop?* Certainly not. To challenge obedience, the "admonitions" must be "godly;" and of this no one can be judge save him who is admonished. Outside of the plain letter of the law, it is a matter of opinion as to the right or wrong, the propriety or impropriety, of obedience. If a brother's counsels seem wise, if his "admonitions" appeal to my sense and my conscience as being "godly," then most clearly I am bound to "reverently obey him." The whole question as to this requirement turns on the other question, Who is to determine the character of the "admonition" and "judgment"? No organization on the face of the earth, except the Church of Rome, proposes to take hold of the conscience of men or refer superior wisdom to ecclesiastical position.

This is the only utterance in all the enactments of the General Conference requiring obedience to the individual, and this is so qualified that it does not bind unless it appeals to us as being for the glory of God. There is a tribunal for the determination of all such questions, and that is the place to settle it.

When I read Sister Harmon's poetry in last ADVOCATE; when I read Our Homes, that urges the people to build homes for the preacher—I mentally exclaim, Amen!

And so mote it be. But—do let's take care of those we have. I was moved last Conference, and have been at work ever since, three months, cleaning a parsonage; my husband putting forth much energy, putting in glass, fixing locks, and rendering the place habitable. Positively, I am almost "worn to a frazzle." By the way, dear sisters, gold dust and sand, with some hot water added, make a fine recipe for cleaning walls, floors, tins, etc., with one other ingredient, muscle—this added according to amount of dirt to be removed. My advice to some ladies, recently, was: "Don't give any bedding to the parsonage." If a preacher comes along that hasn't any, nor anything to invest that way, dear ladies of the P. and H. M. S. or Aid, make him a present of such articles as he needs, and be sure, when he leaves, see that he takes them with him. My mind reverts, as I write this last, to the stable loft and the numerous beds and quilts stored away up there. I was thinking, only this morning, perhaps, some poor old saint had sewed in many a tear while making those things for "her preacher." It was, perhaps all she had to give—her labor; but, bless her dear heart, I can't use them. So, while we are urging the necessity of building new parsonages I would put in a plea for better care of those we have. We have made it a rule at our house to replace anything and everything that may be broken or ruined during our stay. Our children are not angelic any more than anyone's else; so let us teach them that the parsonage is the next thing to a church—that Christ abides there, and it must not be defaced.

The people fix up the parsonage, there are flowers and fruit trees put out, and we all think "what a sweet place is the parsonage." And, perhaps, the next preacher's family that moves in carries desolation in its wake. The brother turns his horse in on the flowers, gives him access to the fruit trees, and the precious children immediately begin to inscribe their names on the walls, etc. The people, I say, are tired of fixing up the parsonage, and every year or so having the same thing to do over, and I don't blame them. So, if our dear husbands would quit throwing away time and energy discussing the "second-blessing theory" and "women preachers," but would get the blessing, they would find that everything else would adjust itself beautifully. They would accomplish a vast deal more for the cause of Christ, and would even rejoice that God had endowed a woman with sufficient intelligence to lead a soul to Christ. And, "lastly," they would still have time and energy left to care for the parsonage and premises. Try it, brother.

Woman's Relation to the World's Evangelization.

BY MISS JENNIE T. MARTIN.

If statements from the field are true, and conditions at home not misrepresented, Christian women must have a much larger share in the work of discipling all nations than they now have for "the evangelization of the world in this generation" to become a fact.

Missionaries and travelers unite in asserting that women, more than men, perpetuate idolatry. A Hindoo villager once said, "We men would give it all up, but the women make such an ado we have no peace." An enlightened native of Calcutta declared, "It is our women who keep up Hindooism by their bigotry and ignorance." Of the $400,000,000 given annually in China for the temple worship, seven-eighths is given by women. Heathen mothers carry their children who are too young to the altars and shrines and teach them to bow before the idols and to lay offerings before them, so that they are intrenched in idolatry before any outside influence can reach them.

Oriental woman are conservators of heathenism because their present condition is so miserable that they feel the need of some hope for the future, however slight, and are kept in bondage by the priests lest a worse fate come upon them.

Not only so, but their degradation and the terrible social conditions arising from it further prevent the spread of the gospel by keeping men from rising far above heathen conditions. Olive Schreiner, in one of her "Dreams," illustrates this fact. She saw before her an object which on nearer approach proved to be a woman with a great burden on her back that had drawn her down to the earth. Even her head was in the dust. She had found it useless to struggle and meekly lay there. By her side was the figure of a man who also could not move from the spot because a strap passed between them and was fastened to his leg. Finally, the bands of the burden were cut and after a long and terrible struggle the woman arose with no help from the man and then the two walked off together.

The burdens of heathenism have indeed drawn women down into the very dust. They can not rise. In their hopeless condition they scarcely struggle. They shake their heads mournfully and say: "We have no souls; we are only cattle." But it is not until the gospel of Christ takes away the load, and the hope and strength of Christ raises up that man, her husband can really go forward.

Five hundred million heathen women live in sad-eyed ignorance of the Christ who alone has given American women their happy lives. Few can ever hear the good tidings unless Christian women carry it to them, for the reason that in nearly all non-Christian lands male missionaries are not allowed access to the women, and only women can understand and help their sister women.

If, then, the evangelization of heathen lands is so vitally dependent on the conversion of the women, and if this can be accomplished only by women missionaries, would it not please the Master, as he looks on the white fields, to see a large increase in the number of women on the field?

But not only are women missionaries needed for the work among women and children, but, in some countries, they have a decided advantage over men in other ways. They are not so easily suspected of base motives, and their tact and quiet way of working makes it possible sometimes to accomplish what men can not. Mrs. Bates, a missionary from Africa, said recently, "Women have a decided advantage in some parts of Africa, for the people never saw a bad white woman, though they have seen many bad white men." A prominent member of the China Inland Mission said that they often sent women to be pioneers where there was a strong anti-foreign feeling. For the Chinese would say, "They are only women and can't do much." But despised "women" have founded many a station, and, through Chinese helpers, have even administered the affairs of churches.

We have seen that woman has an important place in the dark lands of the earth, both as messenger and recipient of the truth. She has quite as vital a position at home. At the present time the general missionary boards throw the whole responsibility of the work for heathen women and children on the women of the home churches, notwithstanding the fact that the control of only such a small proportion of the wealth of the church is in their hands. Therefore if a larger force of women is to be sent out, as it is evident there must be, a great and ever-increasing responsibility rests on those who "hold the ropes."

A larger number of those whose interest and influence reach to the ends of the earth must somehow be raised up, the ignorant must somehow be informed, the Spirit of Christ must be shed abroad in our hearts.

From the above article I am impressed with the influence exerted by woman, no matter what her station. This influence makes the Christian woman powerful to bless through Christ, and the heathen woman, even in her degradation, powerful to debase. Shall we not be earnest and diligent that through our labor, prayers and gifts, our heathen sister's life may be transformed in its influence, and she made conservator of that faith which shall uplift her husband, lead her children in the ways of righteousness, and bring to her own heart and life the innumerable blessings possessed by the child of God. Our Conference treasurer, in a recent kind note to an auxiliary treasurer, wrote: "If all auxiliaries were like —— and —— and ——, in a very short time there would be a comfortable parsonage in every charge." For obvious reasons, I do not give the names of the places she mentioned; but, sister, was yours one of them? Has your auxiliary fulfilled all its obligations? Has it remembered the needs in our own Conference? Have its sympathies broadened enough to render aid to preachers' families in the far West, who are shivering in unceiled houses and under leaking roofs? Does it ever consider the claims of our Cuban Mission or of our Mountain Schools? Has it contributed anything to our Home Mission Scholarship in the Bible and Training-school? To become more personal, have you done your part? If there is anything lacking in your auxiliary, perhaps it is because your influence is wanting? Let us think more earnestly and prayerfully about these things.

I gladly yield the rest of the column to the following report from McNutt. Nothing is more gratifying than news of the good that is being accomplished by our society. But for lack of space, I would like to give a word of tribute to Bro. K. A. Jones and his noble wife (now of McNutt) for their years of faithful service.

MRS. H. W. FOOTE.

Dear Editor: Will you allow space for report of work done by P. and H. M. S. of McNutt circuit?

We were organized less than twelve months ago by Mrs. Thayer, our efficient Conference treasurer. Owing to the sad dilapidation of our parsonage, our work hitherto has been purely local. I am glad to be able to report this dilapidation is slowly, but surely disappearing. Broken windows have been supplied with new sash, glass and nice new shades. At our last meeting the money was raised and order given for other needed repairs, after which we "will be ready for the plasterers." We expect to report at next Conference the most comfortable parsonage in all our bounds. To show that our ladies are interested in "the spread of the gospel," I must tell of the horse purchased for the use of the preacher with money raised by them. Now, with such people and such a horse, riding and visiting becomes a pleasure. The comfort and convenience of the preacher's wife has not been overlooked. An elegant cooking stove lightens her labors, while numberless kindnesses and courtesies gladden her heart.

God bless these dear people and their pastor; and as they have ministered unto him in carnal things, may he minister unto them in spiritual things.

I hope our next report will include something done for "the region beyond."

Blood-Earnestness.

We need burning hearts to give us power in working for Christ. It is not merely what a man speaks or does, but the spirit in which he speaks and acts, that gives him power with men. It is the man behind the words which gives them irresistible force, which throws them out with projectile power. It was said that every word of some of Webster's great speeches weighed pounds. Richard Sheridan was accustomed to say, "I often go to hear Rowland Hill, because his ideas come red-hot from the heart." Dr. John M. Mason, when asked for an explanation of the remarkable power of Doctor Chalmers, replied, after taking time for careful consideration, "His blood-earnestness."

If our words are to move men like an electric battery, we must be saturated with the love of the Lord Jesus. If that love is in our hearts, it will make our words mighty over the hearts of others; if we are constrained by Christ's love, men will take knowledge of us, that we have been with the Lord, and they will yield to the power of his truth embodied in our lives and preached by our flowing words. This life will give unspeakable joy in our work, and that joy of the Lord will be our strength in manifesting a true Christian character, and in declaring by our words and acts the glorious gospel of the blessed God.—R. S. McArthur, D. D.

Every man who has lived long enough to know much about himself or the world in which he lives, realizes that he is in danger, not so much from the temptations which enter into him, so to speak, as from the temptations which he enters into. It is not the evil thought which flits into the heart and out again that injures the man; it is the thought for which he makes a place, which he nurses and reverts to again and again, entering, so to speak, the secret chambers of its foul recesses. It seems at first sight very strange that anyone should deliberately and of set purpose enter into a temptation, and yet we are inclined to think that no man ever yet fell into grievous sin who did not first, with more or less deliberation, allow himself to be tempted to that sin. He who never coquettes with Satan, never comes under his dominion. In view of these thoughts, we see the supreme importance of our Lord's command to "watch and pray that ye enter not into temptation." If we enter not into temptation, temptation will not enter into us. It is not always necessary even to resist the devil. If we avoid him and keep out of his way, there will be little danger of coming within his spell.—Golden Rule.

Vigilance in watching opportunity; tact and daring in seizing upon opportunity; force and persistence in crowding opportunity to its utmost of possible achievement—these are the martial virtues which must command success.—Austin Phelps.

I do believe the common man's task is the hardest. The hero has the hero's aspiration that lifts him to his labor. All great duties are easier than the little ones, though they cost far more blood and agony.—Phillips Brooks.

Education begins at the mother's knee, and every word spoken within the hearing of little children tends toward the formation of their character.—H. Ballou.

Difficulties are God's errands; and when we are sent upon them, we should esteem it a proof of God's confidence.—Henry Ward Beecher.

I am always in haste, but never in a hurry; leisure and I have long taken leave of each other.—J. Wesley.

Your daily duties are part of your religious life just as much as your devotions.—H. W. Beecher.

Have a Shampoo?

When you do, have it with Pearline. It's delightful. Not only cleans your head, but clears your brain. It's good for your hair and scalp, too—invigorates them, just as a bath with Pearline invigorates your body.

You're missing half the luxury of bathing, if you're doing it without Pearline. Moreover, you're not getting quite as clean, probably, as you might be. This may surprise you—but it's so.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 450 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

W. P. and H. M. S. Convention.

Our Conference society, of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, of the M. E. Church, South, held its fourth annual meeting in Ruston, La., March 13, 14 and 15, 1896.

Mrs. Fannie A. Lyons, the president, opened the session with appropriate and impressive religious services. Officers present: Mrs. F. A. Lyons, president; Mrr. F. E Russ, corresponding secretary; Mrs. H. A. Kennedy, recording secretary, and Mrs. J. H. Crumpman, treasurer. The attendance of delegates was not as large as was anticipated, but the Conference made a very favorable and impressive impression on the community. It was a dignified body of representative ladies.

Mrs. Lyons presided with ability, and showed generalship in her management of the body, and a decided knowledge of parliamentary law in the business of the Conference. Her annual address was impressive and full of encouragement, and showed wonderful progress in their work through out the State in the four years just ended. The report of each officer showed fidelity and progress in every department of their work.

The society showed wisdom in re-electing the same officers for the next year. They elected the following district secretaries: Arcadia district, Mrs. A. E. Guthrie; Alexandria district, Mrs. T. S. Randle; Opelousas district, Miss Ida Hopkins; Shreveport district, Mrs. A. E. Baroh. All the interests of the society were looked into carefully by the godly women.

The annual sermon was preached by the writer, Sunday morning; subject W. P. and H Mission Work in General." At night Bro. T. B. White preached a very earnest sermon on the "Necessity of the Holy Spirit in carrying on the work."

A very deep and lasting impression was made upon the citizens of Ruston as to the importance of this Auxiliary in promoting the parsonage and mission work of the church.

Sunday afternoon a meeting was held for the children which was very entertaining. Mrs. M. E. Carr, of Oak Ridge, gave a sensible talk to the children and organized a Juvenile Society. Towards of forty members joined. Ruston was delighted with these representative ladies of our Conference. Hope they will make us another visit.

Money Easy Made by Hustlers.

Dear Editor: My experience may interest others who need money. Fifteen years clerking, farming, hustling, trying to sell books, wringers and every contrivance made me discouraged and mad when I met my cousin in Iowa making $45 a week, plating tableware and jewelry. I got a complete outfit from Gray & Co., Columbus, O. They send materials, instructions, receipts, trade secrets and teach the agent, and have treated me elegant. I plate gold, silver, nickel and white metal, get all the knives, forks and other goods I can plate; make from $15 to $75 per week plating and sell some platers besides. Anyone can get a good plating outfit by writing them. J. RYAN.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. D. P. Bradford, Shubuta, Miss.: "We have recently put into our Quitman Church as pretty benches as can be found in any of our village churches. These seats were made by the 'Meridian Furniture Factory.' Our people are delighted with the work. This completes our church at Quitman at a cost of $1,800. This being our fourth year among these good people, we are trying to have everything in shape for some good brother."

Rev. R. P. Goar, Chester, Miss.: "Thinking our friends would like to hear from us, I beg leave for space in the dear ADVOCATE to make this as my first quarterly report for 1896. I have sent all my appointments; sold about $30 worth of Bibles and other good books; collected $43 for foreign mission; sent 38 new subscribers to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE—five of which have taken the best Bible premium; raised for other purposes about $18; paid preacher in charge, $116.80; paid presiding elder, $18. Now, in conclusion, would say send that lay-man up here, and I will show him that he does not know as much as he thinks he does about other denominations' smart preachers. Our preachers will compare with any in the world. God bless you."

Rev. W. L. Blackwell, P. C., Martinville, Miss.: "Perhaps a few words from the writer will be of interest to some of the readers of the dear old ADVOCATE. I am on my third round in my new field of labor, and I am very much pleased with the work. I find the people kind and hospitable. The churches are getting along splendidly, financially and spiritually; and, the Lord being our helper, we expect to do a good year's work for the salvation of immortal souls. We have had some bad luck on this pastoral charge. We lost one of our churches by fire. The house caught from a defective stove-flue while it was being used as a school-house as well as a church. But as it happened, we had another new church about complete. We lack some material with which to finish. But we hope to have it completed soon as possible, and it is going to be an honor to the community and a blessing to immortal souls. The Lord bless the editor and the dear old ADVOCATE. Brethren, pray for us."

Rev. T. H. King, Fannin, Miss.: "Our first Quarterly Conference for this charge was held at Fannin, March 7 and 8. Rev. R. D. Norsworthy, P. E., was with us, and presided with grace and dignity. Bro. Norsworthy, though not himself at all physically, preached two excellent sermons to the delight and edification of all who heard him. We have heard nothing but comments of praise on our new presiding elder from all sources. Oh! how he did infuse new life into us. He was indeed a fresh inspiration to us and many of our people. May he live long to bless the church and honor the God he loves! We note some of the results. On Sunday, after the eleven o'clock service, the preacher in charge was gently commanded by the presiding elder to take pencil and paper and pass through the congregation and solicit subscriptions for the Conference collections at that church, and, to our great joy and surprise, in less than ten minutes we had in cash and good subscription (most in subscription) $44.10, and this, added to $6 that Bro. Norsworthy had just collected for Bishops and repairs on the district parsonage, gave us the round sum of $50 10. If the other four churches will follow the example of Fannin, all our collections will be paid in full. We are working and praying for better times on Fannin charge."

Rev. D. Scarborough, Coffadeliah, Miss.: "On account of the typhoid fever, we were late in reaching our work. We arrived on Jan. 29, and spent the first two weeks visiting around among the brethren. We are now comfortably domiciled in the parsonage and are hard at work. No preacher's family have been more warmly received than we. The people have shown us many acts of kindness, and have taken good care of us since our arrival. This charge, like every other one in the Conference, has a great many members who are not as pious as they should be; but we have some faithful, godly men and women who have given us full assurance of their hearty support and sympathy in our efforts to advance the Lord's kingdom on this work. We are planning, hoping, and praying for a glorious revival of religion all over the circuit. Everyone who may read these lines is earnestly solicited to pray for us, that we may realize the desire of our heart—the awakening of every believer and the conversion of every sinner on the work. I am, by the grace of God, going to do all I can for the spiritual elevation of this people, and to this end I pray that I may keep close to God myself. I want to live at the foot of the cross and hold sweet communion with Christ every day. Oh, may God fire my soul with zeal for the salvation of sinners, and give me such a mighty baptism of the Holy Ghost that I may preach his word with power and lead lost souls to Christ! Our first quarterly meeting was held on the last day of February and the first day of March. Our presiding elder, Bro. R. J. Jones, was with us, and preached two strong sermons which were edifying to all serious hearers present. The Quarterly Conference in the afternoon on Saturday was both interesting and profitable. Everybody was cheerful and seemed to be hopeful of achieving good results from the year's work. I find that my predecessor, Bro. J. H. Foreman, was greatly beloved by the people here. May I as successfully win the confidence of everybody as did he, and then may the Lord help me to live and labor so that I will be worthy of their esteem!"

Rev. G. S. Morehead, Tatum, Miss.: "I have had my brethren to organize three Sabbath-schools since I came here; will organize one more soon. Have one prayer meeting organized. Thank God the good work is going on, and will go on as long as time lasts. I preached last Sunday at Friendship. Had a glorious time there. The good Lord was with us there, and that to own and to bless. Several of the brethren seemed to be so happy that day. I was happy all day long to see my people rejoicing in a Savior's love. I am moving along nicely with my work now, considering the time I commenced. I am going to do all in my power to bring up all of the assessments of our charge this year. A preacher's work is like any other man's work. If he does not push his work, it will push him; and for a work to push a preacher when he does not try to take hold of it, he can't succeed. I wish all of the young preachers had the Christian bravery that the Wesleys and Whitefield had when they were carrying the gospel to different parts of the world. Brethren, the time has come that we have the enemy to face. Everywhere we go stand firm all of the time, and the victory will be ours. I do not expect to be here long in this world; but, thank God, I am going to do all I can in proclaiming his Word to all the world. So when I come to bid farewell I can be like Paul, and say, 'I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course I have kept the faith;' then all will be well with me. O! what a sweet thing it is to serve God in this world while traveling through it. Bro. Black, I wish you success in your work. I have been talking to my people about our paper, and I think I can do a good work soon for it."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is tenfold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Hall's Family Pills are the best.

This story is told in connection with a celebrated musician who had a large number of pupils. It was his purpose at the end of a specified time to give a grand concert, at which his favorite pupil was to be the conspicuous figure. There was one among the others to whom was given fragmentary work. No part of his instruction seemed to have the least connection with any other part. It was dull work, but he practiced upon the dull fragments and fought discouragement. He did his best and forced the whole man into the work. When the day of celebration came he was chosen as the favorite pupil. He felt that he did not know a single complete piece of music. Tremblingly he took his place at the instrument; but when the score which he was to play was placed before him he throbbed and thrilled with delight to find that the completed work was made up of the fragments which he had mastered, and which were now perfectly arranged. This gave him courage, and so he performed in such a way as deservedly to win the plaudits of the great audience. We are that musician. When we go hence we shall find that the fragmentary Christian earth-life with its principles and its loves and its Christ-spirit, is that out of which heaven is made. Heaven is the holy life of earth glorified and perfectly arranged and grandly transfigured. — Rev. David Gregg, D. D., in "The Heaven-Life."

That Tired Feeling

The great benefit which people overcome by That Tired Feeling derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." J. B. Emerton, a well known merchant of Auburn, Me., says: "About 5 years ago I began to suffer with very severe pain in my Stomach, gradually growing worse. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, being convinced that I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver and Kidney troubles. I improved at once and am very much better and feel more like working.

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to March, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2 45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2 45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

CONFIDENCE

ATTENDED BY A DOCTOR, BUT TO NO AVAIL—FACTS FOR THE BENEFIT OF SUFFERING HUMANITY.

I have been using the Electropoise so successfully that I feel I must tell you the happy results obtained by its use in my case. I was afflicted with a paralyzed hand, and had tried all kinds of medicine, and external applications, and none of them gave me any relief. Finally in my suffering, I thought I would try the Electropoise, and after a few months of perseverance I am able now to use my hand, which has been so long helpless.

My right eye became closed, and I had no use at all of it for a long time. I was attended by my doctor, used his medicine, but nothing would bring relief. I applied the Electropoise, and now the lid of the eye has been raised again, and I feel thankful to say that I am able to use it. I gained so much confidence in the Electropoise that I applied it for a case of severe sore throat, and was relieved over night.

My little grandson, 2 years old, had a severe cough, which kept him awake at night. I applied the Electropoise and he immediately went to sleep, and had fine sleep for the entire night.

I feel that I should write these facts to you, and for the benefit of suffering humanity, and that I should recommend it to all who are afflicted.

Very thankfully and respectfully,
MRS. ELIZABETH FLOCK GUPTON

Glorious Tidings.

A more cheering piece of news than that which is given in the article on our fifth page, headed "A Great Step for Christian Civilization," has not greeted the ears of the Christian world during the present century. The removal of all restrictions upon the propagation of the Christian religion throughout the vast empire of China means more than can be easily told. We join Bishop Hendrix in saying that this should be a cause of devout gratitude to Almighty God on the part of the Christian world.

In the midst of our rejoicing, however, we should not lose sight of the fact that these cheering tidings bring with them increased responsibilities. Of what avail is it that new territory is opened to us if we are not ready to occupy it? If we are to occupy new fields, we must increase our missionary forces; and in order to do that our revenues must also be increased. In conversation with Bishop Keener, a day or two since, we spoke of this edict of the Emperor of China as one of the most remarkable facts in connection with modern mission work. His reply was, "The most remarkable except one, viz., that the Methodist Church contributes less money per capita for the cause of missions now than she did in the very infancy of her existence." Sad! sad! The truth is that while a small proportion of our people give liberally, we have many thousands among us who give nothing whatever for the world's evangelization. Upon the pulpit, the press, the Sunday-school and the Epworth League devolves the responsibility of arousing the conscience of the church on this subject.

John Bull's Opportunity.

The recent Italian defeat in Abyssinia gave Great Britain a long-desired pretext for perpetuating her hold upon Egypt and reoccupying the Soudan. John Bull like, she has made good use of the opportunity, much to the dislike of France. Like many other people in this world, however, France has to endure what she can not prevent. The whole civilized world, as well as poor, down-trodden Egypt, has been profited immensely by the English occupation of Egypt. And like beneficent results will follow her permanent occupation of the Soudan.

The Outlook for Temperance.

Every now and then the secular press makes much ado over some temporary or local backset to the temperance cause, the announcement that a county previously "dry," has voted "wet," being heralded as a triumph of reason and liberty over fanaticism and Puritanism. The reports of advances made here and there are either passed over without comment, or, for the most part, referred to slurringly as indications of crankism. But notwithstanding the hostile attitude of the majority, we may say, of the secular papers to the success of prohibition, taking the whole country over, steady progress is being made.

"Revolutions," it is said, "never go backward," nor have we good reason for believing the contrary respecting the crusade against the whisky curse. The continuance and extension of Christianity mean nothing less than the downfall of the saloon. Local reverses and temporary defeat have attended the progress of every reform movement in the world's history; but far from being omens of final failure, they only stimulate to renewed effort, to greater zeal and caution.

Recently there has been much rejoicing in the camp of the Philistines over the defeat in the Iowa Legislature of the resubmission measure brought before that body. As two years ago the Legislature of that State passed a mulct law, legalizing the saloon under certain conditions, the foes of prohibition fancy that they see in this defeat the entire and final repudiation of prohibition by the people of Iowa, who, it is assumed, have become tired of such sumptuary legislation. The fact is, however, that the mulct law—a compromise measure—could not have passed without the aid of prohibition votes, nor could these have been secured save for the promise of submitting a constitutional amendment to a direct vote of the people. This supposed victory of the anti-prohibitionists gives them little cause for boasting. The resubmission measure was defeated, it appears, not because the Legislature is overwhelmingly antagonistic to prohibition, but because of the lack of united effort and watchfulness on the part of the prohibition members who were really in the majority. Since every religious body in Iowa has declared in favor of resubmission, and since the majority of the people believe strongly in the wisdom and success of prohibition, party bossism and trickery will not always be able to defeat their will. The party leaders who opposed resubmission are finding that they reckoned without their host, and are receiving just censure for their duplicity. So then the end is not yet. This back-set is already resulting in a better consolidation of the prohibitionist forces, and the planning of a vigorous campaign.

Says a prominent Iowan, writing for the Northwestern Christian Advocate, anent the defeat of the resubmission measure which lacked only seven votes of passing:

Last year the dominant party ignored the prohibition question in its platform, the party leaders hoping that an anti-prohibition Legislature would be elected. To their surprise a small majority for resubmission was discovered in both branches. Prohibition Republicans should have held a caucus and pledged themselves to stand by the action of the previous Legislature to resubmit. If they had done so success would have been certain. But the party leaders declared that such a caucus would injure the prospects of a "favorite son" who seeks the presidential chair, and by yielding, the Prohibition Republicans in the Legislature lost a golden opportunity.

Another mistake was their abandonment of the speakership fight in the House when they had the power to elect one who would have selected committees not hostile to resubmission. The result was the election of a man who voted against resubmission and for the opening of breweries and distilleries, and who appointed committees largely of his views.

But with all these drawbacks resubmission would have won if it had been properly managed. It was called up unexpectedly in the House, when some of its friends were absent, and rushed through by the speaker without discussion.

Another evidence of the progress of the temperance sentiment is the enactment by the New York Legislature of what is known as the Raines Liquor Law. This law, though far from being an ideal one, is nevertheless a vast improvement upon the old regime. One feature of this law is its provision for local option. Local option, though it has never been considered by the leaders of the temperance reform movement as the goal of their efforts, is an immeasurable advance upon any straight-out license system. At a certain stage of temperance sentiment it is the very best system attainable. The best argument in its favor is the beneficent results achieved through its instrumentality in a number of States—notably Georgia and Mississippi.

Another feature of the Raines Law is a high-license feature. While temperance people prefer no license, yet if there must be license, they prefer that the holder of the license shall pay a good round sum for it. In Mississippi the high-license feature has almost annihilated the dram-shop it the rural regions. It is only in the towns that men can afford to pay the license fee. The Raines Law does not put the license as high as it is in Mississippi. Nevertheless, it is as compared with the old law emphatically a high-license measure.

Another feature of the law is the prohibition of free lunches in connection with the saloon. However much this provision may be ridiculed by whiskyites and their allies, it has its foundation laid in wisdom. If the saloon must be tolerated, the temptation to drink ought to be reduced to a minimum. The free-lunch bait catches many an unwary youth, many a laborer and business man, and helps to convert him from an occasional to a regular patron of the saloon. Those who partake of lunches at the saloon counter in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred buy a drink before leaving. This the saloon keeper knows, and it is for this reason alone that the free lunch is given. Does anybody believe that saloon keepers give away a part of their income just for benevolence's sake? The man who thinks so is verdant beyond the common run of greenhorns.

Another feature of the law which commends it to good citizens everywhere is its provision against Sunday opening.

Another provision prevents the opening of a saloon within two hundred feet of a church or school-house; another requires the consent of two-thirds of the property owners in a residence portion of a city before license can be granted. Grocery stores are not allowed to deal in intoxicants. Screens are interdicted, so that the habitues of the grog-shops will be in full view of passers-by as they perform the imbibing act.

The friends of the Raines Law claim that it will take the liquor question out of politics. We very much doubt whether this will be the case altogether. Yet it is apparent to all that it does deal a severe blow to the Tammany Ring in New York City, which has been for many years running the municipal affairs of that great metropolis in the interest of the liquor traffic. This is no small gain. Take it all in all, the Raines Law is, perhaps, the best that could by any means have been secured a decade ago. The friends of temperance, therefore, as they "view the landscape o'er" have reason to "thank God and take courage."

If the preachers and educators of the land will do their duty in teaching the young the harmful nature of intoxicants, and the dreadful evils resulting from their use, the whisky curse will ere long be a thing of the past. Let the work of educating the people upon this subject go on unceasingly. There must be given "line upon line, and precept upon precept; here a little and there a little." Let the pulpit continue to thunder against the saloon and the drink habit, and depict the blessings of total abstinence and prohibition. Voting out whisky will do but little good, if interest in the matter be allowed to die down. Local option or constitutional prohibition in order to be effective anywhere must be backed by a strong public sentiment, not only against drinking, but also against violations of the law. Nothing short of constant vigilance and a perpetual campaign of temperance education will insure victory over this monster iniquity.

The New South.

Last week Carroll D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, delivered a lecture on "The New Industrial South" before the School of Social Economics in New York City. He regards the South as a region of magnificent resources and possibilities. Among other striking statements were these: that the South is forty times as rich in mineral resources as England, and that her facilities for transportation are such that it costs her only about one-fifth as much to get her mineral productions ready for the refiner as it costs in Pennsylvania. Since Mr. Wright is, perhaps, the best-posted man on this subject in the United States, we of the South ought to relegate croakers and pessimists to the rear.

A National Divorce Law.

The Lower House of Congress has passed a bill requiring one year's residence in a Territory as a prerequisite to a divorce. It is to be hoped that the Senate will concur. The divorce laws in some of the Territories—notably Oklahoma—are shockingly lax.

Any person desiring a divorce has only to go to Oklahoma and remain ninety days, when upon some flimsy pretext the marriage tie is dissolved. The consequence is that Oklahoma is deluged with ninety-days' immigrants of free-love propensities.

The thing has grown to be a national disgrace. All honor to the men of whatever political party who stand for the integrity of the home.

"The Volunteers."

"The Volunteers" is the name adopted by Ballington Booth for his branch of the Salvation Army. The flag, which is to be used in all parades, is white, with a blue star in the center, and a white cross in the center of the star. In the upper left-hand corner is a blue field bespangled with forty-five white stars representing the States of the Union. Above the central star is this inscription, "The Lord My Banner." Beneath the star the name and number of the post are to be inscribed.

The uniform for men is almost exactly like that of the United States Army. The women's uniform will be seal brown in color and very plain.

Where Are the Parents?

Nebraska has a law prohibiting boys and girls from being on the streets unattended by their parents or guardians after 8:30 o'clock at night. Since the passage of this law, it is said that there has been an immense decrease in crime. That there is a necessity for such a law shows a very deplorable state of society. Parents who allow their children to roam at will upon the streets at night are not fit to be entrusted with the bringing up of a litter of pigs. One of the greatest wants of the age is parents who realize the responsibilities of parenthood. There is no more sacred task than that of moulding and fashioning young lives that are destined to live as long as God himself shall live.

Education Day.

The Louisiana Conference, by resolution, appointed the second Sunday in April as "Education Day." I hope that every preacher in our Conference will observe the day in the manner indicated in the resolution of the Conference. The preachers will find some good ammunition in the March-April Review in an article by D. J. D. Hammond, president of Central College, Missouri, on "The Church College vs. the State University." If all the preachers will observe the day, then all the Methodists in Louisiana will know that we have such an institution as Centenary College, located at Jackson, La.; and that will be a great gain. There are few things better than specific knowledge.

Religious pessimism is the deadest blight that can fall on the spirit of any man who calls himself by the name of Christian, smiting his activity into spiritual barrenness, and pushing the ardors of enthusiasm out of his life. Its fruit is the cynicism which mars the beauty and blessedness of religion. We should beware of its insidious leaven. In his charge to the grand jury of Boone county, Judge Green took occasion to give his ideas of the difference between progressive euchre, as known to society, and gambling.

I don't know anything about progressive euchre, but I know that when two "one-gallus" fellows play cards for money or other property, down in a hollow, that is gambling. Progressive means advancing, and when parties clad in silks, satins, broadcloth, diamonds, gold watches and gold chains, meet in a parlor and play a series of games, and upon the result of the series the property in the prizes changes ownership, I think the game has progressed very far from the "one-gallus" fellows in the hollow, but it is still gambling.—Christian Observer.

A recent communication from D. Y. J. Allen, Shanghai, China, and another received to-day from Bishop E R Hendrix, Kansas City, Mo., gives news of utmost importance to the church at large. No imperial edict of the present century has been so significant; none can be more influential. We render grateful thanks to Almighty God, and pray that under the inspiration and leadership of the Holy Spirit the forces of Christendom will go forth to victory. WALTER R. LAMBUTH.

Kansas City, Mo., March 16, 1896.

My Dear Dr. Lambuth:

I have just received the following important information from U. S. Consul General Jernigan, Shanghai, China, under date of Feb. 22. He writes: "The most welcome news I have for you is told by the enclosed circular, which was received to-day, and at once given to the press by me. A great step for Christian civilization has been made, and under judicious influence others will soon follow. No one act by the Emperor so distinctly heralds the coming change as this edict removing all restrictions upon the propagation of the Christian religion in China, and may it not be that all of this good has grown out of the massacres and burning of the homes of Christians in China? I believe that the vigorous policy of the President, evidenced by a distinctively American Commission to investigate the wrong done Americans at Chungtu, has given to the efforts of the French Minister a power which helped to make them successful. The President and Secretary Olney opened the eyes of China when an American Commission traveled over three thousand miles through her center to inquire why the homes of American citizens had been burnt.

"This fact speaks volumes, and while the French Minister should have the full credit of the achievement in behalf of Christian civilization, I am sure that Mr. Gerard would be the first to acknowledge the good effect resulting from the timely action of our government."

The circular mentioned is as follows:

Legation of the United States,
Peking, Feb. 6, 1896.

To the Consuls of the United States—

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to inform you that his Excellency, M. A. Gerard, Minister of France, has recently procured from the Tsung-L'Yamen, by virtue of the French Treaty of 1858 an order directing the local authorities in all provinces of the Empire to expunge from the various editions and compilations of the Chinese Code all claims placing restrictions upon the propagation of the Christian religion.

You are directed to bring this circular to the attention of the American Missions in your consular districts.

It gives me pleasure to add that the Minister of France is entitled to the gratitude of the Christian world for his action in this important matter. I am, sirs, Your obedient servant.

CHARLES DENBY
U. S. Minister.
THOS R. JERNIGAN
U. S. Consul Gen'l, Shanghai.

The important action of the Emperor of the Chinese Empire should be a cause of devout gratitude to Almighty God on the part of the Christian world.

Yours cordially,
E. R. HENDRIX

An Opportunity.

There are now three young preachers at Centenary College, worthy, earnest young men, who are being assisted by the Ministerial Aid Association of the Louisiana Conference. The funds of the association are limited because the membership is small. These young men are not objects of charity. They will pay into the treasury of the association all that is furnished them now, besides bringing into our Conference and commonwealth the fruits of their future labors as educated men of God.

Will not all our preachers who can do so send $5 for annual dues to Rev. Fitzgerald S. Parker, New Orleans, and so become members of this helpful organization and aid in meeting an emergency? Are there not several scores of laymen who will, through Bro. Parker, aid us just now to place these young men where the continuance of their college course will be assured? A better, wiser investment can not be made. WM. H. LA PRADE.

First Church, Shreveport.

The secretary of our Conference Board of Missions, in his report, says: "It is a source of rejoicing to the Board that one of our churches—First Church in Shreveport—has taken upon itself the pleasurable duty of supporting a missionary in China." The Shreveport brethren raised for that purpose $750, and we suppose it is their purpose to do the same every year. This amount did not get into the Minutes, except as losing its identity in the $890.70 reported "special" by Treasurer Thomson, and so we take great pleasure in calling attention to it through the ADVOCATE. If it be added to its regular collection for foreign missions, First Church must be credited with $1 025; and if the amount raised by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society be also added, then First Church must be allowed as her total for foreign missions last year the creditable sum of $1,139.50. The Minutes show a total of $665.75 for this cause in the Shreveport district. Adding to this amount the $750 special, it is found that Shreveport district last year raised $1 415 25 for foreign missions—nearly as much as the New Orleans district. Bro. J. L. P. Sheppard, presiding elder of that district, writes us, as follows: "We have a good prospect of excelling last year's reports; so you must get a move on you, or we will carry the banner."

Are there not other churches in our Conference who will support one or more missionaries, and will not the other districts join the Shreveport district in seeking the honorable distinction of carrying the banner in the cause of foreign missions? The total for our Conference last year was only $5,912 96. We ought to raise this year double that amount, and let who will get the banner.

Saying Good of Them in Life.

Bro. L. S. Jones, P. E. of Natchez district, Mississippi Conference, has given us all a good example in his report of last week. He looks on the bright side, and says good things of his brethren and their flock. He does not wait until they have gone to heaven to speak of their good qualities, but makes pleasant mention now of their useful deeds. It is in life our brethren need sympathy and encouragement. Going into print with fault-finding is not always the better course.

A Chance to Make Money.

I read how one of your subscribers made money selling Dish washers. I ordered one, and my lady friends were charmed, as they hate dish washing. My brother and I commenced selling them, and have made $1,700 after paying all expenses. We don't canvass any. Our sales are all made at home. People come or send for them. The Mound City Dish Washer is the best Dish washer on the market. Our business is increasing, and we are going to keep right on until we make ten thousand dollars. We sell from 5 to 15 machines every day, and some days more. The Dish washer is lovely, every housekeeper wants one. There is no excuse to be poor when so much money can be made selling Dish washers. For full particulars, address the Mound City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. They will start you on the road to success.—A Reader.

New Orleans District.

Having completed my first round of Quarterly Conferences, I think I can honestly say that there are many and marked signs of improvement at every point. The preachers are all at work in the spirit of the Master, and are eager for souls. We have everywhere been greeted with large, attentive and responsive congregations, and frequently mourners at the altar and conversions have evidenced the presence and power of the Holy Spirit. There is a tendency in some charges to repair, or to "rise up and build." Mission work in the city is having attention, and is meeting with success. We have had some precious love feasts, and, both materially and spiritually, the district is on rising ground. Some parts of the field are very hard to till, the soil being resistant and even stubborn to the best efforts of our workers; but we have long ago learned that faith in God and steady work can accomplish wonders. The women of New Orleans Methodism are working nobly. Before long our gospel tent will be pitched right in the midst of the unsaved masses, and, as last Summer was the case, so this Summer we look for gracious results. All tokens indicate that we should be "thankful and take courage." The sixteen pastors and the presiding elder are in a most glorious field, where sinners are plentiful and opportunities for good abound. Surely, then, they should, during this year, capture hundreds of souls for their blessed Lord.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

Notice.

To the Presiding Elders of the Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: Do not forget to fill out the missionary blanks sent you by me some time in January, and let me have them at your earliest convenience. I wish to make my report to D. Lambuth as soon as possible.

The report of Bro. Norsworthy, of the Jackson district, has been received.

CHRIST IN TEMPTATION: THE TEMPTATION TO SUCCEED BY UNLAWFUL MEANS.

(Matt. iv, 8-10; I. Tim. ii, 5.)

Many things relating to this spiritual duel between Christ and Satan will ever remain a mystery.

1. The locomotion of Christ and Satan require attention. Not in a naked spirit the one, and in cumbrous body the other. Both in spirit, alike. Move with the rapidity of thought.

(1) Thus Christ temporarily divested himself of his visible body after he was recognized by the two disciples at Emmaus.

(2) Again, invisibly he entered the room where his disciples were assembled. After lovisibly entering, notwithstanding closed doors, he soon assumed his usual visible form.

(3) St. Paul states that man has both natural and spiritual body. It is this spiritual body which dies not at death. In the case of Lazarus it was borne by angels into Abraham's bosom.

2. The temptation here indicated is that Satan would give Christ all the glory of the world if the latter would fall down and worship him.

(1) "All these things will I give thee." And Christ did not call Satan a liar. His silence on this subject is tantamount to admission.

(2) The glory of the world. Wealth, honor, pleasure. They belong to Satan. He has the right to give them to whom he pleases.

(3) Prosperity in secular life is certainly no proof of divine favor. Frequently to the contrary. Dives was not a favorite of God.

3. Christ's method of parrying Satan's wicked attack.

(1) Treats him according to his animus. As a dog. Begone! "Get thee behind me, Satan!" Satan is our enemy. Treat him as such.

(2) Christ incidentally acknowledges the great worth of the Bible. "It is written," should be our rule of life.

(3) Christ's reference to the First Commandment in the Decalogue food for wholesome thought. Him alone shalt thou worship. How about you?

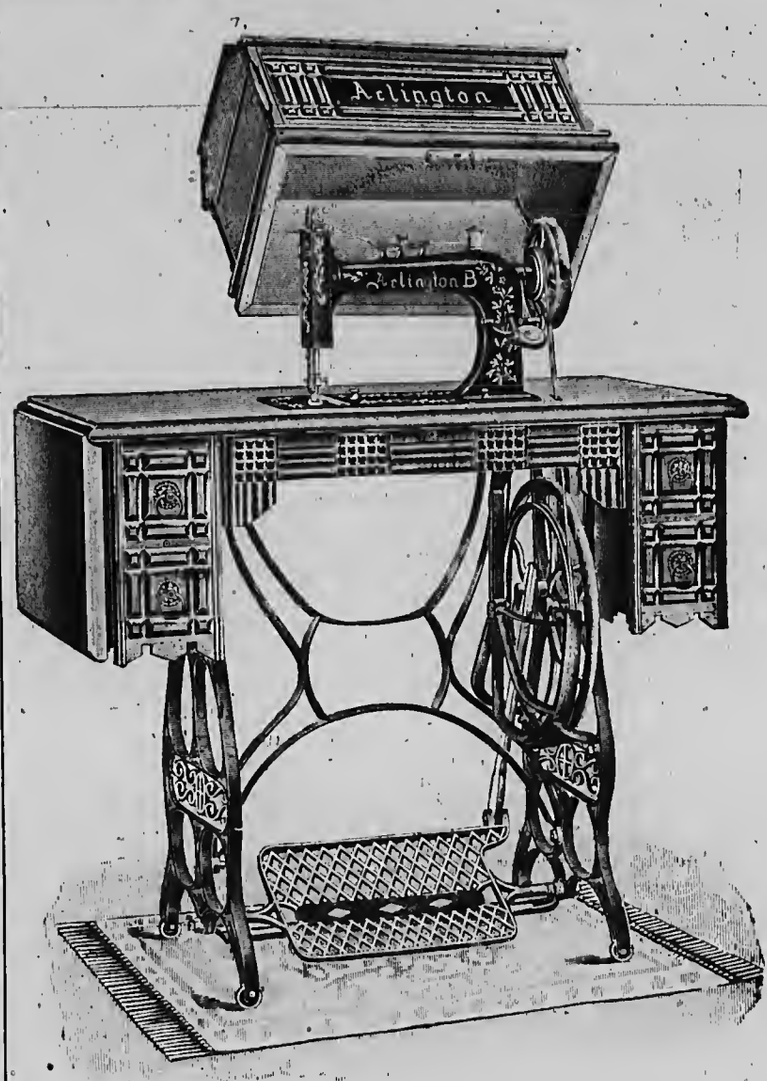
Our Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



"ARLINGTON B."

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take up, convenient foot-rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned, and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearings polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—THE "ARLINGTON B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great strength; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $20 50, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to July, '97, and send us $18.50 additional, and we will send you the machine.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

USELESS.

A life without a motive
Is a useless thing at best,
When so many acts want doing
Which would bring us peace and rest.
It brings us pain and worry,
It brings us discontent;
It makes the world seem empty,
And all effort poorly spent.

A life without a motive,
Like a plant without a flower,
Surely ends in disappointment
At the wasting of its power.
Each life is sent for something;
That something each must find,
We know that ere we grasp it
We must work among our kind.

A life without a motive
Is a thing that can't exist,
When we try to do our duty
And bring light down through the mist
Of the lives of weary toilers,
Though discouraged, sick and poor,
Who hopelessly seem waiting
For worse evils at their door.

A life without a motive
We will gladly cast aside,
When we catch the inspiration
Of those busy lives, beside
Which all others will seem nothing
On the day when we restore
Our talents, bright or rusty,
To the Master, for his own.

Concerning Books.

BY DR LYMAN ABBOTT.

A book may be an ornament, a tool, or a friend. As an ornament it lies on the parlor-table, and enters into competition with a vase of flowers, a plaque, a Japanese monstrosity, a Turkish table-cloth, or what-not, or lines the wall in a set of shelves, and serves as an expensive wall-paper. There is no objection to books as ornaments for those people who can afford literary bric a brac, and like that sort of thing. As a tool the book belongs to the scholastic workshop. It is professional. The boy's school-books are tools; the woman's cookery-books are tools; the minister's commentaries are tools; the lawyer's reports are tools; Webster's Dictionary is a tool. Every perfectly equipped house ought to have a carpenter's shop, and the master of the house ought to know how to use it; cooking-schools for girls, and carpenter-shops or garden-beds, or both, for boys. So every house ought to have its literary tool-shop, its library of books for literary labor, its intellectual carpenter's shop; its books of reference — dictionary, geography, cyclopædia. But the highest use of a book is as a companion and a friend. You are not particular as to the binding; for, though you like to see your friend well clad, the tailor does not make the man; neither does the bookbinder make the book. A three-penny edition of an English classic may be a friend The highest use of a friend is his friendship, and, in some respects, a friendly book is the very best of friends. Speech is silver, silence is golden. A book is a bi-metallic friend; it will give you either silver speech or golden silence, as you prefer. I sit by my fire-light dreaming, with my friend in my hand. "Come, come," I say to him at last, "you are silent and I am weary; talk to me, amuse me." And he answers not my petulance with reproach, but looks with kindly face into my eyes and talks. At last I weary of him. "You talk too much," I say, and turn from him. He stops as quietly as he began, relapses into silence, and breathes no complaint of my unreasonable mood. A book is never jealous, never suspicious. It asks no attentions. It never pouts or sniks because you prefer another book. It never reproaches you with—"I thought you had quite forgotten me." I can not pet my cat without a remonstrance from my dog; but I can choose any book out of my library with no look or word of reproach from its companions. It exacts nothing. Conversation is give and take; but reading is all take. The book demands of you only one thing—attention. That you must give, or it closes its lips and is resolutely silent. Indeed, the generosity of this friend is its worst fault. Beware! or it will make you selfish. Your true book-lover is in danger of not being a true lover of his kind.

The book as a friend is a living soul. Some one has said that a cathedral is "frozen music." A good book is embodied and undying spirit. It is the thought and experience of a noble nature crystallized and endowed with an earthly immortality. It is the touch of a vanished soul. It is a voice come back from the unseen world. On the title-page of every true book might be inscribed the words, "Being dead, he yet speaketh." Carlyle, the great talker, pours unmeasured contempt upon talk; and that which is mere talk deserves his fine scorn—all of it; yet what is that scorn itself but talk? "Words! mere words!" Ay, and yet there is nothing so immortal as a true word. "Heaven and earth shall pass away," says Jesus of Nazareth, "but my words shall not pass away." Mere vibrations of the air he set in motion; yet their music has been encircling the globe ever since. Frost can not bite them, nor sun burn them, nor damp mildew them, nor rain wash them away, nor steam wreck them. Empires have risen and set, civilizations come and gone, cities been built and crumbled to the dust, even languages have died and been buried, and yet these words still live, and, as the centuries goes by, a constantly increasing congregation reverently gathers about the sacred Speaker on the grassy slope of the Galilean hill, and listens to the words that can never die. Words are immortal because a soul lives in them A good book is immortal because it is an incarnate soul. In the presence of a great book I am in the presence of a great nature. He is an artist; and he lends me his eyes with which to look into Nature and read her mysteries. He is a poet; and I, too, am a poet in his companionship, and endowed with his insight. He is a novelist; and as I sit with him my heart throbs with his profound sympathies. He is an historian, and I live in another epoch, or a philosopher, and his broad horizon opens before me, and I am on the top of an exceeding high mountain, and all the kingdoms of Nature and of truth are in a panorama before me; they are mine without the devil's condition attached.—Christian Union.

Somebody's Prayers.

Annie Edwards never heard a prayer in her own home. Her father and mother did not go to church, and although they had a large Bible on a stand in the parlor, it was never opened. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards did not believe in training their children in Bible doctrines; they said, when they were old enough to understand them, they could be left to make their own choice of denominations and beliefs.

When Annie was twelve years old, she had a strong desire to be a Christian. She did not like the way her father and mother kept Sunday, and their irreligious views made her very unhappy. She thought it must be a great comfort to children to have praying fathers and mothers. She had talked with some of her companions at school whose mothers had taught them to kneel at her knee and pray to their Father in heaven. Annie thought a great deal about it, and one night she went to a meeting near her house. She felt as if she were in heaven, she enjoyed it so very much, and she asked her father and mother if she might attend the meetings. At first, they did not seem willing to have her go, but the Lord softened their hearts, and they gave Annie permission to go two evenings in the week.

After Annie had been a number of times, her father, who had a good Christian mother, was coming home from the store, and he thought he would step into the meeting a moment, for he was very fond of Annie, and had noticed how loving and thoughtful his little girl was getting to be.

The meeting was half out when he went in and took a seat back by the door. The minister was giving the invitation for any who would like the prayers of God's people, to rise in their seats. What was Annie's father's surprise to see her standing up alone in one part of the room.

When the meeting was over, he waited at the door for his little girl. It was a bright, pleasant night, and when his daughter came out of the door, he said:

"We will take a short walk, Annie, before we go home."

Annie thought her father had never been so gentle and kind as he was that night. He talked about his own dear mother, and how she used to pray for him, and then he said:

"Annie, what made you rise to-night in meeting?"

"O, papa dear," she replied, "I hope you won't be displeased, but I did want somebody's prayers for me so very much! I want to be a Christian, and work for Jesus as long as I live."

Not long afterwards Annie and her father and mother united with the church. The younger children of that family are being taught the Scriptures, and are learning infant prayers at their mother's knee, and you may be sure Annie is trying to do all she can to have them know the loving Lord who took little children in his arms and blessed them, thereby showing that none are too young to come to him and learn of him.

Between the young life and the temptations of an evil world God has set the Christian home. Can anything be more pitiful than that this home should open its doors to temptation, letting the poisonous atmosphere of unnatural excitement banish the sweet serenity that should breathe through it. There is not a community where half-a-dozen determined Christian households, working together, might not bring about any social reform they thought desirable in their own circle, and such homes would be sanctuaries of blessing to all coming within their influence. Why not unite to keep up a round of informal, simple home receptions; for reading, for study, for entertainment—for anything rational that shall make prominent the idea of mutual helpfulness, and the fact that we are in this world for growth and education and advance, and not as simple, irresponsible pleasure-seekers.—Emily Huntington Miller.

Set out in the very morning of your lives with a frank and manly determination to look simply for what is right and true in all things. . . . This is the only way to know God's will and do it. You may not find it at once, but you have set your face in the true direction to find it.—J. J. Taylor.

HYGIENE.

The Conditions of Healthful Living.

In the first place, it is quite evident that due regard for the welfare of the body does not permit one to eat a full meal immediately following hard labor, either physical or mental. The vital energy has become depleted, and needs a period of rest, during which it can gather its scattered powers and prepare them for exertion in a new direction; because the labor of digestion is labor, just as much as digging a trench or plotting a novel, though in a different way. The exhausted housewife who drops in her chair at the dinner table, after having prepared food for a large family, declaring that she is "too tired to eat," states in non-technical phrase a truth which students of the science of nutrition have long recognized. A suitable period of rest should intervene before any solid food is taken into the stomach. The middle-aged person who feels an unaccountable "drowsiness" soon after dinner should recognize that it is the demand, he coming imperative, of nature calling for the opportunity to do its work of digestion in a proper manner. All of the energies are required for the processes of digestion, and the rest of the system naturally falls into the condition of repose which will aid the natural processes. Observe yonder group of laborers upon the public highway. They have never received technical education, but an intuitive sense directs their movements. Their dinner is at hand, awaiting their attack in a row of tin dinner pails; but they have an hour for the meal, which can easily be dispatched in a fourth of the time. They throw themselves upon the grass by the roadside, resting for a few minutes—perhaps indulging in some light sport or "horse-play" Then the meal is taken, and the remaining half hour is given to a post-prandial rest. These men simply realize that they feel better by dining in this way, and though their meal is probably far from attractive in its composition, yet it gives them health and strength, with plenty of brawn and muscle for their laborious occupation. Crudely they obey nature.—Good Housekeeping.

Deep Breathing.

Cultivate the habit of breathing through the nose and taking deep breaths. If this habit was universal, there is little doubt that pulmonary affections would be decreased one-half. An English physician calls attention to this fact, that deep forced respirations will keep the entire body in a glow in the coldest weather, no matter how thinly one may be clad. He was himself half frozen to death one night, and began taking deep breaths and keeping the air in his lungs as long as possible. The result was that he was thoroughly comfortable in a few minutes. The deep respirations, he says, stimulated the blood currents by direct muscular exertion, and caused the entire system to become pervaded by the rapidly generated heat.—Medical Report.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

CREAM OMELETTE.—Beat the yolks and whites of two eggs separately until very light. To the yolks add two tablespoonfuls of rich cream; add salt, and then the stiff whites. Heat and butter the omelette pan, and when very hot pour in the omelette. Stir frequently, as it thickens in the bottom, and dip out the thickened portions by spoonfuls and lay on slices of bread that have been toasted, dipped quickly in hot water, buttered, neatly arranged on a hot platter, and the whole kept hot in the oven, for not over one minute—for the omelette must be served immediately. Twelve eggs with proportionate cream makes a notable omelette. —Selected.

CHICKEN SALAD.—Take breasts of two chickens, and one-third more celery than chicken; cut both of them in pieces about one-half inch long. Make a dressing of two eggs, one fourth cup of butter, one teaspoonful of olive oil (or the oil may be omitted), pepper, salt, one teaspoon of mustard, one half pint of vinegar. Let it boil and cool. Pour over the salad just before using.

32 DAYS TOUR OF

Mexico

In connection, from St. Louis, with the "Tour of All Mexico" of the American Tourist Association, and including, on the return, the far-famed

MARDI GRAS AT NEW ORLEANS.

The entire tour made in Pullman Private Cars. A journey in which the tourist will be in Mexico and the South twenty-five days, spending but a few hours over six of these days in travel, and those at broken intervals. Hence glorious hours of sight-seeing in "the most novel land on our continent, and one of the most attractive on any continent." The excursion leaves Chicago Jan. 20 and St. Louis Jan. 21. Arrangements will be made to transfer tourists from points south of Cairo or Memphis to a connection with this excursion at San Antonio, thus obviating the necessity of their going to Chicago or St. Louis. Rate $275 for all expenses of the round trip. Send for illustrated pamphlet giving all particulars.

In Memoriam.

The chapter is ended, the book is closed, and the story of a long life has been finished. The flower fades in every clime and the leaf falls beneath every sky. The curtain of night has been drawn over the eyes of clay, and the sombre shadow of sorrow rests upon our saddened hearts. It is ever thus, when least expecting it, we stand face to face with death. All have witnessed this grave monarch's work; all have felt the bitterness of his presence.

Surrounded by friends, crowned with honor, and the silvery locks of age, this noble man lies down in his last sleep at the close of a long and useful life. He has gone the way of all flesh; has passed forever beyond our horizon, beyond the twilight's purple hills, beyond the utmost reach of human help or harm, to that vast realm where the innumerable dwell. We thank the Lord that he died in the hope of a happy resurrection, and passed away as serenely as the Autumn dies. Upon his pallid lips with bleeding hearts, we print love's last and holiest kiss; and with bowed heads, with sacred thoughts, with tender feelings, with love that melts into sorrow, we say, Farewell. In his grave we drop a tear of regret, upon it we plant a flower of love, and above it set a star of hope. May thy slumber bring thee sweet rest and peace!

In parting with those we love, we part with no blessing which they have brought to our hearts. The pure, noble life, full of sacrifice and self-denial, can not be hid in the grave. All the fond memories of kind acts and loving deeds live in our lives to make us purer and better.

We will let this experience soften our feelings toward the living, and make us truer to one another, nobler in speech and act, purer in thought, and kind to all, so that when our name is called to go and join the immortal dead, we may go with less to regret and more to remember with gratitude.

Why lament the Christian dying?
Why indulge in tears of gloom?
Calmly in the Lord relying,
He has met the opening tomb.

Hark! the golden harps are ringing;
Sounds celestial fill his ear;
Millions now in heaven singing,
Greet his joyful entrance there

LEWIS—The Hon. CLARK LEWIS, of Mississippi, is dead. He was an ex-member of Congress from this district. On Friday afternoon, March 13, at 1:30 o'clock, while the pure white snow (emblem of his spotless Christian character) mantled the bosom of earth, his deathless spirit took its flight from earth to heaven. He was a pronounced Christian from early manhood, and exemplified in his life not only what the religion of the blessed Christ can do for us in its transforming and exalting influence, but how one with his heart filled with divine love can suffer wrong himself, and at the same time be guilty of no wrong.

I shall not attempt to review even partially his life as a politician. The indorsement of a majority of his fellow-citizens of Noxubee county at our last primary election as their choice for Congress is sufficient proof of his standing in the county of his boyhood and manhood. He has given to the world a practical demonstration that a man can be a successful politician and maintain Christian integrity, and come forth from the fires better and brighter than when he entered the furnace.

He was a Missionary Baptist. He loved his chosen church, and was always ready to respond to the call of duty in his church, but at the same time there was in him that broad catholicity that always marks the truly great and good man, and that recognizes the universal brotherhood of man and the kinship of all of God's children, no matter to what church they may belong. I shall always carry in my own heart pleasant recollections of Christian association with my sainted friend and brother.

Our county and State has lost one of its best and purest citizens, his wife a true and devoted husband, and this writer an intimate and warm friend. But this is not the end. We will meet again, and know each other "in that land of light and song."

"Where the old is ever new,

CARRUTH—MELISSA A., daughter of Elijah L. and Elizabeth Terver, was born in Amite County, Miss., Nov. 23, 1843, and departed this life near Adams Church, Lincoln county, Miss., Feb. 8, 1896. In January, 1871, she was married to J. E. Carruth, and to them were born seven children, six of whom are still living. At the age of sixteen, under the ministry of Rev. W. E. Ballard, she was happily converted and joined the Methodist Church, in which she lived till called to the church triumphant.

Next to her family she loved her church, and as long as her health permitted she was always at her post, and ready for every good word and work. Raised and taught by pious parents, she early imbibed the spirit that characterized her through life. A preacher never had a truer friend, and a church a more faithful member. Her convictions were deep, her opinions fixed, and her spirit always sweet and gentle. As a mother she was as near a model as it has ever been my pleasure to meet. A visit to her home was always pleasant. The stranger sojourning for a night was impressed with the fact that a spirit of love pervaded the entire family. As a neighbor she was honored and respected. She counted no sacrifice too great when the cry of need or suffering came to her ears.

Sister Carruth was an invalid for two years, and for the last twelve months she realized that her end was near. These months of suffering were a season of spiritual development, and into her heart came that blessed experience of love that casteth out fear. She has gone to that better country, but not without a conscious knowledge that her husband and children are on the highway that leadeth to eternal rest.

May the mantle of the mother fall on each of the daughters, and may the sons never leave or forsake their mother's God, and may her husband ever have that comfort which God only can give! M. L. BURTON.

HICKS—Mrs. DORA BEVENS HICKS died after a short illness Oct. 15, 1895.

She lived not for herself, but was ever ready to sacrifice her pleasure for the pleasure of others. As a child, she was pure and good. When budding into womanhood, her life was consecrated to an invalid father; and while older ones might have shrunk from the heavy burden placed upon her young shoulders, she, like the Savior, bore it cheerfully and uncomplainingly. The night was never too cold or dark for her to immediately respond to the many calls made on her by the afflicted one; but for four long years she, like a true soldier, was at her post of duty, making bright and happy the last days of the aged father.

As a woman, her example was worthy of imitation. As a Christian, her life was blameless. As a wife and sister, she was all anyone could wish her to be

GRANDMOTHER.

Berlow, Miss.

MCCALL—Mrs. MALINDA C. MCCALL, widow of M. C. McCall, was born Aug. 1, 1820 and died Dec. 22, 1895. She was married, first, to M. Anglin in 1835. After his death she married M. C. McCall in 1841. She had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, sixty-one years. For more than a week she suffered with la grippe; still she was patient. She was a devoted mother; devoted to her church. She will be sadly missed by her many friends. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

OGDEN—J. LUTHER OGDEN was born Aug. 28, 1831, and died Nov. 30, 1895, aged sixty-four years three months and two days.

He was living with his sister, Mrs. Dunghely, at Tunica till his death. He was always pious from childhood, and joined the Christian church at twelve years of age.

We buried him at the old home, near New Hope Church, in West Feliciana parish, La. May God comfort the bereaved ones!

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D., Brooklyn, New York, in the "New York Evangelist:" "Of all Bibles yet issued in our country, the most superb in execution and completeness of contents is the 'Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teacher's Bible.' Sabbath-school teachers will find this elegant volume a little library of information in itself."

REV. ALVAH HOVEY, D. D., President of and Professor in, the Baptist Theological Seminary, Newton Centre, Mass.: "It pleases me very greatly. I regard the help which it affords to a correct pronunciation of Scripture proper names as doubling the value of the edition. I trust the book will be received as it deserves to be."

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to March, 97. (A little later it will be April, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2 45.

THE DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

Contains 1024 large octavo pages printed on excellent paper, is finely illustrated, and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth, measuring 9½x6½x2 inches.

It contains every name in the Bible and Apochrypa, of which anything can be said. It gives an account of each of the Books of the Bible; it explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs of the Jews, as well as of the various nations mentioned or alluded to in the Scriptures, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves, and worthy of separate publication.

It embraces the results of the most successful and approved Biblical labors and researches, including those of Layard, Rawlinson and others condensed for wide and common use, and constituting an indispensable aid to Ministers, Teachers, Families, Sunday-School Superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

This is undoubtedly the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The publisher's price of the above work is $4.50. We will send it to any address on receipt of price, or we will send it free to any person who will send us two new cash subscribers at the regular rate.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

REV. W. C. BLACK, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF SAINT PAUL.

By the Rev. W. J. CONYBEARE, M. A., Late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; and the Rev. J. S. Howson, D. D., Principal of the Collegiate Institution, Liverpool.

Contains 1014 large octavo pages, many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc., is printed on the same quality of paper and is the same in size as Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and bound in uniform style.

It eloquently portrays the early Life, education, conversion, teachings, labors, travels, sufferings, perils, persecutions, and missionary career of St. Paul, thus constituting a Living Picture of the great Apostle himself and of the circumstances by which he was surrounded.

The work also embodies the results of a profound and appreciative study of the true inner life of St. Paul exhibited in his letters which delineate the motives which impelled, and the faith which sustained him in all the troubles and sorrows of his twenty year's conflict, and from which we learn what is told of Paul by Paul himself, and which will continue to live upon the lips and in the hearts of all the faithful until the final consummation of all things.

It is NOT an ABRIDGEMENT but an EXACT RE-PRINT of the greatly improved "People's Edition," prepared with much care and labor, in pursuance of an original plan of both writers, "for a wider circle of readers," and differs from all other editions by the SUBSTITUTION OF ENGLISH for the Greek, Latin and German quotations.

Dr. Howson in his preface to this edition says,—"Those readers have, throughout, been kept in view who, though well educated, would not find it easy to refer to Greek or German books." "The text (he also says) is unaltered, with the exception of a slight verbal change suggested in the course of a thorough re perusal."

The publisher's price of the above book is $4.50. We will send it free of charge to any person who will send us two new subscribers with the cash—$4 00. We will also send it to any address at the publisher's price.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

DOMESTIC.

Omaha has passed a curfew ordinance, and hereafter the young folk will have to be early at home, or go to the lockup.

Apropos to the proposed statue of Ben Butler in Boston, the Boston Transcript demands, "Shall we have a monument to demagogueism?"

The South Kansas M. E. Conference voted unanimously to admit women to the General M. E. Conferences. The Kansas Conference did the same last week, and the Southwest Kansas Conference, next week, will probably do likewise.

The members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillary Company of Boston have made arrangements for a tour this Summer. They will be the first body of American soldiery to parade the streets of London, armed and equipped.

The gavel for the use of the chairman of the coming Republican Convention has been made from a piece of oak wood taken from the cabin in which Abraham Lincoln used to live at Salem, Ill. It is handsomely carved and mounted with gold and silver.

Senator Blanchard, in an interview with the Washington Post, after describing the campaign now going on in Louisiana, predicts that the Democrats will carry the State by from 40,000 to 50,000 majority. He also predicts the re-election of Mr. Boatner by a large majority.

The American Protective Association, better known as the A. P. A., which has been a factor in the State and municipal politics of several States for a number of years, has announced its intention to enter upon the field of national politics in the coming presidential campaign.

Two members of the City Council of New Orleans were landed as convicts last week in the cells of the State Penitentiary, at Baton Rouge. These were Thoma Haley, alderman for the Third Representative District, and Peter B. Caulfield, alderman for the Eleventh Representative District of the city.

Congressman Boatner has been unseated. The House of Representatives at Washington has, by a strong Republican partisan vote, adopted the report of the Committee on Elections declaring the entire congressional election in the Fifth District of Louisiana fraudulent, and, therefore, it is void, as if no election had been held.

The Missouri Catholics were so pronounced in their affections to Cardinal Satolli at Kansas City the other day that on the morning after the reception his arm was so lame and swollen that he could not move it without pain; two of his fingers were cut, where his ring had been crushed into the flesh, and his whole hand was badly bruised.

Governor Drake, of Iowa, received from Secretary Herbert of the navy an invitation to be present at the launching of the battleship Iowa. Miss Mary Boyd Drake, daughter of the governor, is at the same time invited to christen the ship. Governor Drake will accept the invitation for March 28, and will be accompanied by his staff and many prominent men of Iowa. Action has also been taken by the Legislature looking to the presentation of a silver service to the ship's equipment.

FOREIGN.

The Bismarck monument, the cost of which was defrayed by public subscription, is being erected on the shore of Starnbergar Lake, Bavaria.

There has been a large increase in the number of cases of influenza and pneumonia in Berlin lately, and there have been fifty-three deaths from influenza during the past week.

It is said in Toronto that the burning issue at the next Canadian election will be independence of England. The dominion is being flooded with circulars declaring that England is robbing Canada.

The Queen of England and the Emperor of Austria met last week for the first time, though she has been reigning fifty-nine years and he forty-eight, and that at no great distance from each other.

It is said that General Weyler has telegraphed the home government saying that he is satisfied with the course of the military operations in Cuba and that he has no motive which would prompt him to resign, as stated in the newspapers.

However disposed France and Russia may be to prevent the British advance up the Nile from Egypt, all attempts of that character have apparently been abandoned in the face of the support of that movement by the Triple Alliance.

At the International Medical Congress, to be held in 1897 in Moscow, French will be recognised as the official language, and all papers and discussions must be in Russian, French or German. This has angered the English doctors, and they are talking about not attending the Congress.

The Abyssinian and Egyptian questions are the subject of a great deal of negotiations upon the part of the Triple Alliance. Germany, in response to Italy's representations, supports Great Britain, although the bitterness manifested by the former towards the latter is not effaced.

Pure Blood is the safeguard of health. Keep your blood pure, rich and full of vitality by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and you will not need to fear the attacks of disease.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to March, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

BUSINESS NOTICES.

For Over Fifty Years

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

To My Brethren and Friends.

I find myself now in condition that I am unable to advance the money to have my "Reminiscences" published in pamphlet form, and I must at least delay the publication to some future time. I must advance $60 to have them printed, for which I supposed I could command the means; but, like many others, I am unable to make the arrangement now. If my friends desire the publication and will assist me by depositing the money to the amount of $60 with Capital State Bank in such sum as they may see proper, I can have the pamphlet printed in the course of two or three weeks. These "Reminiscences" make a part of the history of the M. E. Church, South, very dear to many. Fraternally,

H. J. HARBRE.

Centerville, Miss.

A perfect cure! Mr. Edward E Broughton, 140 W. 19th St., New York City, N. Y., says this: "I have used five bottles of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup in my family and find it a perfect cure. I cheerfully recommend it."

Memphis Stuttering Institute.

MR. EDITOR: I have been acquainted with the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE for many years, and can say the same of its editor. I thank you again and again for writing up my Stuttering School at Memphis. Yes, Bro. Bartlett witnessed the cure of those young men, and his great big heart went out after other stutterers. The same feeling prompted you to publish his letter, which I hope will bring many stutterers to me to be cured of that annoying habit. If all the religious papers have the interest of suffering humanity at heart like the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE and our Memphis Christian Advocate, St Louis Christian Advocate, and the Southwestern Presbyterian, thousands would flock to me or write for mail treatment. Then I could and would cure all the widows and orphans—yes, and poor—free of charge. As for preachers, I never charge them for a cure. You may say in your great paper that I want every preacher of all denominations who stammers or stutters to visit me at 468 Poplar street, Memphis, Tenn., and stay one week for $6. You may say furthermore that I will cure widows and orphans at half price. Ask them to write me. I refer them to the Memphis Christian Advocate; Judge Roane, of Oxford, Miss.; Judge I. W. Buchanan, of Memphis. Your friend,

G. W. RANDOLPH.

SECURE A POSITION.

Wanted, for office work, on salary, in most every county in the South and West, a young lady or gentleman. Those from the country also accepted. Experience not necessary; in fact, prefer beginners at a small salary at first, say to begin, from $30.00 to $60.00 a month. Strictly office work. Chances for rapid promotion good. The enterprise is strongly endorsed by bankers. Address P. O. Box 453, Nashville, Tenn. (Mention this paper.)

Programme.

The Preachers' Institute of the Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, will be held in Hazlehurst, April 27-28. The following is the programme:

TUESDAY, 3:30 P. M.

1. History of the Tithe Law: Is it Binding on Christians?—Paper by M. L. Burton. Discussed by E. F. Edgar and ——.

2. Ministerial Courtesy—Paper by I. W. Cooper. Discussed by J. D. Crymes and J. M. Morse.

3. Sermon at 7:30 P. M. by B. F. Jones. Subject—The Office of the Holy Spirit.

WEDNESDAY, 9 A. M.

1. Our Duty Toward the Jewish Population about Us—Paper by W. G. Backus. Discussed by J. W. Chambers and T. L. Mellen.

2. The Higher Life: What Is It?—Paper by T. L. Mellen. Discussed by V. V. Boone and J. B. Robertson.

11 A. M.

Sermon by I. B. Robertson. Subject—Prayer.

B. F. JONES, for the Committee.

Keep a bottle of MUL-EN-OL where you can quickly reach it, in case of emergency. Perhaps it will save a doctor's bill.

The Omaha garden enterprise, for the unemployed and the poor, which was commenced during April last, and which was carried out by the agricultural commission and the associated charities, considering that it was a first trial and a dry season, resulted in a success which encourages a continuation and extension of the plan for the coming season.

Individual Communion

Cups, Cabinets and Tables, adapted to the customs and usages of all branches of the Christian church. Illustrated descriptive catalogue free.

MARRIAGES.

BELL-WALTER.—Near Morton, Miss., March 12, 1896, by Rev. O. McDonald, Mr. J. J. Bell to Miss Henrietta Walter.

BUCHANAN-ROGERS.—At the residence of Mr. Zabe Rogers, March 8, 1896, by Rev. J. H. Evans, Mr. D. C. Buchanan to Miss Lucy Rogers.

SANDFORD-COLDMAN.—In the clerk's office at Williamsburg, Jan 2, 1896, by Rev. J. H. Evans, Mr. C. A. Sandford to Miss B. T. Coldman.

IRBY—WRIGHT.—At Sanders' Church (La.), March 13, 1896, by Rev. W. T. Currie, Mr. Nathan B. Irby and Mrs. Fannie E. Wright.

The best remedy for rheumatism that has yet been discovered. Mr D H. Tyler 150 W. Main St., Galesburg, Ills., writes: "I have used a good many bottles of Salvation Oil, and think it the best remedy for rheumatism I ever used."

There are thirty Bible societies in the world, and they have issued over two hundred and forty million Bibles. The most active of these useful organizations are the American and the English, and four fifths of the vast output have come from their presses. This is a marvelous record. The demand for the Word of God continues, and liberal contributions are yearly made to meet it.—Exchange.

MUL EN-OL—Nature's Great Healer and Pain Destroyer. Often is it that lives are lost, that might have been saved by the timely use of MUL EN-OL.

Life was given for noble purposes, and therefore we must not part with it foolishly. It must not be thrown up in a pet, nor sacrificed to a quarrel, nor whined away in love.—Collier.

PREPARATION TO MEET GOD.

There is a time, we know not when,
A place, we know not where,
That marks the destiny of men
To glory or despair.

There is a line by us unseen
That crosses every path—
The hidden boundary between
God's mercy and his wrath.

To pass that limit is to die,
To die as if by stealth;
It does not quench the beaming eye,
Nor pale the glow of health.

The conscience may be still at ease,
The spirits light and gay;
That which is pleasing still may please,
And care be thrust away.

But on that fo chead God has set
Indelibly a mark,
Unseen by man, for man as yet
Is blind and in the dark.

The Sonship of the Spirit.

BY BISHOP KEENER.

The Gospel according to St. John is by emphasis a Book of Life. In it St. John gives us the creation of all things and persons, of spiritual life, of divine Sonship, of the work and power of the Spirit. He writes after the departure of Christ, and after the coming of the Spirit. The full force, therefore, of Christ's words are with him in this announcement of the purposes of God in sending his Son into the world. He has given us an accurate account of the interview between Christ and one of the best of men among the Jews at that time. It occurred far in the night, for it was not easy to get at the Son of man in the midst of his great work. The room in which were Christ and several disciples was on the inner court of the house, lighted by a cresset, which threw the shadow of the nobleman and of the Master on the wall as they conversed together. All the disciples were asleep excepting St. John.

Nicodemus, though a believer, regarded religion as a science, and Christ as its teacher sent by God. Christ knew it to be a power, a kingdom, revealed. As was his custom, he states the true issue, the nature of God's kingdom. That it was not learning, but life; in its last analysis, a being, not a doing, or a not doing; a new nativity; not a reshuping of the old man; not a growth; not a change of purpose, or of habit, but a vitality: the old man dies; the new man lives.

The dogmatic manner in which Christ affirms this truth strengthens its force: "Except a man be born again he can not see the kingdom of God;" "Ye must be born again." There is no letting up in the face of the impossible, as suggested by the Ruler. Many unaccountable things are true and of daily occurrence. This is the miracle of the Spirit; a work of power, to be wrought upon the heart and soul of man, in mature life, in fair standing, and of good intelligence; upon a Master in Israel, as well as upon every other man who would enter the kingdom of God.

(1) It is not any change of the flesh. It used to be thought that matter was evil, and that the only way to be good was to imprison, to starve, to reduce the body, and so transform it into spirit. Hence that vast system which obtained in the Middle Ages, of Anchorites, Hermits, Monks, Nuns, Saints, in coarse haircloth, and with long fastings; but at the end "flesh" was no more "spirit" than a dead body is a living child.

(2) It is not by inheritance of blood. Abraham, Isaac and Jacob were not the sources of spirit, but of flesh. One can not get piety from parents, though parents condone wrong-doing in their children, and think that careful training will insure spiritual life. This was the fearful blunder of Israel, that the Sonship came by descent.

(3) "Not of the will of the flesh." Sentiment, romance, poetry, choirs, processions, societies, mere benevolent activities, can not radically effect a change in the nature of man. So far as this goes, the Temple service, its sacramental offices, symbols, bells, robes, and instruments, were as venerable in the sons of Levi, and as imposing in the trained choristers of Asaph, as at any period since. The worshiper was as often in high poetic rapture then as now. But St. Paul says that all this appointed ritual has been displaced, and that the revival of this grand, elaborate system of priestly service, or any attempt to restore it, makes faith, the faith of Christ crucified, of no effect. "If righteousness comes by the law, then Christ is dead in vain."

(4) Neither is this Sonship to be the result "of the will of man"—not by rationalistic views of Scripture, and the mere power of the intellect. The logical statement: "I have prayed, therefore I have obtained; I have believed, therefore I am blessed," may describe a logical faith and a logical blessing. They are natural, but not spiritual evidences—the best the flesh can do, maybe, yet far from the conscious truth of being "a partaker of the Divine nature."

(5) "But of God." A supernatural work of the Holy Ghost, from without, extraneous of man's will; not contrary to it, but distinct from it; consciously so; wrought upon a repenting mind and a prayerful spirit. "Who shall deliver me from the body of this death?"

This mighty work unites "the spirit that raised Christ from the dead"—resurrection power—with creational energy; "created anew in Christ Jesus," and also with the incarnation; the Sonship which was imparted thereby to the human race. This constitutes this divine experience a birth. "Ye are sons, because God has sent the spirit of his Son into your hearts."

It is "of the Spirit," because he it is who changes man into the image of the Son, and delivers us from the power of darkness. He it is who presided over the hour of my natural birth, when "I was fearfully made," that now presides over my spiritual translation into the kingdom of God's dear Son. "The Spirit of love, of power, and of a sound mind."

The absolute necessity for this work is set forth by the Son of man in the review which he gives in this chapter of the scheme of redemption: (1) That God sent his Son into the world to this end—the forgiving sin for a sufficient cause; (2) the restoration of our manhood by the creation of sons in the image of the Son—a "new man in Christ Jesus," a new personality.

The absolute demand is based upon the death of the Son. Pardon and the gift of life go together; the condition of escape being faith in Christ's death as God's offering for sin.

In estimating the sum of the various states and powers implied in the consciousness of having been "born again," we must not forget that it is the full expression of a new and divine Sonship, which has been achieved and imparted by the united will and act of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. First of all, it is the consciousness that I am loved of God, and also that I have found in the Son of man an end in which my entire personality may rest. He is to me "the fairest among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely." (2) That I am freely forgiven all sins that are past for the sake of his death. For this sufficient cause, the sacrificial death of Christ, my substitute, who thereby redeemed me with a price, and by death saves me from death. (3) That I have no fear of death, and that I should be saved were I to die in the hour of my spiritual birth. (4) That I am, in a sense I never before conceived of, a son of God. That I have for God the love of a son, and feel that he is my Father as well as my God. (5) That I am a new creature in my powers of apprehending God in every part of nature. That the One who created the world is the One who creates me a new man in Christ Jesus. (6) That in this respect I am in a new world—all things are new, as now seen, through a supernatural medium. That my heart kindles into rapture at the song of a bird, or at the sight of a shining dewdrop, and the sky and the earth are but the sounding-board of my soul, overflowing with gratitude to my Savior and to my God. (7) That I have a substantial conviction of the existence of heaven, and with it a hope that realizes the unseen and the future. (8) That I have a desire to be like the Savior in all his sublime qualities. That I am sanctified to his service in all the possibilities of my new nature, and have in him an object toward which I am continually drawn. (9) That I have power over the enemy, and am able to resist him. That he has been judged by Christ. That "I can smile at Satan's rage."

Nothing less than this covenant in his blood can save us, now that it has been so explicitly stated by Christ's coming, by his death, and by the rendering of this covenant of life which has been given us through the apostles and the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. Now that he offers to put his law in the mind and write it on the heart—that is, make it not only intelligible, but precious to our spirits—a law of love; and, above all, to bring all our sins within the arch of a great overspanning mercy and of forgiving grace—and "remember them no more."

This change of heart is the characteristic of the Spirit's dispensation. It is the standing miracle of the Holy Ghost, a resurrection of man's spirit, by which the Holy Ghost maintains the church of God from age to age. It is the concentrated expression of God's love for his creatures.

"O love divine, how sweet thou art!
When shall I find my willing heart
All taken up by thee?"

The whole of life, with all the aid of the Spirit, both in his holy Word and in his special providences, is barely sufficient to fully develop the great powers and the sublime graces imparted to us at the instant of conversion. In its potentiality the new birth can well be compared with the Incarnation—it is the Spirit of the Son dwelling in us indissolubly forever.

Without this provision we must perish—if we fall into the hands of the living God, and if we accept not life and pardon for sin through him "who suffered without the gate, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood."

But what pen is adequate to describe this new creation by the Spirit?—"suddenly," etc. Suddenly, as the sky parted at the Jordan, the soul realizes that Christ crucified is its Savior. Why it had not seen this long ago is its wonder. The faith that is of the operation of God had been given so quickly that its supernatural source was not suspected. And yet it was the evidence of things not seen, and was the divine faculty which perceived not only Christ as its Redeemer, but the spiritual universe. In the same instant its whole being was attune with the love of God! That he should love me! became the refrain of the heart's throb; and all the wonder of conscious love responded with a lowliness that found its only place at the Savior's feet. The long conflict was now ended, and peace through the blood of Christ, as the waves of the sea, passed again and again over the soul. All fear of death gave place to an assurance of the future life; the substance of things hoped for became a conscious heaven. The invisible present and an invisible future were melted into one.

A new personality now has become the center of all creation, and there dwells in the soul the Spirit of the Son, the life of a new existence. For the first time the idea of Sonship fills the mind, that God is a "Father," and instinctively the soul, for the first time, utters the word which the Spirit has put in the mouth. The new man is now become conscious of God! "He that sanctifieth, and they who are sanctified, are all of one: for which cause he is not ashamed to call them brethren." Devotion to the Father has now become the abiding impulse of renewed nature.

The Spirit now confirms the soul in its power over the enemy, because the Prince of this world is judged. The soul feels that the mountains of earth are full of the chariots of God; that there are more with us than all that be with them. To the renewed man the whole earth, sky and sea have taken on a new expression. A veil has been torn from the sun's face, and a brighter light bathes the landscape. He cries out, He that creates me anew is the Creator of all things; he is "my Lord and my God!" Nor is this outward change the least of the evidences of divine favor, which now suffuse the soul, for he could appeal to nature itself to testify what great things God had done for him. Henceforth his faith works by love. The blood of Christ daily cleanses him of sin, and he walks in the light, in fellowship with the Father, and with his Son, Jesus Christ. It is this reflex action of faith that advances the soul in love. The crucifixion and love go together. In his dying hour Mr. Wesley contemplated that offering which Christ made once and forever, by which he entered into the holy place, having made eternal redemption for us.

"I the chief of sinners am,
But Jesus died for me," and it filled him with the rapture of a Savior's love. "I am going to throw myself," said the dying Fletcher, "under the wings of the cherubim before the mercy-seat."

Both all of life and all of death will barely suffice to explore the infinite fullness of the Spirit's sonship, "for as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

In the Living Present.

England celebrates this year the tri-centennial of the potato's introduction in Europe. It is three hundred years ago that Sir Walter Raleigh first planted the same in Cork, Ireland. The native country of the potato is Chili and Peru.

The temperance law recently passed by the Legislature of New York, and already signed by Gov. Morton, forbids the so-called free lunch in bar rooms. Forthwith come blatant politicians, styling themselves patriots, saying that the free lunch is a characteristically American institution. That abolishment is unpatriotic. Well, the system of treating at the bar is also peculiarly American; but it is of the devil all the same.

To inveigh against the rich may sound patriotic and philanthropic to the unthinking masses; but said rich may actually be more liberal and pious than the demagogical and impecunious declaimer. To be rich is not a sin; nor is poverty a virtue. Socialism is Utopian. If all property were equally divided to-day, three months hence there would be paupers and millionaires.

The art of doing without should be more generally learned and practiced. Of course, extremes are to be avoided. The fact remains that there are nine spendthrifts to one miser. Our education should not create and encourage extravagance and luxury, but modesty and frugality. More than half of the bankruptcies among business men are caused by the extravagancies of wife and daughters. The art of doing without makes the poor rich.

Archbishop O'Reilly, in Adelaide, Australia, edits and, assisted by the parish priests, mechanically completes the Catholic Record. He is a skilled compositor and printer. Mechanics should be more freely taught in our colleges. Let our boys and girls, besides the necessary drill of intellect, learn something practically useful. Education should make truly independent.

London has seven public lunatic asylums, containing twelve thousand invalids. In private institutions a larger number of demented find treatment. Physicians declare that the increase of insanity is not always due to inextricable complications of society, to pecuniary depressions and criminal practices, but frequently to injurious diet. Dyspepsia destroys not only the body, but also the mind.

Dr. Alex. Dowie, of Chicago, calls all existing Christian churches "synagogues of the devil." He has hence organized a church of his own. Has himself elected "general overseer." Teaches that salvation is only by Christ. Immersion only, he declares, constitutes baptism. Extols the prophets and apostles. Declares himself their successor. Already a thousand persons have joined his organization. Pretends to effect miraculous cures. The walls of his tabernacle are decorated with crutches, trusses, spectacles, etc., left by healed invalids. Well, truth and humbug joined never failed to win temporary victory.

Most conversions undergo the following four stages: 1. The truth heard makes angry. 2. Reflection induces to go and hear once more. 3. The conclusion is reached that the difficulty lies with himself, not with the truth heard. 4. Submission to the truth's dictation and peace in the blood of the Lamb. IRA DIEN.

Selections.

Indoctrinate.

No Methodist pastor has done his full duty by his people until he has taken all pains to show them that Methodist doctrines are the best in the world. If he does not believe them to be the best in the world, he has no business to be in a Methodist pulpit; and if, believing this, he fails to make it plain, he has not fully met the demands of his position, he is not competent for his place. The people have a right to this service at his hands. Their whole needs are not met when they are treated year in and year out simply to warm exhortations, vague moralizations, and easy enlargements on universally accepted Christian truth. "Why are we a people?" "In what do we differ from other denominations?" "For what do we especially stand?" are questions that they will ask if they have any intelligence, and which deserve an answer. It is the business of the preacher, on proper occasions, to put this answer before them and supply them with arguments wherewith they may meet opponents.

Such opponents are by no means lacking. Our right to be is still plentifully challenged. It is denied that we are a properly constituted New Testament church. Both Episcopalians and Baptists deny this. It is denied that our system of doctrine can be squared with reason and modern research. Both Unitarians and Universalists deny this. Our people have to face these things in the shops and on the streets. They ought to be so grounded in their faith that they will not easily be swept from their moorings; so fortified that no subtly planned attack or plausibly presented theory will throw them into perplexity and sap their loyalty to their church. Unless a person knows why he believes what he does, he is an easy prey to those who lie in wait to lead him astray.

An outcry is often heard against doctrinal preaching, and no doubt there have been times when there was too much theology in the pulpit. But that time is not now. The danger is now quite in the other direction. Our children are growing up with very little knowledge of the catechism; our young people readily drift away from us because they have always heard that there was really no difference of any importance in what the various churches believed; and in our average congregations not one in ten knows wherein lies the superiority of the Methodist creed to that of the church across the way. This is nothing less than a crying evil fraught with danger. Some time should be taken in every pastorate at least, if not in every year, to preach a series of sermons that shall set people thinking along doctrinal lines, that shall answer the questionings of the people, satisfy their doubts, and strengthen their attachment to the church of their choice. These sermons, when managed at all well, are almost always popular in the best sense with the best people, and are exceedingly useful. If the pulpit is to retain its place in this thoughtful age, it must keep the people thinking; and if our people are to be made or kept enthusiastic Methodists, they must be skillfully and vigorously indoctrinated.—Zion's Herald.

Missions and Civilization.

It is not too much to say that what has been really accomplished for the benefit of uncivilized races in the particular here considered, has been directly or indirectly through the instrumentality of Christian missions. Indeed, the method pursued by the missionary is the only one which has any real promise of good. An attempt by compulsory means to change the customs of a savage or barbarous race, save in the case of acts too bad to be allowed, is folly, and may be cruelty. The missionary method aims at change in the man himself, as that which shall go before and guarantee all things else. The process may be slow, but it is sure. Nor is it always so very slow. Little more than two generations have passed since the Sandwich Islander was a brutal savage. Christian methods have redeemed whole tribes of American Indians. When men of science, and those who follow their lead, will study Christian missions with some other purpose in view than disparagement and fault-finding, they may discover that here is a "more excellent way" of dealing with the savage and barbarous races of mankind than to leave them as they are, and that the problem which science and civilization seem like abandoning in despair, Christianity has already solved.—The Standard (Chicago).

Be Decided.

Why not be out-and-out for God? What good is there in the half-and-half life? Is it not better to settle some question once for all? Most surely the question of our allegiance to the Lord ought to be so settled that it shall never again be counted open. He whose loyalty is in any way left doubtful gives encouragement to the enemy, and prepares for himself endless trouble. It is better to have it out with Satan in a pitched battle wherein all the forces of both sides are brought on to the field, and where the adversary gets so overwhelmingly crushed that he loses all desire for a repetition of that sort of thing. A resolute life is in every way a gain; it is the admiration of angels and the reproduction of Christ.—Zion's Herald.

I go at what I am about as if there were nothing else in the world for the time being. That's the secret of all hard-working men. But most of them can't carry it into their amusements. Luckily for me, I can stop from all work at short notice, and turn head over heels in the sight of all creation, and say: "I won't be good or bad, or wise, or anything, till two o'clock to-morrow."—Charles Kingsley.

Selfishness.

The Apostle Paul tells us, under the illumination and impulse of inspiration, "That in the last days perilous times shall come," and mentions as the first and most fruitful source of these "perilous times" that "men shall be lovers of their own selves;" one of the most hurtful forms of idolatry. Of course, the apostle means perverted self love. Normal self-love is so far from being wrong that it is made the standard and extent of our love to our neighbor—"as thyself." "Love worketh no ill to its neighbor;" it is in its last analysis simple, even justice, doing as we would have men do to us. Legitimate self-love leads to self-respect, to self-improvement, both mental and moral. It says to us as Paul said to the jailor: "Do thyself no harm."

When self-love is perverted, it is properly called selfishness; and selfishness is the most general expression of human depravity. It suggests so much that it can by no means be treated exhaustively in a newspaper article. We can but glance at a few of the manifold forms and developments of selfishness, for all history is little more than an exhibition of its triumphs and wrongs. This selfishness in its public and national forms develops itself in wars, and armies marching to subjugation, pillage and spoil of a neighboring, but weaker nation. The great conquerers who have ravaged and pillaged, and dyed the earth in the gore of its murdered children from the days of Sesostris to Napoleon, have not sought the peace and welfare of their fellowmen, but they have sought to gratify their insatiable rage for power and personal aggrandizement. It distinguishes Washington from the world's heroes, and raises him immeasurably above their level. He sought and would have no personal gain, but always at the earliest opportunity resigned the sword and the reigns of power, restoring them to his fellow-citizens, who committed them for a season to his charge. The selfishness of too many of our public men is deeply deplored by many patriotic citizens. Such men sell themselves for places and profits, instead of serving their country for their country's good.

Personally, in private life it leads men into a thousand wrongs and crimes. It often leads to overweening self-conceit, to a haughty overbearing arrogance that despises others, and grasps at the most desirable no matter who suffers or who is wronged. This selfishness is one of the causes of the slow progress of the gospel. The cry for help, for more laborers in the harvest field, comes up from many lands. There are many devoted men willing to give themselves, their all indeed, but the Missionary Boards have not the means to send and sustain them while they give their time and energies in making the ignorant heathens wise unto salvation. No well-informed person doubts for a moment that our church could easily give five times as much as it does for missions, instead of the average of twenty cents per member for foreign missions. It ought to be and could easily be a dollar as an average for missions—but for selfishness. Selfish people will not practice any self-denial, but will lavish money on needless trifles and luxurious self-indulgences. We trust the millions being trained in our Sunday-schools will do better than the majority of our people are now doing for missions.

This selfishness leads many capitalists to seek to grow richer by paying only starving wages to those whose circumstances compel them to accept what the capitalist chooses to pay. Selfishness sometimes prompts employees to take advantage of the employer's situation to demand and extort excessive increase of wages, or reduction of labor time.

This selfishness leads to the thousands of chicaneries, tricks and adulterations in trade, where we see the cunning taking advantage of the simple confidence of the ignorant. Selfishness in business seeks by a hundred arts to get more than that which is just, or to pay less than the value demands.

Selfishness leads the remorseless hell-deserving debauchee to seek to gratify his beastly lust at the expense of his victim's innocence and character, and there abandon her to shame and poverty, to die in a ditch or in a mad-house. This unhallowed selfishness leads the heartless gambler to alluringly decorate his infamous den, and then by persuasive arts allures his victims into his grasp, and then with drugged liquors and deceptive arts cheats and robs them of all their money.

This selfishness in business seems to me to reach its climax in the saloonist, who, to escape honest labor, and live a life of ease, sells what he knows are poisonous stimulants, that will create a raging appetite for the deadly liquors. He sees his victim failing in health, sinking in character, losing position, growing poorer. He sees the wretched man's children in want of shoes, clothes, nourishing food and comfortable shelter. He sees the weeping mother, the pale, crushed and broken-hearted wife. He sees the crimes, the arrests, the criminal trials, the jail, the penitentiary, the gallows—all as the outgrowth and output of his heartless, selfish, destructive business, and yet holds to it, persists in it in defiance of humanity and the law whenever he can. I can not conceive of a more supremely selfish life. If he sold small-pox, cholera and yellow fever by retail over his counter, it would not be so hurtful as his daily and nightly sales of liquors ruinous to the souls and bodies of men. J. B. WALKER.

Rev. T. B. Hargrove.

The foundation of Bro. Hargrove's strong, manly character was laid in childhood and young manhood. He was an obedient child and a strong, pure, right-living young man. His habits were good. He kept himself free, entirely free, from the vices that corrupt so many young men. He offered himself, his body, a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, regarding this as a just and reasonable service. He was not conformed to this world—to the customs and habits of the majority of the young men in the community where he lived, but was transformed by the renewing of his mind, and so made the law of God the rule of his life. This he did from childhood. He was cheerful enough, full enough of life, social enough; but whenever anything had even the appearance of evil he stopped right there and then, and he had the Christian courage and manhood to enter his protest. He stood for the right at all times, on all occasions and under all circumstances. Everybody knew where to find Tom Hargrove on every subject. Bro. Hargrove sowed no wild oats, and in after life had no crop of cheat to reap. It was a matter of pleasure to him that he could not boast of having "gone all the gaits" and reveled in all forms of sin—a boast that in no way reflects credit on the gospel of Christ. The grace of God, by Christ, was meant to save men from sinning at all, as well as to snatch them as brands from the burning when they are at the door of hell. This grace is most efficient in saving souls from sin from the very first. A life of sin and of dissipation may be, often is, forgiven, but it can not be forgotten. It remains as a sad memory to pious souls as long as life lasts—saddest to the most deeply pious. It is a great mistake the world makes in thinking that none can know the fullness and blessing of salvation but those who have gone to the depths of sin. The best men and women the world has ever known were saved by faith in Christ in childhood—some in infancy. The grace of God is coeval and coextensive with the existence and ruin of sin. It was meant to save infant children, youths and young men and women from sin—from all sin. The gospel of Christ is most and best glorified in those earliest and most fully saved from sin. The faith faculty is at its best before sin as an act exists. Each succeeding act of sin only tends to blunt that faculty and to blind the eye of faith. No young man is made better or stronger by spending his earlier years in sin and in riotous living. No preacher is the better able to explain the way of salvation because he wallowed in the mire of sin for long years.

Bro. Hargrove was fully as much a sinner saved by grace as was John Bunyan or Sam P. Jones. He was certainly as sure of his footing as either of these. He had no bad habits to master and no vitiated appetites to control. No man is helped by going half way to hell before he repents, and turns towards heaven. Some sins beget an heritage of sorrow that lives as long as life lasts—lives to sting the conscience and the memory. God would have us accept Christ by personal faith at the inception of moral responsibility, and to be saved from all sin throughout the whole life.

Bro. Hargrove, through faith that is of the operation of God, lived a pure, clean life from childhood. His end was a sudden transition—much like a translation—and he was ready for it. His life is worthy of imitation, certainly of emulation.

I was his pastor from December, 1870, to December, 1874. I want to lay one flower on his grave.

GILDEROY.

AT EASTER SERVICE.

BY MRS. JULIET HOWE HARMON.

The clustered lilies, pure and pale,
Offerings for God's altar meet,
Gleam fair within the chancel rail,
Whispering with their fragrance sweet,
"The Lord is risen."

Soft stealing o'er the sacred calm,
The organ peals a joyous strain,
And bursting in triumphant psalm,
Choristers voice the glad refrain,
"The Lord is risen."

Reverently the man of God
Declares the creed of Christian faith;
The gloomy vale the Savior trod,
That we might conquer cruel death,
When he had risen.

The spotless Lamb for sinners slain,
The sorrow of the Crucified,
Of Christ, who died, then rose again,
That thus we say at Easter-tide,
"The Lord is risen."

The Magdalen, whose weary feet
Had wandered to this holy place,
Hears gladly this old story sweet:
For her, with matchless love and grace,
The Lord has risen.

Lo! from her dark, sepulchred heart,
The stone of sin rolls quick away;
The blessed words fresh life impart,
And spirit new proclaims that day,
That Christ has risen!

Henceforth a soul redeemed, whose days
In ceaseless benediction move;
Whose deeds of love and songs of praise,
And whole, sweet, noble life doth prove
That Christ is risen.

Correspondence

To the Stewards of the Natchez District.

DEAR BRETHREN: The object of this communication is to set before you the duties of your office and the responsibility that devolves upon you as the stewards of the church of Christ. You are the spiritual advisers of your pastors and the custodians of their temporal interests. Out of these relations arises the twofold duty of giving your pastors the benefit of your godly counsel, and of looking prayerfully and thoughtfully after their support. If you are men of solid piety, you can be of great service to your pastors by advising with them concerning the welfare of Zion. Every pastor feels the need of such support from his stewards; and when he does not receive it, suffers for the lack of it. But the purpose of this communication is to help you to realize your duty in the support of your pastors. Your pastors' living is absolutely in your hands. You have it in your power to have them comfortably supported, or to have them shut up in financial embarrassment. You are elected by your several Quarterly Conferences to look after the temporal interests of your pastors. Your pastors commit the material welfare of themselves and their families to your keeping. They look to you for their support. It is needless for me to tell you that it is your duty to be true to this sacred trust imposed upon you by the church, and committed to you by your confiding pastors. Of this you are already aware. Let me show you what is requisite to the performance of this sacred duty. Get your hearts burdened with a sense of your duty. Ask yourselves what is depending upon your stewardship. Will anybody suffer if we are negligent in the discharge of our duty as stewards? These questions prayerfully answered will burden you with a deep sense of your duty and responsibility. Ask for divine help in the discharge of your duty. Ask God to prepare you to approach the people with the claims of your pastors. Much depends on how you approach men on any subject. While you are seeking preparation for your duty, ask God to prepare the people to hear you, and to incline them to respond to your cause. God going before you in answer to prayer will always insure success. Be diligent in the discharge of your duty—interestedly and perseveringly attentive to your duty. Here is where so many stewards fail in their work. They feel no particular interest in the temporal welfare of their pastors; and if they fail to collect one day, they do not persevere the next. They lose sight of the pastor's salary till just a day or two before Quarterly Conference, and then, as a matter of course, they report little or nothing at the Conference. In order to do anything, we must begin in time and work diligently till we have accomplished the desired end. So also to succeed with the collection of salaries, the stewards must begin in time and persevere till they collect them. Stewards, as the custodians of their pastor's support, are in a large measure responsible for the failure or success of the several charges in the support of their pastors. Almost any work or church with efficient stewards can and will support its pastor. Every charge in the Natchez district can and will pay every dollar assessed for the support of the ministry, provided the stewards will discharge their duty. Let me admonish you not to put off your collections till just before the Quarterly Conference, but put in all the time necessary to do the work; and, above all things, don't wait till the last quarter, and then expect to settle with your pastors in full. Address yourselves now to your work, and continue through the whole year, and give your people no rest till the last dollar is paid. May the Lord bless you, and fill you with wisdom and the Holy Ghost!

Your brother, L. S. JONES.

Some Epworth League News and Other Notes.

Bro. J. M. Henry and myself have just returned from a trip through the Opelousas district in the interest of the Epworth League work, having visited all the points that could be reached in the time that was at our disposal. The way was prepared for our coming. At one church new steps were erected on the day of our arrival (possibly in view of the avoirdupois of Bro. Henry); and at every place the brethren had kindly advertised our coming, so that, with scarcely an exception, we had large and enthusiastic audiences who responded readily to our appeals. We were thus able to organize wherever there was no organization, and to encourage and assist to some extent organizations already existing.

I think that I can safely report to the ADVOCATE that interest in the Epworth League is now at high tide in the Opelousas district, since as many as twelve Leagues, and perhaps more, are organized within its bounds. These are, for the most part, actively at work, and will send representatives to the State Conference, which meets at the Carondelet Street Church, May 29–31. Let us have every part of the State equally well represented at our coming Conference, and we will have a glorious time.

Much to my regret, I was not able to visit Lake Charles, but Bro. Henry reports that there is an army of two hundred and fifty Leaguers in the Methodist Churches there, and that in spite of the all-day rainfall on Sunday, quite a large number of these assembled in the evening to listen to what he had to say. We visited together Morgan City, Patterson, Franklin, Jeanerette, New Iberia, Lafayette, Abbeville and Rayne, and at all these places had a splendid time, socially and religiously, and endeavored to contribute something to the Epworth League cause. I spent Sunday in Crowley, and had the pleasure of preaching twice to Bro. Drake's congregation.

Nearly all the towns of South Louisiana give signs of rapid material progress, and several of the brethren are planning to build new churches—Bro. Harp, in Lake Charles; Bro. Reames, in Lafayette, and Bro. Armstrong, in Franklin. When the spirit of improvement is in the atmosphere of peace, it ought to be the favorable opportunity to look to the improvement of church edifices.

I was struck by hearing several of the preachers make substantially the same remark—"I have found the kindest people here that I ever met"—and the groaning tables to which we were invited to come were witnesses to the truth of what they said.

Bro. Notestine, in New Iberia, has a fine arrangement for a study, and an ideal one for Summer time. He has an upper room so situated as to catch any breeze that may be stirring, and has telephone connection with the dining-room of the parsonage.

The French Mission, under Bro. Wallace, is doing finely, nearly twenty members having been received since Conference. South Louisiana needs, and ought to have, liberal appropriations from the Board of Missions in Nashville. I can not see why it would not be a wiser and more Christian policy for the M. E. Church, South, to appropriate funds in territory like this, that is as much heathen as Mexico or Brazil, than in territory where other churches are doing the necessary work.

EDITORS

Mrs. H. W Foote, of North Miss. Conference
Miss Pauline Stafford, of Mississippi Conference
Mrs E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference.

The W. P. and H. M. Society met at Ruston, in annual convention, March 13, 14 and 15, 1896. The attendance, although not as large as usual—owing to the small-pox scare—made up in interest any lack of numbers. Only about fifty-five members were present; but the beautiful little church among the hills was filled at almost every meeting. Too much can not be said of the cordiality and hospitality of the good people of Ruston. Their lovely homes were open to receive us. Their cordial, welcome, hearty co-operation and deep interest in Parsonage and Home Mission work rendered our stay not only one of profit and encouragement, but of pleasure as well.

The convention opened on Friday morning at the Methodist Church. On entering, the eye was greeted by lovely flowers and bright faces, and the ear delighted by several beautiful hymns from the Ruston choir. Rev. J. A. Miller, pastor in charge, led in prayer by request of the president, Mrs. F. A. Lyons. Then followed the roll-call of auxiliaries and appointment of committees, and the business of the meeting commenced in earnest. The annual address of the president presented a comprehensive survey of the work and an earnest appeal to the workers, bearing upon the importance of providing homes for the preachers and establishing mission schools. Rev. J. A. Miller and Rev. T. B. White addressed the meeting, endorsing and commending the work of the W. P. and H. M. Society. The address of welcome was charmingly given by Mrs. Pitts, of Ruston, and the response by Miss Vaughn, of Homer. A fine report of the work by Mrs. Russ (Conference corresponding secretary), an interesting paper on the "Holston Industrial School," at Greenville, Tenn., by Miss McDowell; full report of mission work in New Orleans, by Mrs. Campman, and Cuban work in Florida, by Miss Neilson, followed by an essay on the "Importance of Answering Letters," by Mrs. Kennedy, closed the exercises for the day.

Our ladies are indebted to the Ruston Auxiliary for a most delightful excursion to the Industrial Institute and the Chautauqua grounds, both of which are ornaments to the town of Ruston.

After the usual exercises on Saturday morning, all were pleased and interested to hear Mrs. T. B. White speak of her experience as a minister's wife, and Mrs. Carr on the subject of juvenile work at Oak Ridge, and Mrs. Watts (fraternal delegate from the W. F. M. Society) on faith and prayer. Following these, Mr. Sloane, president of the Epworth League of the Louisiana Conference, spoke of the Supply Department and its power for good in the destitute appointments of the church. Then came the election of officers as follows: President, Mrs. F. A. Lyons; corresponding secretary, Mrs. F. E. Russ; recording secretary, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy; treasurer, Mrs. J. H. Campman; first vice-president, Mrs. J. T. Sawyer; second vice-president, Mrs. La Prade; third vice-president, Mrs. T. B. White. District secretaries: Arcadia district, Mrs. Anna Guthrie; Opelousas district, Miss Ida Hopkins; Shreveport district, Mrs. A. L. Burch.

At three o'clock P. M. a mothers' meeting was held for the purpose of special prayer. At this meeting a juvenile auxiliary was organized by Mrs. Carr, numbering forty-five members. At the evening session Mrs. Faulk, president of the Ruston Auxiliary, conducted the devotional exercises, and reports of the several committees were adopted as a whole. Special thanks were tendered Dr. Black for his courtesy in giving this work a column in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; to Rev. J. A. Miller and Rev. T. B. White for their presence and words of encouragement, and to the ladies of Ruston for their kindness and hospitality.

Sunday morning, at eleven o'clock, the annual sermon was preached by Rev. J. A. Miller. This discourse was an able and eloquent revelation of the work accomplished, and proved most helpful and encouraging to all engaged in this field of labor.

The evening service was conducted by Rev. T. B. White, his subject being, "The Need of the Holy Spirit as an Equipment for the Work." His long experience as a laborer in his Master's vineyard gave to his words the power of truth, and impressed his hearers with the great need of divine love and guidance, if they would walk in the footsteps of their Lord.

This closed the fourth annual meeting of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, and all felt—as the benediction was pronounced—that it was "good" to have met together, even for a brief space, in the service of their King.

Kindness.

BY BISHOP J. WEAVER, D. D.

More souls are won to Christ through words and acts of kindness than in any other way. It is strange that Christian men and women are so slow in learning this fact. Any man acquainted with himself knows that kind words and kind acts will have ten times more influence over him for good than rash words and rash acts. The Bible is full of the doctrine of kindness. If it had not been for the kindness of our Father in heaven not one of us would be saved; and if that kindness is not continued to the end we shall perish. How can a man with the Spirit of Christ dwelling in him be other than kind, especially when he knows that his eternal destiny in large measure depends upon the kindness of God? Men are not driven from wrong to right, but they may be led. As a rule, those who are hardest to drive themselves, are most inclined to drive others, mark that; and when they get down on a man they never get up. No matter how hard the man that is down may struggle to get up, they will hold him down if they can, and pursue him to the bitter end. How can such a man, with such a spirit, offer the Lord's prayer? "Forgive us as we forgive others." Have they ever read the words of Jesus: "If ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father which is in heaven forgive you your trespasses?" The spirit of forgiveness was breathed into the gospel when Jesus hung on the cross bleeding and dying. "Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do." Such matchless kindness at such a time ought to break our hearts.

"If a brother be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one in the spirit of meekness." Oh, that cruel and unchristian-like spirit that, because a brother has stumbled, and may be fallen, will prompt a man to hold him down if he can!

A lawyer visited a hospital, and sat down by a cot and talked kindly to a poor, miserable wreck. The man drew the bedclothes over his face and wept as if his heart would break. When he could speak he said: "You are the first man that has spoken a kind word to me, and I can't stand it." Men may think and talk as they please, but observation and experience will teach any man of common sense that the nearest and most direct road to the human heart is kindness.

Blessed is the man that has learned to be firm and kind—firm for the right, and kind to the erring. Turning to the Scriptures we read words like these: "Be kind one toward another;" "God is slow to anger, and of great kindness;" "thy loving kindness is better than life;" "add to your faith * * * brotherly kindness;" "love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous;" "be kindly affectioned one to another." The Scriptures abound with lessons on the doctrine of kindness, and we do well to study these lessons and practice them in our lives.—Religious Telescope.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. Elton Wilson, P. C., Washington, La.: "Just closed a successful revival. Fifteen professions and ten accessions, with a revival of spiritual life among the membership. I am regaining my former health under such favorable environments as a healthful locality, and amid the influences of a good and kind people. Pray for us, that we may lead many souls to Christ."

Rev. Lyman F. Jackson, Alexandria, La.: "Bro. McIntosh reached here Feb. 19, and remained until March 4 preaching day and night. It has been pronounced the greatest meeting ever held here in point of interest and, possibly, of accession. It was such a meeting as it was thought by some could only be held in Georgia, and Texas, and other old Methodist States. Hence it was a great victory for those who believe in revivals that move whole communities. God was with us in great power. The evangelist made full proof of his ministry,' the church was strengthened, and thus far twenty-five have been received at Alexandria, and about twenty at West Alexandria—many converted in the first church going there."

Rev. K. M. Harrison, Batesville, Miss.: "Our wife is slowly improving. Bro. McIntosh has come and gone. We had a good meeting. It was not all we desired. Sickness, rain, snow all hindered, yet we went on. About sixteen have and will join the several churches. The lukewarm and backslidden were reclaimed. The card and dancing parties were nearly broken up. The whole church and Christian community were revived, and many good purposes were formed. All hates, grudges and animosities were confessed and cured, and God's people raised to a higher plane of Christian living. Bro. and Sister McIntosh endeared themselves to us; also Bro. Smith, a noble Christian gentleman, who led the choir. May the good work be permanent and lasting, and to God be all the glory. We have a contagion of la grippe. Some persons very sick."

Rev. W. C. Harris, Corinth, Miss.: "Our second quarterly meeting was held last Sunday and Monday. Our presiding elder, Bro. H. R. Tucker, was with us in fine spirit over the trials of the work throughout the district. He gave us three good sermons; very much appreciated by us all. My report on Conference collections at this Conference was the best I have ever made this early in the year. Foreign missions, domestic missions, and Bishops' fund all paid in full, with good subscription for all the other collections. The stewards also, in their collection for support of ministry, are several dollars ahead of where they were at this time last year. This is not all. Our good women are at work. They carpeted one room of the parsonage nicely just after Conference, and now they are going to paint the parsonage and make some needed repairs on the fence—I mean they are going to have it done—right away. Better than all this, the spiritual condition of the church encourages me to pray for, work for, and expect a glorious revival in the near future, in which sinners shall be converted and the church made to rejoice. For all of these gratifying facts we thank and praise God."

Rev. E. H. Rook, Paris, Miss.: "I have now been on this circuit about three months. I followed Rev. J. M. Huggins, and he followed Bro. Grisham. I found the work in a very dilapidated condition. It is too large for any one preacher. Has nine appointments and six hundred members. Bro. Grisham is a very thin man, too thin to spread himself out over nine churches and six hundred members. Then came Bro. Huggins; not so thin as Bro. Grisham, but still too thin for so large a nest. Now I am here trying to cover the same nest. Whether I will be able to hatch anything out of it, or not, remains to be seen; but if I don't, there will be some good cackling done. We held our first Quarterly Conference the fifteenth of February, our very efficient presiding elder, Bro. H. C. Morehead, presiding. One new member had been added to the already six hundred. We raised something over eight dollars for the district parsonage, and nearly one-fourth of the pastor's and presiding elder's salary was reported. The Quarterly Conference authorized $75 to be raised to repair the circuit parsonage, which we are now getting up, and expect to make it $100 before we quit. The work of improving the parsonage is already going on. So you see that there are signs of eggs piping now. I found but one Sunday-school in operation. I think, however, there will be at least eight in my next report to your paper. These are a teachable people, and will do better things when they find out how (which they have already evidenced by their financial report at their first Quarterly Conference of this year). We are planning to have some time this Summer a big central bush arbor, or kind of camp meeting, for the whole circuit, and other circuits, if they want to join in with us. You, Mr. Editor, must come to it. Now, it might be hard to carry out all these projects, but we have an efficient presiding elder with us, and, more than all, God, who will lead us to certain victory. Now, please allow one more word. Let us all seek a second blessing, not in the sense that our sanctified friends put it, but as a good case of religion, which is all they get after all."

Columbus District.

The first round of Quarterly Conferences has been made on the Columbus district. Have had some very good meetings; the preachers are all doing well; the people seem to be cheerful, and the outlook is good for a fine year. I am glad to have to follow such a man as Dr. Wier. Everything was in good shape, just as a good workman will leave it.

Columbus station is in good condition. Bro. Slandifer is greatly loved by his people. He closes his quadrennium with this year, and will take charge of the college at Holly Springs. We hate to lose him from the pastorate. Methodism needs a mission church at Columbus, to develop material that can not be reached otherwise.

Bro. Gordon and the Columbus circuit seem to have a mutual admiration society. Gordon has started well, and will do a fine work.

Our church at Macon is the best organized of any I have seen. The Official Board look after all financial matters; so the pastor has nothing to do but study, preach and visit his people. What a delightful charge it is! Dye is happy in that charge, and the people hear him gladly.

Brooksville circuit, under the guiding hand of Leech, has made a good beginning, and everything promises to be a success.

Crawford circuit, with their meek and gentle Shumaker, is in good spirits, and I am sure a fine work will be the results on this charge.

Bro. Foster, the most wonderful preacher in some respects that I have heard, is delighted with Starges circuit, and the people are well pleased.

Bro. Thomas has made some needful repairs on the parsonage at Starkville. Over $400 have been expended for this purpose. It is a great thing that we have some men who will look after this special work. A revival will begin here Sunday, the twenty-third. We are hoping and praying for a great awakening.

Starkville circuit is doing fine work with Bro. Gibbs in the lead. One revival has been held with good results. A good sum of money has been raised to pay a debt on the parsonage.

Tibbee circuit has the tallest preacher in the Conference. The developments of this charge under this tall apostle have been wonderful.

Bro. Phillips is doing a fine work on the Shuqualak circuit. Many have been the improvements here since my first year in the ministry. Nineteen years ago I served this charge at Shuqualak. We had only a few members; now we have a good congregation. I was delighted to have the pleasure of preaching in the little church among the pines that I spent so much time and labor on during my pastorate here. Methodism will succeed if you only give it a chance.

Our church at West Point has been called to pass under the rod. The much-loved pastor, Rev. T. B. Malone, was discharged from labor and entered upon his reward on the early morn of the tenth of March. But, thank God, he died well. While the people go about the streets mourning they mourn not as those who have no hope. N. G. Augustus was put in charge, and the work so well begun by our sainted brother goes on without a break.

The Cedar Bluff circuit has made great improvement under the leadership of that noble young man, P. E. Duncan, who possesses many rare gifts, both as preacher and pastor.

Singleton mission is an experiment. Much hard work and money is needed to make this a charge that will support a pastor. The work is well supplied by J. H. Berentine, a local preacher.

Bro. Fullilove is serving the Winstonville circuit for the third year, and is popular with his people. Here we need much improvement in the way of better church-houses, and if the pastor has the proper co-operation of the people, this much-needed work will be done.

The Hebron circuit moves on nicely with Rev. J. E. Buck at the helm. This is the best farming section to be found outside the great Mississippi Delta. The mud in the Winter months greatly hinders church work, but the outlook is favorable.

Now, brethren of the district, let's make this one of the most successful years that this district has enjoyed. Every dollar of all assessments can and must be paid. Let early collections be taken, and press the matter until every dollar is in hand. A great revival is needed in each charge, and will be realized if we plan, work and pray for it. More interest is needed in our Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues.

Closing, I will say that any work you want the presiding elder to do, just call on him and you shall have the best service he can render.

R. A. BURROUGHS.

OBITUARIES.

JONES—Died at Jonesville, Miss., Jan. 5, 1896, the lovable little boy, LEWIE JONES, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Jones.

Little Lewis, the bright, winsome child, who, by his artless ways, wove himself into the very meshes of the hearts of all, lies still in the cold embrace of death. The solemn "dust unto dust" and "ashes unto ashes" has been said over the little mound in the churchyard, and the sunshine, which, as it were, but yesterday played in and out of the windows so merrily and bright, seems but a mockery to-day. The winds which but lately seemed burdened with joy, and came softly whispering of pleasant dells, of flowery banks, to-day seems strangely sighing—it has changed its joy to sorrow. Yet God, in his infinite goodness, "who doeth all things well," saw fit to remove the little jewel of earth from the arms of loving parents to the shining courts of heaven, where there shall be no more death.

May he who holds the powers of life and death in his hands help the much-bereaved parents to be resigned to his will!

A FRIEND.

BERRY—ARNEY OMER BERRY, son of S. L. and S. C. Berry, was born Oct. 12, 1877, and died at the home of his father, in Lowrence county, Miss., Jan. 17, 1896.

His life, though short, was fraught with many virtues, endearing him to all and contributing to make up a noble young manhood. For several years he had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, at Bethel. His life promised to be one of usefulness to the church and cause of Christ. But God preferred to call him away to dwell with him and the angels forever.

Those who were near him in his dying hours tell us how triumphantly he met the dark angel. He called his loved ones around him, kissed them good by, and told them he was dying and that he was prepared for heaven. "This life," said he, "is short, but in the next life I will live always." In many other ways he gave assurance of the fact that "it is well with his soul." His beautiful life and glorious death will live long in our memories, pointing to mansions above, where we hope to meet him again.

PAUL D. HARDIN Pastor.

ROSS—FRANCIS M. ROSS was born March 12, 1832, and died at his home near Lewisburg, Miss., Feb. 27, 1896. He was received into the M. E. Church, South, at his home in the presence of many neighbors, friends, and anxious loved ones, Sept. 14, 1895, which time he remained steadfast in the faith till the Master called him from his great suffering to that land where "pain and death are felt and feared no more."

Bro. Ross was a great sufferer for about two years previous to his death, being afflicted with cancer. He bore it all with great Christian patience and fortitude. My last visit to see him was a benediction to my own heart. About the last words I ever heard him say was that his only hope was in Jesus, and that soon he would be taken from his suffering to meet the companion of his youth and many other loved ones in that land of "unclouded day."

He will be greatly missed by all, but especially by his aged mother, now nearly ninety years old, and his only daughter, who, through all the long, weary months of suffering, so tenderly and patiently administered to his every want.

Bro. Ross was laid to rest by loving hands in the old Ebenezer Graveyard in the presence of a large concourse of people, relatives, friends, and neighbors. May the Lord bless the aged mother, the only daughter, and all of his sons! Be faithful a little longer, and you will be called to join father, mother and children in that land where parting is no more. A. J. JONES

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to April, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1.25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

CONFIDENCE

IN THE ELECTROPOISE GAINED AFTER SUCCESSFUL USE.

ATTENDED BY A DOCTOR, BUT TO NO AVAIL—FACTS FOR THE BENEFIT OF SUFFERING HUMANITY.

I have been using the Electropoise so successfully that I feel I must tell you the happy results obtained by its use in my case. I was afflicted with a paralyzed hand, and had tried all kinds of medicine, and external applications, and none of them gave me any relief. Finally in my suffering, I thought I would try the Electropoise, and after a few months of perseverance I am able now to use my hand, which has been so long helpless.

My right eye became closed, and I had no use at all of it for a long time. I was attended by my doctor, used his medicine, but nothing would bring relief. I applied the Electropoise, and now the lid of the eye has been raised again, and I feel thankful to say that I am able to use it. I gained so much confidence in the Electropoise that I applied it for a case of severe sore throat, and was relieved over night.

My little grandson, 2 years old, had a severe cough, which kept him awake at night. I applied the Electropoise, and he immediately went to sleep, and had fine sleep for the entire night.

I feel that I should write these facts to you, and for the benefit of suffering humanity, and that I should recommend it to all who are afflicted.

Very thankfully and respectfully,
MRS. ELIZABETH BLOCK GUPTON.

A Trip to Yazoo City.

We gave a lecture on Thursday night, March 26, at Yazoo City, for the benefit of the Epworth League Library Fund. We were greeted with a good audience, who listened attentively for more than an hour to what we had to say. We made headquarters at the parsonage. The pastor, Dr. Henry W. Featherstun, is very popular not, only with his own flock, but also with outsiders. His congregations are large and the church is in a prosperous condition. The Epworth League is paying the expenses of a pupil at Whitworth College. It has also undertaken to procure a library of well selected books, and has already made a good beginning in that direction. Good work—both these.

A movement for the better enforcement of law has been recently inaugurated in Yazoo City. Although Yazoo City has been for several years a prohibition town, it is not entirely free from the liquor traffic. Blind tigers abound much to the detriment of good morals. This illicit traffic has recently become so defiant that the law-abiding element has been aroused. The W. C. T. U. (of which Sister Featherstun is president) is the power behind the throne in this reformatory movement. Indications point to a speedy victory for the right.

Itinerants T. J. Norsworthy and E. E. Langford honored us with their presence at the lecture. We also met en route Bros. Mellen and Chambers.

"The Mississippi Prohibitionist."

Mastering the Will.

Though Christianity has more adherents than ever before in the world's history, the deceitfulness of sin and the hardness of man's hearts prevent it from working the same glorious transformations in the lives of all believers. One finds the yoke of Christ easy, and his burden light. To another, whose consecration is imperfect, the yoke of obedience is galling and difficult. While the gospel is still preached in all its purity, and thousands are bringing forth unto holiness, there are many whose lives are a disappointment to themselves and to the church. Instead of a settled peace they have unrest; instead of unwavering devotion they exhibit weakness and vacillation. To-day they appear clothed in the bright garb of righteousness; to-morrow their garments are soiled by sin.

Why should any believer display such unsteadiness of step, such unevenness of conduct? In most cases, the reason is not far to seek. The fault lies in not submitting the will entirely to God. No man is any better than he intends to be. The many inconsistencies and ever-recurring defections that characterize so large a per cent. of professed Christians find their explanation in an unsurrendered will. Something more is necessary in regeneration than intellectual assent to the truth. Though in addition the feelings be deeply wrought upon, true conversion goes deeper still. Until the human will submits itself in all things to God, there can be no inward change from death unto life, no true discipleship, no real enjoyment of religion, no abiding in Christ.

Persons under conviction too oft mistake emotion and belief of the mind for volitional consecration, without which religion is but a form. However much we may admire the gospel, however reasonable it may appear to us, we can never experience its vitalizing power so long as we cherish any purpose or desire contrary to the will of God. The converted man loses the inward witness as soon as his purpose always to serve God is shaken. "If any man wills to come after me,' declares the Savior, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Consecration of heart, soul, mind, strength, of every faculty of our being for all time, is the condition of true discipleship, of abiding in the faith.

The attempt to lead a godly life without having the will firmly fixed and centered in God is as vain as trying to steer a ship without a rudder. The tendency is well nigh universal to observe closely outward acts, and to pay little heed to thoughts and motives. Yet it is in the secret chambers of the heart that sin and lust are born. We can not afford to guage our piety by outward behavior simply, for our rectitude may be largely the result of environment rather than of right purposes and pure affections. Men oft exhibit a fair morality more out of respect to the proprieties and requirements of the social world, than from any fear of offending God.

As Dr. Marcus Dods forcefully says: "The soul and life of every sin is some lust of our own; and while quite anxious to put an end to some of the evils which this lust produces in our life, we may not be prepared to extinguish the lust itself. We pray God, for example, to preserve us from the evils of praise or of success; and yet we continue to court praise and success. Unconsciously we cherish the evil desire within us which is the soul of the sin, and seek to destroy only some of its manifestations. Therefore our warfare against sin becomes unreal." Liability to sin will ever characterize human beings in a state of probation; but, under the riches of grace provided through Christ Jesus, no necessity is upon us. While lapses of a greater or less degree occur from time to time in the experience of most of us, being due partly to lack of watchfulness, partly to weakness engendered by previous sinful habits, such lapses and omissions of duty should become more and more infrequent. If the will be subdued, victory over temptation is sure. Happy indeed is he whose will is lost in God's. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on thee."

The American Methodist University.

Bishop Hurst announces that more than a million dollars have been contributed for the Methodist University at Washington. While this mammoth institution is to be conducted under the auspices of American Methodism, it will be not so much a Methodist as a Protestant university. All denominations are contributing to it. Sixty per cent. of the purchase money for the lot came from outside the Methodist Church. A Baptist gave twelve thousand dollars; a Presbyterian, twenty-five thousand, with a promise of more when the corner-stone is laid. The strangest feature in connection with the movement is that two Catholics have contributed, respectively, ten thousand and twelve thousand dollars.

All honor to the far-seeing men who conceived and are pushing to completion this magnificent enterprise. Since the Catholics have founded a university at Washington it is of the utmost importance that Protestantism should do likewise. Not to do so would be to give Rome such a preponderating influence in national affairs as ought not to be tolerated for a moment. This American University at Washington ought to become in a few years the peer of the great universities of the old world in material resources and in educational facilities of every kind. Ten years from to-day there ought to be no necessity for any one to go to Europe to equip himself for work in any department of human activity.

Civil Service Reform.

It is announced that President Cleveland will in a few days issue an order extending the civil service rules to more than two-thirds of the federal offices. Civil service reform is steadily growing in popular favor, notwithstanding the inveterate opposition of politicians. In Chicago a few days since the people voted by an overwhelming majority for the application of civil service rules to municipal offices. This is a straw which shows which way the wind is blowing. We believe that the day is near at hand when efficiency in office rather than dirty work in behalf of a political party will be the test in the distribution of official patronage. All the reasons that underlie civil service reform in its application to federal offices apply with equal force in State and municipal affairs, especially the latter.

"The Heathen Are at Our Doors."

It is very true that the heathen are at our doors, and this undeniable fact explains the existence of the good-sized army of home missionaries that are sustained by the various churches of Christendom. But never was truth more sadly perverted than when professing Christians quote John Randolph's striking utterance to justify their opposition to foreign missions. On the lips of many who use it, it is the sheerest hypocrisy. They excuse themselves from giving to send the gospel to the heathen abroad because there are heathen at home, and then do nothing at all for the home heathen. Our observation, running through a number of years, leads us to believe that home missions are sustained by the contributions of those who believe in foreign missions. Home missions left to be supported by the anti-foreign-mission crowd would become extinct in no time.

The fact that "the heathen are at our door" in great numbers should stimulate us to do all we can to give them the gospel, but it should not cause us to abate one jot or tittle of our interest in the heathen abroad. Our Savior commanded his apostles to begin their evangelistic work at Jerusalem, but he did not command them to stop there. On the contrary, they were to go "to the uttermost parts of the earth."

Municipal Reform.

It is a singular fact that in this great republic, "the land of the free and the home of the brave," there has been for many years more official rottenness in the conduct of municipal affairs than in any part of the civilized world. American cities have become a by-word—a stench in the nostrils of civilization. For this anomalous and disgraceful state of affairs the better element of society is largely responsible. The moral, respectable classes have been wont to abstain from participation in political affairs, thus playing into the hands of the vile crew who always stand ready to take the reins and run the machine in their own interest. Within the last decade, however, a vast change has been wrought. Good citizenship has been aroused from its lethargy. The better classes have made themselves felt in municipal affairs. Reforms of vast magnitude and importance have been wrought out in New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston and other great urban centres. Seeing that "in union there is strength," the reformers in all sections have united in an organization called "The Municipal League for Good City Government." This organization has had three annual meetings. The fourth will be held in Baltimore May 6, 7 and 8. This organization, though small at first, has steadily grown until it has now assumed formidable proportions. Under wise leadership magnificent possibilities lie before this organization.

The Vicksburg District Conference.

It was the pleasure of this writer, as the representative of the ADVOCATE, to attend the session of the Vicksburg District Conference, which was held in Edwards, Miss., March 26-29 inclusive. All the clerical members were present save two. Lay delegates, however, were scarce, not more than half a dozen being in attendance. Presiding Elder Weems was at the helm, and showed by his speech and manner that the interests of the district are dear to his heart. He is a wide awake, progressive, and zealous church officer. His address to the Conference was so excellent that the brethren passed a motion to have it printed in the ADVOCATE.

Bishop Galloway arrived on Thursday morning, and preached one of his grandest sermons. It was a rare intellectual and spiritual feast. The connectional officers in attendance were: the genial Dr. T. S. West, agent of Millsaps College; the suave and scholarly Dr. W. B. Murrah; the jocund and diligent John W. Chambers, president of Whitworth; the sprightly T. B. Holloman, president of East Mississippi College; the portly and dignified T. L. Mellen, Conference Missionary Secretary and the stirring R. W. Bailey, Conference colporter. Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt, of West Jackson, was also present for one day.

This scribe having spent two years of his boyhood in Edwards, his visit to the Conference was doubly delightful by reason of the renewing of former acquaintanceships, and the recall of old scenes and associations. Royal hosts are those Edwards people. It was our good fortune, as well as that of Bro. W. T. Griffin, to be entertained in the home of Capt. W. A. Montgomery, a devout Baptist brother. We feel sure that none of the other brethren had a more delightful home. We are indebted to the Conference, to Pastor J. P. Drake and numerous others for many courtesies. Bro. Drake is greatly beloved by his flock, and is doing a fine work. A fuller account of the Conference proceedings will be given by the efficient secretary, Rev. H. M. Ellis.

McKENDREE M. BLACK.

New Orleans District Conference.

Had a pleasant time. Bishop Keener presided. The worthy senior endeared himself anew to preachers and people. The spiritual and financial condition of the district is satisfactory. Sunday-school and Epworth League are doing excellent work.

Bros. John W. Edgell and J. M. Eldridge were recommended for admission to the Louisiana Conference. Rev. C. H. Ellis was recommended for readmission.

As delegates to the Annual Conference were elected: W. B. Thomson, David Zible, E. P. Mackie, W. W. Carre. Dr. J. W. Adams, alternate.

The report from the Seashore Camp Ground by the financial secretary of the Trustee Board, Bro. H. W. Spear, was very encouraging. For the ensuing year Bros. David Zible, W. B. Thomson, J. H. Campman, A. S. Daniels, Pa. Werlein, H. W. Spear, W. W. Sutcliffe and E. P. Mackie were elected trustees of said Board.

Dr. H. C. Morrison, Missionary Secretary, attended and enthused the brethren in their efforts to build up the cause of Christ.

The agent of the American Bible Society was present and addressed the Conference on the subject dear to all Christians.

The next session of the District Conference will be held in Carondelet Street Church.

Of course, we had good preaching. On Sunday Bishop Keener filled the pulpit of Felicity Street Church, the place where the Conference convened.

Dr. Sawyer, the efficient presiding elder, rejoices in the success of his work.

Last, but not least, Dr. C. W. Carter, president of Centenary College, delighted the Conference with his presence. The great cause of Christian education found in him a worthy representative.

H. H. AHRENS, Secretary.

NOTES.

What is the most common vice? *Ad*vice.

"Is life worth living?" That depends upon the liver.

An attempt was made a few days since to burn the residence of Rev. C. M. Lyons.

A movement is on foot to endow a chair of history in Emory College in honor of Bishop Haygood.

We are pleased to be able to present to our readers this week an article from the vigorous pen of our senior Bishop.

Dean Farrar has publicly stated that 7,000 of the English clergy are avowed supporters of the Romeward movement.

The new Hernando Street Church, Memphis, was dedicated on the twenty-second by Bishop Galloway, after a collection amounting to $4,000.

Dr. W. M. Baskerville, Professor of English in Vanderbilt University, has been given charge of the classes in English Philology, at Chautauqua, New York, for the coming season, beginning July 10.

Rev. S. J. Davies is carrying on a meeting at Felicity Street Church. He is assisted by Rev. F. S. Parker and other city pastors.

Dr. Buckley, editor of the New York Advocate, is writing a series of very strong articles in opposition to the removal of the time limit to the pastorate. To us they seem unanswerable.

Bishop Keener preached last Sunday, at Felicity Street Church, from the text, "Canst thou not that we perish?" The sermon was able, profoundly spiritual and full of comfort for the tempted, the tried and the sorrowing.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, of the North Mississippi Conference, and Rev. R. W. Bailey, of the Mississippi Conference, paid a visit to the Crescent City recently in the interest of the approaching Epworth League Conference.

Bishop Goodsell says: "The world has come to understand that whenever a Methodist preacher comes to town—whether he comes afoot or on horseback, in a palace car or on a freight train, in a stage-coach or by a bicycle—an enemy of the rum power has arrived!"

It has been forty years since Pen Oak Circuit made its appearance as one of the publications of the Southern Methodist Publishing House; yet the first extended critical notice of it ever published was that which appeared in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE a few weeks since from the gifted pen of one of our contributors.

"Something new under the sun" has been projected by a Frenchman of the name of Andree, who is constructing a balloon in which he expects to sail in a few weeks in search of the North Pole. He will carry provisions for four months. Bro. Jonathan should look to his laurels. The French are about to get ahead of him in the way of enterprise.

Last Wednesday, just after the ADVOCATE had gone to press, we received the following telegram:

Lake Charles, La., March 24, '96.
Announce death of Rev. Thomas Price this morning at two o'clock.
R. J. HARP.

A most excellent man has gone to his reward on high. A suitable memoir, we suppose, will be prepared by some one of the old guard of the Mississippi Conference.

Prof. C. A. Young informs us, in the pages of the North American Review, that the new Yerkes telescope, recently finished for the Chicago University, will bring the moon, optically within about sixty miles from the observer's eye. A building as large, for instance, as the Capitol at Washington would be visible; and any brilliant object, "even if no larger or brighter than an ordinary arc light," would attract attention. With such a powerful instrument specific knowledge concerning the lunar surface, especially the character of so-called "craters," ought to be speedily gained.

I am convinced in the depths of my soul that the direction in which the Holy Ghost is working in this our day is against exclusiveness, and in the direction of the freest spiritual communion between those who differ as to methods, creeds, and definitions of the faith; and no English Churchman does credit to himself, or honor to his church, by speaking superciliously of godly dissenters by calling them heretics and schismatics, and refusing to receive the Word of God from their lips when it is manifest they are doing, and doing well, nearly half the Christian work of this country.—Canon Wilberforce.

The present year promises to be one of great political activity. Already the managers of the two leading parties are deploying their forces; unless all signs fail the country will soon be in the midst of the turmoil and uproar of a fierce and exciting campaign. Christian men and women should remember their responsibility and set an example of moderation. It is to be feared that more than one lad for whom the future now promises bright things, will begin the downward way during the coming months. One presidential campaign, it has been said, is almost as demoralizing as a year of war, and the remark is a just one.—Central Advocate.

Character-sketching is a most valuable method of effective pulpit work. In the delineation of character there are two points of excellence. The first is a tracing of character as one finds it; the other is the delineation of ideal and noble character. Both of these points are worthy of careful cultivation by the pulpit orator. Abstract moral lessons are good, but they are unlipped arrows. When they are pointed with sharply drawn sketches, they become much more effective. He who would pierce, must have keen weapons. Literature abounds in works of great value to the preacher who would improve himself in this line. He is wise who studies them.—Selected.

Recollections of Old Preachers.

E OF THE PREACHERS I KNEW IN Y BOYHOOD, AND HOW THEY AP PEARED TO ME.

rst was Ezekiel G re, who was a al preacher supplying e circuit, and my mother's pastor during the wer. He was uneducated in the books of that day, but well posted the Bible, Methodist Hymn Book, pline and Wesley's Sermons. The er he almost knew verbatim. He a man of fair mind, and a fair acher for his time. He went o lean ven after the old Methodist order. had rather e sharp voice. How he ding, pray, exhort and shout! I n think of his favorite song: "We l camp on top of the mountain," "I neve long time heerd that there be a judgment." One he would just before preaching, the other lier. His favorite theme was judgment. During the late wer horse died, and he wes forced to up his work or walk; but, though was some sixty years of age, and his it consisted of some twenty ap- ntments, reaching over what is now part of four counties, he never ed an appointment, but walked nd and round preaching, praying singing, leading many to Christ. died many years ago, and his body t now in a cemetery in or near ville, Miss. I expect to meet at the judgment, and see him on right hand with Christ and the od.

e next, Wiley Lewis—another lo- preacher—whose name is like ointment poured forth in all Central Mississippi. He was our neighbor, friend counselor during the dark days of r. A man tall of statue, straight as Indian warrior, high forehead, ge mouth; loose, thin lips; deep thetic voice and deeply pious, and of iring energy. He went from place place comforting the sorrowing, eaching Christ and leading many better living. If he had lived in had the opportunities of this day, would fill our best pulpits, and be an nored leader in our great church. was wise in counsel, and ruled his household well. He was a great lover class meetings and love feasts. He lieved God called even a local acher to preach every opportunity; equently he was always employed. ny will be the stars in his crown. sleeps in Double Springs, Miss., d no doubt will be in the first resurrection.

Rev. James G. Cerlisle, commonly lled "Uncle Jimmie," was presiding ier when I first knew him. He was a ge, square-shouldered, stout-built an, and wore chin beard, and was clined to talk through his nose, es- cially if he wanted to use sarcasm, hich he frequently did, for he was e Sam Jones of his day in Mississippi in that respect. He was of Irish scent, and in his early life was very icked. He did much towards planting Methodism in North Mississippi. y some he was considered rough, acrimonious and unkind; but in his breast eat a warm, sympathetic heart, and a ter man never lived. He was a man deep conviction, and one who had e courage to do or say what he thought was right. He said he loved church more or better than other urches, because he loved his mother ore than he did other people's mothers. He had many sayings peculiar to himself. Many of them are remembered and told by the older people to is day. During his last sickness he id to his wife: "Old woman, we have been travelling together for more than ty years, but I am going to beat you ome." And he did.

W. B. Rainey is another man of no can repute. I used to call him "Uncle Ratney," and sometimes do yet. man of feeble frame, tall, with a ll beard, of Scotch descent, yet as illy as an Irishmen. He is still a perannuate in our Conference. hen but a boy I heerd him preach n "What is man?" and I was made to realize that I belonged to a wonderful ace. A truer man to his friends never lived. Wise in council, true to e last, he could always be trusted. o man could excell him in entertaining the people, young or old, saint or inner, cheerful or bereaved; the most wonderful man in prayer I ever saw. I think I can safely say that he has married more people, baptized more children, preached more funerals, visited more sick, settled more difficulties, done more hard work and received less pay than any preacher in North Mississippi. He is just waiting for the Master to say, "It is enough," and he is ready to go. God bless him! We all love him. J. A. L.

The Most Significant Imperial Edict of the Present Century.

So says Dr. Walter Lambuth of the edict promulgated in China (by order of the Tsung-Li-Yamen), procured by the Minister of France, Mons. M. A. Gerard. This edict directs the local authorities in all provinces of the Empire to "expunge from the various editions and compilations of the Chinese Code all clauses placing restrictions upon the propagation of the Christian religion."

This is the final act by which China invites the Church of Christ to preach throughout her entire dominion "the gospel to every creature." Perhaps, as Mr. Jernigan, United States Consul General, Shanghai, suggests to Bishop Hendrix, under date of Feb. 22, this has grown directly out of massacres and burning of Christian homes in China." Who can say? Does not God still use "the wrath of man to praise him?"

Let the church bow in gratitude to God for her enlarged opportunity. Let her, in proof of her sincerity, quadruple her contributions to establish Christ's kingdom in the regions beyond."

Our own church is already firmly established at strategic points in China, and is ready to reach out into adjacent provinces. The call from our mission is, "More men." The men are ready, waiting to be sent. The money to send them is in the hands of our people. Our people need only that this, the greatest work of the church, be laid upon heart and conscience, and the money will be forthcoming. God speed the day! WM. H. LA PRADE.

Epworth League Conference.

What is the matter with the towns in the Mississippi Conference, that the State Epworth League Conference should go a-begging? Only one town, Meridian, has manifested any particular desire for the meeting. Two or three others give us to understand that, as a matter of accommodation, they would get us meet with them, but leave the impression that they prefer our meeting somewhere else. And Jackson, the place where the meeting ought to be held, is as dumb as an oyster. The meeting will be a blessing to any town, and if Mississippi Conference towns do not want the meeting, there are half a dozen towns in North Mississippi that will take it and thank you besides.

Yazoo City, Miss.

Dr. West spent last Sunday with us in Yazoo City, preaching and pleading Millsaps College at 11 A. M., and delivering his lecture on "The Weakness of the Human Judgment" at 7:30 P. M. We were entertained and profited. The lecture was fine, full of wit and wisdom. The Doctor's illustrations were capital. I have never heard better. They certainly illustrate, and the truths he gave us were rugged and stalwart and timely. The Doctor says his collection for the college was among the very best he has gotten.

Theme for Prayer Meeting.

CHRIST AND THE SCRIPTURES: (1) CHRIST AS A BIBLE STUDENT.
(Matt. xiii, 3-8; Luke iv, 17-27.)

Nazareth means "green twig." His enemies called Christ a Nazarene disdainfully. But that twig planted has indeed become a tree of life.

1 In the second lesson Christ is represented as going to the synagogue on the Sabbath, as was his custom.

(1) Christ honored the Sabbath day. Though he inveighed against straining at gnats by the Pharisees, he deemed said day a holy day.

(2) On the Sabbath he went to the synagogue. Has taught us by example that the visit of the house of God on the Sabbath is a sacred duty.

(3) To go to the synagogue on the Sabbath had with him become a habit. "As his custom was." Happy the parents who form such wholesome habit among their offspring.

(4) Reading the Scriptures and explaining the same, he is constrained, with sad heart, to give expression to that dolorous and proverbial utterance that a prophet is not accepted in his own country.

2 In the lesson by St. Matthew Christ teaches the multitude by parable. He makes use of the parable of the Sower.

(1) A sower must be skilled in his avocation. More than mere loquaciousness and verbosity is required of a preacher.

(2) A sower must see to it that his seed is good. In many pulpits too much worldly wisdom, sociology and political economy.

(3) A sower should not be unconcerned about proper tillage of the soil and suitable weather and time. First inform, then apply. Revival services without proper preparation of the congregation may prove injurious.

3. The parable of the Sower aptly portrays the different classes of hearers.

(1) Some hearers with hard hearts are compared to the wayside. Trodden hard. Seed can not enter the soil for germination. Hence readily found and eaten by the birds.

(2) The second class are the superficial thinkers. Emotions equally shallow. Stony ground. Only a thin layer of good soil. Of them: The Course of Time, by Pollock, justly says: "They resolve and re-resolve, then go to hell."

(3) Some fell among thorns. In due time said thorns choked the growing crop. Care of the world and the deceitfulness of riches—end poverty as well—choked the seme. Many have fallen from grace. The thorns did it.

(4) But to some hearers the gospel is a savor of life unto life. They are good ground. Though the result is not equal, all bear fruit.

Our Master was well acquainted with the contents of three books: the Bible, human nature and the material world. No wonder he was a good preacher. Would that we, too, acquired said knowledge.

Marblehead, Mass.

We never care to wander from our own fireside when it happens to be mother's comfortable kitchen, and we sitting in the cosy corner watching the dear old lady fixing the "pies and things" to place in the stove, glowing with heat from a good wood fire. All those who favor T. J. Murray, wood and coal dealer, at Rampart and St. Andrew streets, know how true is this picture, and they will be gratified to learn that their popular wood merchant is full of business, is grateful for their patronage and will continue to serve them with first-class stock, full measure and at usual prices.

A Good-Sense Book for Sensible Planters.

Those planters who wish the latest information about seeds, presented in a straightforward, matter-of-fact way, will be gratified by the practical good sense evidenced in Gregory's Seed Catalogue for 1896. The purpose of this book is to help the planter in the choice of seeds best adapted to the conditions of his particular locality, and is probably contains descriptions of a greater variety and more new varieties of seeds, than any other catalogue. It gives plain, useful information in place of chromos, and hard facts instead of fanciful descriptions. It is work worthy of the reputation of the firm that publishes it, and one that can not fail to win the approval and appreciation of all farmers and gardeners. Any one who plants seeds can obtain a copy free of postage upon application to J. J. H. Gregory & Son, Marblehead, Mass., who are the oldest and largest seed growers in New England, and one of the best-known firms in the entire country. Their business was established in 1856, and its growth has been continuous and healthy. There is probably no section of the country where Gregory's "Home Grown" Seeds are not sold and planted.

The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE $35 WITH COUPON.

PATENTS { Feb. 24, 1801 May 17, 1891 Oct. 3, 1803 Jan. 1, 1895 Jan. 21, 1896 Others Pending.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅛-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism, —to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent, of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality, hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, P. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs:—In regard to "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

HOME CIRCLE.

EVENTIDE.

BY MRS. ANNA M. HICKS.

I'm nearing the end of my journey,
The length'ning shadows creep
Silently over the meadows,
And across the path at my feet;
But I look away to the hilltops,
Aglow in the setting sun,
And think of the hills of glory,
And the day that is never done.

The gentle breeze grows cooler,
As eve draws on apace;
It lifts the thin and faded hair
Away from my heated face;
It cools my brow, and cheers me
With its grateful fragrant breath,
While my soul in song mounts upward,
On the wings of living faith.

The sky above is radiant,
With not a cloud in sight;
It bends a cheery smiling face
To greet the coming night.
Nor dread I the deep'ning twilight,
I welcome its sweet repose,
And turn my face to the Father
In praise for the day's calm close.

Thus I wait my dear Lord's coming,
I list for the sound of his feet
Amid the lengthening shadows,
So peaceful, cool and sweet.
Not long, I know, will he tarry,
For morning and noon are past,
But here, in the quiet evening,
I'll hail my King at last.

Better and Best.

With some the better is the enemy of the best. With others the best is the enemy of the better.

The former are endowed with some ambition, and are by no means willing to be left undistinguished among the common crowd. Their high impulses and ideas forbid this. They make very considerable effort to attain, and they do attain, decided superiority to the average. But they stop short of the highest excellence, even of the highest which they might with proper exertion reach. They look down with self-satisfaction upon those below rather than up with self-depreciation to those above. Their perceptions are not very finely cultivated, and their work seems to them about as good as it need to be—certainly better than most. So they rest here. Their complacency and easy contentment supply them with a copious fund of happiness, but are fatal to any really first-class achievements. The better is the enemy of the best.

But there is another class who can see very readily the deficiencies in their work, too readily for their own peace of mind or their efficiency in practical life. Their ideal is extremely high. The smallest defect greatly annoys them. Their admiration for the very best is exceeding large. But the misfortune is that, not being able to achieve it, they lose heart altogether and attempt nothing. The best with them is the enemy of the better. For the better, which is quite within their power, they turn from in disgust through their desire of the best which is beyond their reach. In this way life becomes, if not absolutely a failure, very nearly so in comparison with what, but for this unhappy peculiarity, it might easily have been.

The true way is, while keeping the ideal at the highest point, to recognize the distance that must usually remain between that and actual achievement, and hence be content with something less, provided only a fair degree of progress is secured. There is much that needs to be done in which the utmost possible degree of perfection is not demanded. In these things over-much thoroughness only hampers. Some books should simply be skimmed; any extensive amount of time devoted to them would be wasted. Some parts of work, if roughly done, are well done so far as the practical object to be gained is concerned, and fine finishing would be out of place. Razors need not be taken to cut down trees with, nor is the blow of a trip-hammer called for when mosquitoes are to be killed. To know how to proportion means to ends; to know what is well enough, and when to let well enough alone; to know when the good will answer, when the better is required, and when nothing but the best will do at all—is an acquisition of the utmost service in real life.—Exchange.

The Mother's Spirit.

When the mother's spirit is impatient, petulant, and fiery, can she expect her children to be gentle? When she governs by shouting, scolding and threatening, can she expect them to speak gently one to another, or even to herself? Will she not see in the carriage and demeanor of her children a reflection of her own spirit and life? If a mother is worldly-minded and fond of ornamental dress and show, can she expect her family to grow up in humility?

If a mother is in the habit, in her common conversation, of coloring facts, of exaggerating what she hears and relates, can she expect her children to grow up with a love and reverence for the truth?

The tempers and dispositions of parents, whether good or bad, whether lovely or hateful, make such impressions on the souls of their children that they are like seeds implanted within them, which shall take root, and grow, and form part of their future character. Many an angry, fretful, passionate mother is propagating these evils in her children; she does not wish to do so; she does not intend to do so, and she is frequently trying to check these unhappy tempers when she sees them springing up in her children; but so long as she herself manifests these tempers she is transmitting them to her offspring by a natural law. She is breathing into them her own unchristian spirit. They are living in an atmosphere infected with moral depravity. They are taught to be impatient and passionate by example. And sometimes the mother will try to beat out of them with the rod what she is daily infusing into them with her own spirit.—Selected.

The Force in Each Day.

To live each day so that it ministers to the day that is to follow, is the unexpressed hope of every thinking mortal. In business we call this foresight, in education it is love of study, in religion we call it living like a Christian. Every day, whether we will it so or not, represents the high water-mark of attainment. The mistakes of to-day mark the development of business sagacity; the unlearned lesson is the test of intellectual ambition; the sin of to-day measures the strength of resistance.

Physicians tells us that our weakest point, physically, measures our strength to resist disease. In mechanics there is an adage that expresses a principle: "The vessel is no stronger than its weakest part." It is true of man. The measure of his strength is where he shows the least resistance; where he is persuaded by outward or inward forces to that act which results in evil, in retarding of development, whether in purse, in mind, or in soul.

Men grow narrow because they do not live in sympathy with the times; they grow hard because they keep the world outside; they lose in spiritual force because they keep that force under in their daily life. Every day witnesses to the life lived the preceding day; this must be so, for life is cumulative either in good or evil; there is no blank. Consciously or unconsciously, this force is working, for good or evil; stagnation is death When we realize this to the full, we strive to compel attainment. When we look upon each day as a period by itself, we become the playthings of time.—The Christian Home.

Business and Religion.

A phrase in a book struck us unpleasantly the other day. It was this: "A thoroughly business-like disregard of all interests but his own." And is it true, we asked ourselves, that this expresses the general run of the principles and maxims most prevalent in the world of business? Is "Look out for number one," the guiding thought? Is "Let the buyer beware," the well-understood rule? Is it impossible to be a good business man and a faithful Christian man at the same time? We were unwilling to think this, because we know of some who beautifully combine practical sagacity and sweet spirituality, who refuse to sell their principles with their goods, and consider character of more consequence than cash. But we had to confess that they were few. As a rule, different ideas prevail. He is considered a fool who tries to act up to the spirit of Christian love in the marts of trade, and refuses to take advantage of the weaker. Nevertheless we are fully persuaded that to have an eye to other people's interests as well as our own, to be ready to lend a hand and cultivate bowels of compassion—in a word, to be Christ-like—is to be on the winning side in the long run even from a temporal point of view; and in the light of eternity what a dreadful mistake all others are making!—Zion's Herald.

A Child's Heart.

A curious looking old woman, having a bundle in her hand and walking with painful effort, sat down on a curbstone to rest. A group of three little ones, the oldest about nine, stopped in front of the old woman, saying never a word, but watching her face. She smiled. Suddenly the smile faded, and a corner of the old calico apron went up to wipe away a tear. Then the eldest child asked:

"Are you sorry because you haven't got any children!"

"I—I had children once, but there are all dead," whispered the woman, a sob in her throat.

"I'm sorry," said the little girl, as her chin quivered. "I'd give you one of my little brothers, but I haven't got but two, and I don't believe I'd like to spare one."

"God bless you, child—bless you forever," sobbed the old woman, and for a minute her face was buried in her apron.

"But I'll tell you what I'll do," seriously continued the child. "You may kiss us all once, and if little Ben isn't afraid, you may kiss him four times, for he's just as sweet as candy."

Pedestrians who saw three well-dressed children put their arms around that strange old woman's neck and kiss her, were greatly puzzled. They didn't know the hearts of children.—Pansy.

The Child Character.

The first character of right childhood is that it is modest. A well-bred child does not think it can teach its parents, or that it knows everything. It may think that its father and mother know everything—perhaps that all grown up people know everything; very certainly it is sure that it does not. And it is always asking questions, and wanting to know more. A second character of right childhood is to be faithful. Perceiving that its father knows best what is good for it, a noble child trusts him wholly, gives him its hand, and will walk blindfolded with him if he bids it. A third character of right childhood is to be loving and generous. Give a little love to a child, and you get a great deal back. It loves everything near it when it is a right kind of child; would always give the best it has away if you need it; does not lay plans for getting everything in the house for itself, and delights in helping people—you can not please it so much as by giving it a chance of being useful in ever so little a way. And because of all these characters it is cheerful. Putting its trust in its father, it is careful for nothing; being full of love to every creature, it is happy always, whether in its play or its duty. So, then, you have the child's character in these four things—humility, faith, charity and cheerfulness.—Ruskin.

If the way to heaven be narrow, it is not long; and if the gate be strait, it opens into endless life.—Beveridge.

Food for the Sick.

When preparing food for a sick person do not ask him if he is hungry or what he would like to eat. The surest way of tempting the appetite is to bring to the sick-room some unexpected, daintily prepared dish, prettily served, and generally it will be eaten with a relish which would have seemed utterly impossible to the invalid had he been consulted beforehand. A small tray, covered with the whitest of linen, the prettiest of china, and the brightest of silver, a spoon for each separate dish, will appeal to the eye and imagination of the sick one, and he will be prepared to enjoy the food so attractively served. Further stimulate his appetite by dishing only a small supply of food, and he will be tempted to ask for more. Be careful that hot food is served hot, and cold food served cold, and do not let any food stand in the sick-room.—Selected.

An Old Roman Prescription for Consumption.

Celsus was a Roman physician who flourished in the third century. He was a follower of Hippocrates and wrote various books on medicine. One of his prescriptions is for consumption, and, strange enough, it is quite in accord with modern methods in some respects. He says: "As soon as a man finds himself spitting and hacking on rising in the morning he should immediately take possession of a cow and go high up into the mountains and live on the fruit of that cow." Although he knew nothing of the cause of phthisis, he had observed that good living, out-of-door life, lots of sunshine, and an abundance of milk and cream were absolutely essential as prerequisites for treatment.—Journal of Hygiene.

Overwork.

Overwork goes on, day after day, and perhaps with little variation for month after month. The stomach and its powers are not only called upon to operate that wonderful laboratory, from which are evolved the forces moving the man, but they are obliged to do this at an expenditure vastly greater than at all necessary; to dispose of untold quantities of worthless matter, poisons, drugs, rubbish, all of which are wearing out the beautiful machinery, clogging and impeding its work—hastening that day when, prematurely disabled, it shall stop! This is what, all too often, kills; but it is not overwork, it is wanton—possibly ignorant—destruction which has brought the deplorable result.—Good Housekeeping.

Chaplain McCabe bears testimony to the value of hot water. He says: "I used to have fearful headaches for years; they grew so violent that I seriously contemplated giving up my work and resigning my position because of physical incapacity. Just then the hot water was recommended, and I tried it, eschewing my cup of coffee and tea. I used the hot water in their stead at meal time, putting in about two tablespoonfuls of coffee just to remove the brackish taste of the water. It has made me a new man. I never have had headache since, and never get tired; I feel as well as a boy, and can keep on the move continually. I believe it will add ten years to my life-work."

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

HOT WATER GINGERBREAD.—One-half cup butter, one-half cup sugar, one-half cup molasses, one teaspoonful soda, two cups flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, one tablespoonful ginger, one teaspoonful cinnamon, one-half cup boiling water. Mix spices and soda with the flour. Cream the butter and sugar; add the molasses, then the flour mixture, and lastly the boiling water.—Exchange.

DATE PUFFS.—Two eggs, one cup of sugar, one-fourth of a cup of butter, one-fourth of a cup of milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder and flour to make a thin batter. Stir in one cup of stoned dates; fill muffin cups half full and steam thirty minutes. Serve with liquid sauce.

When we are alone, we have our thoughts to watch, in the family our tempers, in company our tongues.—Hannah More.

32 DAYS TOUR OF

Mexico

In connection, from St. Louis, with the "Tour of All Mexico" of the American Tourist Association, and including, on the return, the far-famed

MARDI GRAS AT NEW ORLEANS.

The entire tour made in Pullmen Private Cars. A journey in which the tourist will be in Mexico and the South twenty-five days, spending but a few hours over six of these days in travel, and those at broken intervals. Glorious hours of sight-seeing in "the most novel land on our continent, and one of the most attractive on any continent." The excursion leaves Chicago Jan. 20 and St. Louis Jan. 21. Arrangements will be made to transfer tourists from points south of Cairo or Memphis to a connection with this excursion at San Antonio, thus obviating the necessity of their going to Chicago or St. Louis. But $275 for all expenses of the round trip. Send for illustrated pamphlet giving all particulars.

Tickets and full information can be had of agents of the Central Route and connecting lines, or by addressing

W. A. KELLOND, A. G. P. A., New Orleans.

FITS CURED

(From U. S. Journal of Medicine.)

Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise anyone wishing a cure to address Prof. W. H. PEEKE, F. D., 4 Cedar St., New York.

In Memoriam.

The subject of this brief memoir was born in Missouri in 1812; joined the M. E. Church in 1838; was married in 1839; removed to Mississippi in 1852, and settled in Yazoo county, where he remained until his death.

It was his request that no ostentatious parade might be made at his funeral, but desired a simple Christian burial. What thrilling hope is this sentence of divine inspiration, "Sorrow not as those who have no hope, for if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so also them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him."

Our venerable brother fell asleep on Saturday night, Jan. 25, and spent his first Sabbath in our Father's house; and, according to his request, we laid his remains in the beautiful enclosure he had prepared in the Wesley Chapel Cemetery, in sure and certain hope of the resurrection in the last day.

From the long and useful life of our departed brother, we think his death demands more than a passing notice. Of him in the various relations of life much might be said; but our limits will only allow a brief notice of his Christian life. Without bigotry, he was a decided and loyal Methodist. He understood and loved her doctrines, discipline, and institutions; and no one ever heard him inveigh against them or her chief ministers. He filled acceptably the office of local preacher, class leader, steward, trustee, and delegate to the District and Annual Conference. He was liberal and methodical in his contributions to the church. No call was neglected. He gave so much annually to missions, to superannuates, etc., and especially a liberal amount to his pastor.

His last sickness was long and painful; confined to his room most of the time for nearly three years without any probability of his final recovery. I visited him often, and never found him despondent, but cheerful and resigned. He had set his house in order. He told me he had wound up his business, disposed of his property, had given up the world. "I own nothing, I desire nothing, but to depart and be with Christ." Thus he continued to wait until the summons came to release him from his sufferings, and he passed quietly away, leaving his faithful wife (who had so affectionately waited upon him, never leaving him day or night for three years), with his dutiful children and grandchildren, to mourn their loss.

McGUFFEY—Mrs. EMALINE McGUFFEY was born October, 1833, and died at her son's, Mr. Moore Cerney (home of Mrs. R. T. Young, in Plains), on the evening of Feb. 27, 1896.

Her Christian name was Whitaker. In 1850 (April 11) she was happily married to Wm. K. Cerney, of sacred memory. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at old Olive Branch, in 1857, where she worshiped with her sainted husband till July, 1864, when he was called to "the home of the saved." In February, 1866, she was again married to Dr. H. McGuffey, who also preceded her to the spirit land. She leaves six noble Christian sons, whose lives she trained by the Golden Rule, and of whom she had just cause to be proud.

Sister McGuffey was a woman of superior order. Richly endowed with intellectual gifts and very rare Christian graces, she won the esteem and affections of all whose privilege it was to be associated with her.

Well does this writer remember the sweet and gentle spirit she manifested in her home while visiting there in his boyhood days. Her highest ambition was to live to see her boys develop into true and noble Christian men.

In her death we lose a true friend, a rare Christian, a model woman, and a gentle, loving mother. But why should we mourn our loss, since 'tis her gain? Did she not say, just as she was stepping into the mysterious stream, "All is well"? Oh, the significance of these last words! What are they not worth? What would we take in exchange for them? Gold becomes sordid dust; earthly fortunes lose their significance; but the last words of mother, "All is well," is a treasure whose worth we can never estimate. We may forget kindnesses bestowed by living friends and loved ones; we may forget many a soul-stirring sermon coming from the man of God; but never can we forget the last words of mother. They are lamps to our feet, life and inspiration to our hearts, hands beckoning us onward, words calling us higher. Let us bow our heads and devoutly thank God for the last words of this, our loving friend and precious mother, "All is well."

And now, to those bereaved I would say: Your loved one is not dead, but transplanted to the verdant fields of the paradise of God, where she awaits your coming. Let your life be like hers, and some sweet day on heaven's eternal shore you will strike glad hands to part nevermore. Her presiding elder,

R. W. TUCKER.

BRITT—Bro. THOMAS G. BRITT was born in Gordonsville, Va., Nov. 16, 1836, and died at Terry, Miss., Jan. 28, 1896.

He was of Methodist parentage. When but a boy his father moved from Virginia to North Carolina. Here he lived until he enlisted in the Southern Army. He was a brave soldier, and very popular among his comrades. After the war he went to New York, and from thence he moved to Brandon, Miss., in 1866. At Brandon, on the twenty-eighth of April, 1868, he was married to Mrs. Lucy Reynolds. Six children were the fruit of this marriage. Nearly all of his married life was spent in the mercantile business in Brandon, Miss. There he has a host of friends. There his remains rest awaiting the resurrection morn.

Though he did not make a profession of religion till late in life, yet, as the close of his life drew near, he seemed ready to go. He told me time and again during his last illness, which was of long continuance, that he felt accepted of the Lord, and that the way was clear.

He leaves one brother, a wife and five children to mourn over his departure. While they necessarily feel keenly the pang of separation, still they weep not as those who have no hope. May they, one and all, so live that they may all meet "on the happy, golden shore, where the faithful part no more!"

M. H. MOORE,

WHITTINGTON—Mrs. ADDIE R WHITTINGTON (nee Bozeman) was born in St. Helena parish, La., Jan. 2, 1877; joined the M. E. Church, South, the Summer of 1891; was married to Mr. B. F. Whittington, May 7, 1893; died in McComb, Miss., Feb. 12, 1896. The writer buried her child Sept. 15, 1895, and conducted a meeting at Bethany Church, near McComb, beginning Oct. 20, during which time she was induced to give herself wholly unto the Lord; to do his bidding and enjoy salvation.

Though frail in body, yet ever strong in the Lord, even while the dreaded consumption preyed upon her, she was ever patient, cheerful, and trustful. Even when death had seized upon her, though no one had informed her of the probability of her departure, she earnestly entreated her husband and others to come to the Savior. Especially did she plead with her husband, telling him she desired to die with the consciousness that he was a Christian; then, with uplifted hands, she said, "Why, there is Jesus," and quietly passed into rest.

In life she sought her Savior's grace;
In death she knew his face

The Lord bless the bereaved husband, brothers, sisters, and friends, and give them an abundant entrance into the kingdom of rest. Her pastor,

J. T. ABNEY,

HART—On the banks of the Sunflower, Dec. 10, 1895, was born IVAN MAURICE HART, and on Feb. 27, 1896, he died.

The home of our friends, Capt. J. B. Hart and wife, was brightened only to be darkened. He who gave doeth all things well. On the other shore they will some day see beautiful, beckoning hands in the family graveyard at Phœnix, Miss., we laid away the "little stranger" to await the dawning of the great judgment morn.

heed the signal

Many persons take a variety of remedies and try many novel procedures to reduce their weight. We do not refer to these. If you have been in fair health, with a normal amount of flesh, and yet have been losing weight of late, there is something wrong. If there is an inherited tendency to weak lungs; if your cold hangs on, or if you are weak, without appetite, losing color, and easily exhausted; this loss of flesh is the signal of distress. Heed it, promptly.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

Rev. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D., Brooklyn, New York, in the "New York Evangelist:" "Of all Bibles yet issued in our country, the most superb in execution and completeness of contents is the 'Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teacher's Bible.' Sabbath-school teachers will find this elegant volume a little library of information in itself."

Rev. ALVAH HOVEY, D. D., President of and Professor in, the Baptist Theological Seminary, Newton Centre, Mass.: "It pleases me very greatly. I regard the help which it affords to a correct pronunciation of Scripture proper names as doubling the value of the edition. I trust the book will be received as it deserves to be."

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25 (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these prices it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to April, 97. (A little later it will be May, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any one premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2.45.

THE DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

Contains 1024 large octavo pages printed on excellent paper, is finely illustrated, and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth, measuring 9½x6¼x2 inches.

It contains every name in the Bible and Apochrypa, of which anything can be said. It gives an account of each of the Books of the Bible; it explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs of the Jews, as well as of the various nations mentioned or alluded to in the Scriptures, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves, and worthy of separate publication.

It embraces the results of the most successful and approved Biblical labors and researches, including those of Layard, Rawlinson and others condensed for wide and common use, and constituting an indispensable aid to Ministers, Teachers, Families, Sunday-School Superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

This is undoubtedly the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The publisher's price of the above work is $4.50. We will send it to any address on receipt of price, or we will send it free to any person who will send us two new cash subscribers at the regular rate.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

Rev. W. C. BLACK, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF SAINT PAUL.

By the Rev. W. J. CONYBEARE, M. A., Late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; and the Rev. J. S. Howson, D. D., Principal of the Collegiate Institution, Liverpool.

Contains 1014 large octavo pages, many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc., is printed on the same quality of paper and is the same in size as Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and bound in uniform style.

It eloquently portrays the early Life, education, conversion, teachings, labors, travels, sufferings, perils, persecutions, and missionary career of St. Paul, thus constituting a Living Picture of the great Apostle himself and of the circumstances by which he was surrounded.

The work also embodies the results of a profound and appreciative study of the true inner life of St. Paul exhibited in his letters which delineate the motives which impelled, and the faith which sustained him in all the troubles and sorrows of his twenty year's conflict, and from which we learn what is told of Paul by Paul himself, and which will continue to live upon the lips and in the hearts of all the faithful until the final consummation of all things.

It is NOT an ABRIDGEMENT but an EXACT RE-PRINT of the greatly improved "People's Edition," prepared with much care and labor, in pursuance of an original plan of both writers, "for a wider circle of readers," and differs from all other editions by the SUBSTITUTION OF ENGLISH for the Greek, Latin and German quotations.

Dr. Howson in his preface to this edition says,—"Those readers have, throughout, been kept in view who, though well educated, would not find it easy to refer to Greek or German books." "The text (he also says) is unaltered, with the exception of a slight verbal change suggested in the course of a thorough re perusal."

The publisher's price of the above book is $4.50. We will send it free of charge to any person who will send us two new subscribers with the cash—$4.00. We will also send it to any address at the publisher's price.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

Major General A. McD. McCook with a staff of officers, is to represent the United States at the coronation of the Czar.

New York has passed a law making it obligatory for students to take a four-year course in medicine before practicing.

The National Society of New England Women has determined to build and furnish a colonial mansion in Washington City to be presented to General Nelson A. Miles.

The coming General Conference of the Methodist Church will have to face a very strong demand from the women to be admitted to its privileges on equal terms with the men.

The W. C. T. U. of Chicago is worked up over the report that Ballington Booth has stirred his "Volunteers" with a white ribbon, and telegraphed him that he can not use such a badge as it belongs to them.

One of the six graduating students of the West Penn. Medical College blew out the gas in a hotel bed-room in Pittsburg, Pa., the other night. All six students were sleeping in the room, and all came near being asphyxiated.

The trouble in St. Landry parish over the registration, is a fair sample of the condition of affairs prevailing not only there, but in other parts of the State. It has already resulted in four persons being killed, with prospects of more slaughter ahead.

The House of Representatives last week adopted a resolution instructing the Commissioner of Labor to enter into a correspondence with the census officers of other countries, with the object in view of making the scope of census inquiries uniform, and also to draw up a bill creating a permanent census bureau.

At a meeting of the general officers of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union on March 28 it was decided not to hold the next National Convention in San Francisco, although that city had been previously chosen. It is probable the next national convention will be held in St. Louis in October or November, 1896.

After weeks of wrangling both in the conference committee and in the Senate, an agreement has been finally reached upon the Cuban belligerency resolutions. The second conference committee appointed has finally agreed, the House conferees receding from the resolutions adopted by the House and accepting those of the Senate.

Commander Ballington Booth has requested Rev. J. G. Hallwood, who was his private secretary for over four years, to be present at all the interviews which he has with his sister, Mrs. Booth-Tucker, who comes prepared to make concessions to the head of the new Salvation Army. Commander Booth has decided to meet no ambassador from his father alone.

Representative Grosvenor, of Ohio has submitted to the House the report of the Joint Committee representing Congress that participated in the three days dedicatory exercises of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Park in September last. He advises the securing of the point of Lookout Mountain, which overlooks all the battlefields embraced in the national park.

Rev. George C Lorimer, a prominent Baptist divine of Boston, is in trouble with his congregation because he is a Templar. His acemies say that the rules of the church exclude members of secret societies from communion, and that he can not lawfully minister in the church. Most of his congregation take his part, and the matter will have to be decided in the courts of the church.

FOREIGN.

Japan proposes to spend $60,000,000 this year on its navy. The United States will spend but $1,000,000.

The Emperor of Germany and his wife have gone to Italy for a cruise in the Mediterranean. He expects to have a chat with King Humbert and Emperor Francis Joseph before he gets back.

Germany's grand old man, Prince Bismarck, was eighty-one years old on April 1, and the great emphasis which he did so much to establish honored the day. There would have been an immense celebration had it not been for the feeble health of the ex-chancellor.

The French government in an official note asserts that France occupies in Madagascar a special position, and that it is entitled to special treatment in consequence. France will accordingly grant to Great Britain in Madagascar the benefit of the "most favored nation" clause so far as other nations are concerned.

The announcement of the resignation of M. Berthelot, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, has naturally created something of a sensation, owing to the attitude of France towards the British Egyptian expedition up the Nile. M. Berthelot's rather premature outburst against England, and his subsequent modification of his utterances, did not please the French people.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to March, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

A Great Chance to Make Money.

I want to tell you of my wonderful success. Being a poor girl, and needing money badly, I tried the Dish Washer business and have cleared $200 every month. It is more money than I ever had before, and I can't help telling you about, for I believe any person can do as well as I have, if they only try. Dish Washers sell on sight; every lady wants one. The Mound City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo., will give you all necessary instructions; so you can begin work at once. The Dish Washer does splendid work; you can wash and dry the dishes in two or three minutes without putting your hands in the water at all. Try this business and let us know how you succeed. A $35 Bicycle at Last.

Ever since the introduction of the bicycle predictions have been freely made that it was only a question of time when a high grade wheel could be purchased at a low price consistent with the actual cost of manufacture. It is a well known fact that the original manufacturers of bicycles have become enormously rich from the large profits in the business, and have been able to maintain high prices by constant advertising. High-salaried racers paid to WIN on their wheels, expensive bicycle shows, souvenirs given away, and numerous other expedients are resorted to to keep the name of the wheel before the public, all of which the user pays for, and gets no better wheel than one under a less known name could be bought for at half the price.

In another column is shown a cut and full description of the "Maywood"—a first-class, high grade wheel in every respect, at the low price of $35. If one will read the specifications carefully, he will be readily convinced that this particular wheel has many points of superiority over any other on the market, and as the manufacturers are a responsible, well known firm, and guarantee the wheel in every particular, we can unhesitatingly recommend the "Maywood."

SECURE A POSITION.

Wanted, for office work, on salary, in most every county in the South and West, a young lady or gentleman. Those from the country also accepted. Experience not necessary; in fact, prefer beginners at a small salary at first; say to begin from $30.00 to $60 00 a month. Strictly office work. Chances for rapid promotion good. The enterprise is strongly endorsed by bankers. Address P O. BOX 433, Nashville, Tenn. Mention this paper.

CHILLIFUGE contains Iron that does not blacken the teeth, nor constipate the bowels. Makes rich blood.

CHILLIFUGE possesses all the virtues and none of the disagreeable features of Quinine used by Physicians.

When you feel shaky, Malaria has singled you out as a victim. Take CHILLIFUGE; it will rout the trouble at once.

CHILLIFUGE is a superb appetizer, and is highly valuable for weak and sickly children, as well as the aged and feeble.

CHILLIFUGE does not require a knitting needle or a stick to mix every dose. No iron filings to settle at bottom of bottle and irritate a weak stomach.

A Chance for Women to Make Money.

I see so many men giving their experience in the Dish Washer business that one would almost think the men had taken to washing the dishes. But ladies can do just as well as men. I have been devoting my time for over a year to selling Climax Dish Washers. My husband has aided mornings and evenings, and we have cleared over $5 000 in a year. The trouble with people is they won't try new things and so let the golden opportunities pass. Every family wants a Dish Washer, and any one can sell them if they TRY. I do not canvass at all; people come or send after Washers. I have examined all the Dish Washers made, but the Climax has no equal. You can get complete instructions by addressing the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. I want ladies everywhere to try this business and let us hear how they succeed.

MY LORD.

BY ANNA SHIPTON.

He was better to me than all my hopes,
He was better than all my fears;
He made a bridge of my broken works,
And a rainbow of my tears.
The billows that guarded my sea-girt path
Carried my Lord on their crest;
When I dwell on the days of my wilderness march,
I can lean on his love for the rest.

Catholicism in Mexico.

All readers of history know that when Mexico was conquered by Cortez the religion of Spain was forced upon the defenseless people. It was not very difficult, however, for the natives to change from the rites and ceremonies of the Aztec worship to that of the Catholic Church. In making the change many of the Aztec customs were retained, and are practiced to this day throughout Mexico. We thus see that this is not a Roman Catholic country, as many suppose, but the great mass of the people are semi-bloaters. They think themselves Christians because they have been baptized. The words "conversion" and "baptism" convey to their minds the same meaning. As a nation, Mexicans know nothing of true worship. Dr. Abbott says: "Christianity, instead of fulfilling its mission of enlightening, converting and sanctifying the natives, was itself converted. Paganism was baptized, Christianity paganized." These people are so much absorbed in their worship of the Virgin and other saints that they have very little time left to think about God. Mariolatry, or the worship of the Virgin Mary, is carried to a greater extreme in Mexico than in any other country. They have two representations of the Virgin. One is called the "Virgin de los Remedios," and the other the "Virgin of Guadalupe." The last mentioned is the one universally worshiped in Mexico. Pictures of this saint are seen everywhere, from costly paintings in the homes of the wealthy to cheap engravings in the hovels of the very poorest peons. Images of this "Patron Saint of Mexico," as the natives delight to call her, are made and placed in all of the churches; then smaller images are made and worn around the neck as charms.

On the twelfth of December, the anniversary of the miraculous appearance of this Virgin, a fiesta begins. They call this feast "The Crowning of the Virgin." Nearly every home has a shrine, and on this night it is decorated, and a picture of this Virgin placed at the top, all decorated with flowers. Guadalupe Church is the centre of attraction during this feast. The walk leading to this church is nicely paved, is very wide, and a mile and a half long. It is called the "Nun's Walk." On this particular night it is brilliantly lighted all along the way by lanterns suspended from trees on either side. Near the church booths and stalls have been built for this occasion, and men and women are crying out their wares, peanuts, tomales, dulcer chile, rosaries of beads, and every other imaginable and unimaginable thing. In some of the stalls they have music and dancing; and such dancing. Some of the Americans who are fond of this amusement should witness an Indian dance. I think they would surely be disgusted, and never wish to engage in this pastime again. Inside the church is brilliant with the light of myriads of candles. These lights extend away up to the cross on the tower, while on the outside lanterns are suspended in rows. This fiesta begins the twelfth, and continues through Christmas week. Mass begins at midnight the twenty-fifth, and continues several hours. I heard of a party of Protestants going to San Francisco Church last Christmas night just at twelve o'clock, thinking they would remain until the close of the service, but it lengthened out so indefinitely that they departed at half-past one, leaving them in the midst of their ceremonies of chanting, bowing, and swinging around. During the service almost the entire audience kneel on the bare floor. The churches are not supplied with seats. I suppose this is intended as a kind of penance. Sometimes they hold up their hands until their strength is exhausted; then they bow and kiss the floor. They also kiss the feet of the images, thinking, no doubt, that there is merit in all of this nonsense.

At certain seasons of the year they observe a ceremony, consisting of penance alone. The women attend this service in the morning and the men in the evening. They whip each other with scourges made of steel. These scourges have sharp points, sometimes a quarter of an inch long, projecting from all sides. This is continued until the blood flows freely, and their bodies are so bruised and lacerated that it takes months for them to heal. Women have been known to become insane after one of these penances. They sometimes die from the effects of these wounds. Another method of doing penance is crawling for miles over the rough stones to some church, where they offer prayers to the Virgin Mary. I will give one of their prayers to the Virgin, copied by a reliable person from a tablet on one of the doors of the cathedral in the city of Pueblo.

PRAYER.

Most holy Virgin of Guadalupe, glorious daughter of God the Father, mother of God the Son, and wife of God the Holy Spirit, I pray thee, my patron Saint and Lady, that if to-day, if this minute, if this hour, or if during the remainder of my life, or in death, any sentence should be passed against me, or against anything of mine, it may, by thy intercession, be revoked, and by the hand of thy Son, our Lord Jesus Christ, be turned aside. Amen, Jesus.

Our Bible teaches us that there is one "Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus," but they speak of the Virgin in this language: "I salute thee, O Great Mediatrix of peace between men and God; O Mother of Jesus, our Lord, the love of all men and of God; to thee be honor and blessing, with the Father and with the Holy Spirit. Amen."

We see, by reading this extract from one of their books, that the Virgin is not only made mediatrix, but is placed on a par with the Holy Trinity.

The sale of indulgences, against which Luther protested three hundred and seventy-nine years ago, when he posted his ninety-five theses on the door of the church at Wittenberg, and out of which has grown our great Protestant Church, is still practiced widely in Mexico. No wonder the people commit all sorts of sin when they are told that remission will be obtained by paying a certain sum of money to the priests. But, thanks be unto God for the gift of his dear Son, whose death was not in vain, the souls of millions of Mexicans will yet be cleansed through his precious blood, and the Reformation begun by Luther, and carried forward by many brave men since that time, will extend its sway over priest-ridden Mexico.

The gospel has already done much for this country. Those who have only lived here ten years can look back over even that brief interval of time and see great improvement.

VIOLA BLACKBURN.

Speaking Evil of Magistrates and of Ministers.

The habit of speaking evil of magistrates, of Presidents, governors, members of Congress and of Legislatures, and of the Secretaries and Treasurers of State, and of the diplomats, ministers to foreign courts, of public officers generally, is a growing and pernicious evil. It is a sin against the public weal and against God. It is contrary to the spirit and genius of the religion of our Lord. It is condemned in the Scriptures, and is a violation of the Rules of the Methodist Church. No true Christian, no law-abiding Methodist, will allow himself to be given to it. It is unchristian, and not Methodistic.

Much of this trouble grows out of blind, partisan zeal and political prejudice. This zeal is so hot and this prejudice so strong that men lose all regard and respect for the truth. All public virtue, honesty and patriotism is condensed and concentrated in their party, and all profanity, drunkenness, public thievery and disloyalty is in the opposing party. All magistrates and ministers of their party are models of sobriety, honesty and integrity, and all of the other party are liars, thieves, and villains of the first water. When men get this far along in partisan zeal and political prejudice, they had rather hear and believe a lie on the other party than the truth. They have no ear for the truth if it is good, and no disposition of heart to believe it if told in favor of one of the opposing side. When men go this far, they are rotten and ruined in the substance of their own souls. All sense of fairness, justice, truth, and of faith in human kind is gone.

The secular, political and party papers are largely to blame for this. Lying with many of them seems to be reduced to a fine art, and soon becomes their stock in trade. Each party and each partisan knows this of the papers of the other side, and yet neither seems to suspect it of the publications of his own side. The truth is, both are equally given to the same thing. There are a few papers, with really great editors, that are just and honest in discussing party principles, and in their representations of public men. These are worthy of all honor, and deserve the highest praise. The average party paper is too intensely partisan to be trusted in any of its representations of the measures and men on the other side. It—its editors and managers—is false in both fact and form, and so it is a blind leader of the blind. What fools and simpletons sensible and professedly Christian men are to allow themselves to be duped and misled by these emissaries and agents of the devil. The papers that habitually speak evil of magistrates and public ministers violate the plain text of God's Holy Word, and in so far any Christian man may certainly know they are wrong.

Indeed, when the party spirit becomes dominant, it stands in the way of wise and good legislation on the part of the legislators themselves. They are often more for party success than for the good of the country and people. This is manifest to all reading and thinking men and women, and the body of the partisan people on each side silently, if not publicly, approve it. The abusive and opprobrious epithets applied to persons and principles is a shame and disgrace to both Houses of Congress in this country. A good word from the other side for any man or measure of the other party is so remarkable as to attract world-wide attention in flaming headlines.

If the word "ministers" be restricted to preachers, then it is wrong to speak evil of them. This evil is far too common now in far too many of our homes. The preacher's power and influence with the children is destroyed by the parents making the real or imaginary faults and foibles of the preacher the subject of talk and criticism in the home. This is a pernicious evil and a great and grievous sin. This thing grows by what it feeds upon, and from carping and captious criticism of the preacher it extends to all public officers and men.

We have many examples and illustrations of the baleful influence of this evil practice in our own church in this day and time. Preachers are targets, to be shot at with bullets of lies, and often preachers are themselves the gunners. What a shame and sin! The more prominent the position the more frequent, deadly and false the fire. Whoever does this is guilty of sin and breaks the Rules of the church.

GILDEROY.

Miss Clara G. Baer.

Miss Clara G. Baer, of New Orleans, La., is one of the rising young women of the South. A few years ago, after finishing her education in Louisville, Ky., she graduated with distinction at the Posse Gymnasium in Boston, Mass., and was at once offered a lucrative position as teacher by the talented Swedish baron, who was at the head of the institution; but she refused, preferring to cast her lot with the people of her native city. Since Miss Baer's return to New Orleans she has been made Director of Physical Education at Newcomb College and Ladies' Class of the Southern Athletic Club. Besides she is associate superintendent of physical education for the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union. Miss Baer's superior ability is receiving recognition throughout the land. She lectures every season at the Louisiana State Chautauqua, at different State conventions of the W. C. T. U., and was on the program to deliver an address at the Exposition held in Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Baer has recently published a little book entitled, "Newcomb and Basquette Games for the Gymnasium," which will prove a great joy and help to all young people who are students of gymnastics. One of the most hopeful signs of this age is the revival of athletic sports, so popular with the Greeks, and the growing interest manifested in the physical training of the youth of both sexes. The bodily, intellectual and spiritual natures of human beings are so closely connected that the full development of one can not be secured without the equal development of the other two. The trinity of forces has to be cultivated in order to produce the perfect man and woman.

BELLE KEARNEY.

In the Living Present.

Lung gymnastics is very necessary to persons of sedentary habits and weak chests. The object is to produce accelerated respiration. If produced by liquid stimulants, the heart suffers injury. The best lung exercise is animated conversation, moderate singing, reading aloud, public speaking—not ranting—running and deep breathing.

Worry is most frequently the offspring of dyspepsia. Hence, if the latter is cured, the former will disappear. Worry slays thousands. Found everywhere. Recommend medical treatment. Said an ignorant person who was admonished to seek a new heart: "My heart is all right, my liver is diseased." Well, self-control, equanimity, resignation, etc., are impossible in case of indigestion.

Legislation can not affect our moral character. With all that, though reformatory laws by Congress or Legislature can not reform the individual, they are necessary for the safety of society. They are our social dikes. But, as Christians, we should be more concerned about the conversion of sinners than the enactment of sumptuary laws.

A druggist in St. Louis teaches a wholesome lesson on good morals. He has painted on a long show-case: "Only poisons are exposed in this window." The exposed articles, properly labeled, are: Paris green, arsenic, morphine, laudanum, face powder, playing cards, cigarettes, whisky.

The present war between Italy and Abyssinia is attributable to defective translation. In 1889 the two governments entered into a treaty. In paragraph seventeen occurs in the original Italian this language: "In formulating its foreign policy, Abyssinia shall always consult Italy." In the Abyssinian the "shall" has been translated "may."

Sleeplessness is not always the result of evil conscience. Sickness and imprudence frequently the cause. Avoid late hours and late meals. Prevent unnecessary disturbance. Spend less money for gaudy apparel and more for comfortable bed. The best room in the house should be the sleeping apartment. Said apartment should be uncarpeted, and contain no superfluous furniture. Night air is not poisonous. Admit a small quantity through an aperture of the upper window.

Ballington Booth, influenced by his fastidious wife, says that his "Volunteers" will only work among the upper classes of society. The drum, tambourine, etc., are to be abandoned. Unsouth methods discontinued. Well, well. Have already more than enough churches as fastidiously decent and exquisitely fashionable as our far-famed graveyards. If the "Volunteers" are to avoid the slums, they are superfluous. We wish the refractory leader well, but we fear failure.

Vicksburg District Conference.

I have just read Bro. M. M. Black's account of the Vicksburg District Conference, and thank him cordially, regretting only that it was not complete, as I have neither the inclination nor ambition of the scribe. He has said all the sweet and proper things about the visiting brethren, and thereby saved me a great chase for honeyed words through a big dictionary. But one of our esteemed visitors Bro. Black forgot to mention—Sister E. D. Jones, a loving and zealous representative of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society.

Thursday, March 26, was devoted to the District Sunday-school Conference. The reports were interesting, and showed the Sunday-schools of the district to be in good condition, with bright prospects for the future. The problems and difficulties of this work were discussed, but with little progress toward their solution; so they are left to the future.

The Epworth League, with its boundless possibilities, furnished a rich theme for the afternoon, and many a heart was cheered by bright hopes in this young child of the church. Rev. T. B. Holloman, president of East Mississippi Female College, delivered an earnest address upon this subject.

The sermon, at eleven o'clock, by Bishop Galloway, from Jer. i, 5, "I ordained thee a prophet unto the nations," was a delight to all, and that at night by our worthy Conference Missionary Secretary, Rev. T. L. Mellen, from Matt. xiii, 38, "The field is the world," was heartily enjoyed. In fact, the preaching generally was strong and spiritual, and a feast, not only to the members of the Conference, but to the excellent congregations which the good people of Edwards furnished.

The following resolutions concerning Millsaps College were offered and requested published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and in the Clarion-Ledger, of Jackson, Miss.:

Resolved, That we have heard with great gratification of the growing prosperity of Millsaps College, and that plans are being matured for increased facilities and additional buildings.

Resolved, second, That we have heard with pleasure that the Board of Trustees have provided for a Law Department in the college, to be opened with the next session, and that the Hon. Edward Mayes, LL.D., has been elected Professor of Law. The location of the department at the capitol, with the advantage of the Supreme and Federal Courts, and one of the finest law libraries in the United States, together with the acknowledged ability of the distinguished professor, furnish opportunities not excelled in this section. We commend the college in all its departments to the liberal patronage of our people.

T. B. ANDREWS,
H. M. ELLIS.

The following resolutions were adopted in regard to the noble work of the women in their Parsonage and Home Mission and Foreign Missionary Societies:

Resolved, That we heartily endorse the work of our Parsonage and Home Mission Society, and would re-enforce, as far as possible, the request of the general officers of this society, which accords with our Book of Discipline—viz., requesting our aid societies to put themselves in direct and immediate sympathy and help with this connectional interest, and that the society be organized in every community possible.

Resolved, second, That we also commend the organ of this society "Our Homes"—as worthy to be patronized by all our people.

J. P. DRAKE,
A. B. MILLER.

Resolved, That we heartily commend the good, noble and loving work accomplished by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, and thank them most cordially for the great spiritual help they have been to us in our charges, and that we not only consider it a duty, but an exalted privilege, to pray for, encourage and help them by every means at our command.

Resolved, second, That we sincerely second the hearty words of commendation and praise uttered by our presiding elder in behalf of their excellent publications—"Woman's Missionary Advocate," and "The Little Worker."

H. M. ELLIS,
JOHN W. CRISLER.

Resolved, That we have been made glad by the presence and ministration of Rev. M. M. Black, representing our loved Conference organ, the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Resolved, second, That we note with pleasure the very apparent improvement in the make up of the ADVOCATE, and rejoice in its improved financial condition.

Resolved, third, That we earnestly recommend to all our pastors renewed earnestness and diligence in advancing all its interests. This ADVOCATE ought to make its weekly visits to each family within our bounds.

J. P. DRAKE,
JOHN W. CRISLER.

This was one of the most enjoyable District Conferences ever held, and the good people of Edwards seemed actually disappointed that there were not more preachers and delegates to entertain. They gave us a royal reception at their homes, and cheered and helped us with their presence at the services and sessions of the Conference. Each of us had the best home in the town, and are ready to carry the District Conference to Edwards again at the first opportunity; so the following resolution of thanks met with hearty and unanimous approval:

Whereas, The kind people of Edwards have received us to their homes with a cordial welcome and unstinted hospitality; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we hereby express and extend our warmest thanks for their kindness, and will continue to pray our father's choicest blessings upon them.

H. M. ELLIS,
W. T. GRIFFIN.

H. M. ELLIS, Secretary.

It is not said that the character will develop in all its fullness in this life. That were a time too short for an evolution so magnificent. In this world only the corniess ear is seen; sometimes only the small, yet still prophetic blade. The sneer at the godly man for his imperfections is ill judged. A blade is a small thing. At first it grows very near the earth. It is often soiled and crushed and down-trodden. But it is a living thing. The great dead stone beside it is more imposing; only it will never be anything else than a stone. But this small blade—it doth not yet appear what it shall be.—Drummond.

It is not yourself only you will serve by the formation of hopeful views and habits; you will be a perpetual cordial and tonic to all those among whom your lot is cast.—Disraeli.

GOD KNOWS IT ALL.

BY JAY S. JACKSON.

God knows it all, our pain and fears,
That by the world are all unknown.
What though the joys of life are flown,
What though we seem to be alone,
And bear it silent through the years?
God knows it all, our pain and fears.

God knows it all, our ill the cares,
The burdens that we bear, the way
Oft rough and hard, the times we pray
So weary, for a brighter day.
That friend our every burden shares,
God knows it all, our little cares.

God knows it all the broken heart,
That lost the things it loved, and cried
In bitterness, the hopes that died
When scarcely born, the breast that sighed
For comfort and for love's sweet part.
God knows it all, the broken heart.

God knows it all, O trust and rest,
He loves and watches over thee.
Thou canst not in thy blindness see
How near thy Lord must ever be;
Wait patiently and do thy best,
God knows it all, O trust and rest.

Depending Too Much on Stated Revivals.

The subject of this article was suggested by a conversation between myself and a certain steward in the Natchez district. Seated at his fireside, after a sumptuous meal, the brother asked me the somewhat unexpected questions: "Is it a good thing to preach warm revival sermons in July and August? And is it a good thing to invite sinners to the altar for prayers in the Summer months?" To which I replied: "Of course." Then he said: "If it is a good thing to do in August and July, would it not be a good thing to do in January, February and March?" I replied: "Yes; it is the right thing to do at all times—Winter and Summer."

Our cold, speculative sermons during three-fourths of the year, together with our failure to invite sinners to Christ every time we preach, impressed the brother that we were limiting God to a certain season to save sinners, and further that we were letting thousands of souls perish without an adequate effort to save them. Our stated times for holding protracted meetings serve a good purpose, but should not be substituted for the revival fire that should burn in every sermon, song and prayer used in our regular services. Every sermon preached and every song sung and every prayer offered during the year should be charged with fire and power from above; otherwise the service is in vain, sinners are not converted, and Christians are not edified. How many of our churches are enjoying an unbroken weekly revival and drawing sinners into the fold of Christ every Sabbath? How many are depending almost entirely on the annual protracted meeting for the conversion of souls and for an increase of members?

We have finished our first round of Quarterly Conferences, and not a single conversion was reported, and not a single accession on profession of faith during the entire quarter. They are all waiting for the Summer campaign, when they expect to have a glorious revival, when they will let out the gospel net for a great draught of sinners. By thus depending on the stated revivals many precious souls are lost. While waiting many souls pass beyond our reach into the regions of bitter woe. "Now is the day of salvation"—not next Summer, not the next camp meeting, but "now."

Depending on these annual revivals of religion we develop an abnormal religious character in our members. Their religious life becomes spasmodic and irregular. They move not in a regular, even tenor of life, but by fits and jerks. Our people come to think that religious emotion and enjoyment are incompatible with our ordinary weekly or monthly service; therefore we rarely ever hear the happy expressions, "Bless the Lord!" "Praise his holy name"—except during our Summer revival meetings.

There ought to be "a flow of spirits and a feast of love" every time we meet in the sanctuary of the Lord. Yea, more Christians ought to be on fire for Jesus every moment they live. When I was a mere boy preacher I heard an old man say, during a great revival, "I have got religion enough, bless the Lord, to do me until next Summer." But unfortunately his extra supply was exhausted in a few weeks. Now, is it not a sad fact that the followers of this old man are legion? Most of our churches have Summer religion. Their spirits change with the seasons. Three months after the annual meeting you find that the religious life of the people has descended below zero. Prayer meetings have declined in spiritual power. Zeal for souls is almost entirely extinct. The preacher sighs, and says, "Alas! where is the glorious revival?" The stated revival when depended on to keep up the religious life of the church fosters the idea that religion is made up of emotion and personal enjoyment. It is true, religion embraces the emotional nature and produces personal enjoyment, but is neither one nor both. Religion is a vital union with the living Christ. The religious soul is the soul that is all on fire for Christ. Let us have our stated revivals at which we come together from day to day to win souls for Christ, but let us not depend on these annual efforts for the salvation of the world. Let the pulpits and the pew catch fire and burn every day in the year. Let preachers and people get on fire for Jesus; then we will have a revival 365 days in the year. May the Lord fire us and inspire us with power from above!

The Church Paper.

I was present at a reception given Dr. W. H. La Prade in Carondelet Street Church shortly after his appointment as pastor of that charge, and heard him say, among other good things, that "a church member who did not subscribe for his church paper was not as good as he should be." I thought then, and have continued to think, that he said a good thing. I did not know then of what a large class of Methodists he spoke; their name is legion. This thing should not be, as one of the vows we Methodists take is to support the institutions of the church, and the great majority of our people are able to subscribe for one or more of our church papers. Where there is an ability there is a corresponding responsibility.

Since I have been in the ministry it has been my duty to present the claims of the New Orleans Christian Advocate in every home in my "charge," and in doing this I find that our members give about as good reasons for failing at this point as they do for dereliction in other Christian duties. The most frequent excuse given is a lack of ability, and this very often by people who have never to deny themselves of a single luxury. I have, in presenting the claims of our church papers, received this excuse from people who were subscribers to the leading city daily and weekly secular papers, and on whose table was to be found the leading reviews and magazines of the day, in addition to the cream of late books and the latest rage in sensational novels. It is not so much a lack of ability as it is a lack of will, and this shows a lack of spirituality. It is just as necessary for a church member to have his church paper, and keep posted in regard to the work of his church, as it is for a farmer, a mechanic or a merchant to have papers that give information about the business he is engaged in.

There are others who take other papers instead of those authorized by the church. Such a course is entirely indefensible. Every person, in coming into the church, takes a solemn vow to support its institutions. This includes our church papers. But if the membership is at fault in taking other papers instead of those instituted and endorsed by the church, and in other ways failing to support church institutions, what should be said of Methodist preachers who encourage our people to do so, and are themselves agents for other religious papers? It seems that loyalty to our vows is about dead. May we soon be free from a membership and ministry who esteem their vows so lightly as to violate them on the slightest pretext, or in any way cause others to do so! Our preachers, as well as our membership at large, should remember that they are under vows to support the institutions of the M. E. Church, South.

There is one other thing I would like to call attention to in connection with this, and that is the matter of books. Bishop Hargrove has appointed Rev. J. E. Denson as colporteur for the Louisiana Conference, and by this appointment the book business in his charge becomes the interest of the Methodist Church in Louisiana, and the membership and ministry of the church become pledged to its support when they do not buy their books direct from our Publishing House. Bro. Denson, and Messrs. Barbee and Smith, of Nashville, Tenn., are prepared to sell any standard publications at publisher's prices. Let us stand by them, as they are our servants, and are working for our interests.

Our W. C. T. U. Convention.

The convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the third district of Louisiana has just been held here in the Evins' Opera Hall. We give the names of some of the officers and visitors who were present: Mrs. Snell, of Columbus, Miss.; Mrs. Goodale, of Baton Rouge; Mrs. Zable and Crouch, of New Orleans; Mrs. Pharr, of Berwick; Mrs. Jolly and Faunt LeRoy, of Morgan City; Mrs. Tomlinson, of North Carolina, and Mrs. Baldwin, of Baldwin, La. Nearly all of these sat conspicuously upon the stage, and seemed as much at ease and as familiar with parliamentary usage as an Annual Conference of ministers.

Mrs. Pharr, the president, arranged her program as follows: The first night the Ramish pastor and choir were to open the services. The second night the Episcopalians had charge, the third night was Presbyterian night, and the fourth and last was Methodist night. This was done to draw the different denominations into the convention, and prove to them that the union is undenominational. It had, we think, the desired effect, and we have abundant reason to believe that much good was accomplished. The business sessions were highly entertaining, and the devotional exercises and temperance discussions were spiritual feasts. Sentiment upon the subject of the sale and use of intoxicants was profoundly stirred, and a large number of different ages and sexes publicly manifested their hearty approval of the cause of temperance, and a goodly number in and out of the churches, with flowing tears, promised to lead better lives. We wish we could have such a convention every year in our charge.

The principal part of the public talking was done by Mrs. Snell and Mrs. Tomlinson. The audiences were very fine, and, so far as we heard an expression, all were captured by them. No more objection to women speaking in public. Much of the singing was done by Mrs. Zable, and, of course, that was well done. Take it all in all, the convention was a grand success, and we are sure great good will result therefrom in the future.

The Discipline. What Is It For?

Not long since I wrote, by request of a good sister, to her former pastor, Bro. A., of B. station, D. Conference, for her church certificate, and instead of receiving one worded like the Discipline requires, received the following:

CERTIFICATE OF CHURCH MEMBERSHIP.

This is to certify that the bearer hereof, Sister A., has been an acceptable member of the M. E. Church, South, in C. charge, D. Conference.

———, P. C.

Void after one year from date.

It was beautifully lithographed on bordered paper. Should we recognize such, or return to sender requesting one of the prescribed form? Should we "mend our Rules, or keep them"? I await an answer.

It makes my heart sad to hear a woman say she "can't feel interest in foreign missions when there is so much need of work at our doors." The woman who said this is young and beautiful—one of fortune's favorites. She lives in a home of wealth and refinement; is the wife of a prominent church-man and the mother of lovely little children. She is also a member of the church and a worker in several home societies. Surely this good woman of whom I speak has never thought of how much she owes to the missionary labors of those who came long ago to this land—once a foreign field. In the economy of God's providence, why was she favored with the fruits of Christianity when that other one in the regions beyond, for whom Christ also died, sits in darkness profound? Was it for any superior merit in this dear one that she was born in the midst of Christian civilization, or any demerit in that dear one which dooms her to midnight darkness?

The world's Redeemer will not see the travail of his soul satisfied for many centuries, if Christians never listen to the cries of heathendom. We should no more neglect home missions than we should forget the children whom God has given us; but if we would be in union with Christ, we must look with yearning hearts toward the millions who are falling daily into Christless graves. Here the gospel light beams over all, there no ray of light has ever come; here the call is heard from the house-tops, "Whosoever will may come;" in the regions beyond no sound of the good news has ever gone forth.

If "the Christianizing of the world" is the work assigned the church, how will our indifference compare with the work of the veteran missionary who said he would go over his rough road of thirty years again to raise the women of heathendom from their degradation, even in this life?

For our own and humanity's sake let us care faithfully for our homes; but, for Christ's sake, let us not forget the heathen who know not God. In Christian lands there are refuges for the destitute, hospitals for the sick, public opinion and law for the oppressed; but for the heathen woman there is no home, no ministrations in sickness, no tribunal of appeal from savage imposition. Hers is a joyless life and hopeless death. What wonder that the last thought of the Savior was for these hapless ones—"Go to the ends of the earth."

Miss Laura Haygood sent a special message to the women of Louisiana W. F. M. S. at the last annual meeting. For the benefit of all who are lukewarm in the cause of foreign missions I will quote a few lines from her earnest appeal: "As we think of China's women to-day—millions of women without God and without hope—let us with grateful hearts recall the benefits with which he has crowned our lives, and remember that whatever is sweet and fair in our homes, whatever is bright and beautiful in our lives, whatever is good and strong in our characters, we owe to him. Without the sweet influences of the gospel of Christ, we, too, would be heathen to-day, sitting in darkness that is the shadow of death. Let us hear him as he says to each of us, 'Freely ye have received—freely give.' All who sorrow and suffer and sin are debtors, and I would not turn you away from obligations to any of them. Hundreds of thousands of women are passing out into darkness because no one has shown them the light of the world.' Thousands are dying without the word of hope we might bring. We call our sisters at home to help us that we may help them. The great majority of them will never hear the sweet story of a Savior's love unless you, my sisters, do what God makes possible to you in taking or sending the message to them. Prove, dear ones, that you are his indeed by going or sending to 'the uttermost.'"

ITEMS FROM CONFERENCE CORRESPONDING SECRETARY.

"Bring ye in all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it."

Miss Pauline Stafford attended the Mississippi Annual Conference in the interest of our work. She secured forty subscribers to Our Homes, and, we hope, reached the hearts of the preachers who have not shown much interest in our work.

We received an encouraging card from Miss Lucinda B. Helm: "There has been most excellent work done in your Conference, and we trust you will make increased efforts towards being the first to secure one hundred subscribers. We are exceedingly anxious that there should be no falling off, and are looking to our friends to help us in this work."

Our loved Mississippi was first in the foreign field. Why not be first in the home work also? We have on our roll eighty-six subscribers to Our Homes. Why not put forth redoubled efforts and reach one hundred? Can we not prevail on every minister and layman in our Conference, who has not subscribed, to send Miss Helm fifty cents immediately and secure a most excellent paper?

Mrs. B. E. Eskridge writes from Port Gibson Auxiliary: "We observed the Week of Prayer. The meetings were well attended, and services greatly enjoyed. Observed the programme Sunday night, which was quite a success. Took in nearly $25. Filled one book of Mutual Building Fund (10 shares at $1 each) last year. Have begun another, and hope to fill it this year. Our society paid out over $100 last year, but hope to do a great deal more this."

Port Gibson Auxiliary deserves commendation, yet we give God all the glory.

Mrs. A. A. Breckenridge, president of Montrose Auxiliary, writes: "We will observe Week of Prayer. Our pastor will preach a sermon on home missions at his next appointment."

Mrs. A. P. Joiner writes from Bay St. Louis Auxiliary: "Failed to observe Week of Prayer. We have no doors or windows in our new church, and when the weather is cold the sermons have to be short, and congregations small. We are almost in as bad fix as on the frontier charges. Pray for us, that the Lord will send help in our time of great need."

It is greatly desired that each auxiliary carry out the programme, or at least hold one public meeting, even if it can not raise any money. Such meetings are sure to bring spiritual blessings, which will give the members greater zeal to press on in the good work. It would rejoice our heart to hear favorably from every programme sent out. We will extend the time to the first of April.

Mrs. G. H. Galloway writes from Lauderdale: "The ladies of this church met last Sunday afternoon to organize a Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society. We organized with but four. I feel sure we can have an interesting society here."

Miss Pauline Stafford organized a juvenile auxiliary to W. P. and H. M. S. at Vossburg, with eight members.

Mrs. F. R. Ford writes from Magnolia Auxiliary: "The programme for Week of Prayer was fully carried out, with the exception of the exercises arranged for Sunday night. It was not possible to have this. All of the exercises proved highly enjoyable, and benefited the participants very much spiritually. Our collection amounted to $8.55, but there are still one or two more envelopes out for collection."

Mrs. Powell writes from Hattiesburg, "Can not induce the Ladies Aid to become connectional."

Mrs. Robt. Selby writes from Bolton: "Will you kindly send me literature? I hope to prevail on the ladies to transfer from Aid to W. P. and H. M. S."

Paulding Auxiliary observed Week of Prayer. By request the meetings were conducted by the laymen. The pastor delivered a sermon on home missions Tuesday night, as he could not be present on the Sabbath. Collection was taken Sunday night; result, $10.60.

Paulding, Miss.

Selections.

Power of God.

What is commonly described as the greatness of man really consists only in man's discovery of God's natural powers and their application. Watts, who first studied steam power, and Stevenson, who applied the power, Edison and Morse, displayed their inventive greatness in discovering and applying God's natural powers rather than by creating any power of their own.—Chaplain McCabe.

Progression.

God put no child of his into this world to grovel and to be a worm; God wants everyone to strive to get up in the world. It is only as men are possessed with this desire that the world improves. Let all men be satisfied with everything just as it is, and that would stop progress.—Rev. W. H. Fishburn, Columbus, Ohio.

The Discipline of Uncertainty.

There is ample opportunity for the testing of character and the trying of principle along the ordinary routine of life's journey. Ways with which we are familiar, the crooks and turns of which are matters of experience, are not the less difficult on that account. We know the heights of the hills and the ruggedness of the road, and our knowledge does not lower the grade or smooth the course. But when we are called to go forth, not knowing whither, when the contingencies of uncertainty perplex us, the strain on faith and courage is much greater.

It is easier "to bear those ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of." Yet this discipline we may not escape. Our great Teacher knows that our faith needs education—when the mists envelop us, and the way out is not discernible. We may fear as we enter the cloud, yet we must go forward. Military expeditions are often sent forth under sealed orders. It is not deemed best at headquarters to divulge the object and the purpose of the undertaking. Secrecy is part of the policy which organizes and equips the force. For the soldier there is nothing but faith in authority, and obedience to it.

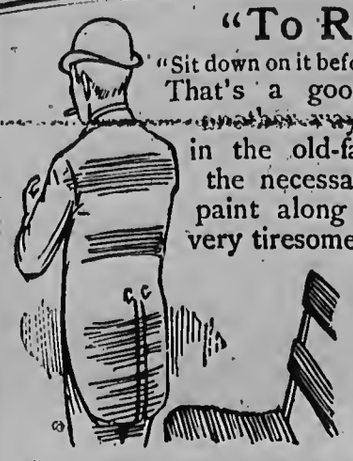
"Theirs not to reason why,
Theirs but to do and die."

The analogy holds good in Christian experience. This hardness, the hardness of uncertainty, of apprehension and doubt, must be endured by those who would prove themselves good soldiers of Jesus Christ. Consecration is not specific and elective. Obedience is not qualified. Heroic faith must be the condition of entrance upon untried ways. "Who is among you that feareth the Lord, that obeyeth the voice of his servant, that walketh in darkness, and hath no light? let him trust in the name of the Lord, and stay upon his God."—Christian Intelligencer.

A sure way of gaining notoriety in a Christian community is to criticise and assail the Bible. Notoriety, we say—not any increased respect or admiration or sense of benefit conferred. But getting attention, a wide-mouthed stare, a name to be talked about for awhile—verily these persons have their reward, such as it is. An English novelist has put into the mouth of one of her village characters an observation to this same effect: "A man who does not believe the Bible is now-a-days supposed to know everything." It is pitiful to observe his air as of one extraordinarily weighted in his reasoning powers sitting on those serene heights to which philosophy has brought him, complacent and supercilious over the lower level and bondage state of his neighbors. A great newspaper of this country, some years ago, turned aside for a moment from its politics and other secular themes, to utter editorially this very truthful reflection: "The readiest way for a mediocre man to gain notoriety is to proclaim himself infidel and attack the Bible. His blows may be as feeble as a hen's pecking, but they are sure to attract notice because of the holy and tender regard in which it is held by the noblest of the race."

Carlyle was not himself the purest type of goodness, yet he was honest enough to say that the best persons he found in London, when he came to live in it, were the religious people. So it is everywhere. Those who come out on the Lord's side are usually the truest and worthiest of characters. There are, no doubt, hypocrites in the church, but not so many as carping critics allege. Many may be deceived and come short of the required measure of duty and responsibility. Still, making the largest allowance for the untrue and the unworthy, the real worth of a community is in our Christian churches. Some good people may be outside of them, but they are the exception, not the rule. Those who truly love Christ and are regenerated by his grace, will almost invariably find their way into his visible kingdom. They can not feel at home in the world, and will seek their own in some Christian brotherhood.

Preach all the sermons you can; talk all the morality you choose; teach temperance as zealously as you please; but until men, women and children have homes of their own there will be vice, immorality, drunkenness, prostitution, pauperism and crime.—Exchange.



"To Remove Paint.

"Sit down on it before it is dry."—(Texas Siftings.)

That's a good way—easy, too. And another way is to do your cleaning in the old-fashioned way with soap; the necessary rubbing takes off the paint along with the dirt, but this is very tiresome work.

You ought to do your house-cleaning with Pearline; that's the modern way—easiest and most economical way—takes away the dirt easily and leaves the paint. Saves rubbing, saves work, saves time, saves whatever is cleaned. Use Pearline (without soap) on anything that water doesn't hurt.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 455 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. O. W. Huff, Nicholson, Miss.: "The following is my report for March: Miles traveled, 128; sermons preached, six; pastoral visits, 21; one mission Sunday-school organized; two infants baptized; secured thirteen subscribers to The World for Christ; held several prayer services. The Lord is blessing us. Pray for us that the Lord may still do greater things for us."

Rev. T. Cameron, Inka station, North Mississippi Conference: "This charge is in fine spiritual condition, taken as a whole. Large congregations of spiritual worshipers greet the pastor twice every Sabbath. The Sunday-school is large and growing; the Epworth League—a religious body of young people—is doing well; the Normal Institute and College is a good place for boys and girls to get a good education at small cost under good Christian influence. Last Sunday our presiding elder was with us, preaching some excellent sermons on Sunday and Monday, holding Quarterly Conference on Monday, and looking faithfully after all the interests of the church. The quarterly love-feast, Sunday afternoon, was a most delightful occasion. As I witnessed the glow of religious fervor, and listened to the testimonies of old and young, the chords of memory were touched, and I was swept back to boyhood's days, when such occasions were common. The good women are faithfully at work on the parsonage and in it, and before many days it will be well furnished and comfortable every way."

Rev. L. P. Meador, North Kemper charge, Meridian district, Mississippi Conference: "This is not only North Kemper, but it's the north limit of the Mississippi Conference territory at this point. The land generally is fertile, but parts of it are very broken and rocky; makes it rough wheeling; but the people are kind and plentiful. We have five appointments. Spring Hill is on this work, minus the spring. This is a noted church—for some things. She has sent out several preachers, viz.: J. W. McLaurin, W. W. and J. M. Morse, of the Mississippi Conference, and V. D. Skipper, of the Louisiana Conference, received their call to preach from this church. You might think, Mr. Editor, that losing so much talent would break her. No, sir; she stands 100 strong—in numbers, not dollars. But she says 'she is going to do better,' and she will. Congregations good at all appointments, and if we don't have hallelujah time this year, I will be disappointed. Money is scarce, they say. I suppose they mean the Lord's part of it, which is so, as I have found out this month on the collections. But we are living and rejoicing; happy on the way. I don't believe you are sending any ADVOCATES to this work, and I can't get them to come. What will we do about it?"

Modern Christianity.

We modern Christians are willing to preach and pray, but we don't want to associate with common humanity. The trouble with our nominal Christianity is that it is too tender to be touched, too holy to be handled, too nice to be nudged, too exquisite to be exposed, too dignified to be desired, too respectable for decent people, too shallow for sensible people, and too idealistic for every-day people.—Rev. J. L. Gordon.

Rev. George L. Crosby.

There lies a lonely grave at the end of the Methodist Church in Brookhaven, Miss. Every time I see that grave it makes me sad, for there lies the remains of my dear old friend, the Rev. George L. Crosby, who died while president of Whitworth College. Bro. Crosby was born in the City of New York. He belonged to a highly respectable family. One of his uncles was at one time governor of the State, one a supreme judge. His father was a merchant. While young he married, and edited an anti-Masonic paper in the days of the Morgan persecution. He also associated the Methodist Church with the Methodists, as the most of the Methodist preachers were Masons in those days. His wife died with the consumption. He thought he was taking it; went to Jacksonville, Fla.; went to teaching school. His sister, Eliza, a gifted young lady, married an eminent Baptist preacher, and through influences joined the Baptist Church, though his people was Episcopalians; but in Jacksonville there was no preaching or church. A young man by the name of John U. Braxton, brought up in East Alabama, quite illiterate, he was received on trial in the Alabama Conference, and sent down in that part of Florida on a mission, and made an appointment to preach in Jacksonville. One Sunday Crosby went out to hear him, and became disgusted with the young preacher's effort; went away to go back no more; but by the next appointment, a month off, he became so anxious to go to church, he went back, and while the young preacher was trying to tell something about Jesus Christ and him crucified for sinners Bro. Crosby began to think: "What brought that young man here? Surely not for fame or money, for he knows that he will not get either on such preaching as that." The earnestness of the young preacher impressed him that the Lord must have sent him. After service Crosby introduced himself to the young preacher, and invited him to his boarding-place. It was readily accepted. They became devoted friends for life. He joined the Methodist Church under Braxton, and was preaching before the year was out. He went to the United States Navy Yard, in Florida, to teach the government school, and was appointed to fill the station there by the presiding elder one or two years. Then he came and settled on the coast of Mississippi; followed teaching. I was the cause of his coming to Brookhaven, or Whitworth College. I preached his funeral as one of my warmest friends. If Bro. Crosby had been well known, as he might have been, as one of the ablest preachers, a true man, a scholar, and a Christian, the church, by all means, ought to put up some kind of a monument at his grave. If Bro. Chambers knew him as I did, I have no doubt but he would have it done. I am told he has sons somewhere in good condition. If so, it seems that they would have it done; but if they will not, some one else, or rather the church, should do it.

A. B. NICHOLSON.

Jew and Gentile.

The Jewish Standard, of this city, thus vigorously criticises unworthy Jews:

"We are sorry to say that there are quite a number of craven-hearted Jews who feel flattered when told that they look like Christians; weak-kneed Jews who are ashamed of their faith; servile Jews who think that because they eat pork people will imagine that they are progressive; greedy Jews who violate their Sabbath because they can make a few dollars; shoddy Jews who believe that a lavish display of jewelry will atone for their uncouth manners; boisterous Jews who play cards in their shirtsleeves at their hotel rooms with open windows on the Christian Sabbath; and indifferent Jews who only believe in Jewish weddings and Jewish funerals."

There are also a number of "craven-hearted" Methodists who feel flattered when they are supposed to be Episcopalians; "weak kneed" Methodists who conceal their denominational relations when they visit watering-places or travel on an ocean steamer; a few "servile" Methodists who think because they drink wine or beer, dance, or go to the theater, people will imagine they are superior to their denomination. We can not follow all the analogies, but the "lavish display of jewelry" and corresponding gross ostentation can be found, and perhaps the "indifferent" Jews can be paralleled by those who only reveal their Methodism where it is prosperous, or when they have some political end to gain by being recognized by a large concourse as connected with the denomination.

The inconsistent Jew is more easily identified than the inconsistent Methodist because of the self-revealing character of Hebrew physiognomy.—New York Advocate.

Skeptical No Longer.

More than seven-eighths of the professors in the higher institutions of learning in this country are Christian men of the evangelical type. Over half the students in the same institutions are Christians of the same sort. These professors and students believe in the inspiration of the Bible as a whole and in all its parts. Whatever it may have been possible truthfully to say in years gone by as to the prevalence of skepticism in the colleges and universities of the land, it may be proclaimed at the present time that the young man who is willing may find companionships which will not endanger his religious beliefs. Not a little of the influence which has brought about the present religious condition of the colleges of the land has been exerted by the college department of the Young Men's Christian Association as a means in God's hands. This agency has been so extended during the past few years that every important institution in the country has been reached. In estimating the value of the Association to the church, the service it has done among the students of the world must be given a large share of attention, especially in view of the fact that scores of them have gone out from the Associations to the ministry and the mission field.—Young Man's Era.

$200 00 IN GOLD GIVEN.

FOR SELLING A BOOK OF GREAT INTEREST AND POPULARITY, "STORY OF TURKEY AND ARMENIA," WITH A FULL AND GRAPHIC ACCOUNT OF THE MASSACRES.

R. H. Woodward Company, Baltimore, Md., are offering $200.00 to anyone selling 200 copies of their new book, "Story of Turkey and Armenia." This is a work of great interest and popularity. Many agents sell 15 copies a day. A graphic and thrilling account is given of the massacres of the Armenians which have aroused the civilized world. Agents are offering the most liberal terms and premiums. Freight paid and credit given. Write them immediately.

That style of sermonizing which receives no bent from personal contact with the people is not the best grade of "heaten oil" for the sanctuary—"at home among hooks, but at sea among men." All study and abstraction from the current of adjacent life is apt to bring the preacher under the description given of a certain minister that he was "invisible six days of the week and incomprehensible the seventh." Mr. Spurgeon once gave the advice: "Stand in the stream and fish." That is to say, the pastor should be acquainted with his people in their secular life. Let him know, as far as it may be possible, what vocations they follow, what cares oppress them, what associations they keep, and what sins do most easily beset them. He should let his influence be felt in the social and family life of his people. He should cultivate a sympathetic spirit for the afflicted, a tender thoughtfulness for the aged, a readiness in spiritual ministry with the sick, a winning manner with children, and great fidelity to the unsaved. The thought is too prevalent to-day that the intellectual demands upon the pulpit precede this pains-taking care in the oversight of a church. But it is a wrong opinion, and a very unfortunate one, that it is impossible to show a record of work in both departments of ministry which the Master can pronounce "well done." This does no imply a low grade of excellence in either line, but it does imply a high degree of diligence and fidelity in both.

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES

$1.35, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to April, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1.25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

CONFIDENCE

IN THE ELECTROPOISE GAINED AFTER SUCCESSFUL USE.

ATTENDED BY A DOCTOR, BUT TO NO AVAIL—FACTS FOR THE BENEFIT OF SUFFERING HUMANITY.

I have been using the Electropoise so successfully that I feel I must tell you the happy results obtained by its use in my case. I was afflicted with a paralyzed hand, and had tried all kinds of medicine, and external applications, and none of them gave me any relief. Finally in my suffering, I thought I would try the Electropoise, and after a few months of perseverance I am able now to use my hand, which has been so long helpless.

My right eye became closed, and I had no use at all of it for a long time. I was attended by my doctor, used his medicine, but nothing would bring relief. I applied the Electropoise, and now the lid of the eye has been raised again, and I feel thankful to say that I am able to use it. I gained so much confidence in the Electropoise that I applied it for a case of severe sore throat, and was relieved over night.

My little grandson, 2 years old, had a severe cough, which kept him awake at night. I applied the Electropoise, and he immediately went to sleep, and had fine sleep for the entire night.

I feel that I should write these facts to you, and for the benefit of suffering humanity, and that I should recommend it to all who are afflicted.

Very thankfully and respectfully,
MRS. ELIZABETH BLOCK GUPTON.

Push the Epworth League Work.

One of the chief causes of the marvelous success of Methodism in the past has been her readiness to adapt herself to varying conditions and circumstances. As the times change, she changes with them, not in faith or in doctrine, but in methods of reaching the unsaved masses. If our church machinery shall lose flexibility, and our leaders become characterized by timid conservatism, then indeed Methodism as a potent factor in the world's evangelization will begin to wane. The Salvation Army is to-day doing almost exactly the kind of work that John Wesley and his co-laborers did a hundred years ago, a work that Methodism ought at this moment to be doing.

The church has at last awaked to the folly of devoting time and attention exclusively to hardened sinners. We are beginning to realize in some measure, though not as deeply as we should, the importance of preventing the young people from drifting into sinful habits and the gross indifference to religion from which comparatively few are ever rescued. The Epworth League, of such recent origin and magic growth, has come to fulfill a mission which neither the Sunday-school nor the class meeting nor any other agency of the church has hitherto been able to accomplish. For years the burning question in religious circles has been: "How may we reach and hold the young people?" It is a sad fact that in many places nearly all the boys and girls after reaching the age of fifteen or sixteen drop out of the Sunday-school and become exceeding worldly.

A happy day was it in our history when our leaders inaugurated that young people's movement. Henceforward the work of the church is not to be relegated entirely to the preachers and the older men and women. The tireless vigor and quenchless enthusiasm of youth are now to be enlisted also. The young soldiers of the cross are no longer to be left in idleness and shameful indulgence, but are to be drilled and equipped for service. The League is not an organization separate from the church, but is the church itself in its work with and for the young.

The devotional feature of the League work we regard as of prime importance. If this be poorly conducted, or allowed to languish, the League will degenerate into a mere social club, without power to conserve or vitalize religion. In the League devotional meetings young converts find exactly the opportunities they need in order to be developed along spiritual lines. Account for it as we may, very few young people have any liking for the old-time class meeting, useful as it has been. League meetings should be characterized by variety, brevity and earnestness. The leaders should induce all the members, if possible, to take some part in the services, even if it be nothing more than to read a verse of Scripture. Every pastor knows that when young converts can be gotten to pray in public, to relate their religious experience, or to lead a meeting, steadfastness and growth in grace are sure to follow.

It is not enough that Christians should grow in knowledge. There must be growth in grace also. One of the ways in which we grow stronger in the Lord is by engaging in works of mercy. What advantage is it if we know to do good, and do it not? In many charges nearly the whole burden of sympathizing with and relieving the needy and the distressed falls upon the shoulders of the already burdened pastor. Who can estimate the advantage, spiritual and otherwise, that will accrue to a church where the young people can be depended upon for charity work? Methodism has long been sorely afflicted with men and women of the selfish, do-nothing type. How extensive is the list of churchmen who hardly have a religious thought beyond saving themselves! What a work there is for the leaguers to do in the way of throttling selfishness and of directing and utilizing spiritual energy and enthusiasm that hitherto have been allowed to evaporate!

The literary department of the League has a vast field of usefulness before it. Through its agency the youth of the church ought to be made more familiar with the doctrines and history of Methodism as well as stimulated to read other wholesome books. Few people are aware of what rich biographical and historical treasures our Methodist literature affords. If our people would only familiarize themselves with the history of their church, cold indifference would be changed to enthusiastic loyalty. A large per cent. of our members, however, can assign no other reason for being Methodists than that their parents were so before them. Others, again, are Wesleyans simply because they were converted at a Methodist meeting.

While most boys and girls have ample leisure for reading, too oft the time devoted to reading is worse than wasted in devouring trashy novels and flashy story papers. The young will read something. If they feed their minds on unwholesome literature, one of three things is true: (1) They have not access to good books and papers. (2) Little or no effort is made to interest them in good literature. (3) Or, they have been allowed to read impure and worthless books until their taste has become vitiated.

We wish every League in Southern Methodism could hold enthusiastic literary meetings, and also pursue the splendid course of study prescribed. Far too many of the Leagues, we fear, are doing very little in this direction. Our people, it is true, learn much from the pulpit as to our history and polity, but the knowledge thus gained is not sufficient. They need deeper, more extensive acquaintance with what Methodism stands for, and with what she has done for humanity.

We are aware that in some country charges it is almost impossible, for various reasons, to make the literary meetings a success; but in the cities and towns and thickly settled communities this feature of the work should by all means be attended to. It is hardly to be expected that all the leaguers at any place will do the reading they ought to do. Some lack the time; others the inclination. Incalculable good, however, will be sure to result from the literary and social meetings, if the committee in charge will do their duty in preparing an attractive programme. Sketches of prominent Methodists of the past and present, short essays upon current topics, select readings from first-class books, the best magazines, and from the Epworth Era, the Youth's Companion, or from some one of our Advocates, with music and recitations interspersed, can not fail to render such meetings interesting and profitable. If pastors and League officers will take pains to work up these meetings properly, success is sure to follow.

The pastor who fails to organize a League where it is possible to do so, stands in his own light. If your League is not a success, try to infuse new life into it by taking more interest in it yourself, but don't let it die.

Our "new building," as the Epworth League has been happily styled, is going rapidly forward. We believe that God is in the movement. Already there are Leagues organized in every State and Territory of the Union, in every province of Canada, and in many foreign countries. Such burning zeal for the cause of Christ as the leaguers display has not been seen since the days of the Crusades. The missionary conscience of the church has already received a wonderful quickening through their influence. Where can be found a more fitting characterization of this new organization, with its million and more members, than that it is "the chivalry of the country engaged in a blessed conspiracy to save the world"? What more glorious motto was ever inscribed on a warrior's banner than that which shines from the Epworth League standard? Let the watchword, "All for Christ," be caught up by the boys and girls throughout our borders. Let the preachers and laymen everywhere lend all encouragement to this young people's movement that promises such great results for the Master's kingdom.

"Bringing Them In."

The philanthropic work inaugurated a few weeks since by Rev. T. L. Lallance in connection with Tchoupitoulas Mission has grown to such dimensions as to demand more space than the present building affords. A building of ample dimensions and eligibly located has been secured at the corner of Toledano and Chippewa. The employment bureau has vindicated the wisdom of its founder by its results. He has found employment for many worthy poor in homes in the city and out of it. But this does not by any means meet the exigencies of the situation. Many men are out of employment and on the verge of starvation for whom places can not be found in domestic service. Bro. Lallance has, therefore, very wisely resolved to furnish employment by founding in connection with the mission industries of various sorts. A wood yard will be the first established. Quite a number of men will be employed in sawing wood and in delivering it to customers in the city. This is only a beginning. A number of industries will be started in the near future, thus furnishing employment for men and women.

Bro. Lallance has been for some time furnishing meals and lodging for the destitute. The results have been gratifying. Many persons have thus been brought into contact with the gospel of Christ who were previously practically heathen, being under no religious influence whatever. Several of these have professed conversion and have so far brought forth fruits meet for repentance. Two religious services are held on Sabbath, and three during the week. These services are thoroughly evangelical. A full-orbed gospel is preached and is honored by the Spirit's presence. We wish again to place ourselves on record as heartily approving the work in which Bro. Lallance is engaged. Our Savior not only preached the gospel; he also "went about doing good." Day after day throughout his public ministry of more than three years he ministered as occasion required to the physical necessities of men. Happy would it have been for the church had she through all ages followed his example.

The churches of the present day are not reaching the poverty-stricken masses in our cities as they should. It is true that we have done and are doing grand work in many of the cities; but it is a fact that we reach mainly the upper and middle classes. The very poor—those who wear rags and know not to-day where to-morrow's meals will come from—are conspicuous by their absence from our church services.

Is it not our Savior's command that we shall "go into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in"? And what means of compulsion can compare with works of benevolence—feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, etc.? But how shall we feed the hungry? Shall we do it in such a way as to train up a generation of paupers who think it the business of the world to support them in idleness? This is the legitimate result of a certain kind of philanthropic work, which thus aggravates the evil which it aims to cure. It is the dictate of common sense that the very best way in the world to help the poor is to provide a way for them to help themselves; in other words, to give them employment by means of which they can earn a living.

The New Orleans District Conference, last week, gave its hearty endorsement to Bro. Lallance and his work. Those who desire to do good with their money have here an exceptional opportunity. Money is needed to put this scheme into operation. Once in operation it will very soon become self-sustaining. The Parsonage and Home Mission Society, which originated this Tchoupitoulas Mission, is to be congratulated on the splendid results of its labors.

The New Endowment.

I am glad to report to the church that a beginning has been made for a new endowment for Centenary College. A young business man, in moderate circumstances, has sent his note for five hundred dollars, payable in annual installments, with interest from date. This note he has exchanged for one which had been given on the old plan. He says: "I think this plan business-like and one that any friend of the college could adopt." He intends to pay, each year, as much of the principal as he can with the accrued interest. Any one can see that this is better than the old plan, for the reason that the college will not only get the interest for current expenses, but will get each year a part of the principal to be invested in a permanent endowment.

This is a matter in which every Louisiana Methodist is interested, and in which every preacher in the Louisiana Conference should take special interest. One hundred and twenty-five preachers, working the plan proposed by the brother who starts the new endowment, ought to endow the college during this year. There are largely more than five hundred Methodists who are able to do as well as the brother who starts the movement. There are many more than a thousand who could give one hundred dollars on this plan and never know they had given, as far as embarrassment by the gift is concerned. The plan is feasible, and I hope the brethren all over the Conference will put it in operation.

Brethren, why should this matter hang on our hands for years? Let us all go earnestly to work. You can get blank notes anywhere. Supply yourself and go out among the people to whom the college belongs and let us answer, during this year of our Lord, the long prayer of Centenary for endowment.

Millsaps College Notes.

Senator B. H. Wells will deliver the anniversary address before the Galloway Literary Society, April 17.

Dr. E. H. Moore, professor of mathematics in the University of Chicago, paid the faculty a pleasant visit last week.

Dr. A. M. Muckenfuss, professor of chemistry, has an article in the February number of the American Chemical Journal on the action of phosphorous chloride on a certain benzoic acid. In the preparatory work and in the authorship of the article Dr. Muckenfuss is associated with Prof. Remsen, of Johns Hopkins University.

Millsaps College is, perhaps, the only college in the State that has insisted rigidly on holding entrance examinations. There is no intention now to reduce requirements; but it is believed that mutually helpful relations may be established between the college and the preparatory schools of the State. The following is the action of the faculty in regard to the matter:

Resolved, That in case principals of preparatory schools desire to have their students admitted into Millsaps College without examination, arrangements looking to that end may be made as result of correspondence with the college authorities.

During the coming Fall and Winter two courses of public lectures will be delivered at Millsaps College—one primarily for preachers, the other primarily for teachers. In the first course President Murrah will be assisted by Bishop Galloway, Rev. H. F. Sproles, D. D.; Rev. R. G. Porter, Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., and others. In the second course each member of the college faculty will speak with reference to his own department. Ex-Chancellor Mayes, State Superintendent Kincannon, Major R. W. Millsaps, and others, will deliver lectures specially suited to young men looking toward teaching as a profession.

As the commencement session draws nigh the members of the faculty are sought after to deliver addresses. President Murrah will speak on Education before the New Orleans Epworth Leagues, May 21. He will preach before the Johnston Institute, May 31. Prof. Weber will deliver the literary address before the Columbia High School, May 19. Dr. Muckenfuss will speak before the East Mississippi Female College, June 10.

Methodists, Attention.

The first anniversary of the New Orleans City Missionary and Church Extension Society will be held in Rayne Memorial Church, at 7:30 P. M., Sunday, April 12, 1896.

Let all who possibly can attend this Methodist rally at Rayne Church next Sunday night.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

M. C. McDonald, of Montreal, Canada, has donated $500,000 to McGill University for the purpose of providing a building for the study of chemistry, mining and architecture.

NOTES.

The meeting at Felicity is still in progress. Everybody invited.

***

Rev. Dr. Sheldon Jackson has given $50,000 to establish the University of Utah.

***

The Alabama Advocate got out a woman's edition last week—large, handsomely printed and ably edited.

***

Rev. W. M. Stevens, of the Mississippi Conference has been kept closely at home for some weeks by the illness of his wife. She is now convalescent.

***

Mr. J. Walton Drake, a prominent lawyer of Macon, Miss., a brother of Rev. W. W. Drake, of the Louisiana Conference, died at his home in Macon on Saturday last. He was a young man of fine abilities and most excellent character.

***

G. W. Lee, the leading spirit in the charge known as the Lower Coast Mission, died a few days since. His death is a serious loss to the charge. A memoir from the pen of his pastor will soon appear.

***

According to the Wesleyan Advocate, the Jones-Stewart meeting in Atlanta has been a marvelous success. The estimate is that the number of accessions to the church will aggregate at least a thousand, beside an incalculable influence for good on the membership of the church.

***

Rev. David Marchant, a superannuate of the Mississippi Conference, died March 31 at his home near Ellisville, Miss., in the sixty-fifth year of his age. He had been in feeble health for several years. A thoroughly good man has been called from toil and suffering on earth to eternal rest.

***

Congress did a wise thing when it passed, a few days since, a bill repealing the law enacted during the reconstruction period excluding ex-Confederates from official position in the United States Army and Navy. Surely, though slowly, the animosities engendered by the late fratricidal strife are dying out.

***

On the thirty-first of March, 1896, Rev. Harvey Mallard, pastor of South Side Methodist Church, Meridian, Miss., was united in holy wedlock with Miss Cassia LaGrath, of Birmingham, Ala., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Isaac L. Peebles. The ADVOCATE extends congratulations, and wishes them a long, happy and useful life.

***

On last Friday night Rev. H. H. Ahrens and his family were the victims of an assault. A crowd gathered at his residence unceremoniously took charge of the premises and gave the inmates a huge pounding, from the effects of which they will not recover for many days to come. A noticeable feature of this piece of outlawry was that the intruders were members of the Parkar Chapel Epworth League. Bro. Ahrens survived the attack and, like the man who was funneled with "fire-water," is not averse to history repeating itself.

Although Dr. Buckley, editor of the New York Advocate, is vigorously opposing the removal of the time-limit to the pastorate, he announces in his last week's issue that he thinks it proper for the General Conference to make provisions for exceptional cases. The following is the clause which he would insert in the Discipline:

The plan suggested in this: "When a Quarterly Conference, without debate, in the absence of the pastor, by ballot, shall by a three-fourths vote of the entire membership of the Quarterly Conference, assigning the conditions of the pastorate as the ground for the necessity, request the reappointment of the pastor whose limit is about to expire, the Bishop presiding at the next Conference may return such pastor for another year, without regard to the number of years he may have served already in the charge."

We predict that something like this will be adopted as a compromise measure.

***

The publisher of the Chicago Despatch has been punished for publishing "certain obscene, lewd, lascivious matters in print." His counsel, in challenging jurors, ruled out as many church members as he could, which is direct testimony that if the devil should happen to come to Chicago, he would encounter opposition from church members, Mr. Stead to the contrary notwithstanding. It is gratifying to note that the attorney for the United States in his opening plea said: "If the family be corrupted, if the young be tainted, over the doors of the government is written the condemnation of its speedy fall. And it ought to fall! Any government which would establish such a gigantic system as the mail service of this country, and then suffer it to be put to base uses—which would permit that great arterial system to run rotten and reeking with the low sayings and worse imaginings of vile men—any such government ought to fall!"—Congregationalist.

Millsaps College.

Our Methodist people now have a splendid college, Millsaps, at Jackson, Miss. We have ample and beautiful grounds, splendid buildings and a productive endowment of one hundred thousand dollars. This was made possible to us by the munificence of Major R. W. Millsaps, who gave fifty thousand towards the endowment. Other generous gifts from him followed. He has a standing offer to give dollar for dollar with the eighty-five thousand Methodists in this State. This college has a splendid president in the person of Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D. He is supported and aided by a splendid faculty. The fruits of their work are just beginning to be seen, here and there, all over Mississippi. In ten or fifteen years it will be manifest everywhere. Our young men, young preachers, are going to Millsaps to qualify themselves for work. It takes time for a college to grow. A great college can not be made in a day, a month, a year. This college will come to be a great power for good in this State. It will do a great work for Methodism. The time will come when it will have a quarter of a million endowment. It ought to have a million. It is folly to talk about a great college without a competent endowment. Our people will come to see this some of these days. May the day speedily come. Here is one man proposing to give each year as much as the entire membership of the Methodist Church will give. He dares the people of Mississippi to give him a chance to match their gifts up to twenty-five thousand a year. I wish in my soul they would put him to the test for ten years in succession. It would do him and them good. It would put this college on a firm footing. It would be an example worthy of imitation and emulation all over Southern Methodism. It would stir up the North Carolinians for Trinity, South Carolinians for Wofford, Georgians for Emory, Alabamians for Greensboro, Louisianians for Centenary, and so all over the church. Giving would get to be both contagious and epidemic. Major Millsaps is a living example of what a live church should be in the matter of education by the church. We must have church schools. It is life or death. Hear me.—Gilroy, in North Carolina Advocate.

NEWCOMB AND BASQUETTE GAMES FOR THE GYMNASIUM. By Clara G. Baer. Published by L. Graham & Son. 1895.

There is much wisdom in the oft-quoted maxim of the ancients, "A sound mind in a sound body." A healthy, well-developed physical organism is a prerequisite to the highest development of the mental powers. This is now universally accepted by those who lead the thought and shape the higher civilization of the age. Hence a large proportion of our schools of both sexes have their physical culture department. The gifted author of the above named work, whom we are so fortunate as to number in our list of personal friends, occupies the position of Directress of Physical Culture in Sophie Newcomb College in this city, and so is in a position to speak knowingly on the subject of which she writes. For a more extended notice of the work we refer our readers to the communication of Miss Belle Kearney on our first page.

DR. GILMAN'S BOOKLETS ON THE LAST EVENTS IN THE LIFE OF OUR LORD. Price 10 cents each. Thomas Whittaker, Publisher, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

The secretary of the American Bible Society, the Rev. Dr. Gilman, has written a series of very excellent tracts which illuminate and explain, with great tact and sympathy, the stirring events at the close of our Lord's earthly life and the period between his Resurrection and Ascension. Four of these charming booklets have appeared in as many years, and now comes a fifth entitled "A Doubting Disciple; or, Thomas Didymus." We know of nothing quite so good, in a simple way, on the subject, and we recommend our readers to send for a copy, which costs but ten cents.

Education Day.

All lasting reform must come through education. The hope of the State and the prosperity of the nation is based on the right training of the children. Whatever you would make deeply influential in a nation's life must first be embodied in the education of its children, is a maxim of one of the wisest philosophers of antiquity. Guizot, an eminent Protestant writer of France, wisely says: 'In order to make popular education truly good, and socially useful, it must be fundamentally religious."

I am glad that our church will observe Education Day on the second Sabbath in April. Religion is not simply a subject to be studied at restricted times and places, but a principle, a law, a faith which should be studied and practiced at all times and all places. Our children must be taught daily to practice the commandments of God as well as the rules of arithmetic and grammar if they receive that development which forms the highest character, the ablest citizenship, and fits them for the fullest enjoyment of this life and the life which is to come.

We ask the prayers of all Christian people for Mansfield College, for the pupils and the teachers, that the work done may be for the glory of God and the uplifting of humanity.

Spring Time

When nearly everyone feels the need of some blood-purifying, strength-invigorating and health-producing medicine. The real merit of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the reason of its widespread popularity. Its unequalled success is its best recommendation. The whole system is susceptible to the most good from a medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla taken at this time, and we would lay special stress upon the time and remedy, for history has it recorded that delays are dangerous. The remarkable success achieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla and the many words of praise it has received, make it worthy of your confidence. We ask you to give this medicine a fair trial.

Preachers' Meeting of Durant District.

The Pastoral and Theological Society of the Durant district, North Mississippi Conference, held its annual meeting March 26 and 27, in the Methodist Church at Kosciusko. The meeting was called to order and presided over by Rev. J. H. Mitchell, presiding elder. J. T. Murrah, by previous election, took his place as secretary. A call of the roll showed that a majority of the preachers throughout the district were present. Several local preachers and laymen were also present, who entered into the discussion and added very much to the interest of the occasion.

The programme was carefully prepared by the presiding elder, and each preacher in the district assigned a subject. Without exception, every preacher present read a paper on the subject assigned him. These papers evidenced careful and thoughtful preparation. A very marked improvement over last year was noticeable, both in the preparation of papers and interest in the general discussion which followed the reading of each paper.

To give you an idea of the subjects discussed, I will mention two of them. Bro. Park gave us a very practical paper on "Church Work and Methods." I hope he will see fit to reproduce the same some time in the ADVOCATE. From indications it would seem that the theories which he advanced had been practically tested in his own charge. The paper on "The Possibility of Falling Away from Christ, and Being Finally Lost," as prepared and read by W. W. Mitchell, was exceptionally good.

The preaching was both edifying and spiritual. This was done by R. M. Evans, D. W. Babb, J. D. Newsom, R. P. Gear and W. W. Mitchell.

Kosciusko gave to the society a most cordial and hospitable entertainment. Bro. Parks has a strong hold upon the confidence and affection of his people. It was the verdict of all present that the meeting was one of decided pleasure and profit. This is due to the vigorous and painstaking effort of our presiding elder, who I unhesitatingly declare to be the equal of any man in this office. He is abundant in labors, and has the spiritual and temporal interests of all his charges continually on his mind and heart. The home of his wife and children is Durant—he can be found anywhere from Eupora to Belzoni. J. T. MURRAH, Sec.

Special Notice.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE

Children's Day programs are ready for distribution. Our Sunday-school Board has provided to furnish them free to all who will use them as contemplated by the law concerning Children's Day observance. Let pastors or Sunday-school superintendents send their orders at once to the undersigned for number needed. Let there be no delay, so that timely preparation may be made "the third Sunday in May or as near thereto as practicable."

Remember that "Children's Day" is one of our church institutions, the observance of which is not optional, but obligatory; therefore, let each pastor see to it that every church in his charge enjoys the benefit of this occasion this year.

Brother, if you think you can not have it as you would, do your best and have it as you can. Let us have a report from 140 pastoral charges this year. Send whole amount of collections to Rev. Geo. H. Lipscomb, treasurer, Como, Miss., and he will distribute as the law directs.

Conference Claimants.

DEAR BRETHREN: The first quarterly allowance for our claimants is now due. I have not yet received funds enough to pay them. One old brother writes me he is starving. All are needy and expecting help. From the Vicksburg district—six charges have reported $113.75. Southern district—one charge has reported $20. Meridian district—four charges have reported $60. Enterprise district—one charge has reported $3. Brandon district—eight charges have reported $168.55. Brookhaven district—six charges have reported $116.70. Jackson district—four charges have reported $102. Natchez district—None have reported.

Now, brethren, do please take a collection for this cause and send me at once.

Care of Our Homes.

I have just read with interest the article from a "Preacher's Wife," in the ADVOCATE, of March 26. It so accurately describes the condition of things at this parsonage that some one accused me of writing it. I have had plenty of experience with gold dust and sand, as well as my husband with hammer and nails, repairing fence, hanging gates, nailing on pickets and putting up broken steps. An old-fashioned rose and a few other shrubs that are so persevering as to be indestructible are the remains of a beautiful flower garden that was used for a pasture.

But I am not here to make complaint so much as to suggest reform. I do not agree with the dear sister concerning the bedding; but let the outgoing pastor's wife leave the same in good condition—at least, clean. The parsonage is our home—let us treat it as such; let us advance instead of recede. In so doing we will leave the parsonage in a better condition than we found it. A few hours in labor and even a few dollars expended in beautifying or repairing will add much to appearances and will save the incoming preacher and his family from that heart sickness that comes over one upon entering a dilapidated parsonage.

Another argument is this: If we take care of and improve the parsonage, the people will be more willing to help us. I find the greatest obstacle in obtaining contributions for the improvement of the preacher's home is the fact that things placed there are not taken care of by the preacher's family. If we will take care of that which is offered for our comfort and convenience, it won't be many years before our homes will be amply furnished, the floors carpeted, the walls papered or painted, the kitchen supplied with the modern improvements and the china closets well stocked with dishes.

Brothers and sisters, let us be more careful with the homes God provides for us.

The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE $35 WITH COUPON.

PATENTS { Feb. 24, 1891 May 17, 1891 Oct. 3, 1893 Jan. 1, 1895 Jan. 21, 1896 Others Pending.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅞-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism,—to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent. of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality, hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, I. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs:—In regard to "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

YOU OR I.

If we could know
Which of us would be first to go,
Who would be first to breast the swelling tide
And step alone upon the other side—
If we could know!

If it were you,
Should I walk coldly, keeping death in view?
Should I my love to you more oft express?
Or should I grieve you, darling, any less
If it were you?

If it were I,
Should I improve the moments slipping by,
Should I more closely follow God's great plan
Be filled with a sweeter charity to man—
If it were I?

If we could know!
We can not, darling, and 'tis better so.
I should forget, just as I do to day,
And walk along the same old stumbling way—
If I could know.

I would not know
Which of us, darling, will be first to go,
I only wish the space may not be long
Between the parting and the greeting song;
But when, or where, or how, we're called to go—
I would not know.

The Glory of Young Men.

BY THE REV. AME VENNEMA.

Those who have inherited from their parents a strong physical constitution, simply that, may well be thankful. It is worth a fortune. It is well worth taking good care of. If lost, a fortune can not restore it. Sickliness is not saintliness. Richard Baxter was a glorious saint, but his frail body did not make him so. Martin Luther was just as noble a soul, though he had muscular power sufficient to overpower any two ordinary men. Given a bright intellect and a kind heart, and their effect upon the world for good will be all the more telling for having a strong and healthy body through which they can make themselves felt. There is no glory in physical strength when, as with Sullivan or Corbett, it is prostituted to base and ignoble purposes, or merely for vain display. But when we use the members of our bodies as instruments of righteousness unto God, we may well rejoice in having them as perfect and serviceable as possible.

Brain is as useful as brawn A man must be more than a splendid animal. When his faculties are kindled with the torch of truth, and knowledge forms a halo about his head and sheds light upon his path, he has cause to rejoice. Power of mind must be acquired in youth by careful, diligent and persistent application. As the bud in the morning opens to the light of the sun and expands into a beautiful flower, so in the morning of life the budding intellect must receive the light of wisdom, and its capacity will expand, and its beauty increase. King Josiah began his great reformation in Judah at eighteen. Joseph had mounted the throne of Egypt at thirty. Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence at thirty-three, and the blessed Jesus had finished his illustrious career on earth at the same age. If a man when young has no intellectual strength, it is not likely he ever will have.

Moral strength must needs be coupled with the bright mind and the strong body in order to give them proper direction, and to insure that they shall be a blessing and not a curse. The body is like the hull of the ship; the mind the machine that propels it; but the conscience, the moral sense, is the helm that guides it. When the splendid mind plans deceit and violence, and the splendid body executes vice and crime, two of God's choicest tools have been wrested from his hand, placed in the hands of the devil, and the young man's glory is turned into his shame. The young men incarcerated in the prisons of our country may all be knaves, but they are by no means all fools. The schemes of wickedness which many of them have cunningly devised and skillfully carried out were shrewd and intricate and far reaching, and tell of more than ordinary ability. The same ingenuity and skill applied to worthy ends would have gained distinction for them. But their moral sense was seared as with a hot iron, or the keen edge of it blunted by neglect or abuse, and that is why they are there.

The young man's chief glory, however, is his spiritual strength. When you can call him moral it is greatly to his praise. When you can call him spiritual, religious, godly, you exalt him to a much higher plane. Not until he becomes spiritual does he answer to the true end of his being. Before, his best energies may have been devoted to the service of humanity, now they become consecrated to the service and glory of God. A moral character is a splendid thing to have for this world. A religious character is an essential thing to possess for the next world. What the jewel is to its setting, or the keystone to the arch, that the soul in which the love of God dwells is to all else that constitutes a true man.—Intelligencer.

Training and Teaching.

BY BESSIE M. FOSTER.

Many persons think the terms training and teaching are synonymous, but there is a wide difference in the meaning of the two words. We teach when we would impart knowledge; we train when we would give skill and ease in execution.

Our habits are all formed by training, though we may teach the child forever that those habits are pernicious, and often end in misery and ruin. We form, develop, and control a child's personal faculties and powers by training, but when we teach a child we put him in possession of something beyond what he naturally claims as his own.

We teach a child the benefits of industry, energy, and study, and we train him into habits of industry and study; but training and teaching must go hand in hand in the work of education if we would secure success in such an undertaking.

Before we feel ourselves fully capable to begin the education of a child we should understand the two terms thoroughly and know that training is the first work and must be commenced as soon as a child's emotional nature is awakened. The little one can be trained into almost any habit, and by injudicious management it may give the nurse or parent an infinite amount of trouble.

Children can be trained to a cradle or a bed, to a light or dark room, to being fed at regular intervals, and during all this process they are perfectly ignorant of the importance of system or regularity in all these things. They can be trained to cry for what they desire when they are too young to be taught the impropriety of such indulgence.

The ancient Hebrews began the training of a child almost from its birth, and Abraham and Solomon attached the highest importance to early training, as the well-known proverb of the latter will attest. The training of a child does not alter his nature, but it does control the manner of given expression to such nature. The training of a child does not give him a new and distinct character, but it does so direct and control that character as to repress and even subdue evil thoughts and passions so that there will be given to that character a new aspect and accomplish more in its establishment for good than all the teaching of the schools.

"Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." How much wholesome and wise counsel is condensed in this brief admonition, and what a blessing to the world were it universally adopted.—Baltimorean.

JUST AT THIS TIME.

A FEW VALUABLE HINTS TO THOSE WHO ARE QUICK TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF SUGGESTIONS.

Can you afford to risk your life during this Spring?

This is a question which a great many people will do well to consider just at this time.

How many people there are, just now, who complain of tired, worn-out feelings. They feel listless, languid, have headaches, backaches and continually suffer from stomach troubles. Their symptoms plainly show that their liver and kidneys are out of order. Others are sufferers from dizziness, palpitation and pains near the heart. Their blood does not circulate properly and it needs purifying. Unless these things are attended to, the first cold or chill they catch is very apt to turn into pneumonia, consumption or some other dangerous malady. Can anyone afford to run these risks?

These dangers are not exaggerated. They actually exist, they must be faced, and it is a serious matter for people who have others depending on them. Such people can not afford to be laid up with a severe illness, lose work and pay heavy doctors' bills. It is wiser to guard against the many dangers by toning up the system and putting every organ of the body in perfect condition. This is easily accomplished by the aid of Warner's Safe Cure, which for years has been recognized as the greatest and best remedy for renewing the strength and building up the health. Every doctor knows this truth. Thousands of prominent people have proved its value in their own experience. Ask them and they will tell you they always make it a practice to take Warner's Safe Cure whenever any ill health approaches. That is why they can face the most dangerous exposures without risk and always keep in perfect health. There are few people who can afford to ignore these suggestions, few who should fail to avail themselves of the valuable hints they contain.

Success.

Every man must bide his time. He must wait. More particularly in lands like my native land, where the pulse of life beats with such feverish and impatient throbs, is the lesson needful. Our national character wants the dignity of repose. We seem to live in the midst of a battle, there is such a din, such hurrying to and fro. In the streets of a crowded city it is difficult to walk slowly. You feel the rushing of the crowd, and rush with it onward In the press of our life it is difficult to be calm. In this stress of wind and tide, all professions seem to drag their anchors, and are swept out into the main. The voices of the present say, "Come." But the voices of the past say, "Wait!" With calm and solemn footsteps the rising tide bears against the rushing torrent upstream, and pushes back the hurrying waters.

With no less calm and solemn footsteps, no less certainty, does a great mind bear up against public opinion, and push back its hurrying stream. Therefore should every man wait—bide his time. Not in listless idleness, not in useless pastime, not in querulous dejection, but in constant, steady endeavors, always willing and fulfilling and accomplishing his task, that, when the occasion comes, he may be equal to the occasion. And if it never comes, what matters it? What matters it in the world whether I, or you, or another man did such a deed, or wrote such a book, so be it the deed and book be well done? It is the part of an indiscreet and troublesome ambition to care much about fame, about what the world says of us; to be always looking into the faces of others for approval; to be always anxious for the effect of what we do and say; to be always shouting to hear the echo of our own voices.—Longfellow.

How to Save Boys.

Open your blinds by day and light bright fires at night. Illuminate your rooms. Hang pictures upon your walls. Put books and newspapers upon your tables. Have music and entertaining games. Banish demons of dullness and apathy, and bring in mirth and good cheer. Invent occupations for your sons. Stimulate their ambitions in worthy directions. While you make home their delight, fill them with higher purposes than mere pleasure. Whether they shall pass boyhood and enter upon manhood with refined tastes and noble ambitions depends on you. With exertion and right means a mother may have more influence over the destiny of her boy than any other influence whatever.—Appleton's Journal.

HYGIENE.

How Bodies Effect Soul.

But it is the effect of alcohol upon the brain that works the greatest injury to the individual and to society. Dr. Fortier says: "The brain is largely composed of albumen, and this largely water. As alcohol has great affinity for water, the result of drinking the former is to harden and shrink the brain substance. . . . As to the intellectual faculties, we find that the memory becomes enfeebled, the judgment less certain and discerning, the imagination dulled, the association of ideas weakened; finally, the moral sensibility thoroughly blunted."

To the question, Is alcohol a food? he says: "Food digests, alcohol does not, but retards digestion. . . . It is well known that alcohol, after being drank, seems to raise the temperature of the body, but this is only temporary and on the surface; its real effect is to lower the animal heat several degrees.

"In brief, alcohol in the stomach paralyzes the nerves, hinders digestion, brings many disorders to the vital organs, cooks and dries up the brain so that all the moral senses are dulled, and, if persisted in, makes stolid brutes of what were once intelligent human beings."

Do you say this is putting the case too strongly? Let those who have lived in any town or city where there are licensed hotels or drinking shops, call to their mind men and boys who were once respectable members of society who have gone this downhill road until now they would hesitate to invite them to their homes and be almost ashamed to be seen speaking to them on the street.

As surely as water runs down hill, so surely does a moderate drinker descend into a drunkard.

Deep Breathing.

I have always remembered the remark of a singing school teacher under whose instruction I sat when young, says a writer on health. He was at that time a large, strong man with full chest, but in giving his pupils the advice to practice deep breathing, declared that he had been at one time a consumptive and had cured himself by deep breathing. I have followed his advice more or less and credit the health and soundness of my lungs partly to that, and no doubt my entire freedom from sickness for many years is in part due to this practice. I would not claim for deep breathing what many of its admirers do. It is not a universal panacea, but lung and heart diseases, and even dyspepia, may be greatly helped by it, not to speak of its excellence as a preventive. There are poisonous exhalations in the lower lungs which if allowed to remain must not only affect the lungs where they are, but will get into the blood and thus poison more or less the whole system. Deep breathing not only carries off this cause of malaria from the lower lungs, but supplies in its place the oxygen which the system needs for the disposition of waste matter in other parts of the body.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

PRUNE PUDDING.—One cup prunes, one-quarter box gelatine, one cup prune water, one cup sugar, one lemon, one pint cream. Wash the prunes in lukewarm water, then soak them in cold water to cover until swollen. Stew them in the same water until very tender. Drain off the syrup and strain it. Meanwhile have the gelatine soaking in a quarter cup of cold water. Put the strained water from the prunes, which should be a cupful, on the fire, and when boiling dissolve the gelatine in it. Add the sugar and lemon juice and then the prunes, having first removed the stones and cut the pulp in quarters. Turn into a wet mould and set away to harden. Serve with whipped cream.—The New England Kitchen Magazine.

VANITY PUFFS.—Boil one cup milk and thicken it with flour to a stiff dough. Set away to cool; then add three unbeaten eggs, one at a time, and one tablespoonful butter melted. Drop small spoonfuls into hot fat, and when fried brown drain and roll them in a mixture of sugar and cinnamon.—Exchange.

I envy no man that knows more than myself, but pity them that know less—Sir T. Browne.

THOMPSON—LENOY POPE THOMPSON was born in Orange county, N. C., in January, 1822, and died of pneumonia, after an illness of eight days, at his home near Cantoo, Miss., on Feb. 10, 1896. This was the end of an active, useful and successful life of seventy-four years. His parents moved from North Carolina to Madison county, Miss., when he was four years of age, where he spent the remaining seventy years of his life in the enjoyment to any unusual degree of the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. He was recognized by all as a man of generous, noble impulses and of unimpeachable integrity.

Mr. Thompson was married on December 16, 1847, to Miss Martha C. Davis, who in great grief survives him. To their happy union eight children were born. Two of these preceded their father to the realms of bliss above the skies. Those still living are members of the M. E. Church, South, after the righteous example of their pious parents. His eldest son was elected steward in his stead—a position he had filled, zealously and successfully, for many years.

As a husband and father, Mr. Thompson was almost without an equal for tender love and generous attention. He seemed perfectly oblivious to his own comfort, so absorbing was his thought for the happiness of his wife and children. His great love for his family bound every heart in the home circle to him as with hooks of steel. In a thousand tender ministries was this great love expressed for him during his last illness. The death scene was inexpressibly pathetic. The wife and daughters stood by his side, tenderly held his hands and tearfully watched every feature of his face until he drew his last breath, and death fixed a period to the awful agony.

Mr. Thompson believed in the universal brotherhood of mankind. His sympathy and love for men were great. He was always ready to visit the sick, help the poor and administer comfort to the distressed. Like his Savior, "he went about doing good." His goodness of soul and many virtues of personal character won for him a host of warm friends. He had no enemies. He seemed absolutely incapable of any mean act or word that would wound even the most sensitive soul. The immense concourse of people that gathered on his funeral occasion came from many miles around, glad to honor his memory and attest their appreciation of his noble life. All felt that in his death they had lost a true personal friend.

Mr. Thompson joined the Methodist Church in robust young manhood, and spent his life in its communion. He knew and loved the doctrines of his church. He was a Christian of the genuine Methodist type. He was unostentatious in his religious life, but was deeply spiritual. He loved God, and he loved all of God's people. He greatly loved ministers of the gospel. His home was always open to them. They never came too often nor stayed too long. His hospitality was unstint. Pleasant memories of restful visits to his splendid home will come to all of his former pastors as they read these lines. He was prepared to meet his God. He told the writer but a few hours before he died that it was all right with his soul. His end was peace.

T. W. ADAMS.

THOMPSON—Mrs. MARGARET MALVINA THOMPSON (nee Meeks) was born in Wilcox county, Ala., Feb. 16, 1828, and died in Lawrence county, Miss., March 5, 1896.

In early girlhood she removed from Alabama to Jasper county, Miss., where, on the 24th of December, 1846, she was united in marriage to Robert K. Thompson, who survives her. This union was blessed with ten children—six sons and four daughters—all of whom have grown up to the estate of noble and useful manhood and womanhood. One of these (Rev. Geo. H.) is a useful member of the Mississippi Conference.

Sister Thompson was converted and united with the Methodist Church in early life. Her long life of service in the Master's vineyard was characterized by her humble trust in Christ and true devotion to duty. She loved the church, and adhered with unshaken loyalty to its teachings, and attended with marked fidelity upon its ordinances. She was a preacher's friend. Many a weary itinerant found in her home a cheerful welcome and a royal hospitality.

As a Christian, she was earnest and active, strewing life's pathway with good deeds which now shed a twilight lustre around her memory.

As a wife, she was "an helpmeet" indeed, walking hand in hand with her now grief-stricken companion, and sharing alike with him successes and failures, sunshine and shadows, joys and sorrows, of nearly half a century of wedded life. This happy union is broken at last—the wife is called away, the husband is left lingering on the border-land, sighing, longing for the Master's summons to join her on the other shore.

As a mother, she was all this blessed word denotes. True to her children, she "trained them up in the way they should go," and in mature years "they have not departed from it." Truly, "her children shall rise up and call her blessed."

For several years she was a great sufferer, but was patient and submissive in it all. It was a benediction to me to converse with her about God's ways, to quote passages of God's Word to her, and see how sweetly she fed upon his precious promises. She often expressed her willingness to depart and be with Christ."

For several days previous to her death it seemed evident that the end was near. The children were summoned to her bedside, and on the evening of March 5, surrounded by loved ones, she sweetly closed her eyes to earthly tears and pains, to open them to heavenly light and glory.

Surrounded by a large concourse of mourning friends and weeping relatives, we laid her body away in the Bethel Cemetery, of which church she may be called the mother.

Farewell, dear sister, but not forever; "we will meet one another again."

May God's grace be sufficient for the aged husband and bereaved children!

PAUL D. HARDIN, Pastor.

KIDD—Whereas, The grim monster, Death, has again invaded the sacred precincts of our Sunday-school circle and borne away one of our most valued members and active co-workers, Bro. LEROY M. KIDD; And, whereas, The death of our lamented brother has created a vacuum in our ranks that will be hard to fill; and the loss of his valued services and wise counsel is a most deplorable misfortune to our school, and a circumstance which overwhelms us with sorrow and calls for this humble tribute to his honored memory; therefore, be it Resolved, By the Sunday-school of the M. E. Church, South, of Ruston, La., that with due reverence for the infinite wisdom and goodness and justice of our heavenly Father, we deplore the untimely demise of our be loved brother; and we are painfully conscious of the fact that in his death our school has lost one of its strongest pillars, and the great Sunday-school work one of its ablest friends and supporters; and we are loth to look around us and enquire, "Is there another in our midst who can take his place?" Wise in counsel, conservative in judgment, and deliberate and mature in his conclusions, he was a safe guide and leader; and his many noble qualities of heart and mind rendered him an indispensable factor in our Sunday-school work.

Resolved, That in his unflinching discharge of duty, and his cheerful willingness to do the Master's work whenever and wherever called, he exemplified one of the most beautiful traits of Christian character, one the most difficult of attainment in the Christian's experience; and in this he left us an example worthy of our most sacred regard and emulation, and conclusive proof of his complete subserviency to the Master's will.

Resolved, That we bear with humility and resignation the painful bereavement we have sustained in the death of Bro. Kidd, and bow in humble submission to God's will in this sad affliction, knowing that he doeth all things well, and doeth nothing without a wise and beneficent purpose.

S. D. PEARCE, for Com.

NESOM—GEORGE W. NESOM was born in St. Helena parish, La., Jan. 27, 1847, and moved to Livingston parish about 1874, in which he lived until removed by death, Dec. 20, 1895. He embraced religion and joined the M. E. church, South, June 28, 1883, of which he was a consistent member until death. His father died, leaving a widow and several small children in his care, before he was grown. He took such fatherly care of his mother, brothers and sisters that he was the pride of his mother's heart. On March 21, 1875, he was married to Miss Lizzie Bell Turner, which union was broken by his death. They had ten children, all living except one little girl, who died about ten years ago, soon after he joined the church. He was elected steward, which office he filled well the remainder of his life. He was the preacher's friend, always ready to do his part in any church enterprise that was undertaken in his community, always ready to do deeds of charity. He was elected a delegate to the last Annual Conference, but could not attend on account of his illness—much to his regret.

In his dying hour, when his wife, children and loved ones were weeping over him, he told them not to weep for him—that he was never as happy in his life.

Truly, a good man has gone to his reward. May the blessings of God rest upon his widow and orphans, and may they all meet him where parting will be no more!

Cod-liver oil is something more than a fat. Its peculiar action depends on a number of substances, among which might be mentioned iodine and phosphorus. There can be no substitute for cod-liver oil, because there is no other oil known which has in natural combination with it such a large number of valuable medicinal agents.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with the hypophosphites contains the whole oil, with its natural properties, and in a thoroughly emulsified or digested condition. The hypophosphites increase the appetite and impart strength to the nervous system. This combination has marked curative properties in a number of diseases of the skin and scalp, to which scrofulous persons are peculiarly liable. Such diseases as chronic eczema, ringworm, and other skin affections, are often quickly cured by the constitutional effects following the use of Scott's Emulsion.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Cases of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D.D., Brooklyn, New York, in the "New York Evangelist:" "Of all Bibles yet issued in our country, the most superb in execution and completeness of contents is the 'Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teacher's Bible.' Sabbath-school teachers will find this elegant volume a little library of information in itself."

REV. ALVAH HOVEY, D. D., President of and Professor in, the Baptist Theological Seminary, Newton Centre, Mass.: "It pleases me very greatly. I regard the help which it affords to a correct pronunciation of Scripture proper names as doubling the value of the edition. I trust the book will be received as it deserves to be."

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1 75; Bourgeois Type, $2 45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1 65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to April, 97. (A little later it will be May, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1 25, $1.75 and $2 45.

THE DICTIONARY OF THE BIBLE.

Contains 1024 large octavo pages printed on excellent paper, is finely illustrated, and handsomely and strongly bound in cloth, measuring 9¼x6¼x2 inches.

It contains every name in the Bible and Apochrypa, of which anything can be said. It gives an account of each of the Books of the Bible; it explains the civil and religious institutions, the manners and customs of the Jews, as well as of the various nations mentioned or alluded to in the Scriptures, while many of the longer articles, being the results of the most finished scholarship, are complete treatises in themselves, and worthy of separate publication.

It embraces the results of the most successful and approved Biblical labors and researches, including those of Layard, Rawlinson and others condensed for wide and common use, and constituting an indispensable aid to Ministers, Teachers, Families, Sunday-School Superintendents, and Bible readers generally.

This is undoubtedly the best work of its kind in the English language, and has no rival in importance for the elucidation of the scenes and facts of Scripture.

The publisher's price of the above work is $4.50. We will send it to any address on receipt of price, or we will send it free to any person who will send us two new cash subscribers at the regular rate.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

REV. W. C. BLACK, 512 Camp St., New Orleans.

THE LIFE AND EPISTLES OF SAINT PAUL

By the Rev. W. J. CONYBEARE, M. A., Late Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge; and the Rev. J. S. Howson, D. D., Principal of the Collegiate Institution, Liverpool.

Contains 1014 large octavo pages, many fine illustrations, maps, charts, etc., is printed on the same quality of paper and is the same in size as Smith's Dictionary of the Bible and bound in uniform style.

It eloquently portrays the early Life, education, conversion, teachings, labors, travels, sufferings, perils, persecutions, and missionary career of St. Paul, thus constituting a Living Picture of the great Apostle himself and of the circumstances by which he was surrounded.

The work also embodies the results of a profound and appreciative study of the true inner life of St. Paul exhibited in his letters which delineate the motives which impelled, and the faith which sustained him in all the troubles and sorrows of his twenty year's conflict, and from which we learn what is told of Paul by Paul himself, and which will continue to live upon the lips and in the hearts of all the faithful until the final consummation of all things.

It is NOT an ABRIDGEMENT but an EXACT RE-PRINT of the greatly improved "People's Edition," prepared with much care and labor, in pursuance of an original plan of both writers, "for a wider circle of readers," and differs from all other editions by the SUBSTITUTION OF ENGLISH for the Greek, Latin and German quotations.

Dr. Howson in his preface to this edition says,—"Those readers have, throughout, been kept in view who, though well educated, would not find it easy to refer to Greek or German books." "The text (he also says) is unaltered, with the exception of a slight verbal change suggested in the course of a thorough re perusal."

The publisher's price of the above book is $4.50. We will send it free of charge to any person who will send us two new subscribers with the cash—$4 00. We will also send it to any address at the publisher's price.

We will also send it free of charge to any subscriber who will pay his own subscription at the regular rate—$2—to January, '98, and also send us one new cash subscriber.

The mayor of Omaha vetoed the curfew ordinance, but the council has passed it over his head, and it will ring. The community, as a whole, does not like it.

The negro exodus to Liberia seems to be assuming considerable proportions. One hundred and fifty negroes, from Arkansas and Oklahoma, passed through Memphis recently for Savannah, where there were to take ship for Liberia.

The Democratic convention of Madison county Mo., passed a resolution congratulating the President on his success as a duck hunter, and regretting that he had not paid exclusive attention to that, instead of dickering with bond syndicates.

It is proposed to put a check on the wandering musicians of the hand-organ variety in Washington City by imposing a big license, which must be taken out in June for a whole year, and fining him for playing within two blocks of a church, a hospital or a sick person.

The House bill requiring a residence of a year in suits for divorce in the Territories received the favorable indorsement of the Senate Committee on Territories on April 3. The committee amended the bill so as to provide that it shall not affect suits already begun.

The officials of the A. P. A. in Washington are indignant at Secretary Herbert's order that warships should be painted green, instead of white, and declare that it is a bid for the favor of the Irish Catholics, especially as the order was signed on St. Patrick's day The order is based on the fact that a green vessel is difficult to see any distance at sea.

FOREIGN.

An order has been issued in Austria allowing women, who hold foreign medical diplomas, to practice medicine in the empire.

It is said that Gen. Maceo, of the insurgant army in Cuba, attacked Pinar del Rio, a Spanish stronghold, and captured it, together with much ammunition.

Lord Chief Justice Russell, of England, it is said, intends to visit the United States this Summer to attend the conference of jurists which will meet at Saratoga.

From recent letters from Eastern Turkey, it appears that the condition of the destitute in that section is most deplorable, in spite of the relief work which has been done there.

A terrible fire has occurred at Manila, in the Philippine Islands, by which 4,000 houses were destroyed and 30,000 people left homeless. Manila is the capital of the Philippine Islands, and has a population of 100,000, or, with the suburbs, 160,000.

It is said that General Weyler's way of suppressing the rebellion in Cuba is to exterminate the Cuban men, women and children. It is said that incendiva Cubans are shot to death for amusement, and to remove possible recruits to the insurgant ranks.

In a recent message to his Congress, President Diaz, of Mexico, strongly praised President Cleveland's course in the Venezuelan controversy, as well as the exposition of the meaning of the Monroe doctrine which was set forth in the celebrated message of December last.

A new company has taken charge of the affairs of the Panama Canel, and it is managed by a Board composed of fifteen representatives of the most important financial houses of Paris. The new company is already at work to preserve and restore to usefulness that part of the canal which was completed

Although the Bourgeois Ministry succeeded in weathering the storm in the French Chamber of Deputies, and even coming off with flying colors, it has met with a reverse in the Senate. On April 3 the Senate insisted on questioning the government on the Egyptian question, and, when M. Bourgeois refused to reply, a vote of censure was passed by a large majority.

The Duke of Argyl, president of the Armenian relief fund, and the Duke of Westminster, chairman of the Executive Committee, have issued a circular appealing for relief funds for Armenia which pays a tribute to the work of American missionaries, who, it says, bravely have undertaken the work in the face of many difficulties and much discouragement, and are wisely distributing relief from nineteen depots.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to April, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

BUSINESS NOTICES.

For Over Fifty Years

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

BY REV. HENRY H. ARENDS.

Theme for Prayer Meeting.

THE SCRIPTURES AS A DEFENSE.

In our three lessons Christ is represented as successfully battling against three foes: the devil, tradition, death.

1. Thrice did Christ put Satan hors de combat by quoting Scripture, each time prefacing the same with: "It is written."

(1) If you are tempted to acquire wealth by dishonest means, say, "It is written: thou shalt not steal.

(2) If you are tempted to acquire renown, fame, at the expense of truth say, It is written: thou shalt not lie.

(3) If tempted to yield to sinful pleasures, say, It is written: "love not the world," &c.

2. The Pharisees complained to Christ that he permitted his disciples to act contrary to the traditions of the elders. He replied that the law of God only is binding on man's conscience. To obey the elders in every respect God had not enjoined.

(1) Much contention in our day about the views of different elders on certain subjects. If properly informed we have the right, and it is our duty to have an opinion of our own. Man worship, even if said men be elders, is wrong.

(2) The elders whom many revere, while we agree with them in many respects, held some views ludicrously absurd.

(3) Man is fallible. His emotional nature and prejudice frequently enter in formulating conclusions. The best of men have erred. May err. Hence not any man, but the Word of God alone, is our rule of life.

3. The last enemy, says St. Paul, is death. Christ had to encounter him. The contest was fierce. Death's weapon of attack, his sting, was to be demolished. Will he succeed? Hear the dying Conqueror: "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."

(1) The best of us turn away from death. Though to die is gain, all a man hath will he give for his life. It is mostly separation from loved ones which gives death a grim visage.

(2) Death. The soul ejected by the body, or vice versa, the soul, tired of its home of cumbrous clay, emigrates. Death's cold flood. A narrow stream. Crossing the Rubicon. How great the change! The body cold, stiff, lifeless.

(3) The desire of all should be to meet death as did Christ. He said: "Father." Are we his children? Consigned his spirit to his Father's safekeeping. Kept by him, we need fear no evil, though we walk through the dark valley and shadow of death.

(4) Christ's victorious death has ennobled the grave. We think not of putrefaction, but plant flowers and evergreen on the grave.

"Since Jesus hath lain there,
I mind not its gloom."

FOR ALLAYING HOARSENESS AND IRRITATION OF THE THROAT, use Brown's Bronchial Troches." 25c. a box. Avoid imitations.

The British-Egyptian expedition up the Nile, for the purpose of reconquering the Soudan, and incidentally helping the Italians, has very naturally reopened the question of the British occupation of Egypt. It is clear to everybody outside of France that the Soudan expedition, should it prove successful, will afford an excuse for the indefinite prolongation of the British occupation of the land of the Pharaohs.

What a Woman Can Do.

Last week I cleared after paying all expenses, $355.85; the month previous, $260, and have at the same time attended to other duties. I believe any energetic person can do equally as well, as I have had very little experience. The Dish Washer is just lovely and every family wants one, which makes selling very easy. I do no canvassing. People hear about the Dish Washer and come or send for one. It is strange that a good, cheap Dish Washer has never before been put on the market. The Mound City Dish Washer fills this bill. With it you can wash and dry the dishes for a family of ten in two minutes without wetting your hands. As soon as people see the Washer work they want one. You can make more money and make it quicker than with any household article on the market. I feel convinced that any lady or gentleman can make from $10 to $14 per day around home. You can get full particulars by addressing, THE MOUND CITY DISH WASHER Co., St. Louis, Mo. They help you get started, then you can make money awful fast. A. L. C.

MUL EN-OL—Nature's Great Healer and Pain Destroyer. Often is it that lives are lost, that might have been saved by the timely use of MUL-EN-OL.

MUL EN-OL is the greatest of all antiseptic dressings. Is a sovereign remedy for healing flesh wounds on man or beast.

MUL EN-OL is pre-eminently a Mother's Remedy, a reliable panacea for all the ills and pains of childhood.

MARRIAGES.

SMART—FORSHEE.—At the residence of Mr. H. G. Goodwyn, Colfax, La., April 2, 1896, by Rev. J. L. Hoffman, Mr. J. F. Smart, Jr., of Leesville, La., to Mrs. Lulu G. Forshee, of New Orleans, La.

WEEMS—COLEMAN.—At the residence of Mr. W. W. Ellis, near Walnut Grove, Miss., April 1, 1896, by Rev. Irvin Miller, Mr. Charley Weems, of Fannin, Miss., to Miss M. C. Coleman.

DEAN—STRONG.—At the residence of the bride's father, Mr. J. W. Strong, Feb. 25, 1896, by Rev. W. M. Stevens, Mr. W. E Dean to Miss Lillie Mary Strong, both of Carpenter, Miss.

MULLENS—BOBO.—At the residence of Mrs. Bobo, Lyon, Miss., March 18, 1896, by Rev. J. J. Brooks, Mr. E. J. Mullens to Miss Clara Bobo, all of Coahoma county, Miss.

LEWIS—COTTON.—At the Methodist Church, Carthage, Miss., April 2, 1896, by Rev. B. F. Lewis, Rev. W. H. Lewis of the St. Louis Conference, to Miss Ruth Cotton, of Carthage, Miss.

A pronounced success for cure of cold and bronchitis.—Mrs. L'asie M. Meers, North Evanston, Ills., writes: "We have used Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for every cold we have had; we are also subject to bronchitis in very cold weather, and it has been successful in all cases."

On April 6 the House of Representatives, after more than a week of "jingo" oratory, which emulated the proceedings of the Senate several weeks ago, finally adopted the Conference Committee's report on the Cuban belligerency resolutions. The resolutions recognize the fact that a state of war exists in Cuba and declare that both sides to the conflict should receive equal and impartial treatment in the ports and within the territory of the United States. They also request the President to use his good offices with the Spanish government to secure the consent of that government to the independence of Cuba.

Mr. Francis Treas, Northumberland, Penna., thinks it a good remedy for rheumatism. He writes: "I have been using your liniment called Salvation Oil for rheumatism and find it gives me great relief. It is a good remedy."

RAW ECZEMA NO REST NO SLEEP DAY OR NIGHT

zema, and between my fingers the skin was perfectly raw. I had to sit with both hands held up, and away from the fire. My husband had to dress and undress me like a baby. I tried the best physicians, but their medicines gave me no relief, and drove me almost crazy. I was advised to try CUTICURA REMEDIES, and did so, although my husband had to go twenty miles to get them. As soon as he got back, I used the CUTICURA, and in five minutes after the first application I was perfectly easy, and slept soundly all that night. Before I commenced using the CUTICURA REMEDIES I could get no ease night or day. I could not bear to get warm, it would put me in a rage of itching. I always keep the CUTICURA REMEDIES in my house now, and recommend them to everybody, because of their wonderful effect. Yours gratefully, AGNES M. HARRIS, Push, Mecklenburg Co. Va

HOMEWARD COME.

Hast thou wandered far
From thy Father's happy home,
With thyself and God at war?
Turn thee, brother, homeward come.

Hast thou wasted all the powers
God for noble uses gave?
Squandered life's most golden hours?
Turn thee, brother; God can save.

He can heal thy bitterest wound,
He thy gentlest prayer can bear;
Seek him, for he may be found;
Call upon him, he is near.

What Are Evidences of Spirituality?

If I am not mistaken, many persons might be greatly profited by pondering deeply the above question. Some good people have a very gross view of, and give a gross and misleading answer to, this question. They have an idea that spirituality is big-mouthed and loud-voiced, and always expresses itself in vociferous terms. This is not true. Some of the most spiritually minded men and women the world has ever known have been the most quiet and unobtrusive in the profession and expression of their religious joys and sorrows. They "dwell in the secret places of the Almighty" without making any great public ado about it. Other good people make a constant and continued "joyful noise before God." Some give the noisy saint great credit for deep spirituality, while the quiet saint is said to be a good man or woman, but not so spiritually minded as the other. We should not "judge the Lord by feeble sense," nor saints by loud sounds. The quiet man or woman may not, on that account, have any the less, nor the loud saint any the more, religion. This difference is not in the amount—more or less—of religion each may have, but it comes of the constitutional temperaments of the individuals. Both may be in the same state of grace, and that the highest possible to be attained, or obtained, in this life, and one expresses it in one way, and the other in another way. Grace has not changed—has never meant to change—the constitutional temperaments of individuals. In the kingdom of God men and women were expected to retain their individuality, identity, personality. The grace of God neither masses nor merges men and women into one individual. They are as separate and distinct in all the essential elements of personality after regeneration and sanctification as they were before. In being born of God, they do not cease to be the sons and daughters of men. This fact should be kept steadily in view in all our estimates of men and women, of their spirituality or lack of spirituality. A correct psychology and a true theology are never in conflict—indeed, truth is never in conflict with itself.

Shouting is not religion, and silence is not religion, and yet religion may express itself in both silence and shouting. I am sure it is as worshipful at times to "keep silent before God" as it is to make a "joyful noise before him" at other times. Indeed, the higher states are often better expressed by silence than in words. Communion with God in the silent watches of the night is as spiritual as the loudest praise in the open light of day. The state of the heart—the inner, spiritual man—is infinitely more important than any vocal expression. One may groan in spirit or shout in spirit without making any vocal or audible sound. There is a soul sorrow so deep that it can not be expressed to God only by groaning in the spirit, and there are religious states so exalted that it is not lawful to utter them. Many Christians, who consider themselves far advanced in the divine life, have never been in these depths of sorrow, nor have they gone up on these mountain peaks that overlook the third heaven. They have never touched the deep silence of the one, nor the expressionless joy of the other. The highest states of the divine life, of Christian experience, are voiceless. They are too high and holy to take form in human words; an attempt to express them is profane. The higher and sweeter communion of the human soul with God is too sacred for expression in human words.

When I was a boy I was deeply, profoundly impressed by the caution of Mr. Wesley in regard to using the terms of human endearment in our addresses to God. They are too human, often too amorous, for use in worship; yet some clever people are so gross as to think the constant use of these terms an evidence of deep spirituality. "Dear Lord," "sweet Jesus," "loving Savior," "gentle Lamb," "Mary's darling," and like expressions, rob religion of all its spirituality when I fall down before God to pray. These expressions are suited to the home and to the nursery, but not in the worship of God at the throne of grace. They tend to lower and degrade the spirit and character of worship. Exalted states demand exalted expressions—the best and highest of which the individual worshiper is capable. In every case it is best to apply no qualifying words to God and Christ that have not the sanction of Scripture. Mr. Wesley was right on this subject. Religion rapidly runs to seed in the use of adjectives.

In some places, and among some people, there is a growing tendency to give expression to the higher religious feelings in these lower forms of expression. This is to be regretted, even to be deplored. It bodes no good to the cause of Christ, none to human souls. We may love the Savior, but we need not fondle and pet him as if he were a sweetheart or a baby. This is to degrade worship and to lower our Lord in the minds of all right-thinking people. It tends to destroy genuine spirituality in the minds of those who indulge in it. If words are the signs of ideas, what low, animal, sensual views some people must have of God, of Christ, and of spirituality in religion. The Bible is brim-full of expletives applicable to God, to Christ, to sorrow, and to religious joy. We need to study its pages, to become saturated with the mind of the Spirit, and then we will find suitable and lofty expressions for all our religious sorrows and joys. These will tend to elevate and refine our religious sentiments and our spiritual worship. Sentimentality and spirituality are two entirely different things. Don't forget this.

GILDEROY.

In the Living Present.

Dr. James H. Riggs, the celebrated Wesleyan preacher in London, suffers from indiscretion. In 1888 he wrote a private letter to Cardinal Manning, commending that prelate's views on the school question, at the same time speaking rather disparagingly of denominational colleagues who differed with him. Now, in the biography of that dead prelate said letter is made public. Consternation manifest. Already Dr. Riggs resigned his position as General Educational Secretary of the Wesleyan Conference. Moral: Never say in a private letter what you would not be willing to let everybody know.

H. H. Holmes confesses to have murdered twenty-seven persons. He had studied medicine for the sole purpose of exterminating human life more scientifically. Ordinary murder had been revolting to his feeling. He had become an expert in his gruesome avocation. Had designed to kill six other persons when apprehended. Says that after two years of confinement his features express his diabolical disposition. Having composed a full autobiography, the New York World has offered seven thousand five hundred dollars for same. The monster will be hanged in May.

In June, Tennessee will celebrate the centennial of its Statehood. The governors of all the States of our Union are expected to be present. Preparation elaborate. The exposition which is to commemorate the event has been postponed to next year.

American heiresses made large sacrifices to the empty bubble of European nobility. Their title has cost them millions of dollars, not to mention shattered hope and blighted prospect. But now some one of the remaining rich maidens has a chance to become a real queen. Milan, the gay, sportive, fat and bankrupt ex-King of Servia, is seeking an heiress as a wife for his impecunious son, Alexander, his successor. True, father and son owe individually only about five hundred million dollars. The American heiress could readily pay that amount for the title of queen.

As a rule, ministers attain to a good old age. No other vocation has such a good record of longevity as the holy ministry. Of seventy-eight ministers who died last year, the average age was sixty-nine years.

Homeopathy, generally, opposes vaccination. Though, the latter is on the principle of like curing—preventing—like. On the fourteenth of May it will be one hundred years since Dr. Jenner first administered vaccination. Berlin will appropriately celebrate this centennial. The Africans are specially predisposed to be afflicted with small-pox. The negro cook, washwoman, house-servant, etc., spending the night in the squalor of their home, spread the disease among the Caucasians.

Ella W. Winston, in the Forum for April, exposes the new woman in a light not at all enviable. She says: "Yes, men are bad: worse than women. But who trained these bad men? Was it not woman?" Yes, as a rule, men are what their mothers make them.

About the Epworth League.

[The following is an extract from the address delivered by Dr. R. N. Burns, of Canada, at the International Epworth League Conference at Chattanooga. It was stenographically reported by Miss Alma Sawtelle, of this city.—EDITOR.]

Now, just a word or two as to the glorious possibilities in the future. One result I notice to-day "over the line" in our own Methodism is a more intelligent love for the church of their choice. I have respect for fathers' and mothers' influence in forming that attachment for church; but I have been anxious that our young Methodists get hold, with an intelligent grapple, of the splendid possibilities as well as the glorious history of the church we belong to, and go forth with a more intelligent understanding.

I believe (and I should not be what I am if I did not believe) that Methodism has a mission, standing, as she does, for the doctrines of scriptural holiness, direct witness of the Spirit, etc. These great truths are her mission largely, and I believe firmly in that mission, and I want our young people to become attached intelligently to the church of their choice in this Epworth League. I believe there will result from this Epworth League work a brighter and better intellectual culture, with a moral tone of coloring. I rejoice that our young people are learning to sink deeper shafts into the old Bible. I want to say a word about the truer and better social life that is coming. It used to be that our young people, sometimes, kept teasing their consciences and their pastors about such questions as dancing, etc.; but since the advent of the League they are getting too busy for social gymnastics, and are getting too busy to want anything but actual Christian work to engage their attention. There is the study of this great question of universal brotherhood in all the relationships of life, and I feel that it is the solution of this tremendous social trouble, and the solution must come on voluntary lines to have any validity and solidity in it; and, therefore, I am hopeful, because I see our young people confronting the question with a more intelligent understanding of it.

Just a word about one of the most hopeful things to me that I notice in this movement—a spirit of aggressive Christian effort. I don't know how you feel, but I have gotten about tired of this "Hold-the-Fort" sort of religion. People will look over the year, and say, "We have made enough progress to make up for the dead," and not getting much ahead. I feel more and more that we must keep pace with the growing population, and keep pace with the golden opportunities that come to us, as God places these great responsibilities upon us. I rejoice in the progressive spirit that is getting hold of our young people and carrying us onward. Here are these great social and moral wrongs. Thank God our young people are facing them, and are bound to down them. We believe our young people are going forward to a truer citizenship, and to the winning of this world to the Lord's cause and his kingdom.

Wise Words.

The following is a brief extract from Judge Fewell's charge to the grand jury in Meridian in regard to illicit liquor selling:

Gentlemen of the grand jury, the violation of these laws is in itself and by itself, and in its proximate and immediate consequences, an evil of great magnitude. In many of these infamous dens boys, young men and middle-aged and old men are robbed of their senses and their families deprived of subsistence. Health is destroyed, the constitution, moral and physical, is broken down. The vile stuff that is there sold is a poison the more deadly because it is subtle and unrecognized as such. The moral character of the community is debauched: its moral tone is destroyed. But these immediate evils, great as they are, are nothing to be compared with the resultant evils. The violation of any law lessens the people's respect for the law. Immunity from punishment for one crime is invitation to the commission of other crimes. There is one result that naturally flows from this poisoned spring that is appalling in its character and ruinous in its consequences—the great and dangerous crime, perjury.

I am told that openly and notoriously as this nefarious traffic is carried on, it is difficult to find men who will give testimony against the violators of this law. What! Tell me that among the multitudes of people who visit and drink at these places none can be found who will swear to the truth? If this be true, then, indeed, has this evil so fastened its fangs upon the community that all decency is dead and crime triumphant. But I will not believe this: I know that it is not true. I am well aware that the people who engage in this traffic and their friends have diligently tried to create a public sentiment against men who "give away" to the courts the perpetrators of these offenses. But no man having a grain of sense ought to believe that any such sentiment exists except among those who hope to profit by it, and no man of self-respect would for a moment listen to the infamous suggestion that he ought to commit so vile and so soul-destroying a crime as perjury for the benefit of these people. What reason is there, what palliation can there be of such conduct? It is made for the purpose of making money, and there is not an atom of anything in the transaction which should put a man under any—the slightest—obligation of secrecy.

Do you tell me that if I go into a secret saloon and there pay my money and buy and drink liquor that I am under any obligation to commit perjury, to screen the seller from punishment; that I am to do that which will destroy my self-respect and cause me to shrink from and despise myself and subject myself to punishment for felony? And yet these men have for their own protection sought to establish, and have in some measure established a false code of honor which would make a man damn himself with perjury. Out upon such an idea! It is monstrous! Imagine a man reproached by one of these criminals for telling the truth and imagine what answer that criminal could make to the question: "Did you expect me to commit perjury for your sake? Did you expect me to stain my soul and violate the laws of God and man for your benefit?"

That there are a few misguided men who have yielded to this false and base code thus sought to be set up, I believe, but I never can and never will believe that any considerable number of my fellow-citizens have become so lost to honor and so unmindful of their duties as men and citizens as to adopt any such code. I shall expect every man who may be called before the grand jury and before the petty juries to tell all he knows of violations of the law; let me warn every man who may so forget his self-respect and his duty as to commit perjury, that pains will be taken to detect him and to expose his crime and punish him for its inexcusable commission: and let me further give warning that this court will show no mercy to such men. Witnesses had better tell "the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth," as they are sworn to do before God and their fellow-man. All the power, great as it is, of this tribunal will be brought to bear to stamp out this monstrous evil of false swearing. Look at the situation here, and be ashamed of it! We want this city to grow and prosper—who will invest money in any enterprise? Who can be expected to establish his residence and raise his children in a town where the law is thus daily and hourly violated?—violated until it is become a "byword and reproach."

We differ from savages mainly in the maintenance of law and public order and the resulting protection of life and liberty and property. If law be not longer maintained; if it be a dead letter; if there be no public order, then we are in a savage state and had as well abolish the courts and dispense with the useless services of policemen and all other officials whose duty it is to preserve order and protect life and property.

Perjury is not the only crime that illegal dram-selling has bred. Within the last several months there have been two persons assassinated in cold blood in this city. There is good reason to believe that illegal whisky selling was the cause of both of these murders. The police officers have not found, or, at least, have not produced these murderers.

I have been told that men are afraid to arrest or testify against the murderers—afraid that they will fall under their displeasure and mayhap be assassinated for their pains. It is out of this state of things—so destructive of the interests and welfare of every class—that one of the city papers has felt called upon to warn the wretches who thus terrorize the community that if the arm of the law shall be found inadequate to punish them, the people will take the matter in hand and apply to Judge Lynch for redress. See another evil thus incubating under the monster animal whose progeny embraces every beast of prey—lynch law; the lawless rage of the mob; the last resort of a people driven to desperation. I threaten not these people with mob law; I threaten them with the law of the land.

I simply warn the people who do not aid the courts of justice in putting down crime of a result which their supineness may lead to: mob law will assume its horrible sway.

Many years ago the town of Vicksburg was beset with gamblers and other kindred criminals; the law was appealed to in vain—the hardened wretches scoffed at the law and defied public opinion. The good people were at last driven to desperation, and they rose in their might and with bloody and relentless hands purged their city of these wretches by lynching a number of them. I say, again, don't misunderstand me; I am not encouraging or threatening mob law; I am simply telling the good people here assembled that if they do not aid the courts in putting down these crimes the worst of all evils may come, viz.: Another uprising such as we had here some twenty-odd years ago, a thing to be dreaded by every good citizen. The way to avoid such unfortunate occurrences is to enforce the law through and in the courts.

It is immaterial whether one believes in prohibition or anti-prohibition. It is not for any man to say that any law ought not to be enforced. The constituted authorities have established these laws, and require their rigid enforcement. Any good citizen will yield his own opinion to the law, and know that his greatest safety and happiness lie in the enforcement of the law. These laws are good and wise laws; but if they were bad laws, it is better that they should be enforced than that respect for the law generally should be weakened by their non-enforcement.

Respect for the law can not be maintained if any man can be allowed to violate any law with impunity; and no community can prosper morally, financially, or otherwise, unless that community respects and obeys the law.

Indolence in the Christian Life.

Indolence in the Christian life destroys our own hope of heaven. The lazy man is at bottom a bad man, in the church or out of it. God can not tolerate him in his kingdom here or hereafter. The redeemed in heaven serve him day and night. We can hope to enter on that service only as we are active here. A teacher of one of our Freedmen's schools told me that one day as she sat at her window she saw two negroes loading a cart. One of them was disposed to shirk. The other stopped, and looking sharply at his lazy companion, said: "Sam, do you expect to go to heaven?" "Yes," was the reply. "Then take hold and lift," said the other. There was profound philosophy in that remark. There are scores of Christians in our churches who expect to go to heaven, who would greatly increase their chances of going there by taking hold and lifting some of the burdens which they are letting their brethren bear alone. And that, I believe, is the only cure for the sloth to which we are all liable, to take hold of God's work with the little strength we have, and with God's blessing the exercise will increase our strength manifold, and by-and-by overcome the drowsiness of sin.

I have lately heard of a man who took passage in a stage coach. There were first, second, and third-class passengers. But when he looked into the coach he saw all the passengers sitting together without distinction. He could not understand it till by-and-by they came to a hill and the coach stopped, and the driver called out: "First-class passengers keep their seats, second-class passengers get out and walk, third-class passengers get out and push." Now, in the church we have no room for first-class passengers—people who think that salvation means an easy ride all the way to heaven. We have no room for second-class passengers—people who are carried most of the time, and who, when they must work out their own salvation, go trudging on, giving never a thought to helping their fellows along. All church members ought to be third-class passengers—people who, whenever there is need, are ready to dismount and push all together, and push with a will. That was John Wesley's definition of a church, you know. "All at it, and always at it." And that is a true definition. Every Christian ought to be a worker; ought to be in himself an endeavor society; and more than that, he ought to be in himself a doing society.—Rev. F. M. Goodchild, in The Examiner.

OVER IT ALL.

Over it all - the sore and the fear,
The mixture of joy and sorrow,
The anxious thought and the burdened heart,
The bitter loss and the cruel smart -
Over it all this puzzling dream -
His glad love shines with holy beam.

Over it all the hope and the fear,
The struggle for right when wrong is near,
The kind intent, tho' the words be cold,
The prayer for patience and love's sweet hold -
Over it all His Justice line,
Unchanged by sunken or dark surprise.

An Address to the Vicksburg District.

(An address delivered by the presiding elder, Rev. J. M. Weems D. D., to the Vicksburg District Conference, at Edwards, Miss., March 27, 1896, and requested published by the unanimous vote of the Conference.)

DEAR BRETHREN: It is with profound gratitude to God, and a just praise of the Christian liberality of the churches in the bounds of the Vicksburg district, that I state the following provisions have been made for the pastors for the current year: Crawford Street, Vicksburg, $1,500; South Vicksburg (with the appropriation), $550; Edwards, $855; Port Gibson, $800; Bolton, $733; Utica, $650; Hermanville, $600; Harriston, $600; Rocky Springs, $600; Mayersville, $600; Anguilla, $600; Rolling Fork, $800; Mt. Olivet, $600; Warren, $600; South Warren, $600.

It will be observed that of the fifteen pastoral charges in the district, but one—and that the mission church in South Vicksburg—falls below six hundred dollars in the assessment for the support of their pastors. And from my knowledge of these charges, based on a careful study of their ability to meet these obligations, there is not, in these assessments, a single charge that reaches beyond its just obligation to God and to the faithful men whom he has called to fill their pulpits. A faithful discharge of duty on the part of each member of the church will send each of these laborers in the Lord's vineyard to the next Annual Conference with every dollar of their living paid in full. I can conceive of no higher tribute that could be paid a pastor than a just appreciation of his labors as a preacher of the Word. And where this appreciation exists, and is founded on a just apprehension of the value of his work, it will manifest itself in as liberal an appropriation for his living as the financial ability of the people he serves will permit. We must admit the correctness of this statement, or else question our Lord's words. He says, "The laborer is worthy of his hire." And, as I read the Word of God, there is no stronger indication of the healthful spiritual development of the individual, as well as the churches under our care, than is the payment of a liberal support to the true and tried men who are in charge of them as pastors. The economies of our ministry makes no provision for the "hireling." At the close of each year all accounts for living, paid or unpaid, are closed; yet the trials and cares that come to the pastor's heart, and that overshadow his home, because of the unpaid salary, work no disqualification for renewed endeavor the succeeding year. Rare, indeed, in the history of the itinerancy can it be said of a Methodist preacher, "The hireling fleeth because he is an hireling, and careth not for the sheep." But let neither the individual nor the church suppose our Lord will lightly pass over the injustice done in this life. To each he speaks the informing word that fixes destiny, and that gives the reasons for it: "For I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not." In no human form does our Lord so strikingly appear and demand to be ministered unto as he does in the pastor, for St. Paul has said, "Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel." And in no relation to humanity does he stand in so alarming an attitude to-day as at this point. Thousands of individuals, and not a few of the churches among us, have deficits marked against them that do not represent inability, but indifference to their obligation to God and to this cause. How shall these answer the charge our Lord makes against them? And are we, my brethren, blameless before God and his church? Have we been faithful? Have we realized that "all Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works"? The gospel of money is as much yours to preach as is the gospel of repentance and faith. "I charge thee, therefore, before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom, preach the Word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine."

PARSONAGES.

Fourteen of the charges in the district are supplied with homes for their pastors. Yet some of these houses are badly in need of repairs, and others are sadly in need of such furnishings as are necessary to make them comfortable and pleasant homes. If our people were more solicitous for these homes, and would remember the long-suffering wives and mothers with little tokens of kindness, they would bring lasting blessings upon themselves as well as the preacher's home. I am constrained to repeat St. Paul's exhortation: "And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labor among you and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake."

HOUSES OF WORSHIP.

The territory in the bounds of the district is now occupied by our pastors, though in a few places we are without houses of worship. Deeply conscious of the fact that there can be neither success nor continuance in any place without a house for the Lord, we are preparing to build. In other communities our houses of worship are unsightly and uncomfortable, and in a few instances the houses do not reflect credit on the means and numbers of those worshiping in them. We are striving to correct these evils and hinderances, with a good hope of success. In a few of our churches a small outlay for stoves would add much to their comfort, and would do away with the hurtful practice of driving our Sunday-schools into "Winter-quarters." I trust our pastors and people will give attention to these matters as a duty they owe our Lord.

CONFERENCE COLLECTIONS.

But a little reflection on the object of each of these will suffice to reveal their importance as necessary auxiliaries to the real church state, while their payment in full but measures the church's minimum obligation to God and to humanity. I recommend that you preach on these matters, and that you use your young people in every community as collectors of these funds. This will give them employment in useful and practical church work that can not fail to develop personal piety and liberality, and at the same time prove helpful to you as pastors.

EPWORTH LEAGUES.

This is a work among our young people of the largest importance to the future of our church. The intelligent student of its high aim and possible blessings to the church will not be discouraged by the hinderances that environ its beginning, for it must and will grow on our people until its own worth will force it into every society in Southern Methodism. Give it your unqualified endorsement, and your hearty co-operation and influence.

CHURCH SOCIETIES.

I find some of our churches organized, even unto death, in societies. So much of time, strength, and of means is given to them that there is little of either left for the spiritual life of the church and her mission unto lost humanity. Every degree and class of work to be done by special organization can be done through the Parsonage and Home Mission Society and the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. These organizations are of known and acknowledged power and utility among us, and should be encouraged by all. Indeed, they are strong arms of the church at home and in foreign fields, and may the Lord speed the day when there will not be a local organization in Southern Methodism that shall feel complete without them.

REVIVALS.

It is my profound conviction before God that the time has come when strong and sound words need to be spoken on this subject. It is a known fact in the history of man that one extreme follows fast upon the heels of another, and, unless there is wise guidance at this point, great danger lies in the near future. It will be a sad day for the effectiveness of Methodism, and for a lost world, when our people turn against the old-time revival of our fathers. And yet this mighty energy of the church has been so abused in these days as to place it on debatable ground in the mind of some of the most thoughtful. To check these deflections, and to build again the walls of our beloved Zion, is the ardent desire of every true pastor. But to do this there must be a conscious experience of pardoning grace in your own hearts. Paul says: "Knowing, therefore, the terror of the Lord, we persuade men; but we are made manifest unto God; and I trust also are made manifest in your consciences." This knowledge and this manifestation to God and to man is not history; it is an experience that burns in your hearts, and that shines into the souls of those who hear you. You will then preach the gospel with the confidence Paul had when he said: "For it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." If you have not faith in the gospel to save those to whom you preach, then you may well doubt your right to preach. Then, if you have this faith and this power, what more is needed to have a revival? Only that the church be in a healthful condition and conscious of her own drawing power. Our Lord said of the church, "Ye are the salt of the earth," and, "Ye are the light of the world." This is the normal state of the church, and, therefore, of each true member thereof. Then the mission is, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." This is the real drawing power of the church, and it has accomplished much for the world to this date. Throw yourselves upon this reserve force and your own faith in God, and he will revive his work, and save the lost through his own ordained ministry.

Random Extracts from Old Note Books.

1. To me one of the greatest proofs of the divinity of our Savior is the conduct of his apostles. They intensify or emphasize the natural belief of man in that representing natural incredulity, they were not more enlightened by all Christ's teaching. Their after conduct represents men who could not disbelieve their senses. There was little or no faith in it. It was sight. Thomas represents the man who will believe no number who tell him of an incredible thing. He seems to have been one of those who, if born nowadays, it would be impossible to save, for he could not see Christ (that weren't sufficient); he wanted the evidence of the sense of touch, as well as that of hearing and seeing and to thrust his hand into his side.

Now, the disbeliefs of the apostles were much like those of the skeptics in any age. Then why won't modern skepticism see both sides of the apostles' beliefs, and not only the one in which they asseverate Christ's divinity? Why do they ignore the fact that the apostles were once doubters, and were then convinced and converted (and hardly convinced, too) believers. What motive had they to pretend that they ever doubted certain facts? On the contrary, they attached themselves to Christ, because they believed very differently then (at first) from what they did afterwards. Had they known how matters would have turned out, they never would have joined him. The fact that they thought him an earthly king; that rewards, eminence, power, etc., belonged to him, shows that they never concocted a pretended belief for the sake of repudiating it in order to give the final belief greater credence.

2. The argument that faith in the Scriptures is a matter of education (and firm assurance in salvation too), and attempting to liken it to faith in other beliefs, because persons educated in these have strong (often enduring) faith, is fallacious, for millions of men, who have had faith in other beliefs, have relinquished them and died in Christian faith. It shows that it is not education only that gives the faith and hope. It is the superior assuringness, the durability of solace in Christianity. Education is not all. Certainly the preponderance is vastly in favor of Christianity. The true test would be the effects upon a man of a belief in the religion of his education. How many go from faith in other religions to Christianity! How few from Christianity to other beliefs!

To say that a faith in any religion may support a man in the hour of death is not the whole of the question, and is aside from the present argument. If Christianity overthrows a faith in other religions, then it is not education. It is the aggressiveness and ascendency of its precepts. Herein seems to me the germ of a great argument. Why may not one turn upon the opponents of Christianity the logic of the principle of the "survival of the fittest"?

3. The estimates of the Christian religion are not to be founded on the conceptions of its opponents. Why are we not to take the estimates of Christianity from its true adherents?—and not from perverters and misconstructionists. We permit other religionists (in the main) to say what their religion is. Why not treat the Christian religion so? A misconstruction or misstatement of the Christian religion is not to be taken as its creed.

Again, a man must live the Christian religion to know what it is. It is intensely esoteric. The Holy Spirit is the expounder of the doctrine, not the human or intellectual reading or construction. (Even Rousseau conceded the potentiality of the Holy Spirit.) Here is where the unenlightened fail. The key to the Scriptures is the Holy Spirit, after repentance and the exercise of faith. A man might as well judge art or music without due taste or education. How could a man, without hearing, judge a melody? Feeling (religion being a matter of the heart more than of the head) is an essential, an inevitable concomitant of true religion. Can a man devoid of Christian sensibility know anything of it?

The Christian religion—conversion—is not only a faith. It is an education. And the education can not be acquired by a knowledge of the creed. There is the fatal error of men who seek to apply the intellectual test only. Faith is the alphabet, as it were. If a man don't have that, he can never know what the Christian religion is. A man can know of other religions by learning other creeds. Not so our religion.

The refusal of those who affirm that the Holy Spirit is the true interpreter to be believed by the mere external interpreters, is a violation of logic and common sense, and discredits the validity of human texts and conventional and common tests. If men who know only the geography of a country refused to believe those who had studied its topography and climate, and had lived there, how foolish it would be! Those who have lived there know the country better than foreigners, who get its modes of natural features from books or narratives. Until men have tried our religion they ought not to presume to judge it. Suppose men who had never tried a liquid or food should judge it in opposition to those who had. We are told to taste and see that the Lord is good. How often do we urge children who fancy a food is not palatable to taste it in order to induce them to like it. Their feeling is: "I see it. I don't like it. It don't commend itself, therefore is not good!" The way to do is to try it.

4. Given a supernatural nidus or germ, and our religion develops naturally, rationally. It does not act like the outre, unnatural-like plants and flowers do in Japan paintings: bear things different from nature. As soon as Christ is born, he is human; eats, sleeps, cries. As a man, he talks, works, suffers. There is no thing affected, melodramatic about him. He is miraculous, but never forced, nor ostentatious. If he displays he awes nature and vanquishes death without flourish, pretentions, prefatoriness or preparation. Never exults nor rehearses, nor recites nor narrates it, in self-glorification.

5. The assertion that Hillel, Buddha, and others, preceded Christ, and that he plagiarized or was tinctured with, or borrows their thought, proves too much against the assertion. Had he done so, he could never have risen out of the limitations of intellectual environments, and unlearned his creed and reconstructed his spirituality. No! He never caught any inspiration from them. He originated and fulfilled all and borrowed nothing. If Spencer (Herbert) says God is unknowable, he is most eminent authority. But He is not unknowable, except as undeducible from nature. He can not be evolved from the natural. If God had not said, "Men by nature knew not God," Spencer might be entitled to assert it by reason of his vast lore, his tact of classification and synthesis, and his aptitude for induction. Spencer only endorses or reiterates God. The boasted new inductive science only tells us, the results of its inenbrations and long travails, what a very small child of Christian nurture could long ago tell. That men by nature knew not God. The bridge is faith; the gap between the realm natural and spiritual is thus bridged, and then we know God.

6. While it is true, perhaps, that (within limits) the higher the development of the race the higher its ethics and worship; yet a very low worship is synchronous with great intellectual culture. (Greeks, Romans, et al.) And more than that: culture will not only not develop a high religion, but will not even maintain it. And, conversely, the most barbarous of nations will cherish the loftiest religions—the Christian, for illustration. This is a vital contradiction of the theory of an evolution of the Christian religion.

7. There seems to me something sublime in the literal verification of Christ's being the Savior to his generation, that, through Herod, every soul was saved of those whom Herod slew. It was the only time in the history of the human race that the soul of everyone who died was saved. The devil overreached himself. Had not Herod slain those innocents, many of them the devil would have got. Many would have seen and rejoiced in Christ's crucifixion, who died because of his birth, and will ever rejoice at his crucifixion. So that in a most literal, broad, beautiful sense he was a Savior. He was salvation as well as Messiah.

8. Christ's accessibility, suavity, familiarity with even the vilest (publicans and sinners) tended to detract from an imponderable, but very emphatic influence, and commandingness springing from austerity and reserve, and that protects against, or rather prevents, that familiarity or easy freedom of intercourse, and their disillusionments. The sentiments that "no man is a hero to his valet," and that "familiarity breeds contempt" are true. It was a sublime transcendence of human limitations (disabilities, self-renunciations, self-incapacitation almost) to speak from the human view, to see Christ rise from a table of publicans and sinners, dispel all the suggestions or aggressions of presumptuous familiarity inspired by or incident to his tender condescension, his noble geniality, his amiable affability, and by the power of his personality instantaneously master them by the easy predominance of his omnipotence. There must have been wonderful stir and commotion in the breasts of auditors at the tremendous transitions of emotion, and the rending or thrilling revulsions inspired by the late gentle, genial Guest, and the now towering, commanding, overawing Teacher.

Total for the year..... $1,074 79

A part of the amount credited to the McNemar fund was paid on the deficit on the last scholastic year, so that there is still a debt of $19.31 on this year. Let the auxiliaries that have not paid anything to this fund make an earnest effort to send a contribution to me not later than the first of June, that we may settle our account in full.

Respectfully submitted.

Miss Pauline Stafford -

MY DEAR FRIEND: The amount of good that will grow out of the work in which you are engaged eternity alone can unfold. The P. and H. M. S. has already done enough to commend itself to the church at large as an organization worthy of encouragement and support. Everything to be permanent must be domiciled. Not only must the flock have a place where it can worship the Lord "under its own vine and fig-tree," but the pastor needs a local habitation as well. In fact, this is indispensable. He must have a home. If it is not provided by others, he must provide it himself. No one—unless it be an intelligent, sympathetic woman—can realize the heart-aches and inconveniences of a homeless preacher, who feels that "woe is me if I preach not the gospel."

While the church, as a whole, has not awakened fully to the necessity and duty of providing homes for the preachers, there has been marked improvement in the last score of years. In many places, where the preacher, in former years, lived in "his own hired house," the rent of which had to be paid out of his meagre salary, we now find comfortable homes, where the preacher can live in peace, with no landlord "to molest or to make him afraid." There is, however, much land yet to be occupied.

A short time ago I visited Leaksville, in Greene county, where your society has aided materially in establishing a memorial, I trust, to all generations. A little over one year ago Rev. J. C. Ellis and his devoted wife, with two little children, made their way to Leaksville charge. No parsonage awaited their coming. Good men and true had preached the gospel in that country from its earliest settlement; heroic women had shared their toils and sacrifices, but no parsonage had ever arisen where they could say, "Here we rest." Kind friends gave Bro. Ellis and family a temporary home. At the first Quarterly Conference it was decided to build a parsonage at Leaksville, the county seat. A beautiful lot of about two acres was kindly donated. Some money was raised. Bro. Ellis with his own hands rafted lumber for many miles down the Chickasawhay river. The P. and H. M. Society came to his relief with a gift of one hundred dollars. The result is a well-constructed and commodious parsonage, nearly complete. Bro. Ellis and his wife are happy in its occupancy, and by the close of the year the garden and all necessary fencing will be in place.

The P. and H. M. S., by its timely and liberal donation, has endeared itself to the people of the Leaksville charge, and already the seed sown are bearing precious fruit. As you know, we are preparing to build a district parsonage at Enterprise. An assessment has been made, and apportioned to the various charges in the district. At my recent visit the church at Leaksville, in addition to the assessment of Bishops, paid the entire assessment of the work for the district parsonage. This, perhaps, was never a possibility before.

May the Lord bless you in your work of faith and labor of love! The inspiration from him who said: I go to prepare a place for you."

Yours truly, L. CARLISLE.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. H. S. Johns, Plaquemine, La.: "We are progressing little by little in this difficult field. Our ladies at both Plaquemine and Donaldsonville organized, and the results are gratifying in the shape of church improvements, painted fences, etc. At Donaldsonville the church has been repainted and a vestibule built in front. On yesterday held out at Donaldsonville against the governor's party of speakers. Pity the Sabbath is thus desecrated."

Rev. W. D. Burroughs, Charleston circuit, North Mississippi Conference: "Second quarterly meeting just held. Our much-beloved presiding elder, Rev. H. C. Morehead, was on hand in fine spirit. Sunday being Easter, Bro. Morehead preached one of the strongest sermons on the resurrection to which I ever listened. I hear this sermon spoken of in high terms on our streets. All in all, the presiding elder's visit was a benediction to us all. Charleston circuit is far in advance of what it was last year at this time. We have two Sunday-schools that have gone through the Winter, and will soon have one other in operation. Have organized one Epworth League, with a good number of members. The work has paid more on preacher's salary than it had last year at this time. I have more on the collection in cash and subscription than the work has ever paid since I have been a member of the Conference. I have not been in good health for some time. I ask the prayers of the members of the North Mississippi Conference in our behalf."

Rev. M. L. White, P. C., Montrose, Miss.: "The first Quarterly Conference for Montrose circuit convened last Saturday, and it was a very happy occasion. Bro. Simmons was in his place, and was up to our expectation, both in preaching and administration. He is firm, yet gentle and kind to his preachers. He believes in old-time usages. For instance, Sunday morning a love-feast was held and proved a blessing to us. He has captured the people of Montrose circuit. Everyone is delighted with him. Nearly one-fourth of presiding elder's and pastor's salary paid; one-half the Bishops', and nearly half Conference claimants paid. The parsonage is being made more comfortable by the good women of the circuit. We have a new yard, garden and barn. Our church here has just been painted, and very soon we trust the parsonage will be painted. The people seem to have gotten a move on themselves somehow (every church represented but one). They seem to be determined to make their preacher and family comfortable. The women here are doing some good work in their different societies, especially in P. and H. M. Societies. Bro. Bradley sowed good seeds here, and we are reaping some of the results. After the sermon last Sunday by the presiding elder, a very large number of communicants were at the altar. One young man joined the church. At night quite a number were at the altar for prayer, and quite an interest manifested. We are looking for a gracious outpouring of the spirit. All are hopeful and cheerful. This circuit is very large and requires a great deal of riding and preaching and visiting. By the help of the good Lord we expect to do it the very best we can. The ADVOCATE is not being forgotten."

Rev. J. H. Foreman, P. C., Trenton, Miss.: "This is my first year on the Trenton work. I met my first appointment the fourth Sunday in December, 1895. We have plenty of work before us, but prospects are encouraging indeed. I have to preach eleven times per month. We have organized seven Sunday-schools on the work this year and several prayer meetings. We have made some valuable improvements on the parsonage at Trenton this year. A new stove, and dining-room has been built, also a new crib, and other valuable improvements have been made since our arrival here in December last. Our first Quarterly Conference was held March 7 and 8; Rev. W. W. Simmons, P. E., in the chair, and he presided with ease—the right man in the right place. He preached us two excellent sermons, which were very much enjoyed by all that heard them. Bro. Thurman, of the Linwood circuit, was with us Saturday, and seemed to enjoy the occasion very much, and our good old brother and father in Israel, Rev. R. A. Sibley, was present Saturday and Sunday. I preached two sermons last Sabbath at Polkville to a very large and attentive congregation. We had a glorious time. The good Lord was with us in power, there to win and bless his people. At the close of the afternoon service we had an old-fashioned Methodist hand-shaking. I was happy all day seeing my people rejoice in a Savior's love. Thank God the good work is going on, and will continue to go on as long as time lasts. Every one who may read these lines is earnestly solicited to pray for us, that we may realize the desire of our heart:—the awakening of every believer and the conversion of every sinner on the work. I am, by the grace of God, going to do all I can for the spiritual elevation of this people. Success to the ADVOCATE."

Rev. J. W. Anderson, Houston, Miss.: "This is my second year on this work (Houston and Wesley), and I am glad to report we have and are still making some advances here in several ways. We had a fine revival at each of the three churches composing this charge last year, resulting in the addition of thirty-five souls to the membership. We organized an Epworth League, which is constantly growing in interest and numbers. Our League is named for our beloved and gifted Mississippi Bishop, 'The Galloway Epworth League,' and has at this time about sixty members, and is doing a fine work. We have three weekly prayer meetings, three Sunday-schools, two missionary societies and two Ladies' Aid Societies—all of which are well attended and are doing a great work for the Master. I procured last year thirty new subscribers to our various church papers, and hope to increase that number this year. This charge made the best financial report last year it has for several years past. For the most part this is an intelligent, loyal and liberal people. This is especially true of our membership at Houston and Wesley. They believe in supporting the church and its institutions. All last year this good people were constantly giving the preacher and his family unmistakable evidences of their appreciation of them and their work, and their love and liberality still abounds. Scarcely had we reached the parsonage, after our reappointment to this charge, when they began to storm and pound us, and still they pound. Just look at that barrel of fine flour they gave us, those nice joints of meat, the coffee, the lard, the sugar, the sausage, the fruits, the turkeys, the dry goods for wife and children—and then just look at my fine suit the good ladies gave me the other day. Why, Mr. Editor, I had almost to pinch myself to see whether it was I or not. But, Mr. Editor, the best part of my report is yet to come. Having secured the help of Bro. W. M. McIntosh and his faithful singer, Bro. Smith, we began a meeting at Houston on the fourth Sunday in March, and protracted it for nine days. It was a meeting of great power. There were not more than six or eight grown white people in town that were not blessed in the meeting. Many of the country people came in and shared the blessing with us. Nearly 100 souls professed faith in Christ, and a large number of backsliders were reclaimed and promised a better life. Sixty-five pledged themselves to join the different churches. Twenty-six have already joined our church, and there are yet more to follow. Those converted ranged from six to sixty-five years of age. Some of the hardest and oldest sinners of the town were saved. Quite a number of heads of families promised to erect a family altar in their homes. Many old feuds and misunderstandings were settled. Houston now belongs to the Lord—blessed be his holy name! The meeting will be far-reaching in that quite a large number of young men and young ladies who are here in school from a distance were happily converted to Christ and will go out from here as witnesses for God. Bless God for what he has done for Houston. Bro. McIntosh won all hearts here. He is a fine preacher. He keeps the upper connection all right, and that is the secret of his success. I heartily commend him to all who may want help in a meeting. God bless him and spare him long to the church!"

Sensational Sermons.

One objection intelligent men urge against the church is its own lack of faith. This, they tell us, is seen in the conversion of the pulpit into an arena for the harlequin and the substitution for scriptural preaching of the quibs and jests of the concert hall. Such alleged preaching is like the foam cast up by the sea; it feeds no man; it quenches no man's thirst. But it does place the church under the ban of intelligence and brings the ministry into disrepute. Irreverent sensationalism, perhaps, more than all other causes combined, is responsible for the weakened hold of the church upon the respect of men of sense and sensibility.—Rev. S. G. Nelson.

There wants nothing but a believing prayer to turn a promise into a performance.—J. Mason.

A Great Chance to Make Money.

I am having splendid success since I took your advice and started in the Dish Washer business. I never clear less than $10 a day, and have over $3,000 in bank now, made in business during the last year. I can't see why every man or woman, that wants to accomplish anything, don't try this business. Before starting I examined all the Dish Washers closely, but find the Ollmax much the best. You can get all needful information by addressing the Ollmax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio, and you can make from $10 to $20 a day anywhere in town or country, as every family is anxious to have a Ollmax Dish Washer. You don't have to canvass. They do the work completely; you can wash and dry the dishes in two minutes without putting the hands in water, and being so cheap, every family will have one. There's millions in it! A READER

OBITUARIES.

WOODRUFF—WILLIE son of Rev. J. C. and Mrs. L. A. Woodruff, was born Sept. 20, 1884, and died March 14, 1896.

Willie was a bright, cheerful boy, and while he had never made any profession of religion, he was faithful in attending Sunday-school, loved God, prayed to him, and hated sin. He was a boy of clean lips. The call was sudden and the cloud was dark; but when I saw the grief-stricken father kneel by the lifeless form, and say, "Thy will be done!" I knew his grace was sufficient. Over the night of death there beamed a ray of the resurrection morning that brought comfort to the wounded heart. The mother had preceded her boy to the better land, and together they wait the coming of the other members of the family. "We sorrow not as those who have no hope."

JNO. P. COUNTISS.

BARTLETTE—Mrs. NANCY E. BARTLETTE (nee Williams) was born Dec. 2, 1803, and departed this life Jan. 12 1896, in her ninety-third year. Her father moved to Tennessee when Nancy was a child. On Sept. 5, 1827, she was married to W. G. Bartlette, who became a very active local preacher for several years, then passed on before some twelve years ago. To them were born eight children. Five are on the other side, and three on this. In 1833 or '34 they moved to Alabama. From there to North Mississippi in 1836, and in 1850 removed and settled in Newton county, Miss., near what is now Chunkey station on the A. V. railroad, from which place she went to heaven.

Sister Bartlette was a member of the M. E. Church, South, seventy-seven years. No doubt in all these years some of her works preceded her to glory, and some will follow after. Some years ago she had a partial stroke of paralysis, from which she lost the use of her lower limbs, but could move about in the house and yard. She retained her mind and eyesight remarkably well to the last. I was her pastor for the last three years, and visited her often. She always had her Bible in hand or in reach. She made a practice of reading it through in the year. She said, "I can't remember what I read long, but it's a great comfort to me." She had a spell of sickness last Summer, and she thought her time had come, and said to my wife, "I am not at home this morning." "Yes," said my wife; "Grandma, you are at home." "No," says she; "my home is up yonder."

Our last visit to her was in December last. A few days before she went home, though in as good health as usual, she said: "I know I won't be here much longer. I am ready at any time. 'I am waiting at the station,'" a song she enjoyed very much. No more waiting now. The heavenly train has come at last. She got aboard. Her end was peace. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord!"

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to April, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to April, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

Presumptuous Critics.

By no means small is the class of persons who take delight in sitting in judgment upon the words and actions of their fellowmen. The critical faculty is God-given, and when rightly used subserves a good purpose. Over-cultivation of this faculty, however, may be as harmful as the failure to use it. The critical spirit, when over-indulged, converts us into cynics, and causes us to see flaws where we should not see them. There are critics and critics. If all who pass sentence upon the work and conduct of their neighbors were competent judges of what constitutes excellence, then their criticisms might be listened to patiently. But, alas! the majority of those who see motes in the eyes of their brethren have beams in their own eyes. Those who are on the constant look-out for faults and imperfections are more than apt to find them. Some hearers spoil the effect of the grandest sermons by examining them too critically. To be always picking things to pieces will not only destroy our own peace, but will at last lead us to attribute unworthy motives to the man who performs a noble action.

It is generally the case that persons who are least capacitated to give advice or to criticise the work of others are the readiest to do these very things. The ignorant and the simple constantly ventilate their opinions and preferences as to matters about which the wise express themselves sparingly. With no little truth has it been said that "fools rush in where angels fear to tread."

Oliver Wendell Holmes was not wrong when he said that mankind are divided into two classes, the first class comprising those who go ahead and do something; the second, those who sit still and inquire why it wasn't done the other way. Hardly anything is so ridiculous as to see a man venturing to criticise what he knows little or nothing about, something outside of his line of work and study. Who would think of applying to an architect for advice about farming? No lawyer is expected to be able to perform a delicate operation in surgery. Nor is a mechanic supposed to understand the art of sculpture.

In order to speak ex cathedra a man must be thoroughly acquainted with the subject in hand. It does not follow, however, that fitness to give advice in one direction implies ability to do so in another. Well-rounded men are few in number. Consequently, most of us should confine our criticisms to matters to which we have given special attention. "Let the shoemaker stick to his last," is an old Latin proverb with a modern application.

Instances of presumptuous criticism are not far to seek. Nor are they confined to secular affairs. A notable example is that of a certain class of scientists who arrogate to themselves the right to interpret the Scriptures more authoritatively than devout theologians whose whole lives have been given to Bible study. Such presumption is colossal. These men may know, or think they know, a great deal about microbes, protoplasm, cosmic evolution, star dust, etc.; but biblical interpretation not being their specialty, what folly to regard their utterances upon theological subjects as oracular!

Then, too, church-men who never read a book on missions in their lives, who do not even subscribe for the Review of Missions, are stupid enough to pass judgment upon the Mission Board for appropriating money to this or that foreign field, which, in their opinion, should be left to other churches to evangelize. Some, indeed, imagine themselves capable of advising the missionaries as to what methods they should pursue in reaching the heathen.

What editor does not receive scores of letters every year from persons totally inexperienced in such matters, offering suggestions as to how his paper should be conducted? It is almost beyond belief how many people fancy themselves exactly suited to make successful editors. Now and then some correspondent takes it in high dudgeon because his suggestions are not carried out, and writes a peppery letter to the office.

Another type of presumptuous critics are the worldly inclined church members who set up their opinions as to the innocence of card playing, theatre-going, etc., against the combined wisdom and piety of the church. Every man is entitled to think for himself, but freedom of thought by no means implies that we are to reject or treat contemptuously the conclusions reached by the wise and good of the past and the present. Surely the sober judgment of the best men and women of the church as to the harmfulness of certain worldly amusements is entitled to some degree of respect and consideration. Unorthodoxy and contempt of time-honored authority are far from being indications of advanced thinking and originality. On the contrary, they often are the signs of shallowness and conceit.

Almost every charge is afflicted with members—some, perhaps, in official position—who think they know more about how the work of the church should be carried on than does the pastor himself. Such persons, if allowed to do so, will dictate to the pastor when and how offenders against the Discipline shall be dealt with, the kind of sermons to be preached, how the Epworth League should be managed, and, in fact, want to be consulted about everything that is done. A wise pastor, while consulting frequently with the leading members of his flock, will keep the reins of authority firmly in his own hands, else great confusion will result. What pastor does not have to contend with meddlers and busybodies? Sometimes a heady layman, because he can't have his way in the election of church officers, or in the management of some department of church work, sulks, or perhaps kicks out of the harness. Don't reflect on the intelligence of your pastor by attempting to dictate to him. Even if he does not manage affairs exactly as you think he ought, in most cases, silence is the better course. He may know a thing or two about church work that you do not.

The Apostle Paul's remark about abstaining from the eating of meat if it should cause a brother to offend, is interpreted by some narrow-minded people to mean, as Bishop Haygood says in his book, "Jack-Knife and Brambles:" "What I don't approve it is a sin for you to do." Long time has this passage been made to do service in the interest of fanaticism and excessive Puritanism. The Bishop further adds: "It was flung at this writer—'junior preacher' on the Oxford circuit, Ga., Autumn of 1859—the offense being wearing beard. The apostle's text has not only been ridden as a hobby by booted and spurred ignorance and intolerance; it has been used as a repeating rifle—shooting at everything (accurate never), at men who smoke cigars, or cob pipe, wear clothes like other people's; at women who put a love token on the finger, a pretty flower on the bonnet and many other little concernments of men and women who believe that St. Paul meant something when he said: 'Let every man be persuaded in his own mind.' The meddling specialist thinks he means: 'Be persuaded in my mind.'" We have known the same message to be cited against all novel reading, love poems, and the singing of innocent secular songs. O wisdom, how oft does folly pose under thy garb!

Silly Sentimentalism.

Among the prisoners in the Parish Prison, confined in the hospital, is Mrs. Annie E Snell, who was recently convicted in the United States Court for sending obscene literature through the mails, and received a sentence of two years in the Brooklyn Penitentiary. Mrs. Snell has received a great deal of sympathy from the ladies connected with the religious work of the prison, and they are making an effort to secure a pardon for her from President Cleveland.

The ladies connected with the Epworth League, who have in charge the spiritual welfare of the inmates of the prison, have been several times to see the young woman, and have expressed themselves in her favor, and will aid the other ladies in addressing an appeal to the President.

The above clipping from a recent issue of the Times-Democrat brings to public notice a phase of modern civilization that merits consideration. The woman here spoken of, Mrs. Annie E. Snell, and her husband, Charles Snell, have been carrying on their business in this city for a considerable time, not confining their operations to this locality, but reaching out through the mails to regions far remote. The crime is one of more than ordinary baseness. The wares they vended are too vile to be described. Sewage-water is sweet in comparison therewith. The victims were to a large extent the young of both sexes, especially boys. With an ingenuity worthy of a better cause they found an ever-increasing market for their reeking filth. After a fair trial they were convicted and sentenced to a short imprisonment. Before the officers of the law have time to remove them to the place designated for their incarceration, lo! a petition is gotten up for pardon. This is an outcropping of a silly sentimentalism that bodes no good to society. Yea, we go further and say that it is a menace to civilization. It is a fact which stares us in the face every day from the pages of the newspapers that crime is increasing among us with fearful rapidity. This is especially true of the higher grades of crime. This increase of crime is in a large measure due to the false sentiment that is here brought to light. This sentiment has so leavened humanity as to make it exceedingly difficult to punish crime. Criminals count upon it to give them immunity from punishment. It enters the grand jury box and prevents indictment. It dominates the petit juror and makes him bring in a verdict of acquittal contrary to law and evidence.

If perchance a verdict of "guilty" is rendered, instantly the petition-monger is brought into requisition to defeat the ends of justice. A petition for executive clemency, with a formidable array of names from the ranks of respectable citizenship, can be gotten up in behalf of the vilest criminals that pollute the earth with their presence. And these petition-mongers frequently carry on their work in the name of Christianity. Away with such nonsense. The Bible teaches as clearly as language can be made to teach anything, that the law ought to be "a terror to evil doers." Whenever it ceases to be such, the foundations are laid for a reign of anarchy. When will men learn that it is perilous to attempt to improve upon God's plans?

A Noble Judicial Example.

Hon. John W. Fewell, who was recently appointed by Gov. McLaurin as judge of the Tenth Judicial District of Mississippi, has taken a new departure in the way of enforcing the law against the liquor traffic. On Monday, the sixth instant, he opened court in Meridian for the first time. At the close of his charge to the grand jury, which was a very able one, he scared evil doers of the blind-tiger fraternity almost out of their wits by reading out the name and place of business of every person in Meridian who had taken out a United States revenue license, and announced that it was the duty of the entire constabulary of the State and city to visit these places in order to know whether the parties were engaged in the liquor traffic. As soon as the judge had finished his charge, District Attorney Byrd sued out writs of attachment warrants against the holders of government revenue license, and within thirty minutes afterward every place named in the judge's charge had been raided and the entire stock of liquors and blind-tiger paraphernalia seized by officers of the law. We quote from the Picayune as follows:

The warrants were sworn out on the presumption that as they had taken out United States license they had it for the purpose of selling intoxicating liquors and, therefore, were engaged in that business without a license from the State or county; therefore they owed the latter license money, and the stock contained in the buildings by these parties was attached to secure this money. Nearly every place attached contained various quantities of intoxicating liquors, and this fact will be used to prove the charge against the parties.

The places were closed up and are now guarded by special officers. The only way in which the owners can possibly get possession of their property is to file a bond in the penalty of $2000 to secure the license money and all costs incident to the execution of the writ of attachment. It is hardly probable that they will be able to do this, so their property will remain in possession of the State. They will be tried as early as possible. This beginning of court is the all-absorbing topic of conversation on the streets of the city to-day, and everywhere the better class of citizens are heard to indorse Judge Fewell and his able assistant, Mr. Byrd. The ministers of the city, irrespective of creed or denomination, held a meeting to-day and adopted a series of strong resolutions, indorsing Judge Fewell's course and pledging him their hearty support and co-operation. A copy of the resolutions adopted were forwarded to Judge Fewell. A crusade against crime has been inaugurated, and the court officers, backed by the support, sympathy and co-operation of an intelligent citizenship, mean to continue it.

Why hasn't some judicial executive officer resorted to this method before? Does not everybody know that when a man takes out a revenue license in a prohibition town he does it for the purpose of running a blind tiger? And do not the sheriff and the town marshal and the police as well as the judge and district attorney in every prohibition town, as a rule, know the names of these illicit dealers and the localities where they carry on their infamous traffic?

Judge Fewell deserves the thanks of good citizens, not only in Mississippi, but everywhere. All honor to him for the noble example he has set! If other judicial and executive officers will follow the clue he has given them, the day of Mississippi's redemption from the liquor traffic is near at hand.

Church Newspapers.

How many of us take a church paper—a weekly church paper? If not, why not? Are we too poor? Better save on the dailies, and weeklies, and monthlies, which lie so thick on our tables. If we can not afford it, can not we club with our neighbors, and pass the papers round? Do we not think it worth while? Such a paper not worth reading and paying for? Try it awhile, and see. You will find it gives as much for the money as any paper you buy. You will find that the news of Christian work, missionary information, the suggestive discussion of great and important topics which are to be gotten from a good church paper are worth more than neighborhood gossip and local "personals;" even more than the account of the murders and robberies and bank failures of the civilized world; yes, and worth more than even the wholesome and needful information which comes to us through the enterprise of the daily paper. We do not undervalue the merits of the general newspaper. Men and women who do not use it are likely to be dangerously ignorant of many things they should know, although those who read it through and through are apt to know a good many things they would be better off not to know. But all one can say about the use of secular papers only makes stronger the fact of the great need of religious information and intelligent interest in the progress of religion. So again we urge you, all who read this paper, to take a larger one also and take time to read it. It will help you.—Bishop Brooks.

The pawn-shop connected with St. Bartholomew's Church in New York City has accommodated, since it was opened eighteen months ago, about thirty-three thousand people, with loans in amounts less than $100. The aggregate amount advanced on these loans was $550,000. About $200,000 have been paid back, with interest; and last week some four hundred unredeemed pledges—opera-glasses, clocks, revolvers, music boxes, silverware, jewelry, etc.—were sold at auction. In every case where the article on being sold brought more than the loan and interest, the surplus was returned to the owner; if less, the society—the Provident Loan—stood the loss. It will be remembered that this enterprise was started by wealthy parishioners of Dr. Greer's church, to help the worthy poor. They subscribed a capital of $100,000, which was afterward increased to $200,000. The rate of interest on loans was fixed at 1 per cent. per month; regular pawnshops were charging 30 per cent. The enterprise has been conducted on strict business principles, and great help has been given, while at the same time the projectors have been paid interest on money invested.—Zion's Herald.

On our first page will be found an extract from Judge Fewell's charge.

Even down to this enlightened age, many highly cultured people believe, as do the heathen Chinese, in a gaudy, ritualistic religion, such as Sidney Smith thus described in speaking of the High-Church Episcopalians, "Their services consist in genuflexions and circumflexions, bowing to the East, courtesying to the West, wearing man-millinery and engaged in other tomfoolery."—Baptist Standard.

Born in 1820 as a slave, Andrew Ferguson used his freedom, time, and money prudently. He was the trusted janitor of one or more public buildings, and husbanded his earnings. When the opportunity offered, fifteen or twenty years ago, to secure a church building for the Colored Presbyterian Church in this city, which was left without a sanctuary, he took nearly all his savings, almost $5,000, bought the building on Madison street, between Eleventh and Twelfth, and gave it to the church.—Christian Observer (Louisville, Ky.).

By its aid an operator can see distinctly the injury—fracture, bullet, or otherwise—and avoid unnecessary probing or cutting.—Zion's Herald.

A vile and utterly unfair attack is being made on the Funk & Wagnalls Standard Dictionary by some of its business rivals. By careful searching among its 301,000 words, eighteen were found that are thought to be indelicate, and these have been printed in circular form and widely distributed among School Boards, teachers, preachers, etc., to prejudice the public against the work. The shameless insincerity of these publishers appears in the allegation that their own dictionaries contain almost all of these eighteen words; some are in the Bible, and many of them in Shakespeare; all but three are in the Century Dictionary, and justly so.

This infamous attack, however, has recoiled upon its perpetrators. Leading men in all the walks of life, by scores and hundreds, have come to the defense of the Standard, and denounced this piece of villainy in fitting terms. As for ourselves, we regard the Standard as the very best dictionary in existence. We keep it on our desk for constant reference.

To All Whom It Concerns.

DEAR BRETHREN: At our session of Mississippi Conference in Yazoo City, last December, a number of the preachers and a few laymen gave us subscriptions for building "The Lambuth Training school" at Kobe, Japan. These were taken mostly by the diligence of Bro. B. F. Jones, and were to be paid not later than March. At that month is already expired, I take this means of reminding the brethren who have not yet remitted the amount promised, that we are in a very receptive frame. Also the school-building calls on your liberality, and that of a few more who gave indefinite promises of help. Nothing in the wide field of missionary endeavor promises richer and more enduring reward than this strategic point. We need immediately, and urgently, all that has been promised, and about two hundred dollars additional. Who will make glad the city of God by a stream of benevolence that shall widen and deepen like the river of life's water? If some great heart, on whom God has bestowed the means and entailed the responsibility of high stewardship, will only rise and say that dear Sister Lambuth shall not longer sigh over straitened and rented quarters in which to do the work God calls her to in training Christian mothers for the future Japan; that this sorely needed work shall not longer be hampered for a dwelling while we abide in called houses, what new choruses of praise the cherubim and seraphim would sing around the great white throne!

Beloved, please don't wait for another call. If you prefer to remit to Bro. Thos. B. Holt, treasurer, of Nashville, please notify me, at least, that I may be spared the trouble and you the annoyance of a personal appeal. This "King's business demands haste." The heathen are perishing for lack of knowledge. Yours in hope,

J. P. DRAKE.

Edwards, Miss.

Notice.

To the Ministers of the North Mississippi and Mississippi Conferences:

BRETHREN: How many of you remember your Conference resolutions in regard to the Orphans' Home? How many of you preached that sermon on the first Sunday in April? How many of you took up the collection, as you were instructed to by your Conferences, and sent it to your respective Conference treasurers? How many of you forgot all about it, and continue to forget it up to this time? How many of you intend to follow your Conference instructions? How many of you remembered them, and yet failed to carry them out, and do not intend to?

Brethren, place the responsibility of this matter where it belongs. Get it off your shoulders. It is so easy to do this. Prepare your sermon; preach it. Take up the collection; send it to Bro. Bowen or Bro. Burton, and your skirts are clear. Don't you worry about it; just do it. If you don't get but a dollar, it's not your fault; but if you don't get the dollar, well—you know where to put the blame. I have heard from a few preachers that observed the day, and they were all able to make a fine report.

The next meeting of the Board of Trustees will be held at Winona the latter part of this month, and we want to be able to get to work as soon thereafter as possible.

W. A. GUNNING Chair'n.

From J. L. Futrell.

MR. EDITOR: Please tell our friends among your readers that our address for awhile will be Corneile City, Oregon, as I had to give up my charge on account of poor health in November. I've done nothing since then. I now go to help in two counties larger than some States, and many thousand people in them. Very little done except by us, and we have but two preachers. Oh, that I could get all our friends to realize how much I wish their daily prayers, that I may be used for great good! Pray for me.

New Orleans City Mission Anniversary.

Held in Rayne Memorial Church on last Sunday night, the first anniversary of the New Orleans City Mission and Church Extension Society was a great success. It has been many years since a large mass meeting of Methodists has been held in this city. The exercises were very interesting, consisting of encouraging reports of work done, speeches by H. N. Harrison, Rev. J. L. Pierce and President Sawyer, and choice singing by the choir of the church. A collection amounting to about $500 was taken, the result of which will be the purchasing of a suitable site and the erection of a church upon it. Our city Methodists can come together when they take the notion, and last Sunday night's meeting has helped the connectional feeling that we trust is growing among our city churches. No worthier cause could have called our people out. It was a great regret that Bro. Lallance, city missionary, was kept away by an attack of sickness confining him to his bed.

Epworth Leagues in the Country.

The Epworth League, an institution of recent organization and yet of marvelous growth, is a thing worthy of our deepest consideration. It an organization, reaching such proportions in so short a time, and made up, as it is, of an element so vital to the future, be a mistake or an evil, it certainly demands attention, for, if allowed to run and grow, who can prophesy the harm that may come of it?—and if it be a blessing, as we feel sure it is, then we owe it to our thought, sympathy and help that this new and vital movement may accomplish its God-ordained mission in the church.

The Epworth League is an institution, not separate from, but vitally connected with the church. It is now a part of her organic existence. The institution has a mission and a work to do, and ought to permeate the country as well as the cities and the towns. There is a large population in the country, a great portion of which has never had the advantages of church training as those in the towns, and here is a field needed to be reached.

As yet the Epworth League has not, to any considerable extent, reached the country, and in many places the people know almost nothing concerning this new organization.

At Chattanooga, during the International Conference of the Epworth Leagues, it was ascertained that scarcely any of the twelve or fifteen thousand leaguers present were from the rural districts. Why was it so? What is the reason? Is it because it is not adapted to the country? Surely not. Where, then, lies the real trouble? Who is responsible? It may be that proper efforts have not been made.

I remember to have heard the statement at Chattanooga that there had been, in one year (as I remember), five thousand converts in two presiding elders' districts in India, and that one-half of them were under the Epworth League. Many of these must have been in the country. If such results may follow the work of the League in one section, why not in another? Why not, then, make effort to permeate the masses with an institution capable of doing so great good, and through it infuse a missionary interest and zeal which shall go far towards solving the question of the evangelization of the world?

Are our people in the country incapable of organization? When we have put forth all possible effort, then may we answer. Our people need to be informed concerning the League; and pastors, Leagues, and all who are interested, should make all possible efforts, and then we may find Epworth Leagues in the country. HESLEP.

April 3, 1896.

Indian Mission.

MR EDITOR: Allow me to report the following amounts received to help pay for land bought for the Indians in Mississippi. Amounts received since the last report, to-wit: A friend, by Rev. J. W. McLaurin, $5; Dr. E. B. Martin, $5; Mrs. C. O. Stedman, $10; Matthew Howes, $1; Miss Lizzie Howes, $1; Miss Annie Howes, $1; Mrs. Sallie Johnston, $1; Rev. J. M. Robinson, $2.

Many thanks for above amounts, and may the good Lord bless all the brethren and sisters who have helped.

And now I want to state that we are yet due on the land already bought about $146, which ought to have been paid two or three years ago; but as it is never too late to do good, who will now help me to pay it out? I have been begging so long for the small amount necessary to pay the salary and pay for land I am almost ashamed to ask again, and then I have used all the argument I can think of. What must I do? What can I do? To lose the land will never do; we can not afford it, and it is so necessary to the success of the mission, too. And, then, the Board of Missions appointed me to the special work of paying out the land. What must I do? Well, I will have to appeal to my friends and the friends of the poor Indians and to the friends of our blessed Lord, who said, "Preach the gospel to every creature." I will have to appeal to you, and ask you to give me quick, and let us be done with it, $146.

Brethren, sisters, who will give me $10? Who will give me $5? Who will give me $2 50? Who will give me $1? Who will give at all—any amount? Oh, how glad I will be to get any amount, and to get this land paid for and get it off of hand! May I expect something? Send postoffice order on Hermanville or registered letter to me at Hermanville, Miss. Send without delay, and may God bless you.

The Treasury of the Mississippi Conference Sunday-School Board Emptied.

The Executive Committee of our Sunday-school Board held a meeting, April 2 in Jackson, and after consultation with members of the Board of Education and with Bishop Galloway, decided that we would comply literally with the clause of the Discipline which reads:

"Any surplus remaining in the hands of the Annual Conference Sunday-school Board at the end of any Conference year, after providing for needy Sunday schools within the bounds of the Conference, shall be equally divided between the General Sunday-school Board of Education and the Annual Conference Board of Education."

Accordingly, we have issued orders which completely exhaust the treasury. Therefore, to supply the needy schools of 1896, we are dependent solely upon the Children's Day collections of next month. Please observe the day, and send the proceeds at once to our treasurer, Mr. Jno. A. Gnice, Natchez, Miss.

Respectfully, H. G. HAWKINS,
Secretary Miss. Conf. S. S. Board.

Isn't This about So?

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

BY REV. HENRY H. AHRENS.

Our Successor.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Union Epworth League of New Orleans our predecessor as editor of the Union (Rev. Robt. H. Wynn) has been elected our successor. We bespeak for him a brilliant career.

H. H. AHRENS.

New Officers.

The meeting of the New Orleans Union Epworth League, at Carondelet Street Church, Tuesday evening, April 9, was largely attended. Several preachers, among them the worthy presiding elder, honored the League with their presence. The chief business of the League was the election of new officers who are to serve for the ensuing six months. It resulted as follows: Robert Irvine, president; E. S. Prescott, first vice-president; W. B. Thompson, second vice-president; Howard Magruder, third vice-president; Miss Susie L. Lyons, secretary; Miss Elsie Ahrens, treasurer; Robert H. Wynn, editor. After an address by the new president, the Union adjourned to meet in the Louisiana Avenue Church on the second Thursday in May. H. H. A.

Growing Ignorance of the Bible.

When a late number of Harper's Monthly opens the "Editor's Study" with a discussion of the growing ignorance of the Bible, it is high time for alarm on the part of those who are supposed to care for the preservation of the blessed story of grace in the memories of the coming generation. The "Study" justifies its notice of the deplorable state of affairs, not only from the standpoint of good citizenship, which must have a moral foundation, but from that of the needs of literary training. A sentence is worth quoting: "A boy or girl at college, in the presence of work set for either to master, without a fair knowledge of the Bible, is an ignoramus." We are glad to have this said, and not from the pulpit. To many minds it will carry more weight when it springs, not from the professionalism of the sacred desk, but from the independent judgment of a secular sense of loss.

The great place of power for early gains is the family circle. It is a sad commentary upon the present age to know that the Bible is no longer read in thousands of homes; and it only adds to our appreciation of the difficulties of the case to hear that the Bible is studied (?) in our Sunday-schools, when it is understood that the "Lesson Leaves" are the paltriest substitutes, and in many a class the Bible as an entity is absolutely unknown, so that even teachers hold to the "Leaves" like a drowning man to a straw. And we are no nearer to the final good when we discover that the colleges of the land are introducing the Bible into their curricula; for college students are barely the one-hundredth part of the schooled generation of our land.

The cry was once: "To your tents, O Israel!" Let it now be: "To your homes, O Christians!" There is no other place, no other time, no other opportunity, no other atmosphere, so divinely devised to fasten upon the growing life the enduring and holy memories of the Book of books. Revive the lost art!—Western Christian Advocate.

The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE $35 WITH COUPON.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅜-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism, —to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent. of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality, hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, P. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs.—In regard so "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

HOME CIRCLE.

WOODMAN, SPARE THAT TREE.

BY GEORGE P. MORRIS.

Woodman, spare that tree!
Touch not a single bough!
In youth it sheltered me,
And I'll protect it now.
'Twas my forefather's hand
That placed it near his cot;
There, woodman, let it stand,
Thy axe shall harm it not!

That old familiar tree,
Whose glory and renown
Are spread o'er land and sea,
And wouldst thou hew it down?
Woodman, forbear thy stroke!
Cut not its earth-bound ties;
Oh, spare that aged oak,
Now towering to the skies!

When but an idle boy
I sought its grateful shade;
In all their gushing joy
Here, too, my sisters play'd.
My mother kiss'd me here;
My father press'd my hand—
Forgive this foolish tear,
But let that old oak stand!

My heart-strings round thee cling,
Close as thy bark, old friend!
Here shall the wild bird sing,
And still thy branches bend.
Old tree! the storm still brave!
And, woodman, leave the spot;
While I've a hand to save,
Thy axe shall harm it not.

Give Attention to Reading.

Books are the sentinels that guard the immortality of literature. Time effaces the orator's eloquence, the iconoclast may destroy the product of the sculptor's chisel, but printed thought is indestructible, and lives forever. No fire can burn up, no storm scatter, nor iconoclasm kill a noble thought once clothed in artistic expression. It becomes a part of our indestructible intellectual possessions, and will continue to live in our life, giving direction and impulse to our thinking.

Take our English Bible. Not only have its sublime truths become a national and international power, but its very language has become a part of our Anglo-Saxon nature. As F. W. Faber, a Roman Catholic, well says: "The uncommon beauty and marvelous English of the Protestant Bible! It lives on the ear like music that can never be forgotten, like the sound of church bells, which the convert hardly knows how to forego. Its felicities often seem to be almost things, rather than mere words. It is part of the national mind, and the anchor of national seriousness. The memory of the dead passes into it—the potent traditions of childhood are stereotyped in its phrases. The power of all the gifts and trials of a man is hidden beneath its words. It is the representative of his best moments, and all that there has been about him of soft and gentle and pure and penitent and good, speaks to him forever out of the English Bible. It is his sacred thing which doubt has never dimmed and controversy never soiled. In the length and breadth of the land there is not a Protestant with one spark of righteousness about him, whose spiritual biography is not in his Saxon Bible."

In a less degree, but still in a most potent manner, the uninspired books of our libraries influence our civilization. Indeed, books and civilization go hand in hand. Men in a savage state produce no books, they have no written language. Books are at once an evidence and a product of civilization. Nor can civilization be perpetuated without books. But the Bible is not the product of civilization. It is the great civilizer, and therefore the real fountain head of all literature as well as the foundation of all true civilization. The Bible has been the creator of language in its best forms. From the time that the Word of God was translated into the English language may be dated the birth of modern English. The debt that modern German owes to the creative genius of Luther's version of the Bible can not be computed. Both English and German speech have been infinitely enriched and immeasurably ennobled by becoming the bearers of the Word of God.

The language of the masters of literature exerts a refining influence upon those who spend time in absorbing it, to say nothing of the power of the ideas thus conveyed. Good books put us in possession of the thoughts, ideas and intellectual fruit of the world's scholars and thinkers, acquaint us with the discoveries of science, impart to us the visions of genius. They store for our use the treasures gathered by others. The inspirations of Isaiah, the proverbs of Solomon, the dialectics of Paul in the Word of God; the "Principia" of Newton, the philosophy of Bacon, the geological investigations of Dana, the lore of Cuvier, the explorations of Humboldt, the intellectual riches of Agassiz in the fields of science and philosophy; the daring flights of the epic genius of Milton and Dante and Goethe; the vocabulary of Shakespeare in poetry; the stately diction of Macaulay and Gibbon and Bancroft in history, all become the common possession of the readers of the best literature.

What a treasure is a good book! We are not fully awake intellectually until we properly value such a book. He who has never felt the mental expansion and stimulus which arises from contact through the printed page, with some master mind, has not yet learned to live in the proper sense. A life without books is mere vegetating.

Ignorance curses us with weakness; knowledge crowns us with power. God says, "My people perish for lack of knowledge." It is the duty of every Christian to improve his talent by the acquisition of useful knowledge. An ignorant Christian in the midst of opportunities of learning is no credit to the Lord and his cause, to say the least. Nor can he fulfill his mission as he should. Especially is knowledge power and Christian work in our time, when everybody is waking up. Christians need to lead the way in intelligence, and in the cultivation of the mind as well as of the heart. No one should be content to live in ignorance in these days when books are plentiful and cheap, and when facilities of every kind are so abundant.

More particularly would we urge upon our readers the value of such study as promotes a knowledge of the Word and works of God. Let the Bible be the centre of your study. Get all the light upon it you can. Master its phrases, absorb its teachings, drink in its spirit, assimiliate its truths. Surely the book that Sir Walter Scott and Daniel Webster desired as a pillow when dying, must be a good staff to lean upon while living. With the Bible read other good literature. Be careful in selecting your books. Only the best are good enough. You do not need a great number of books, but you need choice books. He who has even one good book has good company. Therefore the apostolic admonition to Timothy, "Give attention to reading."—Evangelical Messenger.

Some Day.

When I was a boy my mother used to say to me sometimes: "De Witt, you will be sorry for that when I am gone." And I remember just how she looked, sitting there with cap and spectacles, and the old Bible in her lap. She never said a truer thing than that. While we have our friends with us we may say unguarded things that wound the feelings of those to whom we ought to give nothing but kindness. After a while some of our friends are taken away from us, and those of us who are left say: "Oh, if we only could get back those unkind words, those unkind deeds; if we could only recall them!" But you can not get them back.—Talmage.

Prayer in the Family.

I shall never forget the impression made upon me during the first year of my ministry by a mechanic I had visited, and on whom I urged the paramount duty of family prayer. One day he entered my study, bursting into tears, as he said, "You remember that girl, sir? She was my only child. She died suddenly this morning. She has gone, I hope, to God. But if so, she can tell him what breaks my heart—that she never heard a prayer in her father's house, or from her father's lips! O that she were with me but for one day again."—Dr. Macleod.

Morals.

Be a man. Be a woman. A gentleman or a lady is one who intuitively avoids giving others pain. Never get offended. Never go about asking for explanations as to what some one said about you. Don't get the "big head." Be humble. Be kind. Be sympathetic. Be pleasant. Scatter sunshine. Be agreeable. Don't be coarse. Don't be rude. Don't be boorish. Learn to say, "No," but learn to say it sweetly.

HYGIENE.

Overwork.

It is not work that kills; it is worry. It is not work that breaks down the health, it is overwork. And probably more women yield to this form of prostration than men. They have not been long enough harnessed to the world's chariot wheels to have learned to shirk. They work while strength holds out, and if they hold a responsible position, they are apt to feel that they are indispensable there, and so cling to it alone instead of asking others to share it with them; or training younger persons to be ready to step into their places when the time comes for rest. One of the best lessons, healthwise, for capable men and women to learn is that there are "just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught." It may sound like an inappreciative sentiment, but it is magnifying the human race at large, though it may seem to belittle the individual. No man or women is indispensable. The world is not made on that plan. Therefore the busiest person may pause to breathe, and so be able to live the longer and work the harder. For, though a wise Providence supplies the needs of humanity as they occur, yet the process of adjustment of new men to new places is not easy; and those who are doing important work should so order their lives that changes shall not come oftener than necessary.

But how often people forget this, and, hardening themselves with work enough for several shoulders, sink at last under the heavy load! It is but a little space of time since a noble woman gave away her life in this fashion—a sacrifice to overwork. To-day, too late, three or four people are carrying the heavy load she tried to carry alone.

As we look over the country and study various institutions, we wonder what will happen when the overworked and overworried heads fall, as they must sooner or later. People are raised up to succeed them; but what a pity to lose precious lives and experience simply because the labor was not divided sooner!

One sees the same thing in homes. The patient mother is cook, nurse, maid-of-all-work, till she drops in her place. Then a housekeeper, a maid and a nursery governess are found necessary to make good the absence of the busy hands; but no hired service can fill the void in the home and the hearts.

It is economy to spend money in home, office, institution, if it will lessen the strain of head and heart, divide the labor and lessen the care.—Mid-Continent.

I have learned from observation that three things happen to a man who works steadily without relaxation. In the first place, he becomes nervous, irritable, and hard to get along with. In the second place, the grade of his work falls off, his services are worthless, and he is liable to err in his judgment. In the third place, he dies suddenly. It is an incontrovertible law of nature.—Chauncey D. pew.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

CHARLOTTE RUSSE.—Line a dish with stale sponge cake. Take one pint of milk; set it in hot water and let it come to a boil; the yolk of three eggs, three dessert-spoonfuls of corn starch, scant half cup of sugar; heat altogether thoroughly and stir in the boiling milk until it thickens. When cool flavor with vanilla, pour in the dish and let it stand until cold. Beat the whites with powdered sugar and frost just before serving. I always take a teaspoonful of sugar to the white of an egg.

DELICATE CREAM BISCUIT.—Add to two quarts of flour one teaspoonful of butter or lard, one large teaspoonful of sugar, one small teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of yeast. Let it rise over night and in the morning knead lightly and bake in a quick oven.—Exchange.

Many a life has been injured by the constant expectation of death. It is life we have to do with, not death. The best preparation for the night is to work while the day lasts diligently. The best preparation for death is life.—George Macdonald.

The slightest sorrow for sin is sufficient if it produce amendment—the greatest is insufficient if it do not.—Colton.

THOMPSON—Mrs. MARY CURTISS THOMPSON was born in Newberry, S. C., March 12, 1820, and died in Columbus, Miss., March 10, 1896. She was converted in 1835, and joined the Methodist Church, in which she lived for sixty years. January 12, 1836, she married George W. Curtiss. They lived in Newberry until 1839, when they moved to Abbeville, and from thence, six years later, to Eutaw, Ala. Her husband died in 1850. In 1854 she went to Summerfield, Ala., and took charge of the dormitory and boarding department of the Centenary Female College, of which Rev. B. F. Larrabee was principal. Here she entered upon a life of great usefulness. She won the affections of all the pupils.

Her eldest daughter, Clara, was married to the writer of this sketch Aug. 14, 1855, in Summerfield, and went to live with her husband in New Orleans. Soon after this Mrs. Thompson removed to Columbus, Miss., assuming the same important trust in the college there, with Mr. Larrabee as principal, that she held in Summerfield. She was very popular with the students. They loved, trusted, and honored her, and her influence over the whole institution was very great for good.

In 1858 she married Peter G. Thompson, of Columbus, a typical old-time planter, with whom she lived happily until 1880, when he died.

Mrs. Perkins died in 1859, and Mary, the youngest, died the following year, leaving but one surviving child, Mrs. George T. Shattuck, who cared for her mother faithfully and tenderly during the last years of her life.

In 1861 the wife of Rev. J. B. Stone died, leaving a little infant. Mrs. Thompson took the little waif to her home, and raised it as her own.

In 1862 the writer was thrown into the hospital at Oxford with typhoid-pneumonia. Mrs. Thompson came to him and nursed him tenderly, thus saving his life.

A prominent trait of her character was her ardent attachment to her friends and family. She was unselfish and generous. She loved the people of God and his truth. For years she was too infirm to go to church. She greatly enjoyed the visits of the ladies prayer circle and the ministrations of her pastor. She was always his faithful friend and adviser.

When the messenger came she calmly gave a parting message to her physician, her pastor, and each one of the household, and fell on sleep. W. H. PERKINS.

McLAURIN—Miss MARY MCLAURIN, fourth daughter of Gov. A. J. McLaurin and wife, died March 9), after a short illness, in the home of her uncle, Dr McLaurin, of Brandon, Miss.

Just before her death, while she was speaking of Christian duties, her face brightened, and a sweet smile played over her countenance as, with a loud, clear voice, she sang,

"I would not live alway; I ask not to stay"

It was her habit to read her Bible every day. She was the light and joy of her happy home. Her father's heart knew no weariness which her song could not make him forget, or gloom which was proof against the brightness of her smile. Her first thought always was to make her mother happy; to shun all that would pain or even perplex her. She was a gentle, confiding companion, and the constant agent in those numberless acts of kindness which one cares to have rendered, because, though unpretending, they are all expressive proofs of love. She shed a sweet influence over the entire household. Here was a life of beauty, meekness, patience and goodness. By her constant, consistent Christian example she exerted an untold power over her schoolmates and friends. She would have graduated with first honors in the Brandon Female College in June.

How beautifully these Christian parents submit to our Father's will while passing through the most trying ordeal of life! With sweet submission they said: "'Tis all right; God did it." Yes, he sometimes allures us to a brighter, better world by removing our brightest objects of affection here.

"So brightly beautiful, so fair,
So lovely in your tender years,
We might have known you could not bear
To tarry in a life of tears.
Those long-fringed lashes nevermore
With drops of sorrow shall be wet,
For you have reached a blessed shore,

How dear the gate of heaven seems since we know that you have just passed through it!

MRS. R. F. WITT.

LYNCH—Mrs. MARY ANNE LYNCH (nee Hewlit) was born near Lawrence, S. C., Sept. 19, 1810, and fell on sleep at Olive Branch, Miss., Jan. 17, 1896. She was first married to Abraham Johnston Sept 27, 1835; last to Samuel Lynch, Jan. 1, 1857. She was converted at a camp meeting in South Carolina, and joined the M. E. Church at the age of seventeen years, and was faithful until death.

Sister Lynch bore burdens and saw sorrows. In early life the death of her father and mother placed upon her the care of her brothers and sisters. Though twice married, a great part of her life was in the loneliness of widowhood. Her faith in Christ enabled her to turn all these to spiritual advantage, coming to the end of life's journey a happy, patient, sweet-spirited Christian. She never murmured. Her old Bible that I looked through told the secret of her strength. It was a lamp to her feet and a light upon her pathway.

She is "not dead, but sleepeth." Thank God for such a life of purity!

CRAFT—Mrs. MATTIE M. CRAFT, formerly Miss Clower, was born NOV. 25, 1863, and died March 25, 1896.

She professed religion when quite young and joined the church, and remained steadfast in faith and true to her church vows down to the day of her death. Sister Craft was a patient, gentle, self-sacrificing follower of our Lord. This was seen in every-day life and in every relation to others—as daughter, sister, neighbor, wife, mother and friend.

The four last years of her life were filled with deep, personal bodily affliction and with constant pain; but all this was borne with the greatest Christian fortitude and with perfect resignation to the divine will.

Her end was sweet and full of comfort. She said, "Do not hold me back, but let me go home to rest," and near the last, "I feel as if I were an angel now." In this triumphant faith she went home to God. She leaves a husband desolate and six children motherless, and a large circle of friends and relatives in sorrow.

We laid her body to rest in the family burying ground in the presence of a large concourse and in full hope of a glorious resurrection. GILDAROY.

This announcement, as it was scattered through our town with the notice for the funeral services, came as a clap of thunder to large circle of friends and acquaintances, and as an overwhelming sorrow to his widow and to his children and their families.

Bro. Simpson was born in Dark county, Ohio, Dec. 26, 1825. He was married in New Albany, Ind., in February, 1850, to Mary Esther Burs, who survives him; but for the last seventeen years a resident of the town of Lafayette, La., and for eight years its postmaster.

He joined the Brooks Street (Louisville, Ky.) M. E. Church, South, in the year 1847, and for the last twenty-five years (as long as the writer has known him) has lived a consistent Christian. Naturally of a diffident and retiring disposition, his piety was manifested in a uniform holy and unblamable life. He delighted in the study of the Word of God. To him it was always the message of God to men. Much of his time was given to preparing a new translation of the New Testament from the original Greek; and the manuscripts he has left, though they may never reach the hands of the publisher, will be an invaluable memento of the dear departed.

Bro. Simpson leaves, besides his widow, two sons and two daughters—all happily married. T. F. W.

CARRUTH—Whereas, Mrs. MALISSA CARRUTH, ex-president of the Parsonage and Aid Society, has, in the infinite wisdom and mercy of God, been called to her reward; And, whereas, Our beloved sister has for many years been in the front in every work undertaken in the society; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the undersigned, members of the society, bow in humble submission to the will of God in this dispensation of his providence.

Resolved, That in recognition of her invaluable service rendered the church and the cause of missions, we hereby express our profound sense of the irreparable loss which has been sustained.

Resolved, That, as friends of this estimable lady, whose fellowship we have enjoyed, we suffer personal bereavement, and in Christian love we tender to husband and children our heartfelt sympathy and prayers.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes; that a second be sent to the family, a third to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

F. E. MAGEE, for Com.

LEE—Resolutions upon the death of Mr. GEORGE W. LEE.

Whereas, In the providence of God, Bro. G. W. Lee, the superintendent of our Sunday-school at Wesley Church, Lower Coast Mission, Louisiana Conference, has been removed by death from our midst; And, whereas, Under his fostering care this school has prospered from its organization in 1890 until the present; And, whereas, its loss to the church, Sunday-school and community at large is very great; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Wesley Church Sunday-school, that whilst we do not understand the inscrutable Providence which has taken away in the prime of his manhood our beloved superintendent, yet we know that God is too wise to err and too good to do wrong.

Resolved, That we shall ever lovingly cherish his memory, and will, with sincerity of heart, imitate his Christian virtues and pious example.

Resolved, That we tenderly sympathize with the bereaved family, and will ever pray that the grace of God may sustain their faith, and graciously comfort them in their irreparable loss.

Resolved, That we request the publication of this action of our Sunday-school in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, the representative of our church and its principles.

Learning gives us a fuller conviction of the imperfections of our nature; which one would think, might dispose us to modesty: for the more a man knows, the more he discovers his ignorance.—Collier.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

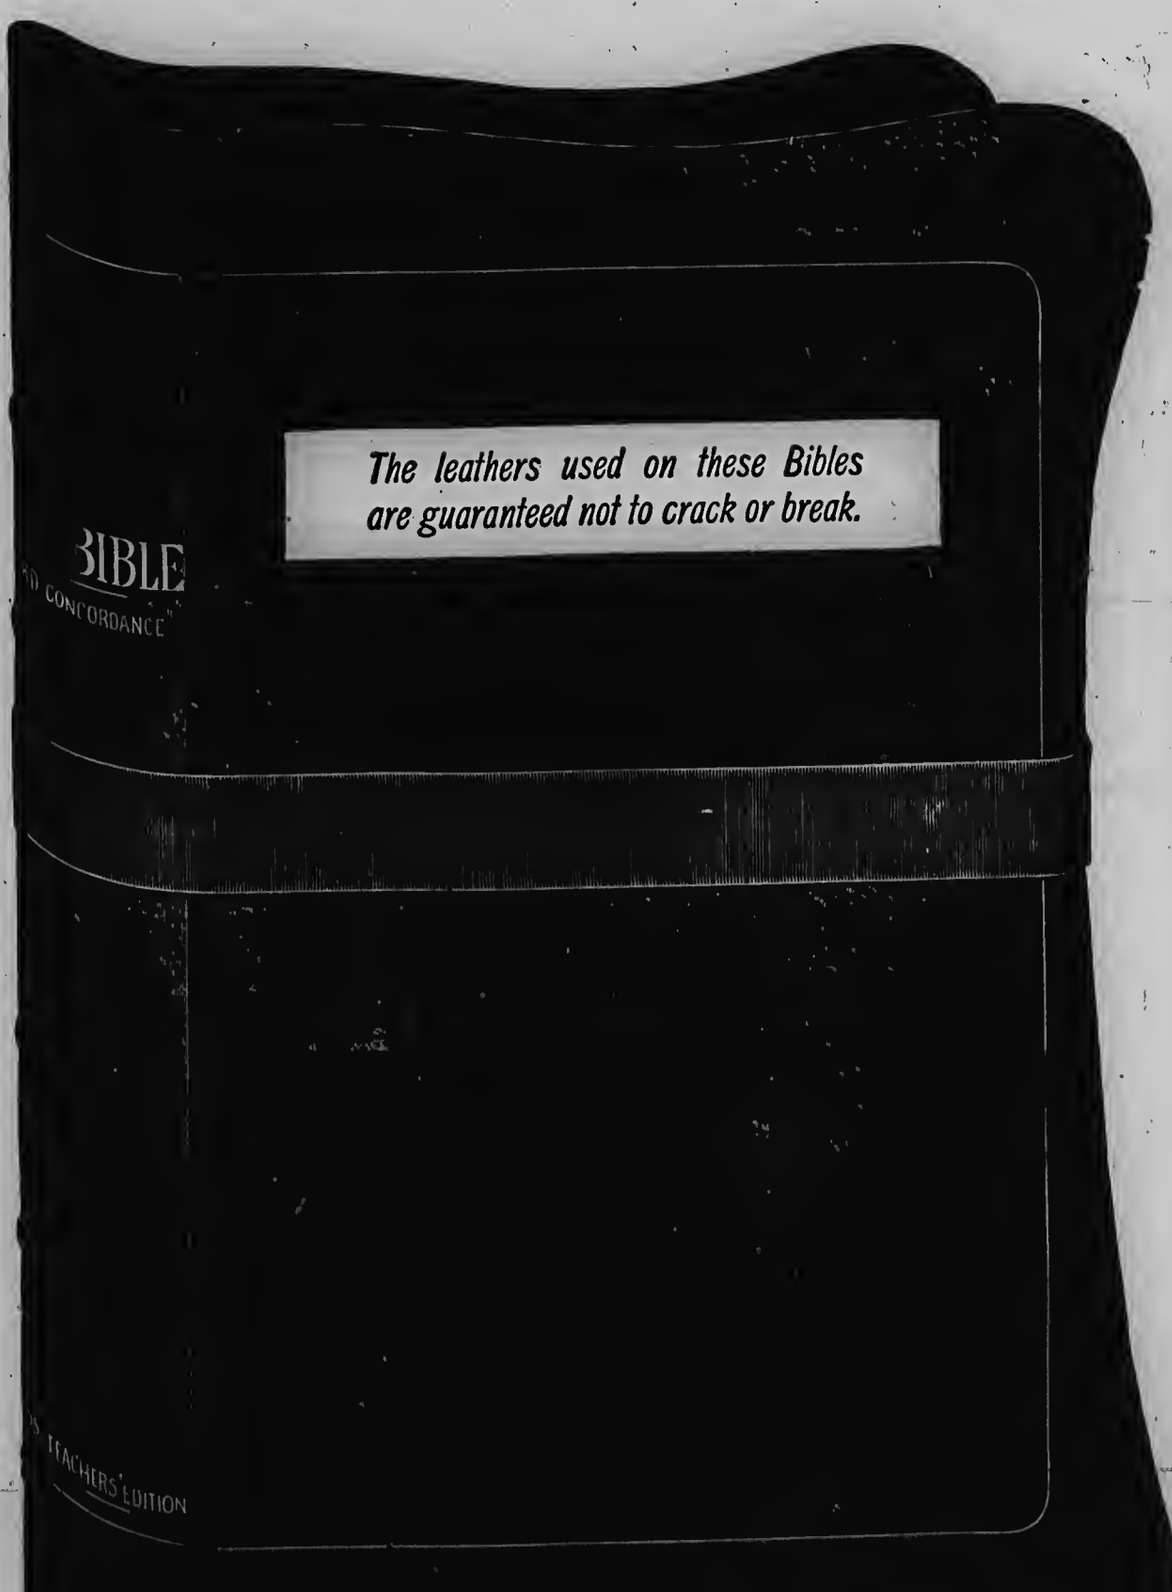
Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"



We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2 45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to April, 97. (A little later it will be May, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1 25, $1.75 and $2 45.

DOMESTIC.

The militia which were sent to Ope lousas to prevent disorder about regis tration, returned to this city on Sun day.

Some of Ballington Booth's promi nent backers in New York are desert ing him, and going back to the Salva tion Army.

Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, has taken the first steps towards becoming an American citizen, in the hope of taking the wind out of Ballington Booth's sails.

The mineral output of the United States for 1895, according to the En gineering and Mining Journal, amounted to $628 489 895, an increase of more than 15 per cent. over the previous year.

The New York Legislature has been asked for a little of $810,000 to "continue work on the new capitol during the Summer." New York bids fair to have the costliest capitol in the country, if not the handsomest.

It appears that the single State of Georgia now has more manufactories than the whole South had in 1860. This is an illustration of the remark able change that has been taking place in Southern industries during the past thirty years.

Ohio has passed an anti-lynching law, making the county where a lynching takes place liable for dam ages to the relatives of the victim. The bill was drawn by Judge Tongee, and championed through the Legislature by a negro member.

At last President Cleveland has taken action in behalf of Cuba. He has made to Spain a formal proposition that the good offices of the United States be accepted in mediation be tween that country and her rebellious colony in the West Indies. This propo sition brings to a crisis the relations of the United States and Spain.

On April 10, the Committee on Ap propriations of the House of Repre sentatives reported favorably a bill providing for coast fortifications and other works of defense and armament. The amount appropriated will exceed $11,000,000, all of which will become available after July 1, should the bill pass. Of the total appropriation, $5,200,000 will be expended for heavy guns and mortars, the balance of the money being for sites and the construc tion of forts and works.

FOREIGN.

The government of Canada has au thorized the British government an offer of a regiment of Canadian militia for service in the Soudan.

The population of Europe has in creased 29,928,000 during the past ten years, nearly one-half the increase be ing in Russia. France gained but 67,000.

King Menelik, of Abyssinia, has sent to the Czar his regrets over his inability to attend the latter's approaching coronation at Moscow. He has a previous engagement with the Italian gene ral.

Indians of the Six Nations, in Canada, have applied to the Canadian govern ment for permission to organize a regi ment in their tribes. They say that it would have a very happy effect on the spirit of the tribes.

It is said that Emperor William and King Humbert, at their conference on Saturday last, decided to prolong the Triple Alliance until 1902. The pres ent agreement includes an offensive as well as a defensive clause.

The approaching coronation of the Czar of Russia promises to bring to gether some very remarkable men from all parts of the world as representatives of their respective nationalities; but probably the most conspicuous figure in the gathering will be old Li Hung Chang, the Chinese statesman.

Mr. Gerald Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, introduced the new Irish Land bill in the House of Commons on April 13. It is of much wider scope than that of Mr. John Morley, who was chief secretary for Ireland in the late liberal government, and is upon the principle of purchase by the occupying tenant, being the ultimate solution of the land question.

It now appears that the rebellion of natives in South Africa is a very much more serious affair than was at the first supposed. The entire Matabele tribe, which gave the British so much trouble two years ago, is in active revolt, and it is even reported that Lobengula, the Matebele chief, supposed to be dead, has reappeared, and will lead the tribesmen in their fight against the British South African forces.

The imperial yacht "Hohenzollern," with Emperor William of Germany and the Empress on board, entered the St. Marie dock, Venice, on April 11. The King and Queen of Italy, accompanied by Premier Rudini, all the cabinet ministers and General Count Lanes of Busca, the Italian ambassador at Berlin, boarded the imperial yacht as soon as she was moored and greeted the distinguished visitors. The meeting between the Emperor and King Humbert and between the Empress and Queen Margaret was of the most cordial nature.

"Come over and help us"—or send. We began last year an effort to build a parsonage. Have exhausted all available resources (local), with a small donation from the W. F. and H. M. Society, and have not touched the inside of building. Will not those who read this, who are in comfortable quarters (and those not comfortably situated will sympathize with us, too), send a dollar or fifty cents, or even twenty five cents—any amount will be thankfully received—to help us finish our parsonage?

The Sense of Sin.

I never felt the sense of sin so much as in reading a monograph describing some sixty-two cases of melancholia, in most of which the depression was originally caused by some outrageous violation of the laws of natural and healthful living. In other words, there had been something which it used to be allowable to call sin at the root of it. And when we look around upon all the iniquity in the world; when we see things creeping into our educational institutions which the best of our educators recognize, but do not speak of, I for one feel that we need to have sin preached and realized, as arrest of development, as the perversion of human nature, as possible in its worst forms under the mask of intellectual culture, as being able to corrode and rot the soul in our very midst by its insidious approaches, and as needing and meriting just as strong language as Calvin himself ever wanted to use of it. We are losing out of our souls, somehow or other, two things: the old, healthy Socratic sense of ignorance, and the old Pauline, Calvinistic sense of sin. It is a magnificent tonic for any young man to take a moral stock of his own soul once in a while, and to see how far he has lived right and how far he has not, and to realize what the consciousness of sin, biological and physiological, really is, at that great stage of adolescence when we receive from nature and from heredity the stock of life force that is to bring men to maturity, if they do not squander their capital too soon; it is the most healthful thing in the world to take account of that stock, to recognize where the leaks and wastes are, and to develop a healthful, strong and deep moral self-consciousness. From every standpoint—from the study of childhood, from the study of adolescence, from the study of disease—it seems to me that the conscience of the world is soon to be much more awakened than it has been in generations, and that from this very standpoint of biology.—G. S. Hull.

Cooks for Hotels and Restaurants as well as for private families are fast settling down to the conviction that Salvation Oil is absolutely necessary for burns, scalds and chapped hands, and they show their faith by keeping it on hand.

Aberdeen District Ministers' Institute.

The Ministers' Institute of the Aberdeen district will be held at Tupelo, Miss., April 22 and 23, and the following programme will be observed:

How a Woman Paid Her Debts.

A lady in Lexington says: "I am out of debt, and thanks to the Dish Washer business. In the past six weeks I have made $530.00. Every house-keeper wants a Dish Washer, and any intelligent person can sell them with big profit to himself. The Dishwasher is lovely, you can wash and dry the family dishes in two minutes and without wetting your hands. You can get particulars by addressing, The Mound City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. There is big money in the business for an agent. I expect to clear $5 000 the coming year. I need the money, why not make it.

Not Wasteful.

It is wonderful how contracted some minds are in regard to foreign missions. We are told that they are too costly, that we are spending too much money abroad in this sort of work; yet such persons have nothing to say about the enormous sums spent in personal luxury or in various kinds of amusement. It seems to them a wasteful expenditure to contribute millions for the spread of the gospel, yet all that is given to this purpose is a mere pittance compared to what is lavished upon even one item of worldly gratification. Statistics show that all the Protestant Churches of the United States give annually to foreign missions $11,250,000. How large the sum and how creditable to the church! say some. What a tremendous waste! say others. But, on the other hand, note how paltry this sum appears alongside of what is "paid every year by the American people for their theatrical entertainment!" Dion Boucicault said that it amounts to $200,000,000. Think of it and make the application! Eighteen dollars annually is given to maintain the theater, whose influence is demoralizing, and which the country could dispense with to its moral advantage, for each dollar yearly contributed to extend the gospel to the nations of the earth, or to multiply an agency which carries Christian enlightenment and redeems humanity.—Presbyterian.

For Indigestion
Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate.

Dr. PATRICK HOOT, Oxford, N. C., says: "I have frequently prescribed it in appropriate cases of indigestion with great satisfaction."

To be always intending to live a new life, but never to find time to set about it, is as if a man should put off eating and drinking from one day to another, till he is starved and destroyed.—Tillotson.

False Swearing.

Perjury is more frequently committed and less seldom punished than any of the felonies. This sore evil has not only spread through all the departments of juridical jurisdictions—the practical administration of the law—but starting thence, as a fountain head, its baneful influence has gone out into the social and business life of the people. Social and political conditions have been important factors in the conditions above stated. The evils arising from the sale of intoxicating liquors, and, above all, that tiger that creeps and slides through the dark, hidden and low places of our town and villages—an enemy of all good—and whose very name symbolizes the darkest depths of hellish hatred, baseness and ferocity—these all live and thrive by means of perjury. Men engaged in the sale of liquor, lawful or unlawful, seek to build up a public sentiment that winks at perjury when committed to shield these violators of the liquor law from the penalties thereof. It is common to hear such men say something like this: "That the man who will patronize a blind tiger, and then betray it, or the man who will purchase liquor from the illegal vendor thereof, is a worse man than he who sells the liquor or runs the blind tiger." And how plausible do they make this argument appear to the youth who has, for the first time, gone into a blind tiger! And here comes in the danger of association with the sellers of liquor—a kind of comradeship is formed, a "bon homme," hail fellow, well met (sympathy and friendship); and to betray one of these boon companions is treason.

Now, whilst men of strong will and firm moral convictions will not be influenced by these things, but when placed in the witness stand, under his corporal oath, will tell the truth, though the effect of his evidence is to bring down the penalties of the law on his so-called comrades (yet weaker natures), equally as good men, with the exception that they are wanting in moral firmness and fearlessness. These, too, too frequently, when they come down from the witness stand, are received by their liquor friends with open arms. But let the whole truth be told, the witness has committed perjury. There is no disputing the fact: the sale of liquor, illegal, as well as the legal sale thereof, tends to foster perjury.

There is another fact that has played an unimportant part in the increase of false swearing, and that is the black cloud of witnesses which the results of the late Civil War placed on the witness stand. It would have been a singular fact if this great revolution had not had its effect on judicial evidence. The negro, as a class, lacks moral firmness, is pliant, and much disposed to take on the character of his surroundings, and is more particularly liable to the sin of false swearing. But to his credit, let it be said, that, as a race, he is the freest and last seldom guilty of the crime of malicious perjury, for whilst the negro, through the infirmity of his nature, may be prone to false swearing to save a friend, yet we but seldom find him attempting to swear away the life of an accused person.

It may be asked, Do not our laws sufficiently punish perjury? Has the law denounced no penalty against the false swearer? Yes, both by the common and statute law perjury is made a felony. In this respect the common law (old English common law) departs from the Mosaical code. According to the law of the Pentateuch, the false swearer was punished in this wise, "Then shall ye do unto him as he had thought to have done unto his brother." (Deut. xix, 19.) Our law, on the other hand, punishes perjury by imprisonment in the penitentiary, without reference to cause, purpose, or object of the perjury (our law books on perjury as a distinct substantive offense). The Levitical law punished this offense strictly with reference to its cause and purpose. We are told by the sages of the law that harsh penalties do little good, for two reasons—one is, they are but little enforced; the other is, that they tend to produce false swearing. When perjury is punished as a substantive offense, the operation of the law must be harsh in many instances. Take this case: A father swears falsely to save his son's life. Another man—the prosecution say—swears falsely, commits perjury, to have that son hung; to have an innocent man hung. Now, can any just man say that the two men should be equally punished? Yet the common law—which is the law of all the States of this Union save one only, where it is not changed by statute—declares that both these men are guilty of felony, and punishable as felons. How much more reasonable is the Levitical law, which punishes the false swearer according to the object and purpose of the false swearing! And in the case mentioned the prosecutor would have been punished, according to the Mosaical code, as a felon; and was he not a murderer at heart? It may be objected that according to the Levitical law a false swearer would not be punished at all where the object of the perjury was to acquit, instead of convict. But this objection is not relevant to the issue, which issue is, that false swearing should be punished with reference to its purpose and object. We repeat again that it can not be truthfully said that there are no degrees in perjury; that perjury is the same, whether committed with the object of saving the life of a relation, or for the purpose of punishing an innocent man. It is not even true that there are no degrees in malicious perjury, for the man who swears falsely to convict another of assault and battery is not so great a criminal as the man who perjures himself to hang an innocent man. We again repeat that the wisdom of ages has demonstrated the fact that harsh laws, and especially where they are uneven and unequal in their operation, are but poorly enforced. We commonly hear of men sent to the penitentiary for murder; but how seldom do we hear of a man being sent to the penitentiary for perjury! This sometimes happens, but how out of all proportion to the frequency of the offense! The importance of truthfulness in the administration of the law can not well be overestimated. How frequently are courts and juries, and even lawyers, censured, when the fault lies, not with them, but with the witnesses!

It is in vain to look for permanent relief from present conditions until the causal factors of that condition have been changed. The sale of whisky—at least the sale of it by the drink—the saloon, will soon be a thing of the past. The condition of the negro—his moral betterment—I hope, is likewise being changed, to his profit, and with these improved relations our civilization will receive a new impulse; and, as we go to the Bible for all that is good, let us likewise go to this pure fountain and drink long and deep from this inexhaustible source of divine jurisprudence, and learn therefrom to temper justice with mercy; and while we punish the false swearers, let him be punished with reference to the object and purpose of his false oath. Laws are not made for angels, but for men subject to the infirmities of the flesh. Mere abstract justice is entirely too theoretical for practical use. It is only when the "res gestæ" of the offense are all considered, the facts and circumstances that surrounded the offender at the time of the offense committed, and, above all, the purpose and intent which actuated the wrong-doer—when these all are heard and heeded, and the punishment graded, fixed, and established with reference to the same, then can exact justice be done, and the criminal punished as his crime or offense deserves. LAYMAN OR SEXTUS.

A Boy Again.

A short time since it was my great pleasure to spend a night and part of a day at Millsaps College. It being Friday night, I found the students rather more at leisure, I suppose, than usual; and having two boys in the institution, they took me in hand to care for and show me the sights.

The first event was an introduction to the dining room of Williams' Hall, presided over by that most estimable lady and housekeeper, Mrs. Emma Cook. Here I found a score or more of young men doing full justice to the evening meal, and getting value received for money paid. No breakdown there for want of proper nourishment, which was fully attested by the general appearance of those around the board. Twenty, and more, years ago I sat with just such a company; and on this evening I was transported backward to the dining-halls of old Emory and Henry in the far-off State of Virginia. I recalled the cheerful faces of Werlein, Steele, Adams, Newell, and a score of others now in the midst of life's battles—true men in the Master's vineyard—and wondered if it were possible that so many years had fled, or was I dreaming? During these years the schools have made wonderful strides in scientific and other knowledge; but I found the same peculiarities, idiosyncrasies, and mirth-loving dispositions that have in all the past, and will for the ages to come, characterize human nature. The jocular, the quick-witted, the irrepressible tease, the sedate, the chatter-box, and the intensely busy with the work in hand, were all represented in that merry crowd.

Make me a boy again just for to-night," came almost audibly from my lips.

Supper over, I was escorted to the college building, where the two literary societies, Galloway and Lamar, were in session. After hearing quite a spirited debate in the former, I was conducted to the latter, where, although the main question had been decided, I heard in the discussions of their business affairs enough to convince me that a public debate between members of these two societies would evince talent of no mean order. President Murrah informed me that many very grave questions—social, political, and otherwise—were satisfactorily settled in these halls. Here again the spirit of earlier days came upon me, and I was only too glad to renew the recollections. I recalled the shaking of knees and stammering speech of other days. I remembered, too, the flights attempted and the mortifying failures; yet I said,

"Backward, turn backward."

On Saturday morning I visited the improvised "Science Hall" in company with Prof. Muckenfuss. Here I found a very neatly arranged set of apparatus for chemical work, though entirely too cramped to meet the desired end. As I passed through, getting many valuable suggestions from the learned professor, I said: "Surely, if the Methodists of Mississippi could realize the needs and the advantages to be gotten from a well-equipped Science Hall under the direction of such a man, our genial Dr. West would have easy sailing in the collection which he has in hand." In this department I felt that to be a boy again would be my delight to study the wonderful works of Him who in wisdom hath created the heavens and the earth.

A base-ball game at four o'clock P. M. tempted me to linger and see a few runs, for I remembered the great delight to me was this game as I played at the "short-stop" on the old play-ground. Again, again, "Backward, turn backward," my spirit cried; yet I could not yield, so I awoke from my reverie, and thankful for a pleasant stay with the boys, cheerful greetings from friends, and realizing the changes which have separated me so far from these days and boyish pleasures, I turned my steps to the stern duties that awaited me in my own field of labor.

In the Living Present.

The endowment for churches is not wise. God loves a cheerful giver. Why constrain God to love only a wealthy few? All, even the poorest, should be privileged to contribute towards the support of the house of God. Endow colleges, hospitals, etc., but not churches.

Horse meat is gaining in favor with European housekeepers. Of all animals, the horse is the cleanliest. It would rather starve than eat fetid matter or drink foul water, as other animals consume with relish. Trichina of the porcupine and pulmonary diseases of cattle are unknown among horses. Horse meat is said to taste like goose.

The Free Thought Magazine compares Mrs. Stanton, chief editress of the Woman's Bible, to our Savior. He had corrected and revised the Old Testament. Hence fierce opposition, which resulted in his crucifixion. Mrs. Stanton was doing a similar work—expunging from the Bible all that is of human origin, etc. Hence the opprobrium of men. Well, the magazine does not seem to know that to render a thing ridiculous is to kill it.

In the North American Review Rev. Judson Smith defends successfully, we ween, the missionary movements of the various churches. That it was not true that missionaries are political agitators, dangerous innovators, and fanatical sociologists. A new civilization, literary impetus, independence, usually follow evangelization; but missionaries seek primarily the salvation of men. If the gospel upsets antiquated and erroneous views, it should not be charged to the missionaries.

The Christian at Work advocates keeping our churches open during the entire week, from morning until night. Well, if the family altar collapsed and prayer in secret is not practiced, then the movement is advisable. Discouraging the same because of Roman Catholic usage in this respect is silly. The wise refuse not to learn even from an enemy. We should facilitate communing with God in prayer.

We have heard it said that a church is not a prison. Admittance and exit of member voluntary. 'Tis hence very reprehensible to stay in a church with whose doctrines and designs we are no longer in sympathy, proving ourselves pestiferous agitators, causing unrest among others. If a church no longer suits us, we should have the honesty to quit.

Kindness always pays. Happy the person who is enabled to scatter many beams of sunlight. But Rev. W. R. McNeil, of Emporium, Pa., has received even pecuniary remuneration for his kindness. When, a year ago, in Jersey City, he met an old lady carrying several bundles, dropping her spectacles on the muddy street. Her bundles prevented raising the glasses. Boys near by derided. But the preacher handed her the spectacles. She asked him his name and address. Recently the old lady died and left in her will $10,000 for the kind preacher.

Greenville District Conference.

The Greenville District Conference met at Rosedale, Miss., April 9, 1896, Rev. Jno. A. Randolph in the chair. A critical inquiry showed marked improvement over last year in nearly all the interests of church work. Every pastor in the district was present, and one or more laymen from most of the charges. It was gratifying to learn that the spiritual condition of the district is in advance of any year in its history. The temperance sentiment is growing all the time. Two counties have voted dry. One other has closed saloons by petition. Tunica county recently voted wet by thirty majority. Three supervisors' districts in that county have closed all saloons by petition. It was developed that one of the greatest evils the church in the Delta has to contend with is desecration of the Sabbath. In many places some merchants transact business as on any other day. Prominent citizens, to whom the people look for a better example, spend the Sabbath hunting and fishing, and indications plainly declare that some are to be found in club rooms and other places gambling.

We were glad to welcome Dr. W. B. Murrah, of Millsaps College, who made the best speech on Christian education we have ever heard him make.

Our old reliable J. W. Honnoll, of Malone College, was on hand, preaching and talking some, and not a surplus word in all he said.

Mrs. W. M. McIntosh, the accomplished wife of Bro. McIntosh, of Grenada Collegiate Institute, carried the day, for her brief statement provoked a spontaneous collection toward contemplated improvements.

Resolutions commendatory of Bro. Randolph's administration as presiding elder on this district for four years were unanimously passed by a rising vote.

We missed you, Mr. Editor, and many regrets were expressed on account of your absence.

E. H. Moore, J. D Palmer, L. P.; Dr. J. B. Pease, G. F. Maynard, were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with Robert Somerville and D. J. Allen as alternates.

The next Conference goes to Clarksdale.

The hospitality of Rosedale can not be surpassed. It was hearty, cheering, abundant, and gracious.

Our host, Bro. J. C. Mimms, deserves the thanks of the Conference for his share in our entertainment.

Church Air.

Most persons who attend church with some regularity, especially crowded ones, have often experienced a feeling of drowsiness during the service, which could not have been caused by the dullness of the sermon. Experience has shown that it is soon dissipated on going into the fresh air. The cause of this drowsiness has generally been attributed to a lack of oratory on the part of the minister, or to his dullness, or prosy ways of thinking. A hygienist will, in most cases, trace its cause to the impurity of the air of the church. In too many cases those who build sacred edifices have no conception of the amount of fresh air required to keep the atmosphere of a room sweet and clean. It can, however, be easily calculated. There should be not less than 3,000 cubic feet of outside air provided hourly for each person while in the church. If much less is supplied, the carbonic acid and other toxic matters given off by respiration increases so fast that in a crowded room the air becomes too foul for supporting life healthfully in a very few minutes. We can not expect to keep the air in our rooms as pure as outdoor air; but there is a standard of purity which we should try to maintain. Outdoor air contains from 3 to 4 parts of carbonic acid in every 10,000 parts of air. This we may breathe with impunity. But indoor air contains more, and may contain much more, even 10 parts; and in a crowded place, as in some schoolrooms, theatres, and churches, 15 or 20 parts. If, however, there are more than 6 parts in 10,000 of air, it has a depressing effect on the nervous system and produces drowsiness.

Such an air, if heated, as in cold weather, affects also the preacher. Clergyman's sore throat and hoarseness are induced by the constant effort to speak well in a heated and relaxing atmosphere. Church windows, except in the rural districts, are not made to open, and even if they were, unless the entering air is directed upwards to a considerable height, it falls upon the heads of the congregation, and complaints of draughts are made, which promptly secure their closing. Most churches are heated by hot air furnaces, and this brings in much fresh air if properly arranged, but never enough. Exhaust ventilators in the roof are practically unknown in churches; consequently the foul and heated air never escapes, and after service, as the heated air cools, it descends, and a fresh congregation rebreathes the used air of its predecessors. Our churches are intended as places in which to keep alive the moral sentiments and to increase our knowledge as to how our conduct should be regulated by principles of right and duty, and we are beginning to find out that morals may be related to our physical conduct, and that it is a sin against the laws of our being to live and breathe a polluted atmosphere even in a house of worship. The clergy, who are as deeply interested as any in this subject, may most properly act as leaders in reforming our church air to a standard which hygiene demands.—The Journal of Hygiene.

Both English and American literature is suffering from the introduction of French realism. It is one of the unsettling agencies at work in both countries. It goes into homes and circles from which a few years ago it would have been rigidly excluded. Libraries are now full of it, and an increasing number of readers seek after it with greediness. As the result, the standard of public morals has been lowered, and personal moral conviction has been weakened. The demoralizing effect in Great Britain has been so marked that The Christian, of London, in its review of current events, has been forced to raise a note of warning against this evil tendency. In regard to its productions, our contemporary forcibly remarks: "What strength lies in them is derived from sensationalism, from vivid, but doubtful, scenes of passion; from situations in which the seamy, unregulated, self-assertive side of human nature is boldly and sympathetically depicted, and in which the old social conventions equally with eternal spiritual ideas are cynically and scornfully repudiated."—Intelligencer.

God takes into account intentions as well as actions, belief as well as practice, profession as well as life. The purpose is as important as the execution. What we are is the result of what we will and feel. The inner and outer relations must be in harmony with God's requirements.

Without memory the judgment must be unemployed, and ignorance must be the consequence. Pliny says it is one of the greatest gifts of nature.—Montaigne.

KINDNESS.

BY K. DOLORES.

Speak but a word of kindness
To a sorrow-stricken heart;
And sympathy, with tender voice,
Bids half the pain depart.
One little word of kindness,
Oh! who can tell its worth,
When misery's pall has shadowed
A creature's path on earth?
Just as a gleam of sunshine
Across the frozen earth
Awakes the sleeping flowers
And calls them forth in birth,
So may a word of kindness
Wake depths in the human heart—
Unsounded depth; perchance that lay
Congealed by sorrow's smart.
One little word of kindness
May prove a beacon bright
For some poor pilgrim, storm-tossed
On some bleak, dismal height.
Oh! could we know the value
Of every spoken word,
Throughout the land from east to west
What kind ones would be heard.

Education—Another View.

Of late some of the brethren have had much to say about education and the ministry, and discoursed eloquently on the subject, stating that the burning need of our branch of the church was a better educated pulpit. One brother talks in a manner that would lead one to think that he believes the cause of so frequent removals among our preachers is want of education or preaching ability: says that the men who serve the same church the full term, and then go away wept by the congregation, are college-bred, or words of like import.

Now, does not such speech do that large class of preachers, who are removed every year or two, a very grave injustice? Is it always so that he who moves often is "weak above the eyes?" Then religion must be of the head rather than of the heart. I know a good many men of the moving class, who, judged by their "conversation" in the pulpit and out of it, are quite well educated. Now, as it strikes me, the tendency these days to classify a man by the money he collects and is paid, as by the length of time spent in the same place, is entirely too strong. It savors too much of the world's method of measuring success. Not alone to the clergy does this idea confine itself, but the members of the churches are, it seems, looking at it that way. Maybe some of our Bishops do, but I trust not. How is it that most of the city preachers usually remain four years, while in the small towns and country circuits few remain over two years? In the cities the people are better educated than the country people are. The common experience of country or town preachers is that the really educated portion of their charges are not hard to get along with. The cry of ignorance in the preacher quite invariably comes from the half-educated. The cause is dullness in themselves: inability to see the point of a bright thought when it is presented. Very few men are interesting or edifying every time they speak. We have heard very dry and commonplace speeches and sermons by D. D.'s, and even Bishops. Educated people are aware of this. They do not expect something grand every time they go to church. Here is another thing: In the city, where there are always more churches than are ever filled, if one falls out with the preacher, or tires of his voice or sermons, that one goes abroad for one or two Sabbaths; whereas, in the country, nothing of the kind can be done. The preacher must be endured till Conference meets. Meanwhile, no stone is left unturned to secure its unpopular preacher's removal. Oftentimes all that is ever said or done is the dropping of a note to the presiding elder just about Conference time. He (the said presiding elder) is a conscientious man, and he must remove the preacher. He does so for the glory of the cause (?).

Now, if Bro. Parker don't believe this; if he thinks the work is as easy-going in country places and villages as it is in cities, let him come out here next year, and I'll take his place in town.

As to helping young preachers through college, I favor helping, but for very strong reasons, to my mind, disfavor the policy of taking them into full charge and pushing them through school. Let the young men be men, and work their way through school. It may be a little hard on them, and take a little longer; but what of that? They will be stronger and more valuable men to the world when they do go out into it. A young man who has the determination to fit himself for the office of a minister of Christ in the church of God, let the obstacles be never so great, is a right manly man, no dollbaby sort of a pretty fellow, and just the sort the church needs and God needs to do his work everywhere. If you make education so easy, there are sure to be abuses. Too many will be called. Why, look at the Mississippi Conference. A year ago she shut her doors right in the faces of ten bright boys, and she has had a Ministerial Educational Association quite a long time. Everywhere the Conferences are full; some places overflowing. God has other work than preaching for holy men to do. Why tell every young man, as soon as he is converted, that he is called to preach? We need pious men in the steward's office, to teach in Sunday-schools, and to work on farms, in shops, and behind counters. There is the weak point in the church. That is why our pastors in the country find it so hard to raise the collections; and that is why they must live on so little while they toil so hard. No, do not help the boys too much. That were even more fatal than no help.

A word to my "Bro. Layman." He lives in the county, judging from the tone of his letter, which appeared in the paper several weeks ago. He complains at his poor preacher, and says he wants a better educated man and a more edifying preacher. Your pastor could and would do much finer work if you would support him more genteely. Hire a man to work his garden and truck patch, and thus give him more time to visit, study, and quietly and all alone, with only God near, to meditate. He needs a few new books yearly. He does not take the papers he needs in order to keep up with the time. He would very much appreciate one or two of the best magazines, but is not able to take one—not even that published by his church.

Compare your preacher, educationally, with the other public men in your town—say the doctor, the school teacher (professor they call him now), or with any of your village officials; or, as for that matter, with your honorable representative, and how does he stand? Unless you have an exceptionally bright set, I tenderly pity him if he knows less on general subjects than do they. But if you will pay your pastor more, to enable him to maintain his family well, and have plenty to spend for such books and literature as his taste may dictate, you will be astonished at the difference in the quality of his preaching as well as in social life.

March 25, 1896.

BY I. W. COOPER, D. D.

When Dean Stanley was drawing near his death, he asked Dr. Vaughan to preach his funeral sermon in Westminster Abbey, saying, "You knew me the longest." Our departed brother selected a friend to write his memoir, saying, "You knew me well." The old soldier has fallen! He fell on the battlefield of life, with his face toward the eternal hills. The Christian warrior had been in many a conflict; but when the last battle was fought, the sword was placed in its scabbard for the first time, and our brother laid down on the tented field to awake amid the victories of the other life, in which peace floweth as a river. The home, the church, and the world have lost one who could say, as Pericles said when dying, "I never caused an Athenian to suffer."

Measured by the standard of popular acclaim, measured by the gain of riches, measured by what the world calls success, our brother's life was not a great success; but when measured by the laws of the inner life, by the inscription of character, by the capacity to love, by the heart which is receptive to the movements of the Holy Spirit, by the faith which laid hold of the cross, by the fidelity which never grew weary, our brother's life possessed all the elements of a successful life. His conceptions of life were too broad for him even to be sordid or contracted. He gave the world all he had—the wealth of his love, the wealth of his tenderness and usefulness, and the wealth of his triumphant faith and character, which were made rich by having their main-spring in Christ, who possesses all the riches of eternity.

Our brother possessed the beautiful trait of humility. Acathocles, who became a king, kept an earthen plate to remind himself that he was once a potter. Our brother never forgot the frailties, vanities, and dangers of human life, and that the secret of human character was not in human agencies, but in spiritual forces which are supernatural. His life touched the Christ of Gethsemane—and from the place of sorrows he went forth with the likeness of Christ stamped on his brow. While he was humble he possessed all the elements of the highest moral bravery. Eudoxia threatened St. Chrysostom with banishment; he calmly replied, "Tell her I fear nothing but sin." The slip of this faithful servant of God gave the same testimony.

There were no stings in his words; they were freighted with faith and love. Our friend was a most excellent preacher of the gospel. His sermons as delivered could have been printed without correction. Coming as they did from a well-trained mind and a consecrated heart, they were always a delight and inspiration to the thoughtful hearers.

The home life of our brother was beautiful and sacred. He was the center of affection and reverence. Carlyle said when his wife died, "The light of my life has gone out." There are many loved ones who feel since the vacant chair in the faithful itinerant home that the light of the home went out when he left.

We record these events: Rev. Thomas Price was born in Washington, Adams county, Miss., Oct. 9, 1819; was early converted; was educated at LaGrange College during the presidency of Bishop Paine; entered the work of the ministry at an early age; was married to Miss Tabitha E. Haney, daughter of Rev. J. P. Haney, Nov. 25, 1845. By this union there were ten children, four of whom are living. May 24, 1883, he was married to Miss Laura M. Whittington, daughter of the late Rev B. B. Whittington. Departed this life at Lake Charles, La., March 24, 1896. His bereaved wife writes: "On the evening before his death, while sitting with him alone, though unconscious as to things around him, and his life quietly ebbing away, I repeated the 123rd Psalm and the hymn he so much loved, 'Jesus, lover of my soul.' I felt sure that he heard me from the look on his face."

Farewell, dear friend! You have reached heaven. You understand love and friendship are eternal. We will cherish your memory and emulate your virtues, and hope to overtake you some sweet day in the summer land of glory. Rest sweetly in your new-made grave—far away from your comrades of other years—for you were weary and burdened with years and heaven is richer since you entered.

"It is not death to die,
To leave this weary road,
And, 'mid the brotherhood on high
To be at home with God.

"It is not death to close
The eye long dimmed by tears,
And wake, in glorious repose
To spend eternal years."

The annual gatherings of our dear Lord's laborers are delightful oases in life's journey, the sweet memory of which serves to beguile the lonely hour, and nerves us to press onward with renewed vigor. Appreciation of old friends prepares us for full enjoyment of new friendships hallowed by grace divine. We were pleased to find the pastors of the Vicksburg district so ready to encourage and help us in our work. All can form some idea of the spirit of the brethren—their appreciation and readiness to help us—by reading the resolutions adopted at the recent session of the District Conference, to be found in the report of the secretary in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Dr. Weems, true to himself, most earnestly and impressively presented our work, and no more forceful words could be uttered than those of his commendation of our Woman's Missionary Advocate. The Little Worker was also highly recommended. We trust this will be the keynote of the Mississippi Conference. Three new societies in Vicksburg district reported for last quarter, making eleven in all—hopes of two more in the near future. Sister Weems is still working on the district.

We find some of the Conference officers are working industriously—perhaps all are. Entering wedges are being used, and as Dr. Weems said of us, "We enter the wedges and keep hammering," etc. Seed are being sown, and we are hopeful that the work among the young people and juveniles will develop many unused and dormant talents, or turn them from worldly uses to that of our blessed Savior.

Said Miss Haygood: "I can not but feel that Christians generally are ready to accept any great truth which is fairly presented to them, and that Christians in the home land, if they only understood the wonderful possibilities and the grave responsibilities which God has put upon them, would be ready to meet them."

In the February number of the Woman's Missionary Advocate we find: "Then came words of love and farewell from Miss Haygood—words, too, that brought regret and sorrow, not because she was about to return to the friends and the work that so longed for and needed her, but because her heart was so sad over the indifference of the majority of the women of our church to the work of foreign missions. Said she: 'This indifference pained and discouraged me, and often I had to turn my thoughts to the work being done in China for comfort and encouragement.'" Let each of us ponder well these parting words.

Let us not forget to pray for the Holy Spirit's presence at the annual session of the Woman's Board, to be held in Washington, D. C., June 5.

Our faithful corresponding secretary again reports: "Give notice through W. F. M. S. column that Miss Bettie Watts, of Newton, is secretary of Brandon district in lieu of Mrs. W. P. Jones, whose removal caused resignation. Mrs. Trueheart writes me four more candidates have been before the local Board, examined and accepted—ready to go as soon as the church will send. Pray that they may soon go with the 'news of salvation.'"

Mrs. Trueheart's last quarterly report of the Mississippi Conference is quite encouraging. Nine adult auxiliaries and two young people's and juveniles organized; members, 157.

In Nashville Christian Advocate: "One hears much about the multiplication of benevolent societies by women these days, and the fear that such multiplication will seriously interfere with home, and take mothers away from family duties and unfit them for the sphere to which, in God's providence, they have been assigned. There is in reality no danger of such disaster. The women who give time and thought to benevolent enterprises are not only the best women, but the most valuable mothers. The educative process, due to systematic training in good work outside the home, makes all homes better, brighter, more intellectual homes. Compare ten women who give attention to the benevolent institutions of Christianity with ten of the best society women, and it will be easily seen which of them are most apt to grow indifferent to the sacred claims of the family; which of them bring into the home the most healthful influences. Where the heart is made better and stronger, there the hands will be most ready to execute the demands of all duties."—T.

Juvenile Work.

I am sorry, indeed, I have been so situated that I have not been able to prepare a better article on this subject, but would be glad indeed to say anything that would help or encourage others in this (to my mind), a very important department of our church work, Parsonage and Home Missions, and more especially among our children.

My friends, there is a blessing offered us for this work. Can we deny this to our children, or stand in their way? Shall we not rather bring them to the altar of Christ for his service? This work among the children is very, very near my heart, and I would be so glad to know there was a juvenile organization in each church of our Conference, or, for that matter, in every one in our dear Methodist Church, South. Why is it not so? I do not, I can not think it is neglect that stands in the way of this good work, but ignorance, or, rather, a lack of information along this line among our adult church members, both men and women. Let me urge every one of you to look into this matter. Pray God for light. Ask him to call some one in your church to this work among the children, and, when he calls, if it be you, say, "Here am I; send me." What a glorious heritage in this life to be called and sent of God!

Now, as to this juvenile work, for it to be a success, there are certain requisites:

1. The foundation-stone, consecration to God by those who lead. Love to Christ and a desire to serve him in the extension of his earthly kingdom. A desire for the conversion of souls. If we have not this desire, then let me ask of you to read the thirty-third chapter of Ezekiel. The reading of that from the pulpit as a morning lesson by my pastor settled this question in my heart as to my responsibility in this, as well as another very important duty.

2. There must be a love for the young, especially the children. Let your heart go out to them in everything when you can. Let them know you love them. Interest yourself in their home-life where practicable.

3. Be wide awake and active yourself, and keep your children active.

4. Give them work to do. Have them to understand that it is their society. Help them to elect their own officers among themselves. Help them to do their work, and if it need be, do it for them.

Their president may be an adult if they so choose; if not, let it be one of the children. They must have a lady manager. Keep up the interest by stirring talks, readings from Our Homes, items of interest from the Advocates and mission periodicals, leaflets, recitations, memorizing hymns for recital. Have a flower mission if possible; committees to visit the sick and "shut-ins," take them some little delicacy or flowers or something to read. Appoint your Bible readers, and some one to repeat a portion from the Psalms, etc. Tell them exactly what they are working for; tell them of some of the hardships of our ministers on the new and poor works.

If possible, let there be some one mentioned of whom they have some personal knowledge: for example, when one of the leaflets is to be read, written by Mrs. Alexander, I call their attention to the fact that she has relatives living right with us—two little cousins in the society. They saw Miss Burbank, of New Orleans. This brings them near to New Orleans and the mission work done there. When it is of country mission work in Louisiana, I remind them of Bro. B. C. Grace, who was with us for nearly a year. So we are kept in touch with the work to a certain extent. In this way you may soon gather in nearly, if not all, the children in your Sunday-school and maybe the teachers, too.

Let the amount of dues be such as the poorest child can pay monthly. Be careful and urgent on this line that our children may be trained in this matter of "giving to the Lord," as it is often expressed. "I prefer paying into the Lord's treasury to be used for his glory." Unless they are thus trained while young, how hard it will be when they are older many can testify who have labored to organize on the country works Aids, Missions and Home Mission Auxiliaries.

May God help us to do our whole duty in this needed and important branch of his service—the training of the children of our church in this and every good work.

Our Auxiliary at Oak Ridge, La., was organized May, 15, 1887, as part of the Mite Box Brigade, Auxiliary to Woman's Department of Church Extension, with 32 members, by Mrs. Sallie Randle, wife of Rev. T. S. Randle, pastor in charge. There are now 6 of these first numbers still working with us. The number of members has fluctuated. We have now only 14, and our dues paid in are small. But I thank God we are still an organized Auxiliary working for the Master.

Our Conference corresponding secretary has been faithful and punctual toward us in her duties, our treasurer patient and thoughtful for us. Miss Helm, Miss Werlein and Miss Burbank have written us nice letters, which the children love and appreciate. When you pray for the work, remember us.

The Christian Life.

To love and to be loved, is not this the sum of all true blessedness? To love unselfishly, as God loves, to burn with pure desire for the highest well-being of all beings, is not this the motive power to all pleasurable activity? This makes the flight of angels, on their errands of love, swift and gives swiftness to the feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace. So it is that only he who loves knows God, because God is love. How can one who has no ear for melody know the one who is gifted with high powers of song or he who has no eye for beauty know the artist or poet whose soul responds to every beautiful thing in nature or art? How much less can the selfish soul that has never felt a thrill of pure, unselfish affection know God whose very nature is love?

And how utterly unlike the joy which he feels when conscious of being loved with this divine and unselfish love is the sordid pleasure which the selfish man feels in receiving the manifestations of others' love! What can be more radically unlike than the loving submissiveness of the child of God under the chastening in which he recognizes the evidence that God is dealing with him as a son, and the murmuring and rebellious spirit which one who does not know God manifests under the chastening of the same Father's hand?

Though it is more blessed to give love than to receive it, both are blessed, and the child of God enjoys both forms of blessedness. He is blessed with the consciousness of God's love to him, and recognizes it in whatever form it manifests itself in chastening as in benefits and in communion; and he is blessed in his consciousness of delight in God and desire for the triumph of his kingdom on earth, and of good-will to all men; and in every opportunity to give exercise to his love in acts of service to man and obedience to God.

Christ said to his disciples: "Ye are the light of the world," but he also said: "I am the light of the world," and the seeming antagonism between the two statements is removed by another word of his: "Without me ye can do nothing." We love because he loves us. We are the light of the world because he hath shined in our hearts. As the mirror must be kept clean that it may reflect the light, our hearts must be kept pure that we may give to the world the light God gives to us. Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. And every one that hath this hope set on him purifieth himself, even as he is pure.

Honesty in Prayer.

Our prayers should be frequently examined to see whether we are asking for what we really want, or only for the things we have an idea we ought to want. There is too much of this unreality and practical dishonesty current both in the closet and the public prayer-room. People sometimes get into quite a glow of pleasurable devotional excitement as they pray; their imagination works finely, they have a good flow of language, and become somewhat heated with their own rhetoric, and as the fine phrases roll trippingly off the tongue they ask for things which they would not only be much astonished to receive, but actually sorry, in their cooler moments, to get. What we sincerely desire, we shall be willing to pay the price for; and there is always a price attached—that is, a condition. If we want to sit on the right hand of Jesus, we must be willing to drink of his cup. There is much more of poetry than of piety in some prayers. They sound well, but the Lord, who knows the heart, does not find satisfaction in them. "Lip prayers are lost prayers." "Don't pray cream, and live skim milk."—Zion's Herald.

Let the men wash,

if they won't get you Pearline. Let them try it for themselves, and see if they don't say that washing with soap is too hard for any woman.

This hard work that Pearline saves isn't the whole matter, though. It saves money, too—money that's thrown away in clothes needlessly worn out and rubbed to pieces when you wash by main strength in the old way.

That appeals—where is the man who wouldn't want to have the washing and cleaning made easier—when he can save money by it?

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 456 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. G. Evens, Patterson, La.: "Our regular service on last Sunday morning gave way to our quarterly Sunday school missionary service. The hour was devoted to a regular children's service, similar to the service on Children's Day, except that the whole service breathed a spirit of missions. I preached them a short sermon along the same line. One feature of the exercises was a report of a committee, composed of one member of each class, with the teacher of the infant class as chairman, appointed to solicit subscribers to that excellent little missionary paper, The World for Christ. It showed 93 subscribers (and there are more to follow). This puts the paper in almost every Methodist home in this church. It also goes to Baptists, Presbyterians and Catholics. A Bible was offered for the largest list brought in by a member of the committee. The collection amounted to $9.20, which is excellent for this school. This leaves us well and hard at work for the glory of God."

E. M. Hillebrandt, Sulphur, La.: "Will you please insert in the ADVOCATE a request for a description (or descriptions) of the most successful methods of reaching the ignorant and different classes of people in Louisiana? There are so many who have no desire (seemingly) for a knowledge of the truth, and who almost seem to forget there is a God. It is extremely difficult to draw them out to church, and it can not be all caused from fear of friends and friends, for do not the heathen gladly go to hear the gospel in the face of far greater difficulties than these? And if it were not for the command, to 'begin at Jerusalem,' I should give all my very limited spare time to help send the hope and cheer of the knowledge of our loving Savior to those poor, hopeless, down-trodden sisters in foreign lands. Life is so short, and they plead so hard for more light. I have lived here five years, and in all that time there has been preaching once a month (when the weather has permitted); but so few can be induced to come out that we can not keep a Sunday-school up all the year, and accessions to the church are very rare. (I know we, the members, are not all we might be.) But I want to know how to approach them on the subject of attending divine worship, seeking their soul's salvation, and bringing their children up in the nuture and admonition of the Lord. Let us hear from some one who has been successful in this work."

Rev. G. S. Morehead, Tatum circuit, Miss.: "I am so glad when the time comes for me to get my NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and read the news from the different fields of labor. Thank God for such encouraging news all over the charges! How it thrills my soul with joy unspeakable to hear of such success everywhere. I am having some experience along the line of ministerial work now. As a preacher attends to his work close, he will not have much time to spare away from his work. I have a large work this year on my hands; have six appointments to preach at. Doctor, I guess you older preachers know something about large appointments this way. A young preacher has many trials and disappointments to contend with; but if he will trust God and live at the foot of the cross, he will come out more than conqueror at the end. A preacher has something else to do besides singing and preaching in his line of work. This work requires so much time in visiting, praying and talking about the duties of his people in his charge. I never go to a place if there are any children that I don't talk about Jesus, and tell the little folks that he loves them, and that don't they love him. I made a trip this week on my work, and was talking about the importance of having their children dedicated to God in baptism, and about bringing them into the church of God. The result was that I got a list of seven to have baptized. Bro. Bisok, you don't know how I love you for taking so much pains with the young preacher. It makes us rejoice to know we have all of the older brethren with us. I have three booming Sunday-schools on my work, and one more organized, and the best thing about it is they are using our own literature. I have done all that I could in getting these people to work. Have several family altars on my work; not as many as I would like to have here. I impress this matter upon their minds often. Well, I attended one of Bro. Burroughs' meetings a short time since at Charleston. Had a good time there with the good folks. We had a most excellent sermon that day by the Rev. H. C. Morehead. He seemed to be so happy while he was preaching. He gave me so much good advice while I was there. May God spare him many years yet to forward this work! Well, I am praying for a gracious revival this year on our six appointments. I tell you, brethren, we need it. We must get our people aroused to a sense of their duty; then we will go about much better. Well, I'll close, wishing you, Bro. Black, much success in your work. Brethren, pray for me, that my health may hold out, so I can bring sinners home to Jesus. God bless everybody! is my prayer."

A STORM.

Now, just such an "April fool!" No more than I expected, though, for ever and anon the electric flashes in the northwest (in the neighborhood of Macon) gave unmistakable evidences of a gathering storm. An abnormal rise of the temperature generally forces together some very potent factors in these electrical phenomena. So, when recently, the conditions all being met, the cloud began to heave in sight, we could realize that it was from a natural cause. The deep and reverberating peals of thunder, which began slowly and deliberately, and deepened into the solid background, as it originating at the very summit of the "everlasting hills," and spreading away into the dim perspective of the past, then again rolling up to the present, thus uniting all climes under one common center of government and authority, were abundantly present. Then the tear-drops of the weeping cloud made it quite apparant, as shown by the solemn faces of the witnesses, that a storm was soon to burst upon us and a torrent descend.

In such times and under such circumstances hopes and fears mingle together, and the old poem, "I'm pleased, and yet I'm sad," is expressive; and, in spite of a forewarning, when the heavy surges come, they are somewhat a surprise.

Now, the occasion was the second Quarterly Conference of Holly Springs circuit, North Mississippi Conference. The lightning flashes were shown in the regular attendance at church, even during the Winter season—an ever green Sunday-school, good care of the pastor, solicitude for strangers and visitors, etc. The abnormal (?) rise of temperature was indicated by that sensitive and infallible thermometer—a regular weekly prayer meeting all the year round. The potent factors in this particular episode were those spiritual magnates (?)—stewards, Sunday-school superintendents, minus class leaders (for "where are the?"), trustees, etc., who generally find themselves irresistibly drawn by such conditions. The thunder were those three great, heart-searching sermons preached by our beloved presiding elder, Rev. J. D. Cameron, D. D., who is a veritable "son of thunder," whose reserve force is stored among the summits of those hills "from whence cometh our help." The tear-drops from the weeping cloud of witnesses to the truth were the manifestations of gratitude to God for "this precious peace" and hope and love which come to us who know him and co-operate with him. The storm? Well, it came, and was a surprise, too, even in the face of all the proofs that it was brewing.

That great-hearted, meek-minded sweet-spirited lover of his Lord, Bro. M. L. Patterson, gathered from among the people of Mahon end of his own household a two-horse wagon load of the missiles most generally used for bringing down a preacher—some solid, some liquid, some indifferent; bread, meat, molasses, sugar, potatoes, fruit, chickens (sine qua non), and what not? And we hear there's more to follow. All these came with such power and pressure that the preacher and his wife were like unto the widow whose sons were in danger of bondage for debt (and the facts were not entirely dissimilar). They were enjoined to borrow vessels to contain the heavenly tokens; only it was meal this time, instead of oil, which was not altogether unbiblical.

Sequel: The almost faltering hearts of preacher and wife are cheered into songs of praise and strengthened for the battle. The tender feelings in that neighborhood are deepened, and the blessings and prosperity of heaven do and will attend them. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." This being true, we are almost envious of the benedictions which Mahon Church enjoys from this "labor of love." But we remember, "Go thou and do likewise."

Sacred history repeats itself as well as other; and as the life is not all beaten out of us, we are willing to endure more of these repetitions. Sunshine always follows rain, and we can more fully express our souls through that beautiful melody:

"Oh, the sunshine! blessed sunshine!
When the peaceful, happy moments roll;
When Christ shall show a smiling face,
There is sunshine in my soul."

Holly Springs, April 8, 1896.

Reply to "Gilderoy."

Bro. "Gilderoy" says, in the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE, of March 26: "I did not reply to Rev. W. J. O'Bryant because he denied nothing that I asserted, and asserted nothing that I denied." I must confess, brother, that this is a short process of answering the questions asked you in my article, which clearly defined my position on the subject of "Sound Doctrine."

Now, I did not wish to appear impudent to an older brother in public print; therefore, put my objections to your article on "Sound Doctrine" in form of questions, and wished to place myself in your hands as a pupil in the hands of a teacher, hoping to learn from your answers to my questions why it was that sound doctrine should be slow in its process of development. But if you treat all your pupils as you have me, it's no wonder they are slow in developing, because it takes you so long to answer the questions. I must deny that sound doctrine, preached in power and demonstration of the Spirit, is slow in process of development, simply because it is sound doctrine. I think I have shown this by a quotation in my former article from I. Samuel—"The King's business requires haste." I wish to add this quotation from the New Testament also, in proof of my position: The "Word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword." This is sound, and, I think, indicates both speed and ability. May the Lord help us all, preachers and congregation, to lay hold by faith upon the precious gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth, and realize in our hearts that the Lord can destroy the monster, sin, in a moment of time.

Now, I assert that a preacher with a pathetic, tremulous voice and a weeping congregation is not an evidence of heresy or unsound doctrine, as I stated before, and referred to Jeremiah and Christ as preachers shedding tears over their people, and Peter as a weeping penitent. Oh, the blighting curse of sin, that touches with the contaminating finger the rose of beauty full-blown on the maiden's cheek, and destroys manhood's brightest hope, and leaves the home wrapped in darkness and despair forever! This is enough, it seems to me, to make one weep.

Now, brother, I do not believe that the doctrine is necessarily unsound, simply because the colored people heal the white folks shouting, for I do believe, without a doubt, the white and colored have a right to shout.

May the Lord send us a gracious revival throughout the land, and more subscribers to the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE! W. J. O'BRYANT

PUBLISHER'S NOTICES.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to April, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to April, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

At Ponchatoula.

We took a run up to Ponchatoula last week to give a lecture for the benefit of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society of that place. We arrived just in time, the audience being already assembled. On entering the hall, we perceived at once that the deft hand of woman had preceded us. The hall was elaborately and profusely decorated with every variety of floral beauty which the season affords. Fine music, vocal and instrumental, was rendered. The audience was quite a good one—much better than most towns the size of Ponchatoula can muster for a pay lecture. The lecture—well, the people listened to it with no indication of weariness, though it lasted considerably more than an hour. The proceeds of the lecture will be utilized in improvements upon the parsonage. The parsonage was built only about two years ago. The ladies of the Parsonage and Home Mission Society deserve great credit for their self-sacrificing labors. Though numerically weak and confronted with difficulties, they are laboring assiduously to furnish their pastor and his family with a comfortable home. The pastor, Bro. J. J. Kelly, is in high favor with his flock, and is doing good work.

We were domiciled at the parsonage in company with the patriarch of Methodism in that region, Rev. John Boyes, who was many years ago a member of the Mississippi Conference.

The Young Man in Business.

What has been generally accepted as an exceedingly wise and practical article for young men anxious to succeed in business is that entitled "The Young Man in Business," by Edward W. Bok. Two years ago it was printed in The Cosmopolitan, and exhausted three editions of the number of the magazine containing it. It was bought by the foremost business men throughout the country in quantities of several hundreds. Now, Mr. Bok's article has been reissued in booklet form, bound in white and gold, at thirty cents, by Henry Altemus, of Philadelphia. In this reissue it will doubtless repeat its success, since the article still stands as the best of its kind ever written for young men. It points the way to success as no other article has ever done.

A Southern Magnate.

We regard Judge L. Q. C. Lamar as one of the greatest men the South has ever produced. His greatness was many sided. Many men are great in one direction; he was great in many directions. In the army he displayed the very noblest qualities of soldierhood. Although his career as a teacher was out short, it was sufficiently long to demonstrate the fact, had he made this his life-work, he would have taken a conspicuous place in the very front rank of this noble profession. As an attorney, his career was equally short, and yet during that brief period he showed himself the peer of the master minds of the great profession. As a legislator, he evinced statesmanship of the highest order. As an orator, he had few equals, and no superior, in all the broad domain of this "land of the free." Although he had worn the judicial ermine but a very short time before his death, he had already taken honorable rank in the annals of American jurisprudence. Had Providence spared his life a few years longer, there is no doubt that he would have occupied the same commanding position on the Supreme Bench which he had occupied in both Houses of Congress.

His probity of character was never questioned. No suspicion of political dishonesty was ever uttered against him. For the arts of the demagogue he had a supreme contempt. If he won in a political contest, it was always by methods fair and honorable. In political as well as private life he displayed that type of moral courage which is synonymous with true heroism. An instance of this is furnished in his disregard of the instructions of the Mississippi Legislature on a great political question. At the time all the probabilities were that this act would amount to political suicide. It mattered not; he would be true to his convictions, let the consequences be what they might. He possessed that magnanimity of character which enabled him to discern the good qualities of a political foe in a time of great political excitement. He was the one man of his day who could vindicate the honor of Jefferson Davis, and at the same time pronounce a lofty eulogy upon the character of Charles Sumner. His religious character was a checkered one. In early life, while a pupil at Emory College, he professed religion and joined the Methodist Church. A few years afterward he grew lukewarm and withdrew from the church. A few years before his death he reunited with the church, and from that time on he was a faithful, constant, devout Christian. During the years when he was out of the church he never lost faith in the eternal verities of God's Word, or regard for the church of his choice. He would never allow the Christian religion or the Methodist Church to be assailed in his presence.

We have written this at this time in order to call attention to the fact that the Life of Judge Lamar has been written by his son-in-law and former law-partner, Hon. Edward Mayes, ex-chancellor of the University of Mississippi, than whom no one is better fitted to the task assumed. Few men have left a larger mass of written material suitable to be utilized in the preparation of a biography. This material Chancellor Mayes has most skilfully used in the preparation of a volume which is a fitting memorial of the distinguished orator, statesman, and jurist. The work is more than a biography; it is a history of the period covered by his public career. This is a most admirable book to put into the hands of aspiring young men. As such, we commend it to the notice of parents and educators. The work is a royal octavo of 820 pages, handsomely bound in cloth and illustrated with a number of portraits. It is for sale by the author at Jackson, Miss. Price, $5.

Rolling Fork.

By invitation of the pastor, Rev. J. Victor Penn, we preached and lectured recently at Rolling Fork. On account of illness in his family, Bro. Penn did not reach his charge for several weeks after Conference. Notwithstanding this disadvantage, he has achieved remarkable success in his new field. He has already expended more than eight hundred dollars on the parsonage, and now has one of the neatest, coziest parsonages in the Conference. It is also quite well furnished. True to his previous record, he is also building churches. He expects to have a neat, tasteful church of ample dimensions for the wants of the community ready for dedication at Redwood by the first of June. His programme for the year also includes the remodeling of and enlargement of the church at Rolling Fork. He has large congregations, and is immensely popular in the church and out of it. We were delightfully entertained at the parsonage, and also in the hospitable homes of Bro. J. G. Parham and Dr. C. E. Clement.

A Word to Tinkers.

From a western presiding elder, a man of discernment and devotion, and an organizer of victory, comes the following brief communication, which although not perhaps designed for publication, is worth printing and considering. The quadrennial season of innovations and revolutionary measures is upon us. Men here and there have been taxing their inventive ingenuity to devise schemes for changing, recasting, and overhauling the machinery of the church. Not one radical change in ten of all that have been proposed will win the sober approval of the General Conference, but the suggestions themselves disturb many people, and seem to make the impression that our ecclesiastical machinery is out of gear, and that revolutionary measures are needed to adapt it to the needs of the age. The wholesome counsels of our brother are not uncalled for:

"I wish all the tinkers of Methodism would go to heaven before the General Conference meets, and that God would raise up a great army of people who would take off their coats and work Methodism, for all there is in it.' Then what a change there would be in things. Poor old Methodism, one would suppose that her efficiency has gone, and that she needed the tinkers to stir up matters. Instead she rather needs to be worked 24 hours a day, throughout the year. I wish the tinkers could hear what I hear from the people in the Methodist homes where I go. There would not be so many tinkers if they knew how their rash and inconsiderate measures strike the average layman. The common people of Methodism do not like the tinkers."—Central Advocate.

The above, though it relates to the affairs of the M. E. Church, is not without a lesson for us. What Methodism in all its branches needs most is not improved machinery, but an increase of power. Give us power enough and we will accomplish wonders with the machinery we have. The best machinery is valueless without power. Our prayers should ascend daily for an increase of power.

Churches on Wheels.

Four churches on wheels, sent out and supported by the Baptist Publishing Society, are constantly traveling over the railroads in the thinly settled regions of the West, the pastor in charge ministering to the spiritual needs of people living in new settlements where there is no church, aiding poor Baptist congregations with gifts of books and the like, and doing general missionary work. The car Emmanuel reached San Francisco from the South last week and started on a tour through Oregon and Washington. It is eighty-five feet long, with the living apartments of the pastor at one end and a completely appointed church occupying the rest of the space. It contains an organ, lectern and pulpit. The car carries Bibles in twelve languages and a large stock of hymn books and other publications. The railroads haul the cars free of charge, and the telegraph and telephone companies furnish franks to the pastors in charge. No collections are made at any of the services on the cars, the society supporting the traveling churches. Whenever a likely place for missionary work is found the car is side-tracked and its presence advertised by posters, and in various other ways.—Times-Democrat.

Christian Unity.

One of the most significant signs of the times in which we live is the strong desire for a closer approach of the different denominations. Much of the talking and writing on this subject is, we fear, purely sentimental and never intended to issue in practical results, but many of the advocates of Christian unity are thoroughly in earnest. Their hope is high and their enthusiasm warm. The trouble with them is that they can not find a platform on doctrinal and ecclesiastical lines broad enough for all. If they keep on seeking in that direction, they may seek until the dawning of the millennium. Union of the churches is impracticable under present conditions, but the federation of the churches for the defense of the common faith and the promotion of the common aims of Christianity is thoroughly practicable. Such an assembly as the Free Church Congress of England teaches us what might be done among the evangelical denominations of America. Why could there not be a federation of our churches which, while affording each perfect liberty to preserve its theological and ecclesiastical autonomy, would combine the forces of all for the promotion of temperance, social purity, municipal and national righteousness, and for the evangelization of spiritually destitute localities? Even the thought of such a federation causes a fair vision to grow up before us of a time in which the war-drum of sectarian strife would throb no longer, and the battle-flag of denominational partisanship would be furled in the parliament of churches and the federation of the Christian world. — Central Advocate.

An Abused, But Most Useful Society.

The New York Society for the Suppression of Vice and its efficient secretary, Anthony Comstock, are in some quarters not infrequently assaulted, and public confidence in them sought to be weakened. When it is remembered that they are waging warfare against corruptors of youth, and those who batten on the vices of society, it is perhaps not to be wondered at that those who reap large gain from pandering to vicious tastes are angered, and lose no opportunity to vent their spite and use, as they may be able, the newspapers to circulate specious charges which in every case they have failed to substantiate. The sufficient reply to such slanders is found in the fact that of the more than 100 persons arrested the past year through the efforts of this society only four were discharged, and conviction and sentence uniformly have followed their trial. It is a triumphant retort to the accusations circulated that whenever questions raised have come into court the society's interpretation of the law and contentions of fact have been sustained.—Exchange.

The Young Man and the Church.

The article entitled "The Young Man and the Church," by Edward W. Bok, which raised such a storm of discussion among the clergy when it was published in The Cosmopolitan a year ago, has been republished in booklet form, in dainty white and gold binding. It will be remembered that Mr. Bok lays most of the blame in his article for the non-attendance of young men at church upon the minister, and it is this statement which caused the pulpit to rise against the author. Probably no similar article ever worked such discussion. Mr. Bok has added what he calls "An After-word" to this publication, in which he says that after having read over 800 editorials, and listened himself to not less than a dozen sermons criticising his views, he still adheres to his beliefs, and stands by his statements as expressed in this reissue of his famous article. "The Young Man and the Church" is published at thirty cents by Henry Altemus, of Philadelphia, and is for sale by all book-sellers.

In an article in the Congregationalist, Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler sums up his convictions concerning the temperance movement, as follows: "The honest convictions I have reached are about the following: The ordinary license system is a poultice to the dram seller's conscience and for restraining intemperance is a ghastly failure. Institutions and patent medicines to cure drunkards have but a partial success. The one only sure cure is to stop before you begin. Local option laws have wrought much benefit; and entire prohibition is the one logical method where a stiff, righteous public sentiment thoroughly enforces it. Otherwise it is a delusion and a farce. Of late years the friends of our cause have fallen into the deplorable mistake of directing their main assaults upon liquor selling, instead of keeping up their fire upon both the use and sale of intoxicants. Legal enactments are right; but to attempt to dam up a torrent, yet neglect the fountain-head is sheer insanity. The fountain-head of drunkenness is not the iniquitous saloon; it is in the drinking usages which demand and create and sustain the saloon. In theory I am a prohibitionist; but the most vital remedy is to break up the demand for intoxicants and to dissuade people from wishing to buy them and drink them. That goes to the root of the evil."

When money comes to a city or town, the source of the increment has something to do with the profit of the transaction, as witness the following touching the city of Worcester, Mass.—and Worcester is but a type of hundreds of other cities and towns. The city having voted for license, one hundred licenses were issued at $1,000 apiece, thus putting into the city treasury $100,000. A big sum, certainly. But what of the outgo? To test whether this was financially a benefit or not, the clergymen of the city organized, districted and systematically canvassed the city, examining into every point connected with the problem, such as trade, the expense of the police courts, alms-house and charitable institutions. The result of the investigation was to prove conclusively, that while the city received $100,000 for licenses, it actually lost in trade, in increased charities and other expenses entailed by poverty and crime $2,000,000.—The Christian Work.

An evangelistic meeting has been held on Monday afternoons for three months at the Cooper Union (New York). The gospel is preached and sung. Crowds of people have attended the service. More than three hundred men have been led to take Christ as their Savior, and have declared their faith in him. Every one who comes is at liberty to leave the meeting when he pleases, but although the service extends from three to five o'clock nearly all the crowd remain to the end. This service proves that there is a desire to hear the gospel. It proves that a simple service of extemporaneous prayer, of proclaiming the gospel, and of congregational singing, attracts a crowd of men. Pastors of nearly all denominations have assisted in making the service helpful and effective. There is instruction in this meeting for all who desire to win souls to Christ. It is worth while to consider the supreme importance of winning souls to Christ, and the best means to accomplish that end.—The Evangelist.

A New Church.

We take pleasure in recording the following, and tender congratulations to Dr. Price and his flock upon the inauguration of this forward movement.

Greenwood is to have a $10,000 Methodist Church. Nearly one-half of that amount has been subscribed, and no canvass has yet been made, and, best of all, it has been determined by the committee having the matter in charge to use none but strictly free will offerings in building this temple. Pray for us, that God may be honored in this enterprise.

We need not worry ourselves about the time of our Lord's second coming. That he has not revealed, nor are we expected to know it. What now should concern us most is fitness for it. We are to be found watching and waiting for our Lord, not in heated discussion about the season and mode of his manifestation, nor in rhapsodies over it, but in fitness of spirit for it and in faithful performance of every-day duty. He who is always in a holy frame of mind and in zealous work for his Master has all the needful preparations for meeting his Lord howsoever and whensoever he may come.—Presbyterian.

Columbus District Conference.

The twenty-sixth session convened at Columbus, Miss., April 8 1896 and was called to order by Rev. R. A. Burroughs, P. E. Bishop Fitzgerald favored the Conference with his presence, and presided over its deliberations. Just recovering from a severe attack of la grippe, he was very feeble, but his kind and fatherly face was a benediction to all who saw him.

All ministers of the district, with one exception, were present. Lay delegation not very full; about twenty members present. The small attendance was attributed to pressing demands on our farmer brethren. Hearts of all were saddened that the names of Rev. T. B. Malone and Bro. J. W. Drake had to be stricken from our roll. Though stricken from this, they have been added to the one in heaven. Appropriate and touching tributes were paid to the memory of both.

Rev. G. W. Bachman, our genial colporteur, was with us, using energy in placing Methodist books and other good literature before our people.

Reports of pastors showed an increased disposition to aid the work of the American Bible Society. The effort of Starkville station deserves special notice. It has paid more than $100, and has placed an agent in the field to canvass Oktibbeha county to see that a Bible is placed in the hands of every person that can read.

Dr. West, agent of Millsaps College, came the first day, and remained until the close of the Conference, counseling and preaching, and not forgetting to put in a strong word now and then for the college. His special mission just now is to build an additional dormitory to accommodate its increasing roll of pupils.

The district is wide awake to the importance of Christian education, and our Educational Committee prepared a very excellent report—the best the writer ever heard read on the subject—and the Conference requested the chairman (Rev. T. W. Dye) to send a copy to your most excellent paper for publication.

We are also alive to temperance, Sunday-school and Epworth League work, committees making strong and stirring reports.

We were edified and gladdened by the preaching of Revs. T. W. Dye, J. E. Thomas, S. M. Thames, Dr. West, H. P. Gibbs, and W. S. Harriaoc; our sweet-spirited Bishop preaching at eleven o'clock Sunday.

Lay delegates elected to Annual Conference: Walter Price, W. V Connell, W. H. Scales, A. D. Harris. Alternate: B. L. Smith and C. B. Amas.

The Columbus people, noted for their hospitality, were not wanting on this occasion.

Artesia was chosen as the next place for holding the District Conference.

A Chance to Make Money.

I have berries, grapes, and peaches, a year old, fresh as when picked. I use the California Cold process, do not heat or seal the fruit, just put it up cold, keeps perfectly fresh, and costs almost nothing; can put up a bushel in ten minutes. Last week I sold directions to over 120 families; anyone will pay a dollar for directions, when they see the beautiful samples of fruit. As they are many people poor like myself, I consider it my duty to give my experience to such, and feel confident anyone can make one or two hundred dollars round home in a few days. I will mail sample of fruit and complete directions, to any of your readers, for eighteen two-cent stamps, which is only the actual cost of the samples, postage, etc., to me.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

Easter services at Prairie Chapel were enjoyable. Following an appropriate sermon by the writer, Bro. Barnes, the pastor, took a collection for the Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home amounting to forty dollars. He will report at least twenty more from his other church.

District Conference at Columbus was attended by all the pastors except Bro Broyles, who was hindered by personal sickness. The lay attendance was small. The colporter was on hand with a good lot of the very best literature; but, after making most earnest efforts for its circulation, he had to bring away too much of it. How much good it would be doing in the homes of the people, "here a little and there a little," than all packed up in a trunk! Bishop Fitzgerald was present in feebleness of body, but with great spiritual force. May he live yet many years to bless the church with his inspiring ministry!

A Sunday spent on Columbus circuit at New Hope and Morrah's Chapel, will long be remembered with pleasure by this scribe. Bro. Gordon has a goodly heritage, and the people have in him a valuable pastor. The indications are for a successful year in that part of our Zion.

The weekly Wednesday morning class meeting in our church in Columbus is a vital institution. It was founded by that notably good man and pioneer preacher, Bro. George Shaeffer, more than sixty years ago. As long as he lived, or was able, he was himself the leader, and at his death he bequeathed the leadership to the pastors of the church for all time to come. It was good to be there, and to enjoy that communion of saints a few days ago, the services being conducted by the pastor, Bro. Standefer. May its light never diminish!

Orders for Children's Day programs are coming in rapidly. A few charges yet to hear from. Brother pastor, don't delay until yours shall be the last order sent in. Remember that this is one of your pastoral interests, and that the success of Children's Day in your charge depends upon the concern that you manifest for it. Bear in mind the programs for use in our Conference are furnished by the Sunday-school Board free of charge.

I am at home sick, but think it will be of short duration. Hope to be able for full work through May.

Holly Springs District Conference.

The District Conference of the Holly Springs district will be held in Byhalia, Miss., May 13, beginning at 9 A. M. of the first day. The following are the Committees of Examination:

For License to Preach and Recommendation for Admission on Trial into Annual Conference—R. M. Davis, J. M. Moore, B. P. Patterson.

For Recommendation for Deacon's Orders—J. Johnson, F. A. Whitsell, B. P. Jack.

For Recommendation for Elder's Orders—J. S. Oakley, M. D. Fly, J. W. Poston.

This necessitates the following changes in times of quarterly meetings:

Coffeeville circuit, to May 9, 10; Mt. Pleasant circuit, to May 16, 17; Ashland circuit, to May 23, 24; Pontotoc circuit, to May 30, 31; Abbeville circuit, to June 6, 7.

You, Mr. Editor, and the president and agent of Millsaps College are most cordially invited to be present at the District Conference.

Holiness Meeting at Meridian, Miss.

Commencing May 10, Rev. H. C. Morrison will begin a two weeks' meeting at Meridian. Everybody cordially invited. Let everybody who desires to get good and do good make their arrangements to come.

D. S. HARMON.

Grenada Collegiate Institute.

Every teacher now employed in the Grenada Collegiate Institute is engaged for next year, and three new ones added. Mrs. Mary L. Hargrove will enter the Literary Department to teach history, mental and moral science, the Bible, and higher mathematics. Mrs. E. A. Noblet, who for some time has held a prominent place in the Memphis Conference Female Institute at Jackson, Tenn., will take charge of the Music Department. Mrs. Hargrove is now studying at the University at Oxford. Mrs. Noblett, with her daughters, will attend the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston next Summer. Both of these most excellent women are the widows of deceased preachers of the North Mississippi Conference. The Board of Trustees have made provision for a large increase in patronage for next year.

J. W. MALONE.

Notice.

The following are the committees for Senatobia district, Mississippi Conference:

License to Preach—Thos. W. Brown, C. F. Emery, W. H. Huntley.

For Admission on Trial—Jas. G. Sibley, W. G. Forsyth, G. R. Ellis.

For Deacon's Orders.—N. B. Harmon, O. Switzer, H. B. Trevillion.

For Elder's Orders—H. D. Howell, P. Howard, G. W. Huff.

It is highly important for all the unordained local preachers to be present, as their official character will be investigated for renewal of license.

Recording stewards will please present their Quarterly Conference Records for examination.

Pastors will please notify our host, Rev. Thos. W. Adams, of the names of the members of the District Conference from their respective charges.

Our French Mission.

So far results fully justify our move among the French-speaking people of our Conference. Bro. Wallace has received more people into church fellowship than most of our pastors in the Protestant portions of our territory. Let us put another man in this fruitful field.

J. A. PARKER, Sec. Board of Missions.

A Chance to Make Money.

In the past three months I have cleared $660.75 selling Dish Washers. I did most of the work, my brother helped some. I expect to do better next month, as every Dish Washer sold advertises itself, and sells several more; I don't have to leave the house. People hear about the Dish Washers and send for them, they are so cheap. Any lady or gentleman can make money in this business, as every family wants a Dish Washer. Any of our readers who have energy enough to apply for an agency can easily make from $8 to $10 per day. You can get full particulars by addressing the Mound City Dish Washer Co., St. Louis, Mo. Try it and publish your success for the benefit of others.

An Easy Way to Make Money.

A GOOD DISH WASHER FREE.

I have made $1,630 in clear money in 87 days, and attended to my household duties besides; and I think this is doing splendid for a woman inexperienced in business. Anyone can sell what everyone wants to buy, and every family wants a Dish Washer. I don't canvass at all; people come or send for the Washers, and every washer that goes out sells two or three more, as they do the work to perfection. You can wash and dry dishes in two minutes. I am going to devote my whole time to this business now, and I am sure I can clear $5,000 this year. My sister and brother have started in the business, and are doing splendid. To anyone sending me stamps to pay postage, I will mail complete directions for making and using the World's Fair Dish Washer, and you can certainly make money anywhere.—MRS. WM. A Marvelous Record.

There are many points of unusual interest in the record of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, during the fifty-three years of its wonderful progress and prosperity. It now holds in trust for policy holders over two hundred and twenty-one millions of dollars, after having paid deceased and living members over four hundred and eleven millions of dollars.

Its income from interest, rents and miscellaneous profits (not including premiums) have been by over a million dollars more than sufficient to pay all death claims.

The miscellaneous profits (premiums not included) realized over the interest and rents received have more than paid the compensation of those who for fifty-three years have managed the affairs of the company and to whom its success may largely be attributed.

This institution was the pioneer of regular life insurance in this country, and is to-day the largest life insurance company in the world. It is difficult to realize the vast amount of good already done by the payments to the families of its members and to be done.

This company, as a result of many years' experience, and to fill a long-felt want, is now issuing a policy which provides a fixed income for life for the beneficiary after the death of the insured, thus doing away with the possibility of loss of the insurance money by the wife or children on account of lack of experience in the handling of large sums. The great merit in a policy contract of this sort will be appreciated by those who have experienced the difficulty of safely investing large sums and who realize how much more difficult it would be for their widows and children to find such investments.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅝-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism, —to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent, of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality, hardened SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, P. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs.—In regard to "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

HOME CIRCLE.

THE OLD, OLD STORY.

He was one of the fellows
That could drink or leave it alone,
With a fine high scorn of commen men
Who were born with no back bone.
"And why," said he, "should a man of strength
Deny to himself the use
Of the pleasant gift of the warm, red wine
Because of its weak abuse?"

He could quote at a banquet,
With a manner half divine,
Full fifty things the poets say
About the rosy wine;
And he could sing a spirited song
About the lips of a lass,
And drink a toast to her fair young worth,
In a sparkling generous glass.

And since this lordly fellow
Could drink or leave it alone,
He chose to drink at his own wild will
Till his will was overthrown.
And the lips of the lass are cold with grief,
And her children shiver and shrink,
For the man who once could leave it alone,
Is a pitiful slave to drink.

—British Temperance Advocate.

To Women Wage-Workers.

It was Jean Ingelow who said that when a woman demanded for "rights" she surrendered her privileges. In these days when women are entering so generally in commercial life it is a difficult but necessary thing for them to so deport themselves that those who are associated with them will not forget for a moment that they are women. An exchange tells this story to point its moral:

The young girl who occupies a minor position in the clerical department of a large railroad company, declared one day in a passionate tone: "I'd give anything in the world if I were out of X. Y & Z. offices!"

"Why?" asked her friend, knowing that the position was fully as good as she could expect to hold.

"Because I've started out wrong, and I can't get right. I thought when I began I could be on friendly, social terms with the men in the office, and have a nice, easy time with them as we worked together day by day. But, O! it hasn't turned out as I thought it would at all! They treat me in a familiar, slap you on the back kind of way that humiliates me constantly.

"When I come in the morning they say, 'Jennie, what have you got that thing around your neck for?' or they ask if I didn't forget some of my hairpins; and when I try to resent it they only laugh at me. I am fairly degraded in my own eyes, and I can't help it, because I've started out wrong."

There is a lesson here for the vast army of girls and young women who are privileged, under our liberal social requirements, to go out into the world and earn their own living. It is hard for a girl who has lived a free and unconstrained life at home, entertaining her male friends, usually in her mother's presence, and always with her sanction, to realize that the same unstudied atmosphere should not prevail in a public office. She does not take into account that she has not the accustomed background of home and parents to countenance her innocent gayety. The proverbial inch is given and the ell taken, and often when it is too late she finds that the charmed circle of womanly sanctity, which is every girl's birthright, is trodden down and obliterated. Her name is bandied from one pair of masculine lips to another, her action openly commented on, the details of her dress discussed. She finds herself treated as a sort of anomolous creature, not a man, and not commanding the respect and deference due a woman. It is monstrous and humiliating, and once allowed, is nearly irremediable.

Girls, earn your independence, if you must or will; go as wage-earners into the office or the shop; but carry with you that sweet womanly reserve which is at once your charm and your safeguard.

The Boy Who Wins.

The world is becoming more and more particular every year concerning the character and qualifications of the people who do its work. The lad who wants to occupy an honorable place a few years hence should impress upon his mind the truth that while influence may sometimes secure one a place, nothing but solid merit will retain it. Whatever may have been the case a half century ago it is certain that bad habits handicap a young man in the race for success. It is a significant fact that even a rumseller prefers a total abstainer for a bar-tender, and will choose such a one whenever he has the opportunity. He is willing to make sots out of the employees of other people, but nobody knows better than he the value of sobriety. Aside from every question of duty, of obligation, of safety, or of principle, and looking at the matter with the world's eyes, a young man who is about to enter upon life's active duties ought to understand that good habits are a paying investment. Of two boys who may be equal in original capacity and acquired ability, the most worldly employer will engage the services of that one whose character is free from stain, whose reputation is excellent, and whose habits are proper. The boy who keeps his hands, and face, and clothes clean; the boy who does not use tobacco in any form; the boy who abhors profanity and who scorns to lie; the boy who never plays cards, nor tastes strong drink; who keeps clear of a bar-room, eschews evil company, attends church and Sunday school regularly, is truly religious and seizes every opportunity to show that he is really interested in his work—this is the boy who is going to occupy the place of honor when he becomes a man, and whose praise will be in the mouths of all his fellows.

There are thousands of just such lads growing up in American homes to-day. Some are in the great cities, but most are dwellers in the country, away from the turmoil and uproar of the crowd, communing with nature every day and imbibing with the pure air they breathe both physical and mental health. Let them hide their time in sweet content. Let them resolve more earnestly than ever before to grow up pure in the sight of God and men. In due time earth will have use for them and heaven too. Worldly prosperity will probably come to them, but whether it does or not, the things that endure will be theirs.—Central Advocate.

Something for You.

BY D. D. M.

"'You should be thankful, darling, that you have a mother strong enough to deny you many things you want,' said my mother to me one day when I was but a little girl. That was many years ago, but my mother's manner made such an impression on me that I have never forgotten her words: 'Strong enough to deny you.' I saw as I had never seen before how much it cost my mother to deny me many things that I wanted. But cheerful submission to my mother was only part of the lesson I was taught that day. God, in his wisdom, has denied me many things I have wanted, but when I am tempted to repine I think of mother's words. They have taught me a wonderful lesson."

Such was the experience of a sister in our class meeting a few Sundays ago. I thought it deserved to be heard by more than our little company, and so I send it to The Guardian. There are two lessons in it Oh, mothers, be strong! None but yourselves and God know how much you need strength. More depends on your firmness than on the father's. I believe God accomplishes more through a mother's place of secret prayer, than by any other means of grace through which human souls draw strength from him.

When I heard the little incident I said: "Yes, I am thankful that my heavenly Father is strong enough to deny me many things I wish for." God help us to say that always, not through a sense of duty, but from a heart overflowing with love to him.—The Guardian.

Better Than Money.

A NEW AND IMPORTANT WAY OF LOOKING AT THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

Public interest for months past has been steadily concentrated upon our national currency. Parties are divided on the question. Men are worked up over it. It means a great deal for the welfare of millions.

There is one way of looking at the question that seems to have been lost sight of. Is it not better to have fifty dollars in gold than five dollars in silver? And yet there are many people who are practically throwing away large amounts and holding onto the smaller amount. Many people who might be earning ten times as much as they do, fail because they lack health and energy. Health and strength represent a value greater than gold, and yet many people put up with a run down system, which steals away half their working power. Eventually they lose by sickness and medical expenses and their families suffer, when it might all readily be avoided.

These are hard times. Thousands are succumbing to the strains of life. Ill-health is the rule and not the exception. People need their best strength and energy all the while. Health, which is more valuable than gold, can be maintained and even secured when it is lost, if the proper care and right remedy are used. And we do not hesitate to say that there are but few men or women who read these words that can not be put in perfect condition by the use of that great, that grand discovery, Warner's Safe Cure. This entire paper could be filled with testimonials from the grateful ones whose lives have been saved and whose health restored by its use; and if you, reader, are a sufferer, you may readily be among the number. We earnestly recommend you to think seriously upon this subject.

Faith in Human Nature.

Let us never lose our faith in human nature, no matter how often we are deceived. Do not let the deceptious destroy confidence in the real honesty, goodness, generosity, humanity, and friendship that exist in the world. I have lost twenty-five per cent. of all I have ever made in lending money and endorsing notes, and have incurred generally the enmity of those I have helped because I did not keep it up. But every once in a while there was somebody who did return in such full measure the credit for the help that was rendered, that faith was kept alive and the beauty and the goodness of our human nature were made evident. I have had appointed about a thousand men to employment which gave them support and a chance to climb to positions of greater responsibility and trust if they had the inclination and ability. About nine out of ten of them threw stones at me because I did not do better for them and keep pushing them, and yet there are a hundred or so who, by the exercise of their own ability, their own grasp of the situation, have gone on to the accomplishment of such high ambitions and successes, and have appreciated in so many ways the help extended to them by helping others, that again my faith in human nature remains undiminished.—Chauncey M. Depew.

The Cradle.

The cradle is man's first and greatest school-house. There his education begins. The mother's smile and caress give him his first evidence of human love and gentleness and sympathy. Her words are like a revelation from another sphere. Everything about that cradle is educative: and, what is more, this primal education is radical and determinative. It gives shape to the mind; the impressions there made are deep and abiding; they are not easily rubbed out by all the later rough usages of the world. In the nature of the case the mother is the first teacher, whose lessons almost inevitably abide through fair weather and foul. How important, then, that these early teachings be correct! "The most important part of education," says Plato, "is right training in the nursery." The soul of the child in his play should be trained to that sort of excellence in which, when he grows to manhood, he will have to be perfected. He should be elevated by an inclined plane rather than vertically; the former is usually easy, while the latter is always difficult, sometimes impossible. The cradle song is often the inspiration of the whole life.—Zion's Herald.

HYGIENE.

Alcohol and Insanity.

At the recent National Temperance Congress held in Chester, England, an English physician of high standing, medical superintendent of one of the great idiot asylums of London, Dr. F. H. Walmsley, furnished a paper which was compact with deep convictions and facts which had arisen under his own observation. The London Times thus summarizes his paper: "Dr. Walmsley said that insanity was one of nature's penalties for her broken laws. Pauper lunatics in London were increasing at the rate of 500 a year; thus, every four years it would be necessary to erect a new asylum at the cost of half a million. So long as alcoholic intemperance held sway, so long would insanity prevail; conversely, as the healing of social calamities progressed, the call for the erection of these palaces of desolation would become less and less imperative. It was now universally admitted that alcohol was, directly or indirectly, responsible for more mental and physical incapacity and suffering than any other single known cause of disease. Half the misery and wretchedness of human life and much of the crime of the land were but the outcome of an abnormal state of mind and morals produced by drink." These statements are confirmed by the British Medical Journal, as follows: "The large part played by alcohol as a cause contributing to insanity receives fresh confirmation in the fortieth report of the Commissioners in Lunacy. For the five years ending 1893, alcoholism was the predisposing or exciting cause in 20.8 per cent. of male and 8.1 per cent. of female lunacy. Intemperance is credited with 25.6 per cent. of male and 19.9 per cent. of female general paralytics."—Nashville Advocate.

Drink Sufficient Water.

"A reason," says a physician, "why I often prescribe one of the mineral waters for my patients, and have them take it daily in considerable quantities, is simply to give them sufficient water. It is an error accepted by many otherwise sensible and intelligent persons that drinking much water interferes with digestion. One of these persons said to me lately:

"'I rarely drink a swallow of water; a cup of coffee with my breakfast, a cup of tea or chocolate with my luncheon, and an after-dinner cup of coffee again with my dinner—that is practically all the liquid I take.' (This with an air of conscious rectitude.)

"To begin with, tea, coffee, chocolate, or beer, wine and the like, are not substitutes for water, which is one of the most important of all substances required for the nourishment of the body. Don't drain a half-pint glass of iced water just as you sit down to eat; that is palpably injurious; but do have a big glass of water that has been boiled and cooled brought to you on waking, and by the time the bath and toilet have been accomplished and breakfast is to be taken, the water will not be an interfering agent. About three pints of water a day should be regularly taken; fully this is needed by the system."

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

PUMPKIN PIE.—Pare and cut up a pumpkin, stew till if pressed with a spoon it will mash fine, then drain off all the water, and press through a sieve. For each pie use one cup of pumpkin, one egg, one-half cup of sugar, one-half teaspoon each of ginger, allspice, cinnamon, and a pinch of salt; one-third of a quart of milk. Make the pie crust of three cups of flour, one teaspoon of salt, one cup of lard, enough cold water to make the dough hold together. This makes crust for three pies.

BROWN CAKE.—One-half cup sugar, one cup molasses, one-half cup butter, one teaspoon each of cinnamon, cloves, and allspice; two teaspoons of soda in one cup of boiling water, two and one-half cups of flour; two well-beaten eggs, the last thing. Bake in layers and put together with white icing very thick between the layers.

CORN FRITTERS.—One pint of grated corn, one-half cup of milk, two eggs, one-half cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon of salt; fry in boiling lard.

Fits Cured

From U. S. Journal of Medicine. Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise anyone wishing a cure to address

LEE—Bro. Gronor W. Lee was born in Plaquemines parish, La., Dec. 4, 1847, and died on the fourteenth of March, 1896. On Feb. 17, 1869, he was married to Miss Elizabeth Hingle. Two of his children are dead; four remain, the eldest of whom is a member of the Louisiana Conference. In 1875 he united with the M. E. Church, having previously experienced a change of heart. The organization went down in a few years, but he remained steadfast to his profession of faith amidst the immorality which surrounded him. In 1888 the writer was appointed to the Lower Coast Mission. In Grand Prairie he found six persons who were members of the M. E. Church and M. E. Church, South, and recognized them as members, among whom were Bro Lee and his wife. In 1890 a Sunday-school was organized in his neighborhood, and he was appointed superintendent of it, and continued in that relation until his death.

He was chairman of the Building Committee appointed for the purpose of erecting Wesley Church. He was recording steward and a trustee at his death. As a public man, he was a member of the parish School Board, and had been for many years. He was recently nominated for the office of police juror.

To his physician he said: "I am not afraid of death. What have I been living for all these years?" He told his wife that he was ready and willing to go. The church has lost an exemplary Christian and a faithful worker in her vineyard. His children are rising up to honor and bless his name, for whilst one has entered the ministry, another has taken charge of the Sunday-school over which he presided. J. F. SCHLOCK.

ROBBINS—The subject of this sketch, CALVIN ROBBINS, was born in Marion county, Miss., near Columbia, on Feb. 22 1822; moved with his parents when quite young to near Sharon, Madison county, where he grew to manhood. He was married to Miss Mary J. Collier on April 6, 1847. Bro. Robbins was converted in the Fall of 1853, at Carthage Camp Ground, under the ministry of Rev. Mr. Woodward, and lived a consistent Christian life up to the day of his passage from earth to heaven, which was March 1, 1896, from his home at Clinton, Miss.

There is much more in the character of this personage than the mere record of the above facts, there being seventy-four years intervening between the first and last dates. He wrought well for his Lord, whom he loved with constancy of devotion. His home was in Clinton for many years, but no man ever heard aught against this pure man. I never saw a stronger and more potent exhibition of faith and trust than I saw in his life. Truly he was ripe for the garner, saying to a friend just a few days before he died, "I am ready to go; willing to wait." His mind was constantly dwelling upon the subject of love, saying to me, "I wish I could realize its height and depth;" and it was only a short time from this that he entered the realm of eternal love. I knew him to admire his character and to be inspired by his life.

He leaves a devoted wife and four affectionate children to mourn his departure, but with an abiding assurance that he dwells with the sanctified and saved. ROBT. SELBY

Bolton, Miss.

OSBORN—WILLIE, daughter of Wm and Mary J Osborn, was born May 30, 1861, in Jefferson county, Miss.; married to J M. Watson, of Copiah county, Miss., Jan 9, 1884; died Feb. 21, 1896.

At an early age Willie gave her heart and life to Christ, and for several years her sweet Christian spirit, her quiet, but unfaltering devotion to God, adorned her character. Her uniform life and cheerful patience at all times caused her to be loved by all who knew her. Her disposition was peculiarly kind and obliging; her manners were gentle and unaffected. Those who knew her best loved her most, and can best testify to those noble qualities of mind and heart which she possessed.

At last the cross was exchanged for the crown, and suffering for joy, and labor for rest. When dying she said, "I am ready and willing to die." Death had no terror to her. Kissing her loved ones farewell, she said, "Meet me in heaven."

She left a kind husband, three sweet little boys, several loving sisters, a widowed mother, with many other relatives and friends, to mourn her departure; but their loss is her eternal gain, for she sleeps in Jesus.

May the sore affliction of her loved ones be sanctified to their spiritual good, and may they all meet her in heaven!

Her kinsman and former pastor,
IRA B. ROBERTSON.

MOODY—Bro. JOSEPH B. MOODY, familiarly known as "Uncle Joe," was born in Marion district, S. C., May 23, 1823. He was born again before reaching manhood at Frost Bridge Camp Meeting, in Wayne county, Miss. He was happily married to Catherine McDonald in 1844. Nine children blessed their union, six of whom, with his wife, survive him. He loved to attend protracted and camp meetings. The preacher felt that he had good help when "Uncle Joe" was present. He was able in prayer. He was very much disabled by a stroke of paralysis about fifteen years before death. After struggling with this malady for years, he finally succumbed to it about two o'clock in the morning of June 7, 1895. His dying struggles awoke his wife. He never spoke after she awoke. He had expected the messenger for quite a while. He spoke in love-feast at Quarterly Conference a few days before his death, and said it was well with him; that he had borne the yoke of Christ over fifty years, but was not weary. He also expressed a desire and determination, by the grace of God, to hold out faithful a little longer, and then the last enemy would be conquered, and death would be swallowed up in victory. W. W. MOORE.

WILLIAMS LYDIA AUSTIN, daughter of Dr. T. C. and Mrs. Lydia Gregg Austin was born in Mississippi, April 27, 1871. Her mother died when she was quite a child. At eight years of age she was happily converted. Her father said she would wake him up in the night to tell him how happy she was. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at Oak Hill, Hinds county, Miss. She graduated at Huddleston and Hunt College, Harperville, Miss., in 1889. She taught school in Raymond, Miss., two years, and also taught at Edwards, Miss. At these places she was much beloved. Miss Austin was married to C. S. Williams, Aug. 8, 1895, and came to Texas, reaching Caldwell Aug. 10.

Although Sister Williams was with us only a few months, our people learned to esteem her very highly. Quiet, gentle, and unassuming in her ways, she was yet very positive in her spirituality, and in the stand she took for the cause of Christ, and for the church she loved.

After an illness of two weeks, in which she suffered much, she died April 6, 1896. As she lived, so she died, believing in the power of Jesus Christ to save to the uttermost all who trust in him. She said she was not afraid to go. Her two sisters came from Mississippi to see her, one reaching her just before she died, and the other arriving a few hours after her burial. Their grief was deep and touching. Her husband, two step children, sisters and brothers do not mourn alone. Pastor, church members and neighbors sorrow with them. As her life impressed, so her death touched us all. HER PASTOR.

WAGNER—Mrs. MARY WAGNER, the subject of this sketch, was born in Tennessee in 1819, from whence, when a small child, her parents moved to Cherokee county, Ala., where she lived till after her marriage to Seth Wagner, who preceded her by some years to the glory-land.

When quite young she was converted and lived ever after the life of a Christian. From North Alabama Bro. and Sister Wagner moved to Lauderdale county, Miss., near Daleville, where they remained until they died. Our deceased sister was afflicted for some years before her death, but when able was always present at the religious services of Andrew Chapel, of which she was a member, though her hearing was so much impaired that she could not hear much of the preaching. Poor in this world's goods, but rich in faith, she paid her church dues promptly, even when unable to attend its services. She died in December, 1895, and was buried at Andrew Chapel by the writer, her pastor, by the side of departed loved ones, to await with them the resurrection of the just. D. G. W. ELLIS.

SUGG—As the shades of evening deepened on the eve of March 21, 1896, WILLIE FRANK, the little nine year-old son of T. E. and Jennie L. Sugg, passed from this world of sorrow. He was born Nov. 10, 1887. For the past few months his suffering was great, and young as he was, he could but question why his loved ones wished him to stay. To him heaven was a place of quiet, peaceful rest, and he longed for the hand of death to open for him its entrance gate.

May our gracious and merciful heavenly Father pour out the "balm of Gilead" upon the grief-stricken hearts of his mother and father, and sustain them in this dispensation of his wise providence, with the bright assurance of future reunion! COUSIN ETTIE.

RISER—ANDREW HARTWELL RISER was born in Talladega county, Ala., April 21, 1846, and died March 29, 1896, being nearly fifty years of age. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Church when about fourteen years of age. He lived a consistent Christian life. He was a steward in the church for twenty years. He suffered much and long, but bore his afflictions with great patience and fortitude. His death was peaceful and triumphant. He leaves a widow and a large family of children to mourn their great loss. JNO. A. MILLER.

HOLLINGSWORTH—The following resolutions were adopted by Chapel Hill Church, Sunday, Jan. 26, 1896:

Whereas, On the twenty-fifth day of December, 1895, God, in his wisdom and power, saw fit to call unto himself our friend and brother, Dr. I. N. HOLLINGSWORTH; and while we, as a church, bow in reverence to God's holy will, yet we think it fitting that one so worthy should receive some tribute from the hearts and hands of his brethren; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Dr. Hollingsworth this church has lost one of its best members; a man in every way worthy the confidence, respect and admiration of all; cultivated and refined, modest and unassuming—a typical Christian gentleman in the various walks of life. As a special mark of his gentle and noble heart, he loved to make little children happy.

In the quiet shades of Christmas night
The soul of our friend took its homeward flight.
In the storehouse of memory thy virtues will shine,
As we journey along o'er the pathway of time.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany; Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to April, 97. (A little later it will be May, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2.45.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Iowa has passed a bill taxing bicycles the same as all other vehicles.

The prohibitionists of Rhode Island poll a larger proportion of the vote than in any other State.

The greater New York bill, it is said, will not pass New York Assembly, and Brooklyn will get another respite.

The Massachusetts Committee of Ways and Means has reported adversely to appropriating $50,000 for a statue of General Butler.

Andrew Carnegie has authorized the trustees of Carnegie Art Gallery to offer $8 000 for the best two oil paintings by American artists.

The Massachusetts Legislature has passed a bill absolutely forbidding all boxing matches, public or private, where there is any money in it.

A Boston man who is a strong Second Adventist has prepared clauses to be inserted in life insurance policies making them payable when the assured is either dead or "caught up to meet the Lord in the air."

A Chicago alderman declines to pay the $500 which he pledged for the building of a new church, on the ground that it was a dummy to induce others to subscribe liberally, and was never intended to be paid.

It is reported that the question of the admission of women as delegates to the Methodist General Conference is practically settled, and the women have won the fight. More than two-thirds majority vote is pledged for it.

Rev. W. N. Cleveland, the President's brother, has been ousted from his church at Chaumont, N. Y., by a vote of the presbytery. He preached politics too much and too strongly to suit the Republican members of his flock.

In the State and municipal election, which was held on Tuesday, Foster was elected as governor of Louisiana, with an estimated majority of 25 000; while the Citizens' League ticket, with Flower as mayor, was elected by a majority of 13,000.

FOREIGN.

King Menelik of Abyssinia issues orders to his forces to do no harm to newspaper correspondents. He says "they are writers, and writing is divine."

President Kruger's original demand for an indemnity from the Chartered South Africa Company for the Jameson raid was £3 000 000 but negotiation has reduced it to £1 500 000.

The latest reports from South Africa indicate that a very serious condition of affairs exists there. The rebellion of the Matabeles, in the territory governed by the Chartered British South Africa Company, has assumed alarming proportions.

The London Daily News repeats its assertion that 10 000 British troops are going to the Soudan in the Autumn. These will include, says the Daily News, three battalions of the household troops, who have received private orders to be ready by the end of July.

Mr. Joseph Chamberlain, the British Home Secretary, has delayed re-enforcing the British garrison in Cape Colony so as to avoid giving offense to the Transvaal Republic; but President Kruger has profited by this policy to proceed with the arming of the Boers and the erection of fortifications about Pretoria.

In a second encounter which has taken place between a force of dervishes and a detachment of Egyptian cavalry thirty dervishes and eighteen Egyptians were killed. An Egyptian force of 1 100 men was attacked by the dervishes on Wednesday last, April 16. Sixty of the latter were killed and many more wounded. Egyptian loses was five wounded, twelve killed and four missing.

But a few weeks now remain before the advent of the rainy season in Cuba will put an end to the sugar grinding period, as well as to the active prosecution of warlike operations in the island. From the amount of sugar produced so far, it is now pretty certain that there will be not more than 100 000 tons of sugar available for export, a shrinkage of 820,000 tons compared with last year.

Do Not Despair because you have tried many medicines and have failed to receive benefit. Remember that Hood's Sarsaparilla cures when all others fail to do any good whatever.

Hood's Pills are the best family cathartic and liver medicine. Harmless, reliable, sure.

A SONG IN THE NIGHT.

BY MRS. E. A. HAWKINS.

Hope points to a morning
Whose glorious dawning
Illumines with brightness earth's gloomiest night.
It tells of a morrow
Where sin and where sorrow
Forever and ever have taken their flight.

The echoes are bringing
Its music and singing,
Though faintly, yet sweetly, to earth-weary ears;
Where joy without measure,
And unalloyed pleasure,
Shall follow life's heartaches and bitterest tears.

O pilgrim of sorrow,
Some brightness, then, borrow
From that happy country so dear and so fair!
The years that are fleeting
Will hasten the meeting
With loved ones departed who wait over there.

Faint not 'neath thy burden,
But wait for thy guerdon,
And sing, weary pilgrim, song brightens the day.
'Mid life's heavy crosses
And earth's bitter losses
The Savior is guiding you safe on your way.

In Memoriam.

[The following tribute to Rev. J. W. McNeil was written by one who knew him intimately for thirty-five years.—W. B. LEWIS.]

It is well to pause amid the contests of life, its struggles and its perplexities, to give thought to the conduct and example of those who passed us on the journey of life; to contemplate all that is good and beautiful in their lives, pay tribute to their virtues, and thus keep green their memories. With this in view is offered the heartfelt tribute which follows:

A wave of sorrow passed through the hearts of all who heard on a recent peaceful Sabbath morning the announcement made and regretfully repeated, "J. W. McNeil is dead!" He who was so recently among us in health and strength, giving promise of many years of usefulness; full of restless energy, planning for the future, with mind and body attuned to active exertion. With but slight premonition the throbbing pulses of his life ceased their steady flow, "the weary wheels of life stood still," and he now sleeps the sleep that knows no waking until the resurrection morn.

It is by many thought that the most gracious boon conferred by a merciful Providence upon any man is that he may not know the manner or hour of his death. When it comes to him in the full vigor of activity, especially after years of a well-spent life, as a relief from all sorrow and care, with an humble and devout Christian hope of a future and better life to come, such a departure is blessed by comparison with the agony of hovering for a time on the borderland in weakness and pain. From this standpoint the life of our lamented brother was blessed by its ending. "The good that men do lives after them," so we stand by his new-made grave and recall the graces and good qualities of his busy life.

After holding for ten years an honored place on the roll of the Mississippi Conference, he was located at his own request, and settled near Crystal Springs, where he resided until his death—a period of nearly twenty-eight years. His work as a minister did not cease with his location. He filled appointments nearly every Sabbath. His plain, earnest and comprehensive sermons were heard with gladness and profit. Popular and respected, he was much in request to officiate at marriages and burial services. His visitations to the sick in his vicinity were a continual blessing.

For many years as secretary and chief executive officer of the great camp meeting annually held near Crystal Springs, he devoted much time and thought to its service. He took delight in the work, and his successful management won the esteem and admiration of these who were associated with him. During twenty-four successive years he never failed to attend camp meeting from opening to closing day, having the oversight of all the details of its affairs. Nearly all these years he camped on the ground, and, aided by his most estimable wife, was unbounded in hospitality.

A plain, unpretentious man, he exercised an influence for good which can hardly be estimated. Industrious and energetic in his business affairs, he was one of the pioneers in the great industry, truck farming, which has won for Crystal Springs a fame as wide as the continent. A learner always, no man more readily moved forward on progressive lines in improved methods and appliances. He was public-spirited as a citizen, faithful to all his obligations, charitable to the needy, sympathetic with suffering, genial as an associate, conscientious in all things, devoted and loving as a husband and father. He was, take him all in all, a man to be honored and loved in life, and sincerely mourned, as he is, in death.

It is not urged that he was faultless. This would be fulsome praise and adulation, but it may be said, "Would to God we had more like him!"

He leaves to his sorrowing wife and children not riches, but comfortable maintenance. Better, a hundredfold better, he leaves them the priceless heritage of a good name.

"What Is God?"

MR. EDITOR: A student in Palmore Institute night school has handed me a paper for examination, the subject and the thoughts upon which are so fraught with interest to you and your readers, as well as to your representatives here, that I send them herewith. A perusal of these ideas will, I am sure, arouse much interest in every Christian heart for the people to whom you send teachers and preachers to give light.

Can anyone at home refrain from earnest, importunate prayer in behalf of such a heart?—and will anyone (man, woman, or child) hesitate to turn on stronger light by sending forth those who shall here and everywhere help instruct such needy, wandering souls? The depth of such darkness makes the soul cry out, "O Lord! how long shall it be thus?"

Will not men and women come up to the help of God's honor and glory in this land, and establish a force capable of meeting the great need? The present is ours; the future will be too late for many a soul that in eternity may say, "You told me not, and now it is too late."

Longingly, M. I. LAMBUTH.

Kobe, Japan, March 5, 1896

"I will say about this as follows: Physical and chemical laws, or rules, established the earth and other planets, animals, and vegetables. Though we can not clearly find out the laws, yet we can believe them. The noun 'God' was used by Jesus at first for convenience, as only a way to lead the many foolish persons into a moral kingdom; those who can not understand cause and effect. The strange things the Bible tells of as done by Jesus run far away from natural laws, such as, 'Jesus walked upon the surface of the water,' 'Jesus changed water into wine,' etc. If we suppose that these natural laws were made by 'Almighty God,' then we must say, 'God has broken the laws' that he made. Would an honorable God let his Son be destroyed? Would God destroy the laws which he made? he destroy the laws which he made? If he did, I will say he is no No. If he did not destroy, more God; and if then such strange things would never happen. Therefore, I say, God is a natural law, not an 'Almighty God' that the Bible tells of, and it is only a way to lead foolish persons. But the inward heart of mine sometimes fancies there is a 'God.'"

The "Whosoever-Will" Mission.

Most of the large cities of the country have quarters where there is such a combination of poverty and wretchedness and crime and drunkenness, and all that goes with them, that they have become famous. In these places, in most instances, devoted men have inaugurated movements to save the wretched habitues of those places, or, at least, to make their lot better. These missions have become almost as famous as the slums in which they have been located, and some of the men who have started and kept them going are known all over the country, notably Jerry McCauley, of New York, whose mission for men has been the model for hundreds of institutions of the same nature.

In New Orleans all old-timers know that there is a place where so much rowdyism, so much drunkenness of the miserable, filthy, staggering kind, and so many wretched, desperate, criminal and hopeless men can be found in the city, as in that quarter comprising the environments of Exchange Alley and Bienville street. In old times that was a very respectable locality, but of late years it has been a tough place, and in the dimly-lighted alley staggering and muttering bums are the most familiar sight after dark. There are saloons on every corner except one, and on that one the Screwmen's Hall is located. There are two or three hole-in-the-wall saloons in the alley also. Half a block from the corner was the rear entrance of the infamous Eden Theatre, from which strains of very bad music and ribald songs were to be heard at all hours of the night, and through which many a poor wretch went and left what money he had.

On the lower river corner of the street is a notorious saloon, where more tough characters assemble, more thieves and crooks and tramps, and where there are more fights and arrests than at any place in the city probably. Every night there is a band of music there, which can be heard as soon as one gets within a couple of blocks.

Right across Bienville street from this saloon passers-by see a stream of light issuing from a building, and hear the strains of an organ, accompanied by the mingling of men's voices, with one or two sweet female ones, singing hymns. It is a recent innovation in that tough locality, and nobody goes by without stopping to look in and see what it means. Old, tough bums stagger by, and invariably stop to see what it is. Crowds of young fellows taking in the sights stop and look in, or stand across the street and comment on it. It is the Whosoever Will Mission, and although when it was started the saloon keepers and the habitues of that locality looked upon it with derision, and thought that a week or so would see the end of the innovation, they have now come to see it in a different light. Everybody treats it with respect. They stop and stare, but are very respectful about it; and of the throngs that stop every now and then, one will stagger in; or, perhaps, he is a man who, although down in the world, is not a bum, and who, seeing that there is somebody there who is trying to do something for him, enters out of respect. Anyway, from the time that the mission opens its meetings, at 7:45 every evening, until it closes, after 10 o'clock, it is crowded. Men come in and go out, but there are always enough to fill the chairs.

What the saloon keepers think of it is easy to surmise, but they have not shown any direct opposition, although one of them, the Three Brothers' man, moved his band over by the door on that side, and offered competition with the organ and the hymn singers. He moved away soon, though, and his band occupies its old place again. There was too much religion and enthusiasm in the mission music, and, perhaps, he was afraid that what the musicians heard would set them thinking.

There have been missions in this city many times, but none in recent years seem to have taken hold of the class which it was intended to reach like the Whosoever Will Mission. It has almost transformed the locality. The rough men who hung on the old iron railing at the intersection of the two streets used to tell lurid stories and swear. Some of them swear now, but they are more likely to be holding arguments about religion, and whether a young man who does the best he can, and don't claim to be converted, is as good as one who belongs to the church, and such things as that. That mission has discounted the saloons, and the lonely, dark streets don't seem half so dark or lonely; and if what the adherents of that enterprise say is true, the world doesn't seem half so dark to many a poor fellow who has been staggering around the inhospitable streets of the city. They say that about 130 men have already professed that they were converted in the mission, although it has only been running about a month.

The claim seems very probable, for when a reporter investigated it he found that it was constantly crowded, and that the men were all in dead earnest in their participation in the services. There are all classes of men there, from the old, white-haired sinner, with his ragged clothes and unkept, long, white hair, to the slender and shabby young man who has come to that point that he doesn't know what to do, but isn't quite ready to commit crime. A majority of those who have been taking an interest for some days wear a more hopeful look, and all seem to have gotten it through their heads that there is somebody there who is trying to do something for them, and that all this hard and persistent work is done solely for their benefit, and nobody else has anything to gain by it. When people understand that, a very good start has been made.

Last night a reporter entered the mission and found it crowded with men. They were taking part in the singing, and although there were not many voices there which would have entitled the owners to be considered singers, there was a hearty ring in them.

Mr. Henry Haag was conducting the meeting, and there were two ladies, one at the organ and another singing on the platform. After singing Mr. Haag asked all to kneel down, and every man in the room complied except one old white-haired fellow, who seemed to be a new arrival, and was not in a condition to comprehend his position. The prayer was a very earnest one, and many of the men responded with amens. Then Mr. Haag read from the Bible a passage on the crucifixion of Christ, and delivered a little sermon. Then there was more singing and talks by other persons. Then those who wanted to be prayed for were given a chance to say so. There were fourteen of these last night.

This is the regular programme, the service being similar to that at a church revival meeting. Sometimes the ladies take part, offering prayer and speaking to the men. Mr. Haag seems to be terribly in earnest in the matter. He is a well-known young man of this city, being a son of Henry Haag, secretary and treasurer of the J. H. Keller Soap Company, and is himself president of the Crescent Soap Company. He is the founder of the mission, and he and his wife are conducting it exclusively. Sometimes there are friends from the churches and the Y. M. C. A. to assist in the services.

Besides the religious feature of the mission Mr. Haag gives lodging to some of the men who seem to be taking an interest, and he has supplied a great many of them with clothing and shoes. One poor fellow said last night that when he came there he was shoeless and hatless, and boasted that now he was looking like a gentleman. He must have been very badly off. Another man, who was washed and shaved and looking well, said that he was best known on Poydras street as a drunken tough, and that if he should go there now the people wouldn't know him.

It is Mr. Haag's intention to fit up the rooms in the upper part of the building, so that he may be able to give lodgings to those who can be helped in that way, for he understands that there is no use to get a man interested in being saved and then turning him out in the street. To-night he will serve a lunch of sandwiches before the services.

The ladies who sang last night were Mrs. Haag and Mrs. James. These ladies are taking an active interest in saving the poor men. The crowd last night was very remarkable in many respects, showing clearly what the mission has done and what it has yet to do. Many of the converted are taking a very active interest in the others, and there seemed to be a feeling of brotherhood among the whole.—Picayune.

Leniency towards Crime.

In a recent address President Andrew D. White reviewed the statistics of homicidal crime in this country, and of the acquittal, escape, or pardon of those guilty of it, in such a way as to startle his hearers. Forty thousand murders have been committed in the last six years in this country, he is reported to have said, and only 7,451 murderers are in prison. There were 3,567 homicides reported in this country in 1889; in 1895 the number went up to 10,500; yet only one in forty-five of those convicted of this crime were executed in 1889, and only one in seventy-four of those in 1895. The abuse of the pardoning power by State governors, and "the maudlin sentiment in the community at large, miscalled mercy, but really most fearful cruelty," together with the perversion of legal methods, are largely accountable for the non-punishment or inadequate punishment of this most serious of crimes. Ten thousand lives will be taken by violence the coming year, the lecturer predicted, two-thirds of which would be spared if would-be murderers had not learned that the risk of atoning for their crime was one which they could afford to run. Crime will continue to increase so long as the children are educated in it by "dime novels, sensational newspapers, posters and melodrama," and so long as old and young are herded together in prison. It will decrease when it is sharply, surely and speedily punished: when journalism becomes cleaner, when vicious books and pamphlets are stamped out, and when moral instruction is introduced into schools.—Zion's Herald.

A Temperance Saloon.

What might be termed a "temperance-saloon" enterprise has been inaugurated by some citizens and business men in the town of New Rochelle, a suburb of New York City containing a population of about 12,000. These men have formed themselves into a legal corporation known as the New Rochelle Tavern Company, and have opened a tavern on one of the business streets of the village modeled closely on the lines of the average saloon, the chief points of distinction being an absence of intoxicating drinks and other means of degradation. Beyond this the habitues of the place, who are men only, are allowed the same freedom and the same indulgence and amusements found in the ordinary public-house. While the tavern is founded for a philanthropic purpose, to draw men away from the evil associations and temptations of the saloon, it is run on strictly business principles and on a purely business basis, and not as a charitable institution. The tavern has now been in existence for a little over a year, and has been a pronounced success from the start. The best evidence of this success is afforded in the fact that the tavern corporation is preparing to erect a much larger and more convenient building during the present season. While many temperance coffee-houses have been established in different parts of the country, it is believed that the New Rochelle tavern is the first institution of the kind to work against the saloons on a practical and purely business basis, and for this reason its prosperity is significant and encouraging.—Northwestern Advocate.

At a recent meeting of the Federation of Churches and Christian Workers in New York City a report was submitted showing the results of a sociological canvass of the Fifteenth Assembly District, one of the most thickly populated tenement regions of the metropolis. Some of the facts and figures were of startling significance. The district mentioned has a population of about 40,000 people, representing at least twenty-five nationalities. In one block are a thousand confessed non-church goers, a number equalling two-thirds of the whole Protestant church membership in the district. There are a hundred and thirty liquor saloons, twelve churches, and not a single social resort for the public except the saloons. These occupy forty-four out of the ninety-two corner lots in the district. The saloons have a street frontage of 3,035 feet, or one foot in seven of the whole; the total frontage of church and school property is 376 feet, or one foot in twenty-nine.—Christian Guardian.

Of the seven largest cities in the world, Chicago, according to investigations recently made by Mr. E. L. Corthell, the engineer of the Tehuantepec railroad in Mexico, far outstrips all others in growth of population, its rate being 106 per cent.; Berlin comes next, increasing at the rate of 37 per cent.; next in order are Greater New York, 33 per cent.; Philadelphia, 25 per cent.; Greater London, 18 per cent.; St. Petersburg, 15 per cent., and Paris, 10 per cent. Mr. Corthell estimates that in 1920, assuming the present rates of growth to continue, London would still lead, with a population of 8,516,256; Chicago would stand next, numbering 8,208,000; New York would have over 6,000,000; Berlin, nearly 3,500,000; Paris, over 3,225,000; Philadelphia, over 2,000,000, and St. Petersburg, over 1,500,000.—Zion's Herald.

If there is a greater piece of folly than for a preacher to take a large number of people into the church, and then turn them out on the commons without a church paper to foster and nourish church life, will some one please tell us what it is? No wonder we have sickly, sentimental churches and short collections. Until preachers are wise enough to supply them with this essential nourishment, it will always be thus.—Central Methodist.

A family was once heard of who took their letters from a church in high dudgeon because they were politely requested by a burdened treasurer to pay long-awaited pew rent. Now, would not that treasurer have been justified in warning the officers of the church which the family joined, that their new-comers were simply ecclesiastical dead-beats?—Mid-Continent.

Among the timely suggestions made by Bishop Fowler at the close of the session of the New Hampshire Conference, which received the cordial approval of all thoughtful persons, was: "Remember that you are no longer pastor of the church which you are leaving."

The while our hands a portion break
For feebler ones, for love's dear sake.

In need and gift a link is seen
In that strong chain that runs between
All lives where tenderness is found,
Wherewith may heart to heart be bound

The gift, the joy, the thought we share
Become of all our gifts most fair,
Of all our blessedness the best,
Of thoughts the richest, loveliest

Our lack itself were long and drear,
But for the weaker ones anear

How Should We Educate?

Though I have never enjoyed the advantages of a college training, yet I am the last to frame objections to those privileges found nowhere else but in our colleges and universities. But should not that high praise and supremacy accorded to learning be met impartially to knowledge wherever found? Let it be in a college graduate, or a self-made man. I, for one, could not consistently make a difference, for to be learned does not always imply "college-bred," nor is everyone that is graduated from a college always learned.

I contend that the man who has borne the heat of the day, and by dint of toil and midnight study has made slow, but sure progress in learning, is not less worthy, nor less qualified and capable, to hold positions of honor and trust than is the "college-bred" man; nor are they less frequently found filling such positions.

I protest against that unfair practice of preference to one, just because he is, or claims to be, graduated from some college, because it is not infrequently that we meet such a one, who, to claim for himself "college breeding" and boast of being a graduate, would be a disgrace to any respectable institution of learning.

Before I am through, I hope to show plainly the true source of this bad consequence, and that it is always the natural effect of like procedure. Perhaps, we can reach the source more easily, if we stop and consider the general interpretation of the term "education." The general acceptation of this term—"education"—of to-day is narrow, one-sided, and disfigured, and is by the masses thought to mean but little or nothing beyond the partial mastery of a few text-books found in the high schools, universities, and colleges. Now, we have no objections to these text-books, nor to the highest standard of intellectual attainment claimed to be reached by them, but for a tower so lofty would it not be wise to broaden its basis?—and give it the rock of true moral training to rest upon, rather than the quick-sands of immorality!

It appears that we look upon the youth of our time as being capable of no development besides that of mind—as though they were all mind. And it is because of this false view of parents and educators, that we can trace so many splendid failures in the lives of college-graduated men and women. The truth is, the balance-wheel has been left off of the machinery, and the work, as a consequence, is a failure. Yet this procedure is not less unwise than would be the ship-master who insists on putting all of his cargo upon deck while he leaves empty the hold. No sooner will a vessel loaded thus, launched out upon high sea, then will she meet disaster and peril. No master mechanic would think of erecting an edifice upon a single pillar, or build a bridge across one of our great rivers upon a single pier. Yet this is exactly the course sometimes pursued in the educating of the youth of to-day. I speak now not of the few exceptions.

There are not a few of those who advocate the cause of education who have fallen into this rut—making a college graduation paramount, thus converting it from its true and natural use as a means to that of an end; so that he who has thus attained needs nothing more to insure for himself positions of honor, and even fame. That this will not stand the test "goes without saying."

An ideal education will never be realized until parents and educators can see something else in children capable of being developed besides their minds. Hence the first great requisite necessary to insure a true education is that the educator understand the subject that he is to educate, and then proceed accordingly, and without this knowledge the [illegible] must be incomplete. The acknowledged three-fold being of man are each equally capable of development—and any educational institution that does not provide for this trio development of her pupil is, in a word, a failure, and is not worthy of Christian patronage. And for Christian parents to support such institutions with their money and children is as unwise as it is inconsistent, and is as destructive to the prosperity and happiness of the child as it is to the expectations and hopes of the parents. Therefore, while we insist so strongly upon the importance of education, we should be equally concerned about the standard and character of the institution; for it is certainly the mold in which the character of the youth is shaped.

If the parents in our Louisiana Methodism would awake to an appreciation of this fact, that their boy's health is to be considered and preserved by proper exercise in order to give them vigor of mind and correctness of thought and judgment, and that they have souls to save, as well as minds to educate, and that there is a heaven to gain, as well as a fame to win, there would be but one institution of learning in all their borders worthy of their patronage, and that would be that worthy and time-honored institution at Jackson, La.—Centenary College; for she, with her noble and able president and competent faculty, offers more that is conducive to a true education and the enobling of manhood than can be found elsewhere in the State, or surpassed in the South. And what is more, she is ours, her interest is ours, her fame is ours and her glory is ours. So let us with our money, and our boys, hasten to her support, and with our own hands launch her out upon a new era, that she may sail forth at the dawn of a new day to heights of grandeur and usefulness unsurpassed in the annals of history.

May God inspire our hearts to greater activity in promoting the true moral development of our sons; for was it not the wane of morality and the increasing floods of crime that cause the star of knowledge to fall so low amidst the rising fogs of ignorance and degradation that so nearly darken the intellectual horizon of the world, as to bring on that dark and awful period of the world's history known as the dark age? Nor was its darkness dissipated until the thundering voices of the reformers had exposed the cancer of the age by the searching light of revelation, and by it constructed a moral basis conducive to future intellectual development and true manhood, a possible attainment.

It may not be a maxim, yet it is none the less true, that education without a moral basis ceases to civilize and elevate a people, and will soon sink to that level to which degradation and crime carry their votaries. Therefore, let us see to it that our children are educated where their morals will be looked after and developed, as well as their minds.

Rev. Jerret W. McNeil.

The subject of this notice was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., near where Gloster is now situated, Dec. 21, 1830, and died at his home near Crystal Springs, Miss., March 15, 1896. In his youth he enjoyed the advantages of a liberal education, having graduated at one of our Northern colleges. He was converted early in life, and joined the Methodist Church, to which his parents belonged. He taught school for a while, but finally resolved to devote his life to the ministry, to which he felt called, and began a more thorough preparation for that high vocation. He was admitted on trial into the Mississippi Conference at Brandon, in December, 1857. At the close of his second year he was received into Conference and elected to deacon's orders, but there being no Bishop present, he was not at that time ordained. This Conference was held in Jackson, and presided over by Dr. B. M. Drake. Bro. McNeil was ordained a deacon in Natchez, in 1860, by Bishop Early, and an elder in Canton, in 1861, by Bishop Paine.

On the twenty-sixth of June, 1859, he was married to Miss Lucy A. B. Carr, at Handsboro, Miss.

After filling efficiently several important charges in his Conference, he had to desist from constant preaching for awhile, on account of an affection of the throat. He was granted a superannuated relation about the year 1867, but was finally located at his own request in 1872.

When he first retired from the pastorate he purchased a home and settled his family near Crystal Springs, his last charge, and remained there to the close of his life. For a while he taught school again, for which he seemed well adapted, but finally turned his attention to farming, in which he was also successful.

He was a public-spirited man, and took an active interest in affairs. At one time he was drawn into politics, and served a term in the State Legislature, but generally he was content to serve his generation as a private citizen. When the vegetable culture in the vicinity of Crystal Springs began to develop as a remunerative industry, he saw in it great possibilities, and threw himself into the business with his accustomed energy, and contributed largely to the splendid perfection to which it has been brought in that section. He was at one time agricultural editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, and wrote much for other periodicals on the subject, and always with credit to himself and profit to his readers. He was also a frequent contributor to the press on religious topics. From the inception of the enterprise he was connected with the Henington Camp Meeting, located near Crystal Springs. As a tent-holder, and as an officer in the association, he has, perhaps, done more than any other man to build up and perpetuate that camp meeting. It was characteristic of him to go into anything he took hold of with all his might, and he generally succeeded in his undertakings, though he sometimes collided with other individuals.

As a preacher, Bro. McNeil was above mediocre, and had he devoted his powers exclusively to this business, he might have ranked among the first. As it was, he was always interesting, instructive, and forcible in the pulpit, and his ministerial labors were blessed with good results. He loved the church, and was true to her interests. He was helpful to his pastor, as I can testify, having once sustained that relation to him. His last pastor writes me: "I can say of him that he was a safe, wise counselor, and a true, faithful friend. He was a good and useful man." This simple testimony from one who knew him well will, doubtless, be approved by all who had a personal knowledge of his life and character. His death was very sudden, resulting from heart failure; but, no doubt, he was ready when the summons came. He will be greatly missed, not only by his devoted family, but by the church, and by the community in which he had lived for thirty-two years.

Sunday-School Lesson for April 19, 1896.

This lesson embraces a part of the third parable contained in the fifteenth chapter of St. Luke, popularly called the Parable of the Prodigal Son. The earthly father in the parable represents the heavenly Father. If so, the two sons of the heavenly Father. Not Gentile and Jew, for that would reverse the order; the Gentile, the elder, went astray; the Jew, the younger, went not astray. They were not Scribe and Disciple in that case again—the elder went away, and the younger went not away. We can not get at the proper sense of this Scripture by thus reversing the order. They were both sons of the heavenly Father. One decided to leave his Father's house, the restraints of religion, to take in the pleasures of this life and the gratifications of lust and the flesh. The other remained with the Father, and went not away (read verse 31).

Much criticism has been made in papers written and sermons preached upon the elder son's parsimony. "He was angry and would not go in." He did not understand the occasion in celebrating the disgraced and vagabond brother's return.

For many years in reading this parable an incident in my own experience never fails to come to mind. As a boy I had been trying for years to be religious, which seemed generally understood. Near the time I was grown, a young man, rather wild and thoughtless, whom I regarded as a bad boy, professed religion. There was such an amount of rejoicing over him I felt snubbed. In all my reputed faithfulness no such "a to-do" had ever been made over me. On my way from church I was conscious of a feeling of jealousy tugging at my heart. Since then I have joined in many such rejoicing over returned lost souls. "Therefore came his father out and entreated him. And he, answering, said to his father, Lo, these many years do I serve thee, neither transgressed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gavest me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends. But as soon as this, thy son, was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou hast killed for him the fatted calf." "And he said unto him, Son, thou art ever with me"—you have never left me—"and all that I have is thine." He had received, dressed up and rejoiced over the younger. He never said, he could not say, "All that I have is thine." "It was meet that we should make merry, and be glad for this, thy brother, was dead, and is alive again; was lost and is found." If the case of the elder son means anything in a spiritual sense, it is a vast premium on a life of piety which lasts from childhood to age. It is heaven, and all that heaven is.

Parsonages.

MR. EDITOR: I have read with interest the two recent letters in the ADVOCATE from preachers' wives about parsonages, and if you will kindly allow me a little space, I will occupy the floor for a few minutes. You know this is the woman's era, any way, and if they would write more for the papers and agitate all these important questions, I believe it would do good, and cause people to think. There is in the heart of every woman an inborn desire and love for a pretty home, whether this love is gratified or not. A preacher's wife, though she occupies the parsonage only a short time, wants to feel that it is her home while she lives there, and it gives her pleasure to adorn and beautify it as much as possible. But how can she take an interest in making it attractive when the house is old and dilapidated, the steps hanging by a few nails, the window-panes ready to fall out when the wind blows, and the wall paper in strings and tatters? A preacher's whole life is given to his work, preaching the gospel, visiting the sick, marrying the living, and burying the dead, and, of course, he never expects to own a permanent home until he gets to heaven. If he was engaged in any other occupation, he could have a home and adorn it to suit his taste. As it is, he is willing to make sacrifices and go wherever Conference sees fit to send him. Usually (of course there are exceptions) about the shabbiest house in town is the Methodist parsonage.

Now, please don't think I am writing in a spirit of complaint. I think the Methodist ministry is the grandest calling under the sun, and the preacher's wife has more friends and fewer hardships than a great many who pity her; but, at the same time, she does sometimes long for a pretty home, and her husband could do better work, and preach better sermons, if the people would manifest more interest in the parsonage.

Yours sincerely,

PREACHER'S WIFE NO. 3.

The Cuban Mission.

At the convention of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society, held in Nashville in 1894, Dr. Lambuth gave an interesting account of the condition and needs of Cuba and our mission work to the Cubans. Impelled by the interest his earnest words awakened, the convention decided to adopt the Cuban Mission, and entered at once upon the work. For years the Florida Conference had been struggling with many discouragements and an empty treasury to keep up mission work among the Cubans at Tampa, Ocala, and Key West, and hold its mission post at Havana. At Tampa and Ocala alone are 10,000 Cubans, driven from their own land by the hand of Spanish tyranny. Disgusted with the Romish priesthood, and sick of religious farce, they are in a transition state. They must be won for Christ, or they will drift into an infidelity worse than death. The Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society entered the field at Tampa last year by adopting two schools in the suburbs of Ybor City (pronounced Ebor) and Cuba City. The number of pupils vary from 50 to 200. They are bright and learn rapidly, and are being taught in both English and Spanish. The greatest difficulty in teaching them Spanish is in procuring proper text-books. The dominating influence and ceaseless vigilance of the Romish Church are found even in the school books, few of them being free from passages that render them unfit to be taught in a Protestant school. Mrs. Moore and Miss Smithers, who had been with Miss Holding in the Mexican Border Mission, are in charge of the school in Ybor City. We have a rented building, but it is too small, and not adapted for school purposes. A large, convenient school-room can be filled, and is a necessity. The school in the other suburb, Cuba City, is conducted by two native Cubans, consecrated women from Key West. They have labored and economized until they have been enabled to buy a lot and erect a comfortable school-building, which they give free of rent to the W. F. and H. M. Society for school purposes. They have given themselves and all they had. At Ocala another large colony of Cubans makes a similar demand for schools. The pastor, Bro. Pike, urges us to secure a lot at once through the land company, which is in full sympathy with us. We hope soon to have an offer from this company. The mission work at this point lost an earnest and influential friend in the death of Gen. Marti, who fell at the head of the Cuban revolutionists. He welcomed anything looking to the religious freedom of his people, and was anxious to help us establish our mission work at Ocala. Industrial features will be introduced into all the schools as soon as our means warrant. We are now raising $20,000 to build or buy our own school property here and elsewhere. Mrs. Wiley, in a letter received last week, from which most of these facts were gathered, writes: "Never have I been more hopeful of grand results. The outlook for our work among the Cubans is very encouraging. Their need is as imperative as that of any pagan nation. God is literally bringing the heathen right into our midst. Self-preservation, if no higher motive, influences us, should lead us to save them. They are sick of Roman Catholicism, and totally without Christian influences." This Cuban and Key West Mission is the highway to Cuba, that "Gem of the Antilles," whose one million and a half inhabitants live in worse than pagan darkness. Havana, the capital and great commercial center, has a church of fifty members, and is in the Barton district of the Florida Conference. We need to extend our work to this city also, for a bitter cry comes from the fifty thousand women on her streets who have no hope in this world and none in the world to come. God pity them, and arouse our Methodist women who are at ease in Zion.

"Last year we held a public meeting every quarter, and in this way made all our pledge money. We will try the same plan this year." This sentence, from a member of the auxiliary at Carrollton, Miss., may contain a helpful suggestion for other workers.

The following extract from a letter from Dr. Annie Walter to the children of the North Carolina Conference, taken from the March number of the Little Worker, will, doubtless, be interesting to the mothers in our auxiliaries:

"Then there will be six or eight private rooms for very sick patients and for our nurses; and now for the sweetest, brightest spot of all. Listen while I describe it to you. At the back of the new hall, and just as long as the Mary Black Hall is wide, is to be a great sun room, sixty feet long and thirty feet wide. The eastern, western, and southern walls are to be all of glass. In this we are going to have swings and hobby-horses, rocking-chairs, dolls, picture books, and toys; and this is what you can imagine every blessed morning. The doors on the north side of the sun and pleasure palace will open, and beds will be rolled out into the beautiful, glorious light. Weary heads will grow rested; wee, pinched, white faces will grow rosy and plump; weak and sick baby hands will grow strong to hold the dolls, crutches will be laid aside, and soon the hobby-horse, the swings, and the chairs will be in full motion, and the merry voices will grow merrier and stronger in this, the greatest, best, and purest of all the God-given medicines that man can prescribe—the sunshine.

"I didn't tell you, did I (for there is so much to tell), that Mrs. Park and I have gone into the flower business? We are going to have flowers everywhere—by the beds, in the windows, in the wee white hands; flowers and ferns just as beautiful and fresh as Mrs. Park can make them grow, and everything grows for her. She and Mrs. Parker are going to do something else too. Tell all these children the wonderfully beautiful story of how Jesus died to save them; how hard it will be for them to believe it, for they know nothing about such love as that, none of them. Dr. Parker will make our splints and our crutches and swings, and do so much for us, that we couldn't well run the hospital without his splendid workshop just over the way."

The Limitless Life.

We can not reach the deepest life. Each fresh, full outpouring of the Spirit is a pledge of something better, richer and fuller further on; and this is the essence of our peace, that there will never be a point in the upward path where we can say, "This is the highest." The life that is Godward can not reach maturity, for there degeneration begins; but there is a possibility of growth, broader, stronger and richer, through all time and eternity. There is no limit. There is no superlative. The "deeper life" can not become "the deepest."

If this is true of the soul-life in general, it is true of its details. This is where our faith staggers. It is so easy to say, "I have done all that any one could expect." It is so easy to forget that the "widow's mite" was not a penny, but "all that she had." As volunteers, we have counted all things "loss for Christ" (Phil. iii, 7); we have "suffered the loss of all things" (Phil. iii, 8); we have "left all and followed" him (Luke xviii, 28); yet it was a volunteer who exclaimed, rebelliously: "Well, where is the limit? We are but mortal!" Oh, there was no limit in Christ's love, in Christ's life, in Christ's sacrifice! When we place bounds upon growth in any line, it is Christ's life which we are limiting; for we are dead, and it is "Christ that liveth in us" (Gal. ii, 20.) To take this thought into practical life is harder than to generalize. We are prone to place arbitrary limits upon some of our possibilities; is it because we can not see the open doors, or will not?

—Eleanor Fairman Preston.

The Old Bible.

I have happily never had any doubts myself about the old Bible. Many men have their difficulties, and I would not say a word against honest men struggling for the truth; I am speaking in my own name when I say I accept the Bible as inspired, authoritative and final. I believe in preaching constructively. If a man should say to me that the Bible is not in itself a revelation, but it contains one, I should say that is not the way I put it. It is a revelation struggling with the limitations of a book. I do not say a man is a body containing a soul, but a soul struggling against the limitations of a body. The Bible is literature, and something more, and it is the something more that I want to get at. We do not want a new Bible; we want new readers of the old Bible. I have sometimes heard the Bible read in such a way that I have felt inclined to say, "Give me the book, that I may see who wrote it!" Sometimes (I will say this to the students) a very young and simple—oh, how simple!—student gives in his list of books that he has read to his college tutors, and at the head of the list puts the Bible. And the heads of the college smile as they read it. Always put the old Bible at the head of your books. There is no oratorio like the Bible. Let it sing in your souls, and so unceasingly and loudly that no one can impose on you to deny it. The Bible is biblical. This is no paradox. It is a deep truth. Why do you not stand up for your Bible as a musician would stand up for his authority? I was recently present when a very young man was playing before a German professor some selections from Beethoven, when the professor suddenly jumped up, crying: "There are many opinions about the inspiration of the Bible, but there is no question about the inspiration of Beethoven! I will not stay here and hear you tryiug to improve on him!"

"Conference Claimants."

BY REV. H. J. HARRIS.

There are many "claimants" upon the church that demand the legislation of the General and Annual Conferences, and to which the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are expected to respond promptly and liberally. But there is one which by way of distinction and pre-eminence is called "Conference claimants."

An article in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, of April 9, under this heading, and signed by Bro. W. M. Thornton, treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance of our Conference, it seems to me, deserves attention at the hands of the General and Annual Conferences throughout the connection. From any and every stand-point, this "claim," so-called, instead of being reverted to the rear, should be brought to the front. Now, see what the treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance says: "The first quarterly allowance for our 'claimants' is now due. I have not yet received funds enough to pay them. One old brother writes me that he is starving. All are needy, and expecting help." After statistical facts given, our treasurer appeals earnestly to preachers and people, thus: "Now, brethren, do please take a collection for this cause and send me at once."

The day may come when some brother who has failed to take this collection will feel the force of this appeal. The very people whom he wishes to accommodate by waiving this collection at the expense of a "starving" old brother may confront his report with the declaration that they were willing and ready to respond whenever called upon for this collection.

Away back in the '50's, and before this, the collection for "Conference claimants" was regarded of paramount interest, and it was first in the order of the collections each preacher had to take. But now, as we see, this collection is, if not reserved for the last, still the treasurer says: "I have not yet received money enough to pay them."

I am not "starving," nor do I complain at the tardiness of anyone who is in anywise responsible for the collection for "Conference claimants." There are several brethren in the superannuated roll who have no cottage in this wilderness, nor "one foot of land" do they possess. (Of which I am one.) This writer congratulates the pastor who meets a hearty welcome and a larder well supplied, and is made comfortable for months in advance by his predecessor and the brethren of the church. There are few examples of this kind, however, as appears from the official reports. This writer does not wish to parade the names of his own children who have kindly taken care of us since we were superannuated, and while we were physically able to labor with our hands for a livelihood, and are still willing to care for us in our infirmity, We make no appeal to charity. If the church and our friends will do their duty, take the collection for "Conference claimants" early in the year, none of us will "starve." But we are superannuated — "worn out" — can only depend upon God for maintenance, and trust him for the remnant of our days, and our dear ones who are mindful of the labor, toil and care for them when they were in their infantile state. Physically unable to do manual labor, "the Lord will provide."

More than fifty years ago I joined the Mississippi Conference, and have had no cause for regret. But thank God, he has never left nor forsaken us. I want to trust him for the remnant of my days; then, if found worthy, want to find a rest in heaven. "I need the prayers of those I love."

From Rev. W. M. McIntosh.

We have had some great meetings of late. Our recent meeting at Houston, Miss., was one of great power. The church was greatly blessed, and many sinners were converted. About 60 joined the churches—a big per cent. joined the Methodist. We found Bro. Anderson in great favor with his people, and doing a great work for the church. Anderson is a fine man, and it is a great treat to be with him and his lovely family.

There is a large Normal School at this place, and it is a great power for good. Though the college is located twenty miles west of Okolona (and also twenty miles from the railroad) it is crowded with boarders from abroad. The school is presided over by the co-principals, Abernethy and Sherwood. Prof. Sherwood is a fine layman and a member of the Methodist Church. He is indeed a power in educational work as well as in church work. He is a great mathematician, and I hope to see him one of these days professor in one of our leading colleges. Prof. Abernethy is a leading Baptist, and is a born educator. He deserves great credit for the work he has done in helping poor boys and girls secure an education. The religious influence of the college is the very best. I have never seen teachers, and the people of the town generally, take more interest in the salvation of the students. This is worth much to parents who send their children off to school; for if a boy or girl is not converted while attending a religious college, in all probability he or she will never be saved. If they can resist the influence there, they can most anywhere.

I am now in Phœnix City, Ala., helping Bro. Greene in a revival. I believe it is going to be the meeting of my life. Nearly one hundred have already joined, and we have just started. The crowds are immense.

From Rev. V. V. Boone.

My many friends and brethren will be interested to know that I am now in Santa Anna, Texas, where I expect to remain several months. I am more than hopeful that this wonderful health-giving climate will put me on the road to sure recovery. I earnestly beg all who feel an interest in me to pray that my health may be sufficiently restored that I may continue in the itinerancy, for in this work the Lord hath called me. My postoffice while here will be Santa Anna. Let me have the weekly visits of the ADVOCATE, which will indeed be appreciated in this land of strange faces. May the Lord bless you in your work, Mr. Editor, and all the brethren of the Mississippi Conference.

Money for Everyone!

I can't understand why people complain of hard times, when a woman or man can make from $5 to $10 a day easily. All have heard of the wonderful success of the Climax Dish Washer; yet we are apt to think we can't make money selling it; but anyone can make money, because every family wants one. I made $478.36 in the last three months, after paying all expenses, and attended to my regular business besides. You don't have to canvass; as soon as people know you have it for sale, they send for a Dish Washer. Address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio, for particulars. Send for sample Dish Washer and go to work at once and you will very soon have a full pocketbook and a light heart. Remember the Climax Mfg. Co do not ask you for any pay until you have a Dish Washer sold.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. B H. Sheppard, P. C., Lanesville, La., April 22: "This Dubeily circuit is a new work, made of part of the Ring gold and part of the Minden circuits. We began with five appointments, and now have seven. I preach fourteen times a month, and so have not much time for pleasure or for play. The people generally are very kind to myself and family, but are slow in supporting the institutions of the church. Oh, could we but organize Sunday-schools and Epworth Leagues in all our congregations! What a power they would be in educating the people!"

Rev. W. J. Burt, P. C., Kossuth circuit, April 16: "Since Conference we have been driving slowly because of so much rain, mud and measles. The outlook is better now. Last Sunday was a good day with us. It was our second quarterly meeting occasion. We had just spent $60 finishing our new church inside. We painted the ceiling overhead with hard-oil finish. We wainscotted the walls up to the windows, and then papered them to the ceiling. 'It is just beautiful,' was the expression of everyone. Bro. Tucker was with us. He preached three excellent sermons, besides his talk to the children. On Sunday he preached from the text: 'Upon this rock I build my church,' etc. His sermons was greatly enjoyed by all, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterians. The communion service was delightful. 'Did you ever see the like!' whispered the presiding elder as they continued to come to the table. At the close of the service we asked for $50 on our Conference assessment, and got more than we asked for. We expect to pay our assessment in full this year. We are repairing the parsonage and aim to build a new church at Rienzi."

PUBLISHER'S NOTICES.

Holman Bible at $1.25.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to April, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75, AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to April, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low prices of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

Invaluable Merit.

STRENGTH GAINED DAILY BY THE USE OF ELECTROPOISE.

DISEASE OF LUNGS AND THROAT, BRIGHT'S DISEASE AND HEART TROUBLE, ALL CURED.

I think the Electropoise very good in many cases. It has helped me of a disease of the lungs and throat, and also helped my wife of female trouble
CHARLES P RICE, West Lake, La.

The Electropoise I bought of you has done its work in first-class style. I had sciatic rheumatism, and could hardly move, was laid up in the hospital for seventy-two days and the doctors did me no good. To-day I am O. K. CHARLES U. KINGERY P. M.,

We believe in a man's wearing old clothes until he is able to pay for new ones. In accordance with this principle, we have allowed the ADVOCATE to use type a little the worse for wear until it was able to afford a better outfit. It now appears in garb which will please the taste of the most fastidious.

Dr. T. S. West Dead.

Dr. T. S. West, financial agent of Millsaps College, died at his home in Jackson, Miss., on the twenty-fourth, after a brief illness. This announcement will be read with profound sorrow throughout Mississippi. Few men have a happier faculty of making friends than did Dr. West. He had hosts of friends wherever he was known. He was an excellent preacher and a faithful, efficient pastor. A memoir will, of course, appear in due time. He was buried at Jackson, the funeral services being conducted by Drs. Hunnicutt and Murrah and Bishop Galloway.

A private letter says with reference to his funeral: "You have rarely seen such a public demonstration. The whole city mourns. Without regard to denomination, age, sex, race or politics, there is sincerest sorrow."

Bishop Galloway's funeral address will appear in our next issue.

The Model Steward.

The following portrait of an ideal Presbyterian elder, taken from the Mid-Continent, is worthy of careful study by Methodist stewards everywhere. If all our official boards were composed of such material as this "old-timer elder," Zion "would rejoice and bloom as the rose:"

It is a pleasure to hear of a typical "old-timer elder," again; an elder who, to quote one excellent Columbia, Mo., neighbor, The Presbyterian, "actually did what he promised at his ordination to do." That is to say, he did visit the sick and the needy; he did instruct and nourish and comfort whenever it was fitting that he should. He prayed with and for the flock. He was the pastor's right-hand man. The pastor did not have to be a mind-reader there to learn of cases of sickness or "when to call." This elder kept him posted. He did not travel on Sunday, and he kept sacred the family altar. To quote farther: "Of course this old man is an object of great curiosity in his own and other sections, wherever Presbyterians are found. Pastors look at him and wonder if there will ever be any more like him. They know that in the days of our forefathers such elders were common enough, but like the moose and elk and old-fashioned mothers, they are disappearing before the onward rush of our new civilization. Ruling elders also come from distant fields, and it is amusing to watch the pity and wonder with which they gaze upon him. They wonder that any man ever found time to do, as an elder, anything more than vote in the meeting of the session, and they pity him, because he had no more sense than to waste away his life doing what he paid his pastor to do." Let us all hope that the old-style type of ruling elder may come back. There are others like this one described. But would that they were far more numerous!

Foolish Imitation.

Originality is as desirable as it is uncommon. The majority of mankind have always been, and we suppose, always will be imitators. The masses, for the most part, blindly follow the lead of men of force and genius, who, we are sorry to say, are not always men of upright principles and sound judgment. The desire to be and to do like other men is natural, but it should never be allowed to become the dominant motive. While in many respects it may be profitable to imitate our fellow-men, and to conform to the usages of the world at large, there is a point beyond which we should not go. Imitation is all right when we have a worthy model before us, but otherwise it is the height of folly. Going with the majority, like rowing down stream, is easy. The fact, however, that we have the multitude with us is no guarantee that we are walking in the path of virtue. If a thousand or even a million men do wrong, that is no reason why we should do so. Every man ought to think and act for himself.

Some people, we feel sure, mistake peculiarity for piety, foolishly fancying that it is sinful to conform to the world in any respect. Christianity, however, does not teach us to disregard what are known as the "proprieties of life," nor does it countenance the notion that in order to be true followers of the Master we must be wholly unlike the rest of mankind as to dress, conduct, etc. In matters purely indifferent—such as do not involve questions of morality—variance from the ordinary customs savors of conceit and contrariness rather than of consecration. Because the Savior attended feasts, and did not hold himself aloof from the common people as did the Pharisees, he was called a glutton and a wine-bibber. No man can make himself pious by dressing in a certain way, or by refusing to conform to innocent social customs.

It is but too true, however, that a large class of persons are far more anxious to be like their fellow-men than they are to be right. An inordinate desire to do as Rome does is responsible for many a sin, for many an evil habit. A large percentage of those who form the drink habit begin their downward course, not through any natural fondness for intoxicants, but as the result of inability to refuse the solicitations of their companions. What the crowd does, each individual in it thinks he must do. Rather than be dubbed a temperance crank many a young man takes his first glass of liquor, which ere long is followed by another and another, the same sort of pressure being brought to bear upon him again and again. The tobacco habit is frequently formed in the same way. Nearly every boy who learns to use the weed does so because he wants to be like other boys, some of whom tell him he can't be a man until he has learned to smoke and chew.

Not a few persons weigh themselves down with many sorrows by attempting to live in the same style and luxury as do their richer neighbors. Fine clothing, however, is not a sure passport to respectability, despite the fact that some fancy this to be the case. Nor can extravagant living supply the place of character. He who lives within his means, though he be ever so humble, has the approval of his own conscience, and can well forego the smiles of a selfish world.

Many are the sins and follies that may be laid at the door of the imitative faculty, when unrestrained. To it may be charged no small amount of the worldliness that in some places is destroying the vitality of the church. In our larger towns and cities Methodists seeing Roman Catholics and others condoning, yea, even fostering, certain sinful amusements, shame to tell, follow their example. We are persuaded that, in many instances, it is not perversity or love of sin that causes young people to disregard the rules of the church respecting worldly amusements, so much as it is the dislike of appearing odd. Lack of courage and unwillingness to undergo criticism are the reasons why so many succumb to the allurements of the ball room and the card party.

How vain it is to congratulate ourselves as some do, upon the fact that we are as good as the majority of those in the church! We may be a great deal better than the average, and still fall far short of the divine standard, still be heirs of eternal death. We must keep before us, not an earthly, but a heavenly model.

Little patience have we with that class of Methodists who see little good in their own church, and are continually patterning after other denominations. Such persons can hardly be called disloyal; they are simply ignorant. In some localities where Methodism is weak, our people appear to be ashamed of being Methodists, and in order to get into what the world calls "society," bethink them of joining a more fashionable and popular church. But where, we ask, does the Bible teach that the aim of the church is to give men social position or business prestige? A religious denomination that emphasizes such an idea is little, if any better, than a social club. That man who joins any church, however pure it may be, mainly in order to better himself in a social or business way, has need of repentance before God, for he has confounded religion with temporal considerations. How supremely ignorant and shallow are these apologetic Methodists! They have forgotten, if they ever knew, that Methodism has done more to give the gospel to the poor than any other Protestant denomination. They have not found out that she was born in a university, that she has from the beginning numbered among her followers many of the most eminent scholars, theologians and preachers of modern times, that she has founded high schools and colleges by the hundred, that she proclaims a full and free salvation to all men alike, that she has to-day upwards of seven million communicants, that she is taking the lead in foreign as well as home mission work, that her whole history is resplendent with heroic achievement and self-sacrificing effort. If Methodism stands for a pure gospel, then let us one and all be loyal to her colors wherever they be found, whether in the city or in the country, in weak places or in strong.

Distinguished Sunday-School Workers.

Several mass meetings have been held in this city within the last few days preparatory to the State Sunday-school Convention. The first was held in the auditorium of Carondelet Street Church on Sunday afternoon. Addresses were delivered by Prof. W. L. Hamil and Miss Mabel Hall, of Chicago.

On Monday night Prof. Hamil held forth at the Prytania Street Presbyterian Church, and Miss Hall at the Valence Street Baptist Church. The Sunday-school workers of Louisiana are to be congratulated on the presence of these two distinguished Sunday-school workers. Prof. Hamil has no superior, and scarcely an equal, in all Christendom as a champion of the Sunday-school cause. One can hardly repress a wish that such a man could be ubiquitous so that his inspiring, stimulating influence might be felt everywhere. Miss Hall is no less efficient in her sphere. As a primary worker and as an instructor concerning the most effective methods of primary work, she is unsurpassed. She can capture the heart of a child almost in the twinkling of an eye, and she can entrance an audience of Christian people anywhere in speaking of the child heart and the way to win it for Christ. While we have always held primary Sunday-school work in high estimation, we confess to have had our conception of its importance vastly intensified through the instrumentality of the labors of this noble Christian woman.

We go to press too early (Tuesday afternoon) to make mention of the work of the Convention.

Dr. Cuyler on the Higher Criticism.

On the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the ministry of Rev. Dr. Theodore Cuyler, he preached at the Lafayette Avenue Church, Brooklyn. His subject was the "Angels at the Sepulchre." In the course of the sermon he told of his experience as a minister of the gospel, and told it so that his audience was fascinated. His testimony is that "the highest glory of the minister is to exalt the Cross of Calvary; and the highest joy of life is to save the souls of fellow-creatures." In tones of great sweetness and fullness he emphasized his thoughts with the words, "To-day I would not stoop to pick up a monarch's crown." Would that all our preachers could feel the same.

"Fervently do I thank my God for the faithful widowed mother, who dedicated me to this ministry in my cradle, and who was more than pastor or church or Sabbath-school to me in my childhood. Fervently do I thank God for having been rooted and grounded in the sound theology formulated in the Westminster Confession. That anchor has never dragged. Fervently, too, do I thank God for giving me such a sublimely glorious gospel to preach, such an all-sufficient doctrine of atoning blood to proclaim, such precious promises of his Holy Spirit's presence, and such verifications of this self-evidencing book. No gales of any so-called 'higher criticism' have ever blown high enough to ruffle a single feather of my faith in the perfect inspiration, the perfect infallibility and the perfect authority of the only Bible which our heavenly Father has given to his children. Devout scholarship, however searching and fearless, from Martin Luther to McLaren and Bishop Lightfoot, has never dislodged a single stone in the massive and magnificent bulwark which Moses began to build, and which the Seer of Patmos completed. As for the arrogant, irreverent and bitterly hostile criticism which has taken on such airs, much of it is sheer conjecture, much of it is self-contradictory, much of it is refuted hypothesis; and when all these have been subtracted there is not enough left to stop the hole which a mouse nibbles in your wainscot."—The Presbyterian.

In the Living Present.

The Interior laments that Mohammedanists have been admitted to the Parliament of Religions. Though monotheists, their god is not God, but the devil. Milton properly described Mohammedanism when he makes it say, "Evil, be thou my god."

Dr. Max Nordau assures that alcoholism is the cause of the material and social decline of France. Frenchmen consume twice as many intoxicants as, for instance, the Russians and Englishmen. The women, too, are the slaves of the bowl of hell. Insane asylums, hospitals, etc., are crowded with the victims of King Alcohol.

The Freeman's Journal (Catholic) says anent the Salvation Army imbroglio, that such dissension is the legitimate outcome of Protestantism. That it is devoid of cosmopolitanism. It requires the aid of local prejudice. Hence the successful opposition to a foreign leader. Well, what of Luther, Calvin, Zwingly, etc.?

The Outlook, a good authority, assures that editors of periodicals regard prominent names more than the product of genius. Most periodicals parade the names of political, social and military celebrities as their contributors. It often happens, though, that said celebrities produce puerilities. Their prominence in their particular branch does not make them good writers. A good writer, like the poet, is born, not made. The manuscript of greatest merit, by men comparatively unknown, is frequently returned to the writer unread by said editors.

Seemingly humorously, but actually disdainfully, The Interior speaks of Methodism. Says that only Dr. Buckley, the Germans, the negroes and a few cranks had opposed the successfully carried measure of women delegation at General Conference. But said measure was defeated by eighteen votes. Besides, Dr. Buckley is not discredited by his people. He was almost unanimously elected delegate to said Conference. The Interior should tend to the dirty linen of its own church.

The coronation of Alexander III. will take place in Moscow on May 26. The festivities attending the same will last till June 7. All governments will be represented. From China, Li Hung Chang has been sent. The Russian government has appropriated $20,000,000 for the expense. In the meantime the Czar's brother, George, is going through the agony of the last stage of consumption.

Baron Hirsh, who recently died of apoplexy, a Hebrew of Bavaria, Germany, the home of Charlemagne, has been a most successful philanthropist. He has given for various benevolent purposes three-fourths of a billion dollars. He proved the fast friend of the expatriated Jews in Russia. He supported several colonies of said exiles in Central America. He has given much to Christian enterprises. Personally, he is said to have been exceedingly frugal and unassuming. His father before him was a banker. He assumed his estate when but seventeen years of age. He quadrupled his patrimony in two years. ICH DIEN.

By the last census of India the total population is 287,223,431, or about one-sixth the world's population. Of these, seventy-two per cent., or 207,000,000 are classified as Hindus, 57,000,000 are Mussulmans, 7,000,000 are Buddhists, and 2,000,000 Christians. Of the 15,000,000 who are returned as "literate" and "learned" approximately three-quarters of a million only are females.

Our national legislators are certainly not modest in their appropriations for clerk-hire and other employees. The members of both houses are paid a uniform salary of $5,000; but while the lower house contents itself with attendants and various services that average $639 per member, the Senate claims an average of nearly five times that amount for each of its ninety members. It requires a force of 338 officers and employees (about four to each Senator) whose salaries aggregate $460,000, not to mention other expenses involving $165,000 more. It costs nearly $1,000,000 for the Senate yearly, of which almost half is paid for clerks, secretaries, messengers, laborers, etc. A decent respect for the opinions of the people ought to lead to a reduction along this line.—Zion's Herald.

Miss Clara Barton has sent to the Armenian Relief Association the following telegram from Marash, Armenia: "There are 12,000 refugees here. The problem of how to help sufferers here and in Zeitoun comes upon us with crushing force. The misery is past human imagination. Cold, famine, small-pox. We are using $500 a week for food, clothing and bedding, and it is barely inside starvation rates. Can not more be sent? Do those who contribute wish us to continue giving at such a low rate? The medicines of the city are exhausted, and we have sent for more to Aintab. We forward detailed reports of all moneys used. To-morrow we cut down one-half of our help for lack of funds. Thousands of pounds are needed to save these people from a miserable death. When will it come?"

Italians are flocking to our shores by the thousands. It was reported last week that 15,000 were about to leave Naples for New York. Over 20,000 arrived in March and over 11,000 in February. The present month will probably surpass all previous monthly records in the volume of Italian emigration to this country. To the war in Abyssinia a good deal of this expatriation is attributed. The dread of being conscripted for army service operates to drive Italians to a land where they will be free to work and not forced to fight. But the hard conditions of life at home also make emigration almost a necessity. The daily wage for the average workman or peasant is the merest pittance, and yet, it has been stated, the taxes of an ordinary Italian family now amount to $100 yearly—more than the bread-winner can earn with all his toil.—Zion's Herald.

Mrs. Mary McGee Snell in Yazoo City.

On Easter Sunday we began a meeting in Yazoo City. After three services in which Sister Snell spoke, she was called home by the illness of her daughter, and did not return until the following Saturday evening, the meeting going on in her absence. She spoke twice per day on week days and three times on Sundays for ten days after her return. The result was the greatest revival Yazoo City ever saw. This is the unqualified evidence of our oldest citizens. At least one hundred and fifty people have been converted or reconverted. Yazoo City having been for many years without any great revival, as a matter of course there were many unconverted people in the church; yet forty-five have already joined our church, and five others have asked for membership in other churches. The meeting closed only last night, and I look for further additions to the church. To say that the general spiritual state of the church has been improved one hundred per cent. would be to understate the truth. Men and women in numbers are holding family prayers, praying and speaking in public who never did such things before. The work done was thorough; convictions were deep and conversions were clear; cold and formal church members were transformed into ardent and active workers; our beautiful church, with its soft light through stained-glass and its stately music from grand pipe organ, got a rededication, a baptism of holy fire, and the Gothic arches echoed old-fashioned Methodist shouts.

Of the converts the majority were mature men and women representing all classes—merchants, drummers, clerks, depot agents, steamboatmen, city officials, workingmen, young men and ladies, and some children. A beautiful young Jewess was brightly converted, and, though opposed by her people, vows to be faithful to the Christ. The whole city has been stirred as never before. The common expression, heard everywhere, even from old men, is: "I never saw anything like it before."

My efficient helper, Mrs. Mary McGee Snell, is one of the most remarkable women I ever met. She is an orator of the first rank. Her personal appearance is fine; her voice is clear and strong and sweet, and never gives way; her manner is graceful and easy; her rhetoric is almost faultless; her vocabulary is rich, and she never halts for a word; her language is simple, but beautiful, and oftentimes intense; and her illustrations are apt and chaste and forcible. Her congregation here sat each night for ten in succession, and heard her gladly for an hour at a time. Her sermons here—for sermons they were—were all expository, and of the very highest order. Her exegesis was marvelously correct and remarkably clear. Although she professes the second blessing, she did not utter one sentence that taught that specific dogma. Such was her agreement with me, and she was true to her promise. We discussed the question in private, freely and fraternally; but no one would have known from her sermons and talks that she was of that school. She impressed me—and indeed all who heard her—as a gifted, cultivated woman, thoroughly consecrated and called of God to preach the gospel. I never knew any man who presented stronger evidence of a call to preach.

Because of her commanding size and her earnestness of manner, some have supposed that she must be self-assertive, or "bossy," as they say; but such is not at all true. She is submissive to authority—she did just what I directed her to do, accepted my suggestions as to her methods when I made any, and was evidently desirous to be in perfect harmony with Methodist polity and usage.

Sister Snell's methods of dealing with sinners and seekers are very original, but free from objection and remarkably successful. She frequently startled me by calling some man or woman personally, often by name; but in no instance did she give offense, and very rarely failed to get a response. She has wonderful tact.

Five hundred men, women and children in Yazoo City would join me in a hearty "Thank God that Mary McGee Snell ever came to Yazoo City."

It is not a matter of importance, but I state it because some invest it with importance. I conducted every service of our revival. As a matter of course, I was in charge; and I would have been in charge had my helper been a man instead of a woman, and even had he been an ordained Methodist preacher.

Greenville District Conference.

The Greenville District Conference, held at Rosedale, was a grand success. All of the preachers and many laymen were present. The presiding elder had everything well in hand, and the work went through without a jar. The whole district is on a move; a number of new churches going up. Dr. Murrah represented the Millsaps College as more prosperous than ever before, and so was the Collegiate Institute at Grenada, represented by Mrs. McIntosh. They have more pupils than they have ever had before. The same can be said of the Malone College at Holly Springs. This has been the most prosperous session of its history. By the way, the name is to be the Epworth College, and it is to be run by two of our most active men—Drs. Steel and Standefer—and as its success has been unprecedented by any school of our Conference in the same length of time without an agent in the field, we very naturally expect much greater success in the future.

Resolutions of Respect Adopted by the Greenville District Conference.

Whereas, We have learned with great sorrow of the death of our beloved brethren, Rev. T. B. Malone, of our own Conference, and E. L. Spraggins, of the North Texas Conference; And, whereas, These brethren have each spent three years of their ministry in the bounds of this district; therefore, be it

Resolved, That while we have been bereft of two of our most efficient and consecrated ministers, and keenly feel the great loss which we have sustained, we bow submissively to this dispensation of Providence.

Resolved, That we transmit to the afflicted wives and children of these dear brethren our sincere and prayerful sympathies.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on our Minutes and a copy sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

New Money-Making Invention.

Dear Reader:—I met a friend selling a new case for attaching photographs to tombstones so they are imperishable and last forever. Being out of employment, I ordered two dozen from the World Mfg. Co., Columbus, O., who manufacture many good selling articles for agents. I sold twelve the first day, profit $18. Every family has photographs. Anyone can put one on the monument in five minutes. The case is elegant, made of aluminum, the new metal. Every family is glad of a chance to buy. They are beautiful, and yet so cheap. I made $67 in one week, $186 last month. You can do same by writing.

C. W. CARTER, Pres.

Holly Springs District.

The Spring session of our Pastoral and Theological Society was held at Holly Springs, April 14 to 16. It was a decided improvement on former meetings. It was an interesting meeting, and very profitable. The preachers present all took active part in the discussions, also good papers were read, showing that care and thought had been bestowed in their production. Special interest was manifested in the consideration of revivals, Conference collections, and congregational singing as referred to in our program. According to the discussion we must have both the continual and the periodical revival; that it is necessary, and we will endeavor to use our own hymn books and make effort to secure congregational singing as the Discipline directs; and that we ask pastors absent to join us in an effort to bring up the collections ordered by the Annual Conference. We meet in Fall session at Macon, Miss., on K. C., M. and B. railroad.

Now, let all the preachers determine to make the coming session still better, and contribute to that end by thorough preparation and prompt attendance. What do you say, brethren?

Children's Day.

I desire to call attention to the annual celebration of Children's Day, to be held during the month of May. It is very desirable that the 11 o'clock service be given for this purpose.

Special attention is called to the fact that 10 per cent. of the collection belongs to the work of the General Board of Education. Programs for the service may be had from the Publishing House.

Death of Mrs. Ellis.

With a sad heart I write to announce the death of my wife, on the nineteenth instant, after an illness of three days. Many readers of the ADVOCATE who have known and loved her in the past will sympathize with me in this time of sorrow. She has been the light and joy of my home for forty-five years, but she has exchanged the earthly for the heavenly home, where she awaits the time of our reunion. I can not write more now. Pray for me.

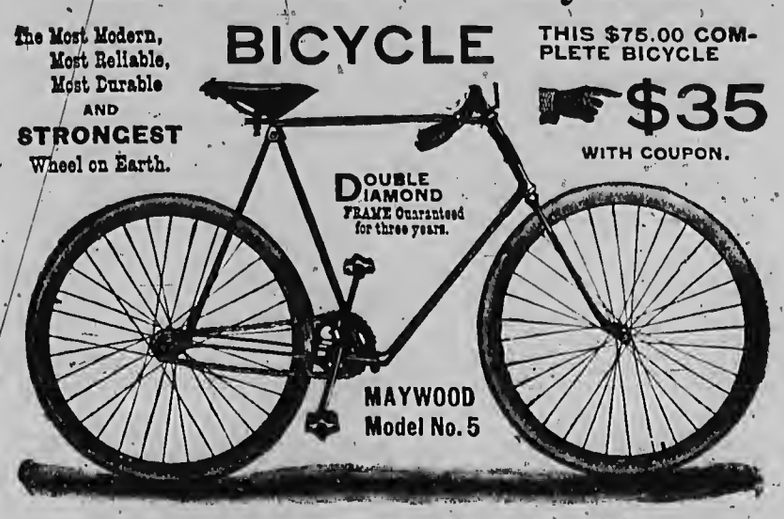
The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE
$35
WITH COUPON.



PATENTS { Feb. 24, 1891 May 17, 1891 Oct. 3, 1893 Jan. 1, 1895 Jan. 21, 1896 Others Pending.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What Is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅞-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism,—to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent. of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Number block pattern, best quality, hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, P. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs.:—In regard so "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

"THE GIRLS THAT ARE WANTED."

BY MARY B. JAMES.

The girls that are wanted are good girls—
Good from the heart to the lips;
Pure, as the lily is white and pure
From its heart to its sweet leaf-tips.
The girls that are wanted are home girls—
Girls that are mother's right hand;
That fathers and brothers can trust to,
And the little ones understand.

Girls that are fair on the hearthstone,
And pleasant when nobody sees;
Kind and sweet to her own folks,
Ready and anxious to please.
The girls that are wanted are wise girls,
That know what to do and say;
That drive with a smile and soft word
The wrath of the household away.

The girls that are wanted are girls with hearts;
They are wanted for mothers and wives;
Wanted to cradle in loving arms,
The strongest and frailest lives.
The clever, the witty, the brilliant girl
There are few who can understand;
But, oh! for the wife, loving home girls,
There's a constant and steady demand.

Our Daughters.

BY FRANCES R. SAUNDERS.

Is it best to say much to our daughters about themselves, and to be contantly "preparing" them for motherhood? I believe in keeping them during their childhood and young girlhood in an atmosphere of purity and letting them, with as little self-consciousness as possible, just grow up pure and artless. As the crisis in their lives approaches, let the wise mother prepare them by telling them all they need to know of life and its laws, and mysteries. Give children pure subjects for thought rather than forbid them to have impure thoughts. Should the careful, watchful mother perceive in her child the need of special warning and instruction, let it be given immediately, and as fully as the case may require.

The question of preparing our girls for motherhood leads me to say that I think the best preparation for that sacred calling comes in growing up healthy in body, natural in mind, and true and gentle in heart. A girl need not know, and I believe it is better she should not know, or feel, anything special of the responsibility and duties of wifehood and motherhood. Let her begin by taking up the duties of girlhood and learning the beauty and grandeur of true womanhood. Let her health be preserved sacredly, and the normal development of her young body be unrestricted. Cultivate her mind healthily, and encourage in her life habits of industry, truth, and unselfishness.

Do not say anything at all to her about preparing her for future domestic duties. When she is a woman and her school duties and pleasures are behind her, if her heart turns to love and marriage, as let us hope it will, be careful to instruct her thoroughly upon all that marriage means, practically as well as spiritually. Do not let any feeling of delicacy prevent you from telling her all you think she ought to know.

When your daughter is a wife, help her to whatever preparation she needs for motherhood. If she has grown up properly, she will have unconsciously made the best preparation possible by being what she is. Among your gifts to the bride-daughter let there be a copy of "Tokology," or some equally good books, for wives and mothers. There is surely a blessed medium ground between the painfully ignorant young wife and the preposterously wise maiden, and I believe it is upon this medium ground that the best material for motherhood is developed.

Work and Rest.

There is a great popular change regarding the duty of incessant working without any period of relief. God himself by instituting the Sabbath has made sacred a periodic day of rest for every human being. The Sabbath was made for man because man both physically and morally required this weekly rest day. Man can not labor continuously for more than six days, with proper intervals for sleep, without suffering in bodily health and vigor; nor can he give his thoughts unremittingly to mere worldly things during the same period without his moral nature suffering a deterioration. He needs one day in seven to have his thoughts turned away from those worldly things in which he is engrossed during the six days, that he may contemplate his better part, get acquainted with what it requires, seek sustenance for it, and make provision for its preparation into another world at death. Nor is this all; incessant toil through Summer heat as well as Winter cold tends to a weariness that hampers the activity of the mind and weakens the courage of the heart. We need an occasional vacation from work as truly as we need nightly sleep and weekly rest. These vacations, if properly used, invigorate both morally and physically. They broaden the mind, sweeten the temper, enlarge the spiritual ideas, give more charitable views of our fellow-men, and help us to climb more frequently up from nature to nature's God. He who denies to himself or others a periodic vacation does an injury to himself both physically and morally, and robs his fellow-man of that which God has written upon his very nature as his due.—Treasury.

Words for Women.

THERE ARE THOUSANDS WHO NEED HELP—WHY THEY SUFFER—HOW THEY CAN GET RELIEF.

Oh! what misery, what suffering, what anxiety and despair is endured by thousands of poor suffering women. They are women with pale faces, tired eyes and drawn, weary looks, who feel sickly and worn out. Their lives are darkened and they feel blue and depressed because they are troubled with some female complaint which gives them no rest. They suffer silently, patiently, and too often they keep on suffering.

There seems to be no relief! Day after day they are tortured with headaches, backaches, pains in the limbs, bearing down pains—pains everywhere. They suffer from dizziness, faintness, disordered stomach, nervousness, moodiness. They seem to be afflicted with almost every disease that was ever known. No wonder that such women cry for help and ask despairingly, "Is there nothing I can take to get rid of these awful feelings?"

This is a sad picture, but it is true to life! It reveals the actual condition of that vast number of women in whom the course of nature becomes interrupted. They suffer and they get no relief.

But if women only knew it, they might easily find help. There is a way to prevent and cure these distressing ailments. Many women have discovered that there is a remedy which will cure them. It is a remedy that has made thousands of weak, suffering women strong, healthy and well. This is what one woman has to say about it:

Mrs. Isabel Green, of Colchester, Conn., recently said: "For years I suffered with backache, bearing down pains and various other ailments peculiar to womanhood and tried many remedies, but until I took Warner's safe cure I received no permanent relief. As the result of taking the safe cure I now feel like a new woman and have not had an ache or a pain for two years past. I cheerfully recommend this remedy to every woman who suffers as I did."

No woman can afford to be without this valuable remedy. By using it she can safely avoid every form of sickness and suffering. No other remedy equals it for building up the system and restoring lost health.

Every druggist keeps Warner's safe cure. Give it a trial!

How to Get Rid of the Blues.

The blues make the person suffering from their presence extremely uncomfortable, and her discomfort in a subtle way acts upon others, so that nobody is quite cheerful in her neighborhood. People who are "blue" are quite often cross as well, and are unable to accept pleasantly the ups and downs of every day. Now, when you think of it, you must admit that it is a very humiliating experience to be cross, for cross people are disagreeable, and none of us wishes to be that.

The best way to get rid of the blues is not to own that they have you. Put on your hat and go for a walk. Call on a friend and take her the piece of music you are to try together, or the book you have just finished, which you would like to lend her. Do something kind for somebody; and stop thinking about yourself. The greatest waste of time in this world, dears, is to think too much about one's self. Mrs. Browning gives the right idea in her poem, "My Kate," where she says,

"'Twas her thinking of others made you think of her."

Don't laugh at me, girls, when I tell you that half the low spirits one hears of springs from a very prosaic source. That pound of chocolates, that rich pudding, that piece of frosted cake, all of them very delicious, but all very indigestible, are to blame, in most instances, for a young girl's depression. Try what Emerson called "plain living and high thinking," and see how cheery life will become.—Harper's Round Table.

A Soft Answer.

The Bible says: "A soft answer turneth away wrath." The Irish Times tells of a case in which a gentle action served the same purpose:

"A brave, active, intelligent terrier, belonging to a lady friend, one day discovered a monkey, belonging to an itinerant organ-grinder, seated upon a bank within the grounds, and at once made a dash for him. The monkey, who was attired in jacket and hat, awaited the onset in such undisturbed tranquility that the dog halted within a few feet of him to reconnoitre. Both animals took a long steady stare at each other, but the dog evidently was recovering from his surprise, and was about to make a spring for the intruder.

"At this critical juncture, the monkey, who had remained perfectly quiet hitherto, raised his paw and gracefully saluted by lifting his hat. The effect was magical. The dog's head and tail dropped, and he sneaked off to the house, refusing to leave it until his polite, but mysterious guest had departed."

There are times when some animals act more sensibly than some people, and this poor organ-grinder's monkey preached an excellent sermon to all who are too ready with fists or angry words. It takes two to quarrel always, and if one won't, the other can't.

The Truthful Boy.

Says Robert Burdette: "How people do trust a truthful boy! We never worry about him when he is out of our sight. We never say, 'I wonder where he is; I wish I knew what he is doing; I wonder whom he is with; I wonder why he doesn't come home.' Nothing of the sort. We know he is all right, and that when he comes home we will know all about it, and get it straight.

"We don't have to ask him where he is going and how long he will be gone every time he leaves the house. We don't have to call back and make him 'solemnly promise' the same thing over and over two or three times. When he says, 'Yes, I will,' or 'No, I won't,' just once, that settles it."

The Tongue.

The following story is told by a Jewish rabbi to illustrate the great power of the tongue for good or evil:

"A certain man sent his servant to market to buy some good food. The servant returned, bringing with him some tongues. Again he sent the same servant to buy some bad food. The servant again brought tongues.

"The master said: 'What is the reason, that when I sent you to buy good and bad food, you brought tongues?' The servant answered: 'From the tongue both good and evil come to man. If it be good, there is nothing better; if it be bad, there is nothing worse.'"

Parental Example.

It is life, and not precept, that gives the boy his bent. Solomon could cover an entire acre with astute and prudent proverbs, but was of no account with his son Rehoboam, who took his cue from his father's behavior and not from his father's philosophy.—Dr. Parkhurst, in Ladies' Home Journal.

HYGIENE.

Bad Effects of Beer Drinking.

The patients who exhibit the worst results from accidents in the London hospitals are said to be draymen. Though they are apparent models of health and strength, yet, if one of them receives a serious injury, it is nearly always necessary to amputate the limb, in order to give him the most distant chance of life. The draymen have the unlimited privilege of the brewery cellars, and drink all they please. Sir Ashley Cooper was once called to a drayman, who was a powerful, fresh colored, healthy looking man, and had suffered an injury in his finger from a small splinter of a stave. The wound, through trifling, suppurated. He opened the small abscess with his lancet. He found on retiring, he had left his lancet. Returning for it, he found the man in a dying condition. The man died in a short time.

Dr. Gordon says: "The moment beer drinkers are attacked with acute diseases, they are not able to bear depletion, and die."

Dr. Edward says of beer drinkers: "Their diseases are always of a dangerous character; and in case of an accident they never undergo even the most trifling operation with the security of the temperate. They most invariably die under it."

Dr. Buchan says: "Malt liquors render the blood sizy and unfit for circulation. Hence proceeds obstruction and inflammation of the lungs, brought on by the glutinous and indigestible nature of ale and porter. . . . These liquors inflame the blood and tear the tender vessels of the lungs to pieces."

Dr. Maxton says: "Intoxicating drinks, whether taken in the form of fermented or distilled liquors, are very frequent predisposing causes of diseases."

The hospitals of New York show an unfavorable record of the intemperate; and private practitioners everywhere have the same experience.—Selected.

What We Need.

What the man of to-day needs most is not athletics in a gymnasium, but plenty of fresh air in his lungs. Instead of a quantity of violent exercise which leaves him weak for several hours afterward, he needs to learn to breathe right, stand right and sit right. The young man or woman who starts on a career of training and keeps it up year after year, just at the time when the body has a great deal of its own natural work to do and wants to do it, may make up his or her mind that beyond a showy and superficial development of muscle and strength, all this training in after life is going to count against him.—Annals of Hygiene.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

FILLING FOR MEAT.—To make filling for meat a good way is to get a stale loaf of bread, cut in slices and steam; it will not get too moist in that way, as it often does by pouring water over it.

CHICKEN PIE.—Cut a fat hen up and stew till you can pick the meat from the bones with a fork, remove the chicken, make a rich gravy in the pot. (Have a crust in the bakepan made of one pint of flour, one-half teaspoon of salt, one teaspoon of baking powder, two good tablespoons of lard, water to form a dough.) Fill the pie with a layer of chicken, a layer of sliced hard-boiled eggs, till all is in (usually four eggs to a chicken) then pour the gravy over, cover with a top crust and bake to a nice brown. Veal pie made in the same way is very fine, or if your chicken is not large, use veal with it, stew them together, and few can tell that it is not all chicken.—Exchange.

GORDON PIE CRUST.—Sift a level teaspoonful of salt with a pound of flour; rub quarter of a pound of butter into the flour until they are so thoroughly mixed as to have the appearance of meal. Stir with them just enough cold water to make a pastry that can be rolled out. This is one of the simplest of pastries, easily made, and perfectly delicious, if made as directed.

They are the safest who are most in their closets; who pray, not to be seen of men, but to be heard of God.

FAVRE—The subject of this sketch, SADIE S. FAVRE, eldest daughter of Hon. T. M. Favre and Angeline Boardman, was born in Pearlington, Hancock county, Miss., May 23, 1879, and died at Ward's Seminary, Nashville, Tenn., of typhoid fever, Nov. 15, 1895.

From the foregoing it is seen that Sadie had but just fairly entered upon that, the most interesting period in young womanhood, her fifteenth year, she being sixteen years five months and twenty-two days old. In her it was a beautiful building into the promise of glowing possibilities for the future. Unspoiled, gentle in disposition, having a heart attuned to all the melodies of love, she at once drew everyone to her, both old and young.

Having been carefully trained both by an earnest Christian mother and the teachings of God's Word in the Sunday-school, Sadie early presented herself for membership in the church of Christ; and though she never made a public profession of conversion, she ever manifested the Spirit of her Lord.

Annually her visits home were marked by kind attentions to, and consideration of the aged. Calling to see them was her very first care, and her happy face and sunny smile never failed to cheer weary hearts and gladden dreary lives.

When at home Sadie was uniformly found in her place in the Sunday-school, and in attendance on the services of the sanctuary. She was a favorite in the school, her gentleness attracting all. In church she was deferential, attentive—an inspiration to her pastor. But the brightest side of Sadie's character was seen in her home life. Her home glowed with the brightness of her happy spirit. Mother, father, brothers and sisters had in her an angel of sweet sympathy and cheer. In her home she seemed forgetful of self, and thought only of the happiness of those around her.

With high hope and lofty aspiration she left home in the Autumn of 1895 for Nashville to complete her literary course, but, ere two months had elapsed, God laid his hand upon her and took her to himself. We sadly feel the loss, but our loss is Sadie's gain.

Dear, loved ones, how much brighter must seem to you the glory above, now that this golden tie is anchored safely there! Oh, may you so love and serve God, that after awhile you may find sweet rest with dear Sadie in his fond embrace!

PAINE—MARY HATTIE JACKSON, wife of J. T. Paine, daughter of W. P. Jackson, and adopted daughter of Rev. N. B. Young and wife, was born April 21, 1873, and died March 2, 1896, aged twenty-two years and eleven months.

She joined the Methodist Church at a camp meeting at Crystal Springs when about twelve years of age. She was married to J. T. Paine, July 13, 1890. She leaves three children, one an infant one month old.

About nine days previous to her death, while in her room, her clothes caught on fire, and before the fire could be put out she was fatally burned. Her suffering from that time until she could suffer no more was extreme, but she bore it with Christian fortitude, and said she was ready to die. She was heard to say, "Why can't I die and be at rest?"

A large congregation of sympathizing friends attended her funeral. Her mother by adoption was with her most of the time. Bro. Young arrived just after the benediction by the writer; joined his wife at the grave of their beloved Hattie, when many tears flowed, sympathizing friends weeping with those that wept. Thus a sweet-spirited Christian young woman, wife and mother passed away.

WILEY BROWN.

EVANS—The subject of this sketch, Sister SARAH K. EVANS (nee Hamblen), was born in Hawkins county, Tenn., June 15, 1834, and died at her home, Camden, Miss., March 18, 1896. On the eleventh day of October, 1853, she was happily married to Capt. J. H. Evans, with whom she lived in happy and affectionate union till death.

Sister Evans was converted to God and joined the M. E. Church, South, at a noted meeting held at Camden, Miss., in 1854, by Rev. H. H. Montgomery. For more than forty years Sister Evans lived in the church on earth, from which she went to join the church above.

Our sister leaves a husband, three children, a number of relatives, and a host of friends, to mourn her loss.

On the evening of the nineteenth she was gently laid to rest in the family cemetery near Camden, Miss.

May God's Holy Spirit comfort the sorrowing loved ones!

H. A. BRELAND.

HUFF—HOWARD, son of J. F. and V. B. Huff, was born in Amite county, Miss., Nov. 17, 1890, and died March 2, 1896.

He was only sick a few days. He was an affectionate child, and loved by all who knew him. He made home pleasant with his prattling tongue and sweet smiles. We weep not as those who have no hope, for we know that he is safe in the arms of Jesus, waiting for us all.

His SISTER.

WARREN—Dr. R. G. WARREN, son of G. W. and M. A. Warren, was born in Claiborne parish, La., Feb. 23, 1866; was educated in Minden, La.; completed the business course at the University of Kentucky in 1886; graduated in medicine at Vanderbilt University in 1889; was married to Miss Mamie Farmer, Feb. 28, 1894; died at San Marcos, Texas, March 21, 1896, and was buried at Mansfield, La.

Dr. Warren was of slight physique, but had a large soul, and made friends wherever he went. He was a respectful son, a devoted husband, a true brother, a skillful physician. He loved his profession, and won the confidence of his patients.

Quiet in manner and indifferent to what many value, it took the severe test of personal affliction to develop the pluck of his nature. August 1, 1894, he accidentally shot himself, which disabled him for six months, and, perhaps, laid the foundation of what resulted in death.

In September, 1895, he went to Western Texas to use the only chance for regaining health, and persistently devoted himself to this object. All that science could suggest or love apply for his case was done without avail. Disease conquered, but had little to boast of, for the body was worn to a shadow, while the spirit grew stronger by conflict.

Dr. Warren joined the church in boyhood, but from some cause became indifferent to its claims upon him. After his marriage and the birth of his child he felt (to use his own words) that he could not do justice to his wife and boy without becoming a better man. This purpose, made in health, was carried out when inactive from sickness. He obtained reconciliation with God, and gave assurances that he was prepared for the change. He died with a peaceful smile on his face. His death made loving ones very lonely, but they are thankful that he lived.

AUNTIE.

LANE—CAROLINE MARSHAL LANE died very suddenly of heart disease at her son's, J. W. Lane, near Hontsville, Miss., on March 26, 1896. She leaves four children—two sons and two daughters—sadly bereaved.

Sister Lane was born Aug. 25, 1818, in Warren county, Miss., and was happily married to S. T. Lane, June 4, 1835. Bro. Lane died in 1882, and left her to stem the storm of life alone.

She joined the Methodist Church early in life, and lived a consecrated member until the summons came and found her waiting.

She was a sweet-spirited Christian mother, a kind neighbor, loved by all who knew her; a light in the church and community; a living example worthy of imitation by her children and friends.

May God help her children to bear this great disappointment by faith in Christ's promises that we shall meet again!

On the morning of the twenty-eighth her remains were interred in the old Bethel Graveyard to rest until the morning of the resurrection, when we expect to meet her again.

R. G. CALLAWAY.

MILLER—Whereas, it having pleased Almighty God, in his infinite love and wisdom, to take from our midst our bright and happy little friend, PEARL MILLER, to dwell with him forever in his eternal home in glory; And, whereas, She having been a faithful member and devoted scholar of our Sunday-school; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we humbly submit our wills unto the more divine will of God, and that we extend our love and deepest sympathy to the bereaved family, and pray God's richest blessings upon them.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the hands of the sorrowing family, and another be sent to the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Respectfully submitted and signed by the committee.

MRS. ALEX. OHR,
Chairman of Committee.

Pearlington, Miss.

SMITH—HARLEY PRESTON SMITH, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Smith, of Silver Creek, Miss., departed this life on Wednesday, March 4, aged eighteen months and twenty-five days, the direct cause of death being measles. The babe suffered severely all night. At five o'clock in the morning death crept stealthily in, and laid his cold and icy hand upon the innocent angel-child. Alas! he fell asleep to awake in heaven above, where all is love. Oh, dear parents, weep not for your babe, for he is resting in the arms of Jesus!

AUNTIE.

Silver Creek, Miss.

RAYNE—At a meeting of the ladies of Rayne Memorial Church, at which were represented the Woman's Missionary Society, the Parsonage and Home Missionary Society, and the Ladies' Aid, the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, In the providence of God our beloved friend and co-laborer, Mrs. B. O. L. RAYNE, was called to her heavenly rest on the morning of March 20; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we express our high appreciation of the lovely character of the sister who has for so many years labored with us in the Master's cause.

Resolved, That we recognize in her one that was full of benevolence, great patience, "charity that thinketh no evil," and a heart full of love and gentleness. Of her it may be truthfully said, "She was beloved by all that knew her."

Resolved, That we extend to her bereaved family our sincerest and heartfelt sympathy, and fervently pray that our heavenly Father may comfort and be with them in this hour of sore trial.

Resolved, That these expressions of love and regret be spread upon the Minutes of the several societies of which she was a member, and a copy thereof be sent to her family, and the same be published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to April, 97. (A little later it will be May, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2.45.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

On Monday the new administration was installed in the City Hall in this city.

During the past week there has been held at Washington a conference upon the subject of international arbitration.

Both the Democrats and the Republicans claim to have elected their candidate for governor in the recent election in this State.

Eva Booth claims that the split in the Salvation Army is insignificant, as scarcely more than 15 per cent. of the officers have deserted.

During the coming week there will meet at Charleston, S. C., the third annual session of the South and West Grain and Trade Congress.

Tyre Zork, of North Carolina, wants to be elected to Congress, and is canvassing his district, traveling from place to place, mounted on a bull.

A Mormon concert troupe is touring the Pacific coast. It has 175 members, and a number of them are descendants of Brigham Young. Several of them are noted vocalists.

It is proposed to make the medical course in the University of Michigan a six year one, and no one will be granted a medical degree who has not taken a literary degree first.

Paderewski, the musician, has given $10,000 to establish three triennial prizes of $500, $300 and $200 for the best musical compositions. William Steinway, of New York, is manager of the fund.

Five persons were at least killed outright, three fatally and seventeen more or less injured, and great destruction of property was wrought by a cyclone which passed over Kansas last week.

The Executive Committee of the Citizens' League—which won in the municipal election in this city—has decided to go into permanent organization, and take a charter. The League will devote some time to prosecuting election frauds, as well as to make the few "Regulars" elected prove their position.

President Gompers was in Pittsburg on April 23, in conference with the leaders of the American Federation of Labor. In an interview he stated that the eight-hour movement was now paramount in the minds of labor leaders. He said over 4,500,000 toilers would make the demand for a shorter day on May 1, and that most of them would get it without a struggle.

FOREIGN.

The beneficial clergy of the Church of England are not happy. The salaries of a large number of them have been cut down, and in many cases as much as 50 per cent.

The Bourgeois Ministry in France has resigned. M. Bourgeois, in announcing the resignation of the ministry, said, in view of the impossibility of securing proper military relief for Madagascar, the Cabinet was compelled to resign.

The advices received from South Africa indicate that the beleaguered garrison of the town of Buluwago, which is surrounded by a force of nearly 20,000 rebellious Matabeles, had sustained a serious defeat in a sortie made with a view to compelling the natives to raise the siege of the place.

Prayer Meeting Topic for May.

CHRIST IN SOCIAL RELATIONS.

SUNDAY, MAY 3—CHRIST IN THE HOME.

(Mark vi, 4; Luke ii, 40-52; Mark x, 13-16.)

The following plan of leading the meeting may be suggestive:

Let the leader, previous to the hour of the meeting, assign the following topics, or a part of them, with references written on slips of paper, to different persons, each of whom shall be expected to read, and give a thought on the passage read.

1. Christ in his own home at Nazareth. (Luke ii, 51, 52.)
2. Christ in the home of a family, friend or relative, at a wedding. (John ii, 1, 2.)
3. Christ in the home of Simon Peter. (Matt. viii, 14, 15.)
4. Christ in the home of Simon, the Pharisee. (Luke vii, 37, 38.)
5. Christ in the home of a Pharisee (name not given). (Luke xi, 37-39.)
6. Christ in the home of Levi, or Matthew, the publican. (Mark ii, 14-16.)
7. Christ in the home of Jarius, a ruler of the synagogue. (Luke viii, 49-56.)
8. Christ in the home of Martha and Mary. (Luke x, 38-42.)
9. Christ in the home of one of the chief Pharisees. (Luke xiv, 1.)
10. Christ in the home of Zaccheus. (Luke xix, 5-10.)
11. Christ in a home in the village of Emmaus. (Luke xxiv, 28-32.)

DEAR BROTHER WYNN: Bro. Evans has just told us of your request, and we hasten to give a short account of our Epworth League work at this place. This League was organized in January, 1896, under the pastorate of Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, who, with his estimable wife, was always a great help in the work. We commenced with about 20 members, and now have about 35.

Our dues are but five cents. When there is a special call, the members are taxed, or a collection is taken. From the beginning we have had a library of 15 good Methodist books. These the librarian tries to keep in circulation. During this year we have had Mr. J. T. Nixon for president; Miss R. Grout, Miss K. Muggah and Mrs. J. T. Nixon, the three vice-presidents; Miss Minnie Riggs, secretary, and Trudeau Penny, treasurer.

Prayer meetings have been held every Sunday afternoon, the business meeting once a month, and the Literary Department has given a social nearly every month. Lately a series of cottage prayer meeting have been held at the request of Bro. Evans, who attends and assists in all meetings. In this way we reach a number of persons who are unable to attend church. The Charity and Help Department has had few calls where there was absolute want, but the members are actively engaged in visiting the sick and strangers, in distributing literature, and giving a hearty welcome to strangers and to indifferent persons when they attend the various church services. We feel the loss of our president and literary vice-president most keenly, and we hope that our loss will be your gain. With best wishes for our young people's work.

A MEMBER OF PATTERSON EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Patterson, La., April 21, 1896.

NOTES.

We have this week a letter from the League in Patterson, La., and we expect to have others to follow.

Do not forget the Louisiana State Epworth League Conference, which will meet in Carondelet, May 29-31.

There is just a little appetizing bite to HIRES Rootbeer; just a smack of life and good flavor done up in temperance style. Best by any test.

The editor of the ADVOCATE and the college presidents and agents of our Conference schools are cordially invited to be present. S. M. THAMES, P. E.

The Railroads and the Saloon.

One by one the railroads of the country are assuming, so far as their own employees are concerned, an attitude of uncompromising opposition to the saloon. Last week the Chicago and Northwestern railroad promulgated an order providing that if an employee is seen entering or coming out of a saloon, or if liquor is detected on his breath, he will be liable to dismissal, and that no grievance committee will be heard in behalf of a man thus discharged. This trend of the times is full of encouragement, and none the less so because the action of the railroads in this matter is not based upon sentimental or moral grounds, but upon self-interest. The greatest business of the world is from the very necessity of the case—because it is entrusted with tremendous responsibilities—compelled to take firm stand in behalf of temperance.—Central Advocate.

Something Besides.

There are Christians who say that, for religious reading, the Bible is all they want or need. Ask them to subscribe for a religious paper, and with a pious tone and solemn look, they will say, "The Bible is good enough for me." But if these precious innocents well understood the Spirit who inspired the Bible they would know that he wants every Christian to inform himself upon what the Bible is doing in the world and for the world, and this information comes through the religious newspaper. One can not appreciate the Bible as he ought to, except as he reads the fulfillment of Bible prophecy and promise in current history. The religious paper is God's reporter of the outcome and harvest of Bible doctrine, promise and power. One can not be a full grown Christian by confining his reading to the Bible.—Zion's Herald.

The Christian is not to be a worst tradesman because of his religion, but a better; he is not to be a less skilled mechanic, but he is to be all the more careful in his work. It were a pity indeed if Paul's tents were the worst in the store, and Lydia's purple of the poorest dye.—Spurgeon.

This would be a pleasant world if people would only give the same name to the same quality in others as in themselves. But we will call ours firmness, and that of others obstinacy, and so for many other qualities.—Selected.

SEND OUT THE SUNLIGHT.

BY ELLEN DARE.

Send out the sunlight, the sunlight of cheer,
Shine on earth's sadness till ills disappear—
Souls are in waiting this message to hear.

Send out the sunlight in letter and word;
Speak it and think it till hearts are all stirred—
Hearts that are hungry for prayers still unheard.

Send out the sunlight each hour and each day.
Crown all the years with its luminous ray,
Nourish the seeds that are sown on the way.

Send out the sunlight! 'Tis needed on earth;
Send it afar in scintillant mirth,
Better than gold in its wealth-giving worth!

Send out the sunlight, the spirit's real gold!
Give of it freely - this gift that's not sold;
Shower it down on the young and the old!

Send out the sunlight as free as the air!
Blessings will follow with none to compare,
Blessings of peace that will rise from despair!

A Semi-Analysis of the Sermon of Rev. Nebulous North, D. D., on the Lost Pleiad in Post Oak Circuit.

We are variously and blessedly constituted. Some of us find "Sermons in stones, tongues in the trees, Books in the brooks;"

some see the

"Visionary gleam,
The light that never was on sea or land;"

some see with the fancy; some with the self-illusions of phantasy, or the shapings that eye seems to see at the suggestion of whimsy; some see implicitly—as Bolingbroke would say—in a plastic adoption of another's suggestion; seeing through the latter's eye, adopting the latter's views, in a state of semi-mesmerism just short of the definite spell and subjugation and self-elimination or absorption of downright mesmeric trance.

Hamlet—"Methinks it is like a weasel."

Polonius—"It is backed like a weasel."

Hamlet—"Or like a whale?"

Polonius—"Very like a whale."

Does anyone suppose that all that was mere diplomatic ductility, or calculating servility; mere knee-crooking, humor-honoring on the part of that shrewd, wily old courtier, Polonius? However it may have been, I have seen various things in the clouds—the diamond and amethyst cliffs, the peaks of pearl, the gorges of gold, the

"Cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous pinnacles,
Which right shall utterly abase and destroy."

It is all "the baseless fabric of a vision." And your cold-blooded critic, who denounces all this as "moonshine" and "trash," is what night is to the sun that paints the "fleecy skirts" of the sky in what colors he will: he utterly destroys these innocent illusions.

(If I should get nebulous or desultory, I have an artistic right and a certain propriety or keeping in my incoherence.) I am writing about Rev. Nebulous North, D. D. (if I ever get to him), and about the Lost Pleiad, which possibly may turn out to be lost here as there, notwithstanding its loss occasioned some most rolling magniloquence on the part of "Nebulous."

A part of this introduction is to explain why I have so many views—maybe different ones—at various stages of my perusal of "Post Oak Circuit." I may not see contradictory views, but I see other and different ones every time I read the book. That is why I resolved to write a very rapid and superficial review of Bro. North's sermon. I was afraid I should see weasel and camel and whale (as I certainly do a leviathan of bombast) in this nebulous cloud of our reverend friend. I read it once, and hurriedly commented in margiana. I started again, and the next comments varied from the other. It is no use, I can not reproduce in any reading of Post Oak just the exact view of the others, no more than one can reproduce what was seen by a former turn of a kaleidoscope. It seems to me that this book is not one, but several books.

I suppose that the last-mentioned state of affairs is partly due to the many-sidedness of the book, and to the stimulus to the invention of the reader it gives, to discover the point (or many points) hidden away in the dexterities of an ingenious and exquisitely calculated ambiguity of style. If it be a mark of brightness or nimbleness of intellect, to use double entendres—or, to be strictly correct, "mots a double entente"—why should it not be a greater mark of originality to invent sentences with so many phases of meaning that several constructions are plausible? I think it is in this affluence of multifariousness of possible meanings that one great forte of the author lies. (Of course, when he wishes to be perspicuous, his periods are as transparent as light.)

If one says it is a trick, a stroke of intellectual legerdemain, the only reply is, that that is one of the highest attainments of a certain style of writing. Imagine one paying an entrance fee to see a great magician, and the latter performs so bunglingly that there is no imposition at all. Blessed are you if you are susceptible to glamour, and sustain and facilitate the magician by a sort of self-necromancy in a glad receptivity of illusion, and a willingness for self-illusionment.

What is the sermon of Rev. Nebulous North, D. D., on the Lost Pleiad, anyhow? One certainly sees much, and, maybe, conjectures more. It piques the curiosity, and stimulates the invention wonderfully to invest it with meanings and motifs. Doubtless, too, it has strokes that the author himself was not conscious of. It is pretty well admitted now that some of the best coups of genius are accomplished in quite unlabored and unconscious felicity, without any "smell of midnight oil." They leap from the brain, like Minerva from the head of Jove. Bacon calls them "certain delivories of himself that have no name." And Keats has said of such impromptus, in one of the loveliest figures of speech in our language: "Sudden a thought came like a full-blown rose." A mind of average appreciation, therefore, may dare to hope to find something in the sermon the author himself does not.

We do not care to symmetrize into coherence our marginal annotations. There are some fine antitheses in the sermon as well as lofty reflection. It has an adroit and artistically calculated infusion of reason to sustain its deception and disarm the criticism of a novice, as a coin may have enough gold in it to redeem it from the verdict of being worthless, although it is counterfeit. And this is an attainment in rhetorical art, an accomplishment in linguistic alchemy; or (to change the figure), this seductive illusion in words, this artistic choice of language to dupe the judgment and captivate the ear, is as much an art as he who can so successfully make a paste to delude the ordinary eye, and most skillfully imitate a superb diamond; and if "one" thinks himself smart, let him point out where the trick lies, find out the composition of the paste, and construct a similar deception. It is, indeed, an astute and agile legerdemain in language.

A good deal of the sermon is a "tour de force" of sheer bombast, stately and sustained ambiguity—a most ingeniously obscure magniloquence in a mere sheen or scintillation of language; a satin finish to a shoddy body; a veneering or vitrification of pompous, bombastic verbosity. But it has a certain radiation of illusion, such a wavering, flitting scintillation of dazzle and glint and gloss, that you hardly know where to fix the gleam. The baffled eye of criticism flits here and there in vain endeavor to catch up with the variation. The wayward glints flit with giddy cunning, like a broidery of sunbeams through wavering trees in a witchery of fascination, or like the dance of sunbeams on gently ruffled waters. And this sportive incoherence or inconsequence, this fascinating flight of word-play, seems (and is doubtless) a gay defiance of criticism and a playful challenge to detection.

This masterpiece of sustained fustian, with its pomps of incoherence and resounding inanity, is a superb "reductio ad absurdum" of the deceptive and imposing power of mere apostrophe. There is a certain stir, a false elevation, in the mere force of its distention. As gas lifts, so does flamboyancy; the latter by a power or process which often takes the discipline of judgment and will to detect and counteract. An apostrophe is to rhetoric a sort of intoxicant to style, as is to feeling

"A triumph of the pulse,
A dance of spirits, a mere froth of joy,
An animal ovation,
Our thoughtless agitation's idle child."

How wise in mediocrity, to call in apostrophe to atone for the lack of sense and solidity by its resounding and captivating illusoriness! The author of this sermon has insinuated a sly satire on one of the most successful tricks of shallow, conventional rhetoric in this adroit plausibility of style through astute manipulation of the apostrophe.

We intended to say something on the ingenuity of his verbal paradoxes; the imposing roll of his periods, the adroit sophistries of incompatibilities of language, the graceful waywardness of subjects and predicates that

"Find no end in wandering mazes lost."

But this article is too long already. Let no one suppose there are no true gems in this sermon. There is much elevation of sentiment and sustained flight, and tones of music in glorious keys, and powers of grasp of language that need quoting. The Lost Pleiad, "plunging on and on over the trackless haunts of dark immensity into far-distant regions of illimitable depth," is a picture, and there are others even better. S. N. P.

Whitworth Female College.

MR. EDITOR: It was the pleasure of this writer to spend the second Sunday in February in Brookhaven, shaking hands with old friends, and forming, I trust, new ones. The occasion was the annual sermon and faculty recital, closing the first term of the current session of Whitworth Female College.

It was very gratifying to an old friend of Whitworth to see with what energy President Chambers has taken hold of the work of sustaining the high character and upbuilding the fortunes of this honored institution, and with what marked success his efforts have been attended. The great improvement of the condition of the dormitories, the increased number of boarding pupils, the scholarship and Christian character of the faculty, the thorough organization of the school, and the local popularity of the management, all give promise of the increasing usefulness of the college, and evidence the success of Bro. Chambers' administration of its affairs. This institution in the past has received the cordial support of the Methodists of Mississippi, and has repaid with liberal interest all that the friends of Christian education have done for it. This support will, doubtless, still be accorded it, and should be, for it is our school, its president was elected by our representatives, and confirmed by the Annual Conference, and its location is all that can be desired.

The Epworth League.

The following extracts are from an able address delivered by J. E. McShan, of Houston, Texas, at the recent Epworth League Conference at San Antonio:

The Epworth League is a distinct feature of work inside the church—not outside, and is a great school where young Christian laymen can develop their powers as active Christian workers. It is the training school, the religious gymnasium where moral athletes are developed and sent forth to push forward the grand work the church is doing for the world. It is the place where rational social intercourse is promoted. Here the young are taught to infuse all the hope and light they can into life, to love justice and mercy, to hate slander and envy, to do their whole duty and leave the result to God. Here are secured intellectual and spiritual development to the young. Here the young Christian has the first taste of the joy of doing good, and here for the first time he feels the exaltation that comes from the knowledge that he is instrumental in spreading scriptural truths and holiness in the earth. His soul is uplifted with the thought that he is not a negative influence, but a positive compelling power, and the waves of effort and of good which he sets in motion will deepen and widen until they break in ripples upon the shores of that undiscovered country.

The Epworth League of the future will be militant Methodism; Methodism in earnest, Methodism on the war path, Methodism sanctified and glorified; that Methodism which has done so much to enlarge and liberalize the liberty of enlightened religious conscience; that Methodism which silenced the barbarous doctrines of the middle ages, and of predestination, and which proclaimed the democratic and universal policy that provision has been made for every repentant sinner.

Methodism has more branches, a greater membership and more church property than any other denomination of Protestant Christianity. It shows its sense of the responsibility of occupying so conspicuous a position by looking after the welfare of young Christians in the Epworth League.

Bringing people into the church is one thing; training, cultivating and discipling them for great spiritual work is another. It is one thing to quarry the marble, it is quite another to bring out with strong and tender touches the finished statuary.

Methodism is thus raising and training millions of disciples of humanity and harmony who will at last elevate, ennoble and purify mankind.

It is preparing itself for the great day when the peoples of the earth shall come closer together, when the standards of citizenship and character will be raised higher, when old religious hatreds will be eliminated, the elements of religion be recognized as universal, and the standard of one Lord and one God wave in triumph over the earth.

In the future growth of Methodism, and this is synonymous with enlightened, progressive and liberal religion, the Epworth League will be the great storehouse and conservator of zeal. The great battery from whence will come the electrical forces of those who are zealous of good works. It is in the young that zeal and enthusiasm abound; such zeal as will remove mountains of difficulty; such enthusiasm as when its duty is once clear, counts not the cost, but will go through or remove every obstacle. The young have singleness and directness of purpose and fear nothing.

Now, I am going to make a statement which may seem incredible and startling. The saloons exist to-day by permission of the Christian church, and every other evil lives because Christian people tolerate it. The church of to-day, would she but use her power, would mold public sentiment, outline State and National legislation, and control the business of the marts of trade. It is to make the church rise in its majesty like a young giant that has been sleeping, and hurl organized iniquity, which exists but to trample upon the highest rights and best welfare of man, from its high places, that is the distinctive future work of the Epworth League.

Consecrated wealth is the great need of the church of to-day. The sinews of war are just as necessary in moral as in material warfare. A thousand men bring their bodies a living sacrifice to the altars where one man brings a large fortune. The work of the Epworth League among laymen must overcome this need, and when consecrated money and consecrated effort join their forces, the cohorts of the old boy will have to capitulate.

Good citizenship is the aim of the church. Good citizenship is practical Christianity. Not conventional good citizenship, which is merely able to keep out of jail, but good citizenship that is worth a hundred cents on the dollar seven days in the week. Good citizenship that is all wool and a yard wide, and has the name blown in the bottle. Good citizenship that condones no wrong, but is always on the right side of every moral question.

From the Police Cell.

It is a story which has been ten thousand times repeated, and which will be repeated ten thousand times more with varying details—the story of the reformation which faith in God works in the character. The following form of it is no more striking than myriads of others.

On the evening of April 18, 1882, while Roundsman Delaney was on duty as acting sergeant in the East 126th street police station in this city, a lame man was brought in drunk, on the verge of delirium tremens, having evidently been on a protracted debauch. He shouted wildly in his cell till nearly two o'clock in the morning, when he quieted down, and spent the remainder of the time till daylight praying earnestly for forgiveness, and promised to lead a better life. Later in the day he begged the judge to release him and vowed never to drink again, and he was released. He kept his promise. His name is Samuel H. Hadley, and for eight years he has been superintendent of the McAuley Mission in Water street, while his brother is superintendent of St. Bartholomew's Mission in Forty-second street. On the evening of April 18, the fourteenth anniversary of his arrest and conversion, well-dressed, evidently a gentleman as well as a Christian, he entered that police station, introduced himself to Sergeant Delaney, who was again at the desk, told his story, and asked permission to visit the cell which had been the scene of the most momentous event in his life's history. There, in the presence of the assembled policemen, he kneeled down and thanked God that he had been locked up there fourteen years before.

What is there remarkable about this story? Nothing; nothing but the inherent marvel and miracle of conversion. The man who has been a drunkard becomes sober; or the man who has been a thief becomes honest; or the man who has been stingy becomes benevolent; or the man who has been selfish comes to love to deny himself; the man who has cared nothing for God comes to love God with all his heart, and fears more to offend him than he does to offend all the world besides. How does all this happen? What creates the change in his nature? Does the current turn of itself and flow the other way? Mr. Hadley thinks not. He says it was not of himself, but that it was the pure grace of God, the Holy Spirit pleading with him, whose voice he heard and obeyed; and with all the energy of his nature he followed the voice within his soul. God called him; he obeyed—that was all. God turned him; he turned—that was the secret. And now the love of Christ constrains him. He is a new creature, and old things have passed away.

Regeneration, conversion and all the other theological terms which designate God's part and man's part in the mightiest work done in the human soul mean no more than the scene in that police cell when this man prayed and resolved and turned from sin to God. It is very simple; it is beyond explanation. It is the privilege of every soul that is not Christ's. It is the duty, it is the only salvation of sinful man. Tens of thousands, did we say, there are of such experience? Nay, that is the door by which all the blood-bought saints in heaven have entered in. "Ye must be born again."—The Independent.

A Right Step.

Thanks to the energy of our Charge d'Affaires at Constantinople, Mr. Riddle, the Rev. George Knapp, missionary of the American Board at Bitlis, is no longer a prisoner in the hand of Turkish authorities, but is under the protection of our consul at Alexandretta. Mr. Riddle, learning that it had been determined to expel Mr. Knapp from the country by sending him away on a European steamer last Friday, not only promptly informed the British and French ambassadors, but demanded an interview with the Porte, where he showed the written promise of Tewfik Pasha, that Mr. Knapp should be delivered to the American legation for trial. Mr. Riddle was not afraid to warn the foreign minister that it would be wise for him to keep his promise, but his vigor did not evaporate in words, for he openly telegraphed to the consular agents at Iskanderoom to call for an American cruiser, if necessary to secure the delivery of Mr. Knapp. The energy, and, above all, the publicity of Mr. Riddle's acts, had the desired effect, and Mr. Knapp was surrendered. Contrary to repeated assurances, Mr. Knapp has been treated as a prisoner ever since his arrest at Bitlis. He will now insist upon a trial at Constantinople, that his innocence of the charges trumped up against him, and the motives of the Porte in the matter, may be made manifest to the world.

If our government at home would display a like energy to that of Mr. Riddle, the wretched Armenians might still be in evil case, but at least there would be no more troubling of our missionaries. At a mass meeting held in this city on Tuesday, of last week, some resolutions were adopted which embodied two important points. One was a demand that our government should invite the nations of Christendom to unite in prohibiting the Turkish government from continuing the outrageous oppression of its Christian subjects; the other, which promises to be more immediately effective, insists "that the United States demand and secure immediate payment of exemplary damages for the injuries already inflicted on the persons and property of American citizens, and insist upon the strict observance on the part of the Turks of their treaty obligations, under which American citizens in Turkey can be tried only by American diplomatic representatives." This demand ought to have been made long ago, and the Sultan left in no sort of doubt as to the consequences of offering insult to this country in the person of our missionaries.—Standard.

Small Beginnings.

Mary Jones had no Bible. She walked in her bare feet twenty-five miles, and carried the savings of six years in her hands one December day in 1802. But the Welsh pastor had only one Bible left, and that was promised to another party. The thought of that satchel being carried back empty another twenty-five miles by the barefooted maiden was too much for Mr. Charles. So he rallied Wilberforce, Zachary Macaulay, Granville Sharp, and others, to organize the Bible Society. Since then the British agency has issued 143,000,000 copies. Not only Wales rejoiced, but pagan Saharas have blossomed as a rose by reason of its work.—North and West.

"Editor's Delight." That's the name of a brand new game. (Now you don't want to miss this item.) The game is played thus: "Take a sheet of ordinary writing paper, fold it carefully, and enclose a bank note sufficiently large to pay up all arrearages and one year in advance. Keep an eye on the editor, and if a smile adorns his face, the trick works like a charm." Now is the time to play the game.—Mid-Continent.

A PETITION.

BY GERTRUDE BEKELAR DAVIES.

Grace for to day, Father, is all I ask;
Strength to perform my nearest task;
Naught for to-morrow do I crave—
Let me the harvest of the present save.

There is no future I can ever know;
'Tis in the present I must reap or sow;
The good or evil all in to-day I do—
For worthy labor, then, Father, my strength renew.

Worthy labor brings truest happiness;
From sad hearts lifts half their heaviness;
Thrills numbed souls with sense of life;
On gloomiest lives throws gleams of light.

Let not my smallest duties be deferred—
The pleasant smile, the low-spoken, cheering word;
The timely aid some fainting soul may need;
The sowing of one tiny, pregnant seed.

What, though the drops of perspiration form upon my brow,
And agony thrill through each sinew as I bow
My shoulder to the yoke; and if I sometimes faint
Beneath my burden, I would not utter weak complaint.

Trusting, O Father, that thy hand is through it all,
And that leaning upon thy strength, I can not fall;
And when the last to-day of my short life shall come
May thou in mercy judge life's task, "Well done."

And this I would not dare to ask alone;
Guilty, I trembling stand before thy throne,
But only through the name and merit
Of Jesus, thy dear Son, I ask it.

Rev. T. S. West, M. D.

[Address by Bishop Chas B Galloway at his funeral in Capitol Street Church, Jackson, Miss.]

—I can scarcely recall an occasion like this, which has given me more sincere sorrow and inflicted a sorer personal bereavement. One of the most cherished and intimate friends of my life has been called to his rich reward. To have known him was a privilege, to have shared his cheerful companionship was an inspiration, and to cherish his blessed memory through life will be a sacred pleasure.

But my bereavement is yours as well, for was he not everybody's friend? I doubt if anyone ever lived in our city who, in three short years, found his way into so many hearts. In a thousand homes in Jackson last night there was a vacant chair, and from a thousand lips were heard expressions of personal loss and sorrow.

We can not fathom the mystery of his death. In the midst of a busy and active life—working with a physical vigor and elastic energy worthy of youth—the summons came, and he is gone. The wonder comes instinctively to mind, Why should not the less needed have been taken—those who have filled up the measure of their days, or those of less use to the world? But the All-wise knoweth best, and to his hand we yield, though we suffer.

I will not at this hour trace the events that made up the history of our honored brother, or attempt any thorough analysis of his unique and noble character. But there were prominent characteristics which made him singularly attractive and widely useful. To a few of these—which have been to me so instructive and helpful—I crave the privilege of modestly referring.

His life was crowned with incidents that reveal the fibre of his nature and the splendid virtues that gave him a really great character. In the parental home his dutiful boyhood was a sure prophecy of his noble, loyal manhood. During the stormy days of war, whether for two years as a soldier in line, or for two more years as the gentle, thoughtful, sympathetic and devout chaplain of his regiment, he was fearless and faithful in the discharge of every duty. No braver soldier ever wore a uniform, and no more magnanimous a comrade ever sat around a camp-fire.

As a physician, he was skillful, attentive, and spiritually sympathetic. And when at length he devoted himself entirely to the work of the ministry, there was not in the ranks of the Mississippi Conference a more laborious pastor, or more earnest and zealous preacher. Every congregation loved him, and in every appointment he was called upon to serve he would have been welcomed back with grateful joy.

Dr. West was a signal example of usefulness in character and religion. There were no groveling or unworthy motives in his entering the gospel ministry. He simply obeyed the call of God, gave up the profession in which he was widely useful and successful, surrendered the prospects of worldly gain, and became an itinerant minister. But, in so doing, he never had an hour's regret, and nobody ever heard him speak as though he had made a sacrifice for the Lord. There is no sacrifice in love, and the love of his great soul was given to the blessed Christ and his church.

He certainly was an example of unwearied industry. He was never unemployed, and never tritlingly employed. Every hour seemed to have a definite purpose. On the street he was going directly to some place, and where he was sure not to stay long. By this studious economy of time he wrought much as a pastor and wisely builded for the eternities.

Remarkable for religious cheerfulness. He was naturally sunny-hearted. There was an innocent laughter in the very tones of his voice, and in his softly beaming eyes there was a twinkle of joy. We all felt sure that eye and voice and feature were but radiant reflections of a noble, generous gladness that dwelt in his great heart. To me he had as large a measure of the attractive elements of religion as any man I ever knew. By the cheeriness of his faith and the radiance of his character he won friends to his Lord.

And this happy-heartedness came, not from shallow convictions, but the optimism of his nature, and the hopefulness of his faith in Christ. Responsibility did not sit lightly upon his shoulders, nor did he ever shrink from the burdens of life. But it was a cardinal principle of his philosophy and a cardinal doctrine of his faith to discharge the most solemn duties of life with a brave spirit and a cheerful smile. And no doubt many of our burdens have seemed lighter because of the helpful ministry of his smiling face and sunny heart. And this cheerfulness made our brother the friend of young and old alike. I never associated age with Dr. West. It seems incredible that he should have been sixty-one years old. The buoyancy of his nature and the enlightened optimism of his faith in God gave the charm and glow of young manhood to his character and ministry.

Dr. West was an unusually wise man. He had clear discernment and much of the prophetic instinct. Few men I have ever known could adjust difficult matters or manage a delicate question with more skillful hand. He seemed to have an intuitive knowledge as to what to say, and when, in order to accomplish a happy result. This made him eminently useful as a pastor. There was confidence in his judgment, and absolute reliance upon the great goodness of his heart. And he never betrayed a confidence. Sacred secrets entrusted to him never became common property. He was prudent in speech. He never gave offense in words, and rarely ever in life had to regret an imprudent utterance. No estrangements were ever occasioned by his repetition of anyone's harsh words or uncharitable judgments. His lips were sanctified. He had a generous, catholic spirit. Nobody ever thought of Dr. West as a sectarian. He was too broad to be a bigot, too noble to be a partisan, and had too much common sense to be a fanatic. His affectional nature could not be confined within the narrow enclosure of any ecclesiasticism. Though a man of decided convictions—holding firmly to his views of truth and his honest interpretations of the Word of God—he did not think that God had exhausted himself on one branch of his church; that he had as true disciples in another evangelical communion as his own. Hence he numbered cherished friends by the thousand outside the church of his first and best love.

Into the sacred inner circle of his happy home, where, as husband and father, his virtues shone with most resplendent ray, I shall not presume to enter; but upon the sorely bereaved I invoke the Father's tenderest care, and would commend them to the consolations of that gospel our honored brother preached with so much fidelity and success.

We shall miss him! Oh, how we shall miss him! His glad coming will no more be greeted. His sunny heart, only in memory, will chase the care and gloom from our spirits. Let us lay him gently to rest, and may the flowers bloom brightly over his peaceful grave.

To Rev. W. J. O'Bryant.

MY DEAR BROTHER: I did not intend to be curt or discourteous to you, not in the least. I only meant to decline controverting with you the question of shouting. I believe in shouting. I have never said a word against it in all my life, either publicly or privately, in the pulpit or through the press. If one loves God and keeps the commandments, I have great faith in him, though he never shouts. If one shouts every day, and does not keep the commandments, I have but little faith in him. Obedience is the sign and test of love—not shouting. I stick to this.

But, my brother, you come now as a pupil, and want to learn. Very well. Most of all, I desire some one to teach me. Next to that, I love to lead an apt and anxious pupil. You ask, "Why is it that sound doctrine is slow in its process of development?" I answer: Because of the sin, ignorance, dullness, blindness, prejudice, lack of aptness and application, and the preconceived opinions of the student. The trouble is not in the doctrine, but in the scholar. Men have a greater natural aptness for sin and error than for truth. "Men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil." The light shines into darkness, and the darkness comprehends it not. Men are slow of heart in believing the truth.

As you are my pupil, I will say it is needless to assert strongly which nobody denies, or to deny strongly what no one has asserted. I did not say nobody ever said so far as I know, that "a pathetic, tremulous voice and a weeping congregation were evidences of heresy or unsound doctrine." My pupil should not do this. And yet voices of this kind bring tears from some people in the church, in the theater, and in political meetings, regardless of the truth or falseness of what was said, or on what subject. Many colored people and some white people shout when there is nothing to shout for. They shout just to be shouting.

If I understand my pupil, he asserts and tries to prove "that sound doctrine is quick, rapid in its operation and development." You quote two passages from the Bible to prove this. Let us look at them and study them together. We may learn something. The first is from First Samuel xxi, 8, "The king's business required haste." You have it "requires haste;" the text has "required." Learn to be accurate in the use of Scripture. Take time to read it. Study every word. David is explaining why he did not bring his "sword and weapons with him." He did not have time to get them; "the king's business required haste." This is all there is of it. This passage has no bearing whatever on the thing you want to prove. This, my dear pupil, is a misapplication and perversion of Scripture—a thing no preacher or teacher should do. You were misled by the word "haste." We should use words, and not abuse them.

Your second quotation is from Heb. iv, 12, "The word of God is quick and powerful," etc. Here you went off wrong on the word "quick." You say it means "speed," acting rapidly. In this you are mistaken, and this mistake has misled you in your interpretation and application of this passage. As you are anxious to learn, and are an apt pupil, we will study this word "quick" a little. This word occurs, I believe, ten times in the Bible. In three places it means "speed," rapidly. In seven passages it means something else. In every place the connection indicates clearly the meaning of the word. In this passage "quick" means "living, live, vital." Any good commentary will show you this. You would not have made this mistake if you had only examined Clark on this text.

Now, turn to an unabridged dictionary, and look at the word "quick." I use the "New American." There are about nine different meanings of the word given, and taking in the sciences, there are twenty, or more. A dictionary is indispensable to a correct and accurate use of words. My pupil can not get along without a dictionary; can not in the study of God's Word and the doctrines of the Bible. "I cut my finger to the quick." "He is too quick," touchable, sensitive. The idea of "speed" is not here. My pupil should use words, and not let words use him.

Lastly: Knowledge of doctrine is acquired just as any other kind of information is gained. It does not come to us by inspiration or revelation. It takes time, hard work, deep thought, and diligent and continued application, and the help of the Spirit, to make progress in understanding the teachings and doctrines of God's Word.

If I have made my points clear, my pupil can see how slow he has been in understanding and applying these two passages of Scripture; but all of us live and learn. The trouble has been in him, not in the truth. If diligent, studious, and anxious to know, he will continue to learn and grow as long as he lives in this world, and, perhaps, throughout the eternal years.

From "Layman."

I wish to say in reply to your correspondent, "J. E. R.," who criticised "Layman's" view of an educated ministry, and who seems to think that "Layman" is a "country Jake," and, therefore, incapable of comprehending the subject, that I am a resident of one of the most progressive cities outside of New Orleans; that we have an educated preacher, whose education is consecrated to the cause, and who can edify all who come, and whose congregations do not consist of a few in the amen corner; but the house is filled, and all go away feeling satisfied that they have received their portion—a striking contrast in point of food to theological bones and dry husks of controversy which was the principal diet in times past. God bless consecrated collegiate education, and may it continue to invade and revivify the church till there shall be no room for theological misfits!

Mississippi Conference Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society.

The following resolutions were passed at the last session of the Annual Conference:

Resolved, That the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society in each charge be urged to improve the condition of its parsonage, striving to make it more convenient, comfortable, and tasteful, and improve the grounds by planting fruit and shade trees; also that our pastors be urged to place the parsonage in as perfect a condition as possible upon leaving.

Resolved, That a list of the Conference officers of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society and Central Committee be reported to this Annual Conference, and incorporated in its Minutes.

FOUR YEARS OLD.

Our Homes this month begins its fifth year with sincere thanks to God and its friends. We have striven in all earnestness to advocate the cause of our Lord and Master, and have felt his sustaining grace. We ask no greater boon or honor in this world than simply to be a pen in the hand of the Savior, with which he may write his words of loving kindness and his appeals for help in saving the world to all who will read them. We hoped to make the paper in each home that it enters a messenger from him, bringing comfort and spiritual strength; and this our friends assure us it has been. We have rejoiced to hear on every side that the paper has been a strong bond, drawing the different parts of the society together in a community of interest and a loyalty to Christ as the rightful ruler of this land of ours.

Financially, the paper has managed to sustain itself without a cent from the funds of the society, but at a great sacrifice of strength and overstrained economy. There is much that would add to the interest of the paper that we have been compelled to forego because of its limited income. This is not wise, for we should determine to give our paper an opportunity to be as good as any in the country. Give us a large number of subscribers, and we promise to make it such. Three thousand subscribers is a pitiful number for a paper with such a host of friends. This year must be the beginning of larger things. Do not be content to fall short of ten thousand subscribers. Work for it; pray for it. Let every auxiliary see that it has an effective agent. Let each district secretary and Conference officer use it as the best means for extending her work. The organizers who do the most permanent work send in long lists of subscriptions. We shall look for many "Happy New Years" in the form of subscriptions.

THE SCHOOL AT LONDON, KY.

The Board of Managers had a very satisfactory meeting at London, and Miss Potry was appointed to send a report to Our Homes. Rev. Geo. Buffington was elected president of the Board, and accepted it as from God. Committees were appointed to select plans and proceed with the building. The local committee feel sure that as many as three hundred students will be enrolled the first year; that this number will be in attendance during the months of January, February and March, when the public school teachers can enter.

"The $15,000 to go into the site and building were raised in London, and by the Kentucky Conference. The district school teachers who are educated in this school we hope to send back to their schools with hearts full of love for Christ and for souls. Such teachers in one hundred districts, each district averaging fifty children that will be under their care, will do incalculable good. Can there be a stronger, greater work for Christ than this?"

OUR CUBAN MISSION SCHOOL.

Mrs. Wolff, superintendent, says: "Our schools are full to overflowing. Our school-building is well under way, and we expect to have it under roof by Conference." Yet she fears that it shall have to stop for lack of funds. Shall this be? Give all that you can, and speak to your neighbor for the Lord's cause, for truly, as Mrs. Wolff adds, this work has possibilities for the salvation of souls greater than any work that our church has ever undertaken.

The Mississippi Conference has sent in 54 new subscriptions to Our Homes since August, which is ahead of all the Conferences except the North Texas Conference, which has sent in 64. We hope to have our one hundred as soon as possible.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Winona district met in the Methodist Church at Winona, April 15, the president, Mrs. M. V. Jones, in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. King. Mrs. Ella Ben was elected secretary. The president read her annual address, which was a very practical, thoughtful paper. She deplored the lack of interest in missions displayed by our women. This she attributes to the fact of not reading our missionary literature. The roll was called. Carrollton was first, and had no delegate present and no report. Winona auxiliary consists of 18 members, 4 life members; funds raised for all purposes for one year, $136.75; subscriptions to Missionary Advocate, 14. Greenwood auxiliary has 23 members, 2 life members, 7 honorary members, and has raised for all purposes $52.60. Black Hawk auxiliary is composed of 17 members, and raised a total of $41.65. Indianola had no delegate, but a letter to our district secretary stated that it was alive and hoped to give better evidence of its existence during the coming year. There was no statistics as to its work for this year. From the auxiliary at McNutt a verbal report was made. That society consists of 10 members; dues are regularly collected; the whole amount reported was $26.75. Acona auxiliary reported 14 members, and amount collected $31.25. Sunny Side auxiliary had no delegate, but sent a written report. Number of members, 8, and remitted to treasurer $25.50. Shell Mound, no delegate and no report. From the juvenile societies the following made reports: Black Hawk Workers were represented by young Master Percel. They are 22 strong, and send to Conference treasurer $21.15. McNutt Gleaners, verbal report, 25 members, about $3 paid into the treasury. Bessie Lipscomb Band made no financial report, but sent a written statement that they had re-organized. Acona Juvenilos consists of 11 members, and report $5.35 collected last year. Galloway Gleaners, 35 members, report $33.92 sent to treasurer. Lilies of the Valley reported verbal by a reorganization. Lula Lipscomb Band, 25 members, and report $20.90, with $16 additional raised on Easter Sunday for the Belle Bennett chair.

After hearing the reports the president called on Bros. Stone, Ritchie and King for talks, all of whom responded with wise and cheering words.

Greenwood was selected as the place for our next district meeting.

At 8 P. M. devotional exercises were conducted by Bro. Ritchie. Mrs. Grider extended to all the delegates, visitors and officers of the meeting a hearty welcome to the hospitality of Winona. Bro. Allen replied in a very appreciative, eloquent manner, for which we extend our thanks, especially as he was trying to fill a woman's place, which was very gracefully done. Mrs. Trotter read a very eloquent and cheering paper on "Missions," which was much appreciated by the society. Miss Shepherd recited very nicely. Mrs. J. B. Stone recited a very interesting poem. By request Miss Mary Sweatman read again a paper which she read before the P. and H. M. Society in the forenoon, after which the Committee on Resolutions presented their report.

Selections.

Selfishness.

Selfishness is always suicidal. It is a fatal delusion to suppose that it brings real or lasting happiness to ourselves. St. Paul was one of the happiest men of his time, although he suffered so much, or, rather, because he suffered so much for the well-being of others. On the other hand, the Emperor Tiberius, in the same period of human history, surrounded by all the unparalleled luxuries and delights of his palace on the lovely island of Capræ, wrote to the senate that he was of all men living the most miserable. The life which St. Paul sets before us is the only true life. For the unsaved, the unchristian, it is an impossible life. The Spirit of Christ alone can enable any man to live such a life. St. Paul was able to carry out this unprecedented and revolutionary conception of duty because he was able to say, "I live, and yet no longer I, but Christ liveth in me" (Gal. ii, 20). Let us submit to Christ. Let us open our hearts to all the influences of Christ. Let us permit his Spirit to change our nature until it becomes Christ-like. Then, walking in his footsteps, imitating his example, going about doing good, we shall discover that, seeking the happiness of others, we have achieved our own.—Hugh Price Hughes.

Living to Jesus Christ every day and in the minutest things of life is the secret of fruitfulness. A fruitful Christian is a growth, not a sudden creation. A noble Christly character can not be finished up by a religion of Sundays and sacraments and special services; it is the product of many days of sunshine and storm, of drawing in the vital sap from Jesus as the living Head, of communion and prayer and self-denials, and the downpourings of the Holy Spirit. The religion which would rather be poor than touch a dishonest dollar, which would rather go through Sunday's fierce storm to its mission school than lie on its lounge, a religion which in all things serves Christ for the sheer love of serving him, this is the kind of spiritual growth whose fruit "tastes of the divine life within it." Blessed is that Christian whose broad boughs are laden with "apples of gold" for God's "baskets of silver!" Such blessedness is within the reach of everyone who reads this. Ask yourself, "Am I bearing the genuine fruits of the Holy Spirit?"—Theodore L. Cuyler.

Don't Read Too Much.

It was a saying of Hobbes that if he had read as much as other men he would doubtless have shared their ignorance. The majority of people who read at all, read too much, and think too little, falling into the error to which Schopenhauer alludes, when he says that the safest way of losing no thoughts of our own, is to take up a book every moment we have nothing to do.—The Quiver.

When once infidelity can persuade men that they shall die like beasts they will soon be brought to live like beasts also.—South.

An old-fashioned way of getting there. Slow and safe, but pretty hard work. Most women, nowadays, have got beyond this kind of traveling. They've found something better.

Now, why can't you look at that other old-fashioned proceeding, the washing of things with soap and hard rubbing, in the same light? That's slow enough and hard work enough, everybody knows, but it's no safer than washing with Pearline. It's really destructive, in fact, the wear of that constant rubbing. Break away from these antiquated ideas. Use modern methods. Pearline saves work and wear and money.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 457 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Prayer Meeting Topic for May.

CHRIST IN SOCIAL RELATIONS.

SUNDAY, MAY 10—CHRIST AS A GUEST.

(Luke vii, 44-48; xix, 5-7; John xii, 1-3; ii, 1, 2.)

The topic for last Sunday was Christ in the home, and the various homes which Christ is known to have blessed by his entrance were given in order, as far as possible. In some of these homes he was present for the special purpose of working miracles of mercy, and in others he was present in the purely social relation of an invited guest; Yet in all of them he was present to help in some way, and not to enjoy the luxury of being entertained. Our references include four instances of Christ as guest.

I.—CHRIST, THE GUEST OF SIMON, THE PHARISEE.

Simon was, no doubt, a man highly esteemed for his social and religious eminence, and Christ was considered by his friends to be highly honored when invited to become his guest. During the progress of the feast a woman, who had previously been a sinner, enters uninvited, and, without any regard to the imagined proprieties of the occasion, avails herself of this, her first opportunity, to express by actions the pure gratitude and love of her heart to her Savior. Jesus does not regard the occurrence as an unbecoming interruption to a pleasant social occasion, nor is he fearful lest his host and the assembled guests should misunderstand; but he tenderly assures the woman that her sins are, indeed, forgiven, and accepts the humble service of love that she renders. Without caring whether he offends or not, he goes so far as to contrast unfavorably the entertainment which he had received from his host with the loving service of the penitent and now forgiven woman.

PRACTICAL.

(1) The customs and rules of polite society should never prevent us from manifesting the spirit of Christ.

(2) Christ is never interrupted by the entrance into his presence of a sinner.

(3) Every sincere expression of penitence and love is of a sweet savor unto Christ.

II.—CHRIST, THE GUEST OF ZACCHEUS.

We have here an instance opposite in many respects to the preceding one, since Zaccheus was a publican, and did not stand in favor in the community of Jericho, where he lived. Christ became his guest that he might be of spiritual benefit to him, and, therefore, cared not that the people murmured, saying, "That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner." He did not wait for an invitation from Zaccheus, but simply announced to him his intention of abiding at his house, knowing that he would be overjoyed to have the privilege of entertaining him.

In this case, as in the preceding one, Christ, as guest, manifested the desire to do good—"to seek and to save that which was lost"—rather than to seek pleasure through social entertainment.

PRACTICAL.

(1) Jesus invites every sinner to let him become his guest.

(2) The sinner, who is wise, accepts the invitation with joy and gratitude.

(3) Not simply the exalted in social rank are privileged to admit Jesus in their hearts as guest. "Let the brother of low degree know that he is exalted."

III.—CHRIST, THE GUEST OF THE FAMILY CIRCLE IN BETHANY.

Here Jesus is seen as the guest of a family of intimate friends, one of whom he had raised from the grave. Overwhelming gratitude to him who had brought so much of light and joy to the home in many ways, and especially in replacing the broken link in the family chain, fills the hearts of the two sisters, and they count it their chief delight to have him as their guest at supper. Martha does her very best at serving, and Mary anoints the feet of Jesus with costly ointment, each one doing for him what her peculiar disposition prompted.

PRACTICAL.

(1) Gratitude to Christ for our own salvation, and that of our friends, should prompt us to consecrated service.

(2) The ties of friendship are made very beautiful and sacred to us by the example of Christ, and especially in the Bethany scenes.

IV.—CHRIST, A WEDDING GUEST.

Jesus was invited to a marriage in Cana, of Galilee, and he accepted the invitation. The occasion gave him an opportunity to perform a miracle, which was the beginning of his wonderful works. It is interesting to notice that his mother was a witness of the first miracle that he wrought.

PRACTICAL.

(1) The institution of marriage is made especially sacred by this incident.

(2) Jesus ought to be invited more frequently to weddings.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. C. F. Emery, Columbia, Miss., April 24: "Our second Quarterly Conference found Columbia station in a very healthy condition, spiritually and otherwise. Congregations are large, and the prayer meetings from week to week show an increasing attendance. Considerable interest is taken in our Bible readings, to which thirty minutes are devoted. Financially, we are up to date. Presiding elder and preacher in charge paid up; and out of $244 assessed this charge for Conference purposes two hundred dollars have been paid to date, and I hope to be able to report at District Conference the entire amount paid in full. Our young people deserve great credit for the interest they take in the work. Bro. Powell is without a superior as a presiding elder, and is growing with the people."

Rev. F. N. Sweeney, P. C., Dry Creek, La., April 25: "This is my second year on this work, and everything is moving on very nicely. Our presiding elder has met both of his appointments and preached us some soul-stirring sermons. We are planning for good things, and I believe the Lord is going to bless us with many conversions. The people are becoming more interested, and the church members seem to be more awakened to a sense of their duty. As I do not occupy the parsonage, I do not receive the 'poundings' that I read of others receiving; but I receive many tokens of kindness from my people, and I have not suffered for anything. I have organized two Sunday-schools this year, making four now on the work. We have one Epworth League that is growing in interest. Have had five accessions to church, and many have promised to lead better lives. Pray for us."

Rev. J. J. Smylie, Edgerton, Mo., April 24: "I am in the midst of a glorious meeting here. We are praying for and expecting a wonderful victory before it closes. Rev. J. H. Hager, of the Missouri Conference, is our pastor hero, and a noble man he is. I will be in Meridian, Miss., about the fifth of May for a few days' rest. I have entirely regained my health. I weigh more than I have for six years. As a good many of the brethren have spoken to me about holding meetings for them, will you please say through the ADVOCATE that my address is Meridian, Miss., and that they can write to me there. Write immediately, brethren, if you want my assistance, as I am rapidly filling up my calendar. God bless you, Doctor, and the ADVOCATE."

NOTES FROM LOUISVILLE CIRCUIT, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Our first quarterly meeting passed. All our churches represented. Bro. Mitchell, our presiding elder, was quite efficient in looking after the various interests of the church on this work. The reports on the various lines of church work showed an upward tendency. Salary for preacher liberal, foreign mission assessment collected and turned over to T. B Holt. Nearly all the other Conference assessments secured by subscription. A fair payment on the preacher's salary made. One church painted, and other improvements being provided for. Our Epworth Leagues are growing, so are our Sunday-schools. We are preparing for Children's Day at all of our churches. Our predecessors have wrought well, and we expect a continuous growth here. This is our first year here. The people are exceedingly kind to us. "Pray for us."

ABERDEEN DISTRICT MINISTERS' INSTITUTE

The Ministers' Institute of the Aberdeen district was held in Tupelo, Miss., April 22 and 23. About two-thirds of the preachers were present in good spirits.

The program, which was previously arranged and published in the ADVOCATE, was taken up. Each speaker seemed to be fully awake to all the interests of the church.

The preaching by Bros. Poe, Woollard and Kendall was of a high order. Bro. Kendall's sermon, on "Sanctification," was very highly appreciated by the entire congregation that greeted him, and generally accepted as the teaching of the Scriptures. Every pastor in our district believes and preaches sanctification, but not one preaches the "second-blessing theory."

The institute elected the presiding elder and Bro. Amos Kendall a committee of two to take steps to arrange with the Columbus district to hold the next session of the institute in connection with each other.

We found the pastor, Dr. W. T. J Sullivan, and his family enjoying good health, and the Doctor is enjoying the full confidence and esteem of his entire flock. He is happy in his work. As you insist on brevity, I will not ask for space to give a detailed account of our meeting; but I may say, it was a benediction to our souls.

W. F. M. Convention.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Greenville district met at Rosedale, Miss., April 7, 1896. Sister Summerville, of Greenville, Miss., presided with grace, modesty and dignity, and was not a whit behind any of the brethren in dispatching business. All of the auxiliaries and juveniles in the district, except two, were represented by delegates, and these two sent written reports.

The reports showed a higher degree of prosperity than during any previous year, which was very encouraging to us.

The night session was excellent. Some beautiful recitations were given by the juvenile delegates, and several able papers read, which reflected credit upon woman's work. This service was a joint meeting with the P. and H. M. Society. We feel greatly encouraged from the result of this meeting, and received new inspiration to press onward and upward to higher and nobler attainments.

We are under many obligations to the preachers for their co operation in this great work. We were royally entertained by the good people of Rosedale, for which we express our gratitude and thanks.

PUBLISHER'S NOTICES.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to May, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to May, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

Quenching the Spirit.

Conviction of sin, holy aspirations, love of the right, are all the work of the Holy Spirit in the heart. Although men ofttimes suppose that the desire and purpose to forsake sin and live virtuously originate in themselves, the Word of God teaches that true repentance is not the result of human volition alone. The world hates the doctrine of total depravity, and constantly extols what it is pleased to call the "innate virtue and goodness of mankind." But the explicit declaration of Scripture that "there in none righteous," "that men are "altogether corrupt and abominable," finds ample confirmation in the lives of men everywhere. On no other ground can we account for the universal prevalence of vice and crime. The natural man has neither the power nor the inclination to repent and follow after God.

The Savior declares that it is the Spirit of God that "convinces men of sin, of righteousness, and of the judgment to come." Without his aid we would never know what sin is, nor feel the heinousness of it. To every man God grants the offices of his Spirit in the conviction of sin and in the revelation of the truth, for "he wills not that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance."

Independently of man, God moves upon the intellect and the sensibilities; but he does not intrude into the inner sanctuary of the will. Into that sacred chamber he never comes except as an invited guest. The Holy Spirit shows us our depravity and our sins, whether we want to see them or not. Beyond this, however, he does not go. Man, weak and fallen as he is, has the power to say "No" to Omnipotence; for having been endowed with free agency, he is not under any necessity of choosing the right. Compulsory goodness would not only have no virtue in it, but it would also dishonor the all-wise Creator.

Since "it is God who works in us both to will and to do of his good pleasure," resistance of his Spirit is attended with the most direful consequences. No fact connected with human salvation is of more momentous importance than that of man's ability to resist the work of God in the heart. The frequency of passages in the New Testament urging men not to harden their hearts, but to yield to the wooings of Divine grace, is of the utmost significance as teaching that at last conscience may be stifled, and the Spirit of God so quenched that he will be powerless to lead us to repentance.

On account of his purifying, quickening influence, the Holy Ghost is frequently spoken of under the striking symbolism of fire. The expression, "Quench not the Spirit," used by the Apostle Paul in one of his letters, brings out this very figure. The ordinary way of extinguishing a fire is by pouring water upon it. The more water we pour on the quicker it will be put out. In like manner, God's Spirit, which is sent as a fire, is quenched by acts and habits of wickedness. The man who lives habitually in willful, known sin is pouring a steady stream upon the fire of love and holiness which God seeks to enkindle in his heart. Its entire extinction, if such a course be persisted in, is only a matter of time. Men imagine that so long as they do not commit heinous sins—such as theft, perjury, drunkenness, murder, and the like—there is no danger of extinguishing the divine light and influence that is given to them. To think so, however, is to deceive ourselves. Undoubtedly, they who are guilty of shameless violations of the commandments are likely soon to become wholly reprobate, and destitute even of the faintest glimmerings of heavenly grace.

But sins of every kind, small as well as great, are an offence unto God, and unrepented of will bring us into everlasting condemnation. "All unrighteousness is sin." The mere severance of a telegraph wire will prevent the transmission of messages just as surely as if half a mile of the wire had been removed. So it is not by flagrant acts of wickedness that most of us grieve the Holy Spirit, but by committing what we call "little sins," such as polite fibbing, taking advantage of our neighbor's ignorance, indulgence of anger, pride, envy, discontent, and malice. A blacksmith becomes accustomed to handling iron so hot that it would burn the hands of any other man. A similar effect is produced upon the heart by constant or even occasional yielding to any sin, or evil habit, however trivial it may be regarded. Not only is keenness of spiritual perception thus lost, but the way is also paved for the entrance of greater evils.

It is the gracious privilege of those who have yielded themselves entirely unto God to have his Spirit dwell in them continually. But however consecrated we may be, we must not conclude that there is no danger of our grieving the Holy Spirit, of quenching the holy fire that burns within us. So long as we abide in Christ we will not be guilty of voluntary transgression; but our love will soon grow cold unless constantly rekindled by the use of means of grace, unless the work of renewal goes on day by day. The fire in your grate will go out just as surely if not replenished by the addition of fresh fuel as it will by having water poured upon it. Likewise, we must constantly stir up the gift of God within us, else it will languish. Wonderful as may have been our experience at conversion or at some subsequent time, God will soon fade out of our lives, if we do not seek him in prayer, in the study of the Scriptures, in listening to his preached Word, and in performing works of mercy. We can no more grow in grace or continue in the love and favor of God without doing these things than a fire can burn without fuel. He who neglects any one of the means of grace, or omits any known duty, will as certainly lose the sense of God's presence as that the sun shines.

Christians may lead blameless lives, and still grieve God's Spirit by refusing to do some work that he impresses upon them, and qualifies them for. "To him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." We may be consistent, yea, diligent church members, and still lack the fullness of God's blessing by not responding to the leadings of his providence. We should be so in sympathy with God's plans and so in love with his work that the faintest whisper of duty will meet with a prompt and cheerful response. A skillful telegrapher will recognize the call of his own instrument amid the confused clicking of a hundred other instruments. Should not the Christian be equally attentive to the calls and impressions made by God's Spirit? A certain writer has well said: "God first speaks to us in a whisper; but if we reverently hearken, there is a gradual deepening of the voice, till it is as audible in the crowd as in the solitude, and we are continually visited with messages from the Eternal King." Let us daily pray:

"Jesus, confirm my heart's desire,
To work, and speak, and think for thee;
Still let me guard the holy fire,
And still stir up thy gift in me."

It is said that Brooklyn and Baltimore have a larger number of churches in proportion to population than any other cities in the United States.

Mississippi Orphans' Home.

The Methodists of Mississippi have located their orphanage, and Water Valley is the place. I wish all who are interested in this enterprise, and especially all of those who live in the Southern half of the State, could have visited with us this beautiful little city in northern-central Mississippi.

Water Valley is situated among the hills of Yalobusha county, and is about ninety miles south of the Tennessee line on the Illinois Central railroad. The town has about 5,000 inhabitants, two-thirds of whom are white. There are two Southern Methodist Churches in the town, with an aggregate membership of over four hundred. The railroad company has extensive machine shops located here, which, together with cotton mills, the ice and canning factories, and other enterprises, gives employment to a large number of workmen. There are two banks and a number of fine brick stores, and in the vicinity are large truck farming interests. Among the attractions of the place are waterworks, a thorough sewage system and an efficient electric light plant, all owned by the city and furnishing their advantages to the citizens at a minimum cost. To one who lives in a city, where cows, horses, hogs and goats are allowed to roam at will upon the streets, it was refreshing to see the nicely mowed yards extending to the sidewalks, the view unobstructed by an enclosing fence, the delightful effect of a well-enforced stock law.

I wish, too, that they could have walked with us over the fifty acres of open, rolling woodland and level walnut bottoms, donated to the Home by the generous and enterprising citizens of Water Valley. The beautiful crest of the hill upon which we are to build the home is surrounded by a grove of oak, hickory, black gum and other forest trees, and is within two hundred yards of the corporate limits of the town, and only a little more than half a mile from the depot and the principal Methodist Church. The health record of the city is fine, the morals of the place are exceptionally good, and the citizens, without respect to denominational preferences, are enthusiastic in their desire to have the Home located among them. The members of the Board of Directors feel that they have made a very fortunate location, and believe the future of the Home will demonstrate the wisdom of their choice.

Committees were appointed to see the land surveyed and deeds given, to look after estimates and plans for the building, to solicit donations of building material and to secure special rates for transportation.

We wish to begin building in the Summer, and before the Conferences meet to report the Home open for the reception of homeless and orphaned children. It will be a happy day when we can direct the homeless to our Methodist Home.

A number of pastors in both Conferences have reported collections taken up on "Orphans' Day," and in every case the result has been gratifying and the testimony given of the readiness of the people to give to this cause.

I hope all of our preachers will take the collection during the Spring or early Summer, and I feel sure that all the people want is an opportunity to show their interest in the Mississippi Orphans' Home.

A Great Philanthropist Dead.

Baron Hirsch, the Austrian nobleman and philanthropist, who died a few days ago at the age of fifty-nine, achieved a phenomenal career in the financial and the charitable world. He inherited a considerable estate from his father, and with this start and his own remarkable financial and organizing ability he amassed a vast fortune, the extent of which can only be guessed at—it reaches into the scores of millions. Most of this he made by his vast operations as a projector and builder of huge railroad enterprises through the midst of central Europe. For the past dozen years he and his wife—who had a private fortune of her own, amounting to perhaps $20,000,000 — have devoted themselves chiefly to the work of charity and philanthropy. His own Hebrew race in many countries has been the special object of his care and of his benevolent plans. To Austria alone he donated a few years ago about $2,500,000 for the establishment of non-sectarian schools; he also built up by his contributions a system of free schools among the poor in several countries of the Orient and in different parts of Europe. Two aims possessed him in his charitable work—first to educate his people, and secondly to found agricultural colonies for them. In the task of colonizing Russian Jews in the Argentine Republic he spent over $8,000,000. His annual outlay for philanthropic purposes is reputed to have reached the sum of $2,000,000. He was a man of polished manners, of high intellectual attainments and abilities, a linguist and a scholar. Such a man's example and influence are not to be confined to his own race; by virtue of his benevolence and public spirit he belongs to the world. His good deeds ought to prompt other men of vast wealth to go and do likewise.—Western Advocate.

The Sunday Law.

In all probability there will be a great effort made at the coming session of the Louisiana Legislature to repeal the Sunday law. In view of this fact, and also of the fact that many, perhaps, nearly all, of the members of that body have been elected without any special reference to the subject, would it not be well for the Christian and law-abiding citizens of the State to express themselves, making an appeal to their respective members of the Legislature to stand by the law? Suppose you call attention to the matter through the ADVOCATE. Give us a form of petition that we may copy and circulate throughout the State for signatures, and have them ready to present to our senators and representatives when they meet at Baton Rouge. Ask the co-operation of all the papers in the State that are in favor of the law. JNO. B. KENT.

Covington La.

[The above is worthy of attention on the part of good citizens everywhere. We think with Bro. Kent that there will be an attempt to repeal the Sunday law during the approaching session of the Legislature. Petitions against such action will be in order. We suggest that the Sunday League of this city get up a form of petition, and devise means for its circulation throughout the State.]

Douglass Mission Meeting.

On April 26 a tent meeting was opened, conducted by Rev. C. H. Ellis, ably assisted by the lay superintendent of the mission, H. N. Harrison, and others.

The services are held daily, beginning at 7:30 P. M., and will be continued through the week. Some ten or twelve have given their names for organizing a class in connection with the Dryades Street M. E. Church, South. All are cordially invited to attend and to aid in the work.

In the Living Present.

The revenue officers in New York are perplexed about a barrel full of so-called holy water, sent by Pope Leo XIII. to a Catholic congregation in Hartford, Conn. Natural mineral water pays no revenue. When artificially prepared it pays ten per cent. of its market value. But what is the value of this "blessed" water? Catholics say it is invaluable; Protestants, that it is valueless. But is it mineral water? We presume it is "aqua pura," not very pure, if taken from the Tiber, and very stale.

Dr. E. W. Hartwell inveighs in Physical Culture against the sporting proclivities of our college youth. Gymnastic exercises, though, should be introduced in all schools. To secure a healthy mind in a healthy body, joint exercise of the two is necessary. But not amusement, but benefit, should be the actuating principle. The sporting proclivities of our educated young men would produce a generation of pleasure seekers.

A coroner in Philadelphia declared the sudden death of a man as a result of "rupture of an embolism of the heart." The intelligent coroner's jury, with the above decision and the facts in the case before them, gave it as their official opinion that said death had been caused "by the breaking of an ambulance in the heart of the city."

Rev. Dr. D. Morgan, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, has been found guilty of plagiarism. On Easter he preached a sermon published in 1878 by Dr. Putnam. The daily press reported the stolen sermon in full. When detected and appropriated, he charged the plagiarist said that the charge was true, and he was sorry that the press had reported him verbatim. In other words, he is sorry that he has been found out. By the by, is not plagiarism theft?

Æsop's fable of the tongue may well be applied to the press. It may prove either a blessing or a curse. It leads the public by the nose. Its domination is almost general. A French proverb says, "Lied like a newspaper." Can we not have Christian dailies? Alas! newspapers are a mirror of society. They furnish what the people want.

Dr. Lyman Abbott charges that ministers cowardly preach what the people ought to believe, not what they believe themselves. We suppose the learned doctor judges other preachers by himself. There may be hypocritical servility in some pulpits, but the majority of preachers—so we have found them out—are honest men.

Institutional churches in our large cities are now all the rage. The opulent occupy the suburbs. Here costly church edifices have been erected. The heart of the cities is occupied by the middle classes and the poor. As a rule, they avoided the remaining churches, formerly visited by the rich. By the introduction of institutional churches the lovers of Zion expect to bring the masses back to the church. Besides the regularly held divine worship, said institutional churches add free library, concerts, baths, commercial and primary school, kindergarten, lodging for the homeless, information bureaus, etc.

NOTES.

Rev. J. A. Randolph, of the North Mississippi Conference, took in the Texas Epworth League Conference at San Antonio.

Vice-President Stevenson will deliver the annual oration before the Alumni Association of the University of Alabama on the sixteenth of June.

At the commencement of Emory College in June, Bishop Galloway will preach the sermon and Bishop Wilson will deliver the commencement address.

Rev. S. J. Davies has taken a special agency for the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE. We bespeak a royal reception for him wheresoever his agency may call him.

Rev. Jno. J. Tigert, D. D., LL.D., editor of the Methodist Review, will deliver the address to the Literary Societies of Centenary College, Tuesday, June 2, at 8 P. M.

Rev. S. N. Barker, president of Martha Washington College, Abingdon, Va., has been recently elected president of Martin College, for young ladies, at Pulaski, Tenn.

A Christian Endeavor Society of 22 members in Illinois raises $300 per year for their own missionary in China. They testify to great spiritual blessings, and no wonder.

Hon. A. J. Murff, a graduate of the class of 1884, will deliver the address to the alumni of Centenary College, Tuesday, June 2, at 11 A. M. The president invites every alumnus to be present.

The editor of the Central Methodist has not yet found out that the call for an editorial convention has been revoked. It is surprising to find a veteran journalist like Dr. Meek so far behind the times.

The "Home for Homeless Men," founded by Rev. T. L. Lallance, is in operation, but is hampered for want of means. Such an institution necessarily requires some money at the outset. Here is a chance for those whom God has prospered in business to honor him with their substance.

The Louisiana State Sunday-school Convention adjourned on Thursday night after a very pleasant and harmonious session of two days. Many of the addresses and essays were of a high order. Besides those living in the city, the following members of the Louisiana Conference were in attendance: R. M. Blocker, H. Armstrong, J. B. Kent, J. F. Foster and J. J. Kelly.

Bro. W. Wimberly, formerly of the Louisiana Conference, afterwards of the Texas Conference, is now a minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. Under date of May 2, he writes us from Brenham, Texas, expressing regrets for the mistakes of the past, claiming a consciousness of acceptance with God, and asking the prayers of all our readers.

The Outlook Company has arranged with Mr. Justin McCarthy, the famous historian, novelist and political leader, to write for publication in The Outlook, a popular Life of the Right Hon. William E. Gladstone. Mr. McCarthy has had an intimate personal and political acquaintance with Mr. Gladstone for many years, and is peculiarly fitted to undertake this work.

A splendid testimony to the value of Young Men's Christian Association work for railroad men was given by ex-Governor Beaver at a Young Men's Christian Association banquet in Boston recently. He quoted Mr. Roberts, the president of the Pennsylvania road, as having said recently that the thousands of dollars which that company puts into buildings and equipment for railroad Young Men's Christian Association work is the best investment it makes, steel rails not excepted.

Commander Booth-Tucker, of the Salvation Army, was arrested in New York City on the night of the twenty-eighth on a charge of walking the streets in disguise. He was on what is called in Salvationist parlance "a slumming expedition," and had on a wig and false whiskers. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,000. The next morning he was released with an admonition to sin no more after this fashion. Hereafter Salvationists will be careful how they wear other people's hair.

Dr. Cuyler, writing on power in the pulpit, says: "The most effective achievements of the pulpit are reached when the preacher has received the fullest baptism of love, and when all thought of self is swallowed up in the glory that surrounds the cross of Calvary. A blood earnest preacher may atone for the lack of great talents or great scholarship, or the graces of elocution, by the momentum of his intense convictions of the truth, and his intense yearning for the salvation of souls. Great preaching has always been heart preaching."

One can not have right ideas of God or commune much with him and be narrow in his views and aims. With a knowledge of the God whose kingdom is universal, and whose providence is over all people and events, one can not limit his life and its purpose to his own place or horizon or State or nation, or to his own family and people and race; but his desire and prayer and labor must be coextensive with the divine plan. He has not yet entered into sympathy with Christ whose sympathies and prayers go not out beyond his own church or denomination. The missionary idea must possess one who is full of the Spirit.—Rev. S. W. Pratt.

Bishop S. M. Merrill, writing of church papers, says: "I often feel amazed at the indifference of pastors on this subject. How anyone can expect to train the young people of his congregation, in these days, so as to make intelligent Methodists of them, and ground them in the faith, and develop in them love and loyalty, and firmly attach them to the institutions of their own church, without the aid of the church paper, is more than I can understand. It may be that it can be done in some instances, but it seems to me that the risk is too great, and the responsibility of attempting it is enough to cause the stoutest heart to tremble."—Zion's Herald.

"Ian Maclaren's" new book, "The Mind of the Master," will be published in the course of the next month or so by Hodder & Stoughton. It gives a popular and fresh exposition of the teaching of Christ, adapted to the requirements of a lay public. This is just the kind of religious literature required in these days; we do not want theological treatises that only raise technical discussions among churchmen of all denominations; we want something that may be understood by the people, and "Ian Maclaren" is the very man to write it. Portions of the book have already appeared in "The Expositor." It will be published simultaneously in England and the States; Messrs. Dodd, Mead & Co. issuing it on our side.—Book News.

What of the Night?

From China, Japan, Mexico, Brazil, there is but one reply from our watchmen: "The morning cometh!" Never in the history of the mission work of our church have the reports from the fields been so encouraging. The song of the toiler in every land is keyed on hope. Every message sent to the church at home is athrill with victory.

From China, Hill writes: "At Shanghai and Nantziang listeners are increasing at our Sunday services. .....Our street chapel preaching is a very important work. Many of the Chinese Christians can trace their conversion to impressions received in some street chapel. Most of us preach six days in the week at one or more of the chapels. They are rented from the natives and were built for shops. Many country people are thus reached who would not hear the gospel elsewhere.....We have one of more organized prayer meetings in each of our stations.....It is beautiful to see the child-like faith so manifest in the prayers of many of the native Christians.....The number of Sunday-schools in Shanghai district is fourteen, with 379 pupils; these are principally from our boarding and day schools.....There are five Epworth Leagues in the district, with a membership of 161. The Leagues at Shanghai have been quite flourishing from the beginning, and much of the ingathering of members and probationers during the past year has been credited to them. .....At the end of the first quarter since Conference the pastor reported 18 applicants for church membership from among the boys of our Anglo-Chinese College. We have two girls' boarding schools in Shanghai district, and 38 day schools, with 894 pupils in all. Of these 84 have professed Christ. 'A few years ago it was difficult to find a Christian among our day school pupils."

Lochr, also writing from Shanghai, says: "Event follows event in rapid succession, showing that the church of Christ is on the gaining and winning side. China is getting ready for the gospel faster than the church is getting ready to give it to her. Now is the time to help China. Now she needs help, light and encouragement. She is wisely turning to the missionaries for the light and help she needs, and they are giving it to her freely and gladly.....Now is the time for strong reinforcements."

Dr. C. K. Marshall, a native preacher named for our own honored and useful Mississippian, writes that his daughter will study medicine, that she may be a medical missionary to her poor countrymen. He says, touching his work in a country district in China: "Since Conference I have received 32 on probation, have now 24 full members and soon more will be received. We opened our new church Jan. 5. We had 700 or 800 people present. The three services were filled to the last."

Of Japan, Mexico and Brazil more next week. WM. H. LAPRADE.

Money Made in a Minute.

I have net made less than $16 any day while selling Centrifugal Ice Cream Freezers. Anyone should make from $5 to $8 a day selling cream and from $7 to $10 selling freezers, as it is such a wonder, there is always a crowd wanting cream. You can freeze cream elegantly in one minute and that astonishes people so they all want to taste it, and then many of them buy freezers as the cream is smooth and perfectly frozen. Every freezer is guaranteed to freeze cream perfectly in one minute. Anyone can sell ice cream and the freezer sells itself. My sister makes from $10 to $15 a day. W. H. Baird & Co., 140 S. Highland Ave., Station A., Pittsburg, Pa., will mail you full particulars free, so you can go to work and make lots of money anywhere, as with one freezer you can make a hundred gallons of cream a day, or if you wish, they will hire you on a salary.

Canton, Miss., Notes.

The Sam Jones Camp Ground Association has now a charter of incorporation. This association owns a very valuable property near Gloster, Miss., where they have held nine annual camp meetings. Having been duly, regularly and constitutionally incorporated, the association will greatly add to the attractions and comforts of the camp ground by enlarged permanent improvements for the camp meeting to begin Aug. 21.

The editor is earnestly invited to participate in the camp meeting in August, and see and know for himself what a desirable location we have for the gathering of the hosts of the Lord.

The W. C. T. U. reorganized, and number a strong band of noble women battling against the accursed liquor dethon.

The saloon patrons and advocates are making most persistent efforts to prevent an election being ordered in Madison county, using liquor money freely, mailing anti-prohibition circulars to every family. The two papers published in Canton advocate most earnestly the open saloon. They positively refuse to publish anything in favor of prohibition.

The whisky power has such a control here, that the court-house and all the churches, except the Methodist, closed against the W. C. T. U. gospel meetings.

We have organized a large Epworth League in Canton, which is working with commendable, increasing and promising energy.

North Mississippi Conference Notes.

The ADVOCATE is to be congratulated on its ability to afford a new dress which improves its appearance very much. We hope this new garb will aid in introducing it into many more homes than it has been visiting.

We were profoundly shocked and saddened at the news of the death of Dr. T. S. West. Little did we think when we met him, two weeks before, in Columbus, and enjoyed his genial fellowship so well, that he would so soon be called from labor to reward. What admonitions are we preachers in Mississippi having this year to be ever ready for the summons!

"The Pastor and League," by Rev. E. H. Rawlings, is a timely and useful book. It meets the felt want of that pastor who, recognizing the utility of the Epworth League, is endeavoring to operate it in his charge, but without encouraging success. It throws light also on the way of that other pastor who sees in the League a useful institution, but can see no place for or practicability of it in his charge. Moreover, the pastor who is having gratifying success with the League in his charge will find this a suggestive and helpful book. May it have the circulation and reading that it deserves! It costs only fifty cents.

Napoleon's Value of Victory.

IT FINDS A STRIKING COUNTERPART IN RECENT WORLD TRIUMPHS.

Napoleon knew well the value of a victory. After Austerlitz the world seemed his. Fame invited, fortune favored, everything stimulated his aspiring ambition. With growing power he gathered the fruits of victory. And so has it ever been. Success succeeds. A notable illustration of this truth is furnished by the great victories won at the World's Fair in '93 and the California Midwinter Fair in '94 by Dr. Price's Cream Baking Powder. Ever increasing sales and popularity have been the result. The people have promptly ratified the official verdicts that declared Dr. Price's, for leavening power, keeping qualities, purity and general excellence the "foremost baking powder in all the world." Quite as quickly as the great Emperor do they know the value of a victory that means world-wide supremacy.

Rev. T. S. West, M. D.

As directed by a Quarterly Conference of Wesson charge of the M. E. Church, South, held here Saturday, April 25, I forward you the following tribute to our brother and former pastor.

Resolved, By the Quarterly Conference of Wesson (Miss.) Methodist Episcopal Church, South, that we have heard with unfeigned sorrow of the death of our dear brother, Rev. T. S. West, M. D., the highly esteemed pastor of this charge during the years 1890, '91 and '92.

Resolved, That in our sorrow we feel assured that it is well with him, through the merits of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, whom our brother loved and served for so many useful years.

Resolved, That to our bereaved sister and her sons we tender heartfelt condolence, praying that our God in comforting power may be with them in their sore bereavement.

Resolved, That the secretary of this Quarterly Conference send a copy of these resolutions to Sister West.

The above resolutions were also adopted by the congregation at the regular morning service Sunday, April 26, and ordered published in our church organs. H. C. MOORE, Third Annual Commencement of Scarritt Bible and Training-School, Kansas City, Mo.

The baccalaureate sermon will be preached by Rev. Chas. M. Bishop at Melrose Church, Sunday, May 17, at 11 A. M. The graduating exercises will be held in Independence Avenue M. E. Church, Monday, May 18, at 8 P. M. Rev. J. W. Lee, D. D., of St. Louis, Mo., so widely known as author and preacher, will deliver the annual address on that occasion. Four accepted missionaries of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the M. E. Church, South, will graduate, and two trained nurses will receive their diplomas. Miss Ida M. Shaffer, of Carrollton, Mo., has received the honor of class essayist. Friends of the school are cordially invited to these exercises.

A Fortune Lost.

Corinth District Preachers' Meeting.

Our Preachers' Meeting of Corinth district was held in this place, April 22 and 23. It was an interesting and profitable occasion. The discussions of the various topics were very practical and were beneficial to all present. Besides, it was a spiritual feast.

This district is in a prosperous condition. A number of accessions and finances in advance of last year (at this time). Bro. Tucker, our presiding elder, is hopeful on all lines of church work, and is moving forward in his work. J. W. TREADWELL.

Day of Fasting and Prayer.

The approaching meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions brings a sense of need and responsibility to those whose duty it is to attend it, and they will go in the trust that many hearts are sending up prayer for them and the important interests they will then consider. The welfare of the dear workers in the field, the needs of these fields urgently voiced from every quarter, an all but empty treasury echoing these many calls, questions and conditions here at home requiring solution and attention—all this will overbear that handful of women unless their sufficiency is given from above.

Bear this in mind in your daily prayers, and on Friday, May 29, let all unite in special supplication, with fasting, that the Holy Spirit will guide and control in all that is said or done, to the glory of God, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

With loving greeting,

"A Splendid Premium."

I have received the machine, and am highly pleased with it. I don't see how you can afford to give such a splendid premium for so small a sum. As long as this offer is open, there is no excuse for preachers' wives sponging on the sisters. They should go to work at once, and put the ADVOCATE in twenty homes, and secure the machine.

Yours respectfully,

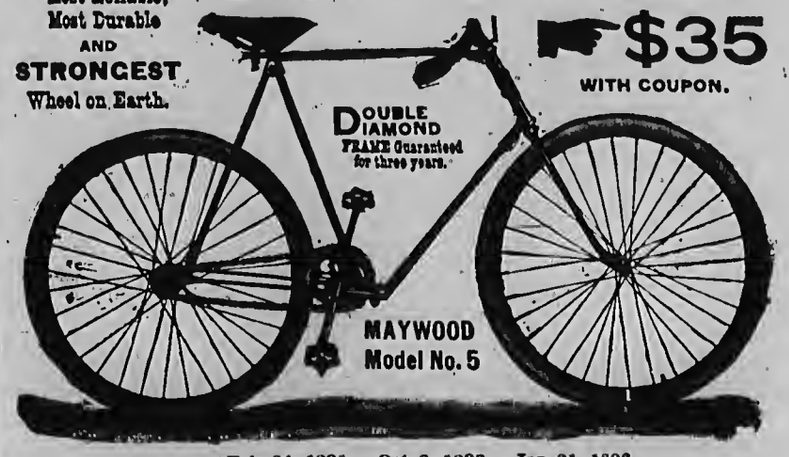
The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE

$35 WITH COUPON.

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.



PATENTS { Feb. 24, 1891 May 17, 1891 Oct. 3, 1893 Jan. 1, 1895 Jan. 21, 1896 Others Pending.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅞-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism, —to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent. of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from tough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality, hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, P. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap or rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs:—In regard to "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

C. B. SEELY, N. W. University.

PRICES AND TERMS.

$40.00 is our Special Wholesale Price. Never before sold for less. To quickly introduce the "Maywood" Bicycle, we have decided to make a special coupon offer, giving every reader of this paper a chance to get a strictly first-class wheel at the lowest price ever offered. On receipt of $35.00 and coupon we will ship anywhere, to anyone, the above described Bicycle, securely packed and crated and guarantee safe delivery. Money refunded if not as represented after arrival and examination. We will ship C. O. D. with privilege of examination, for $36.00 and coupon, provided $5.00 is sent with the order as a guarantee of good faith. We send a written binding warranty with each Bicycle. This is a chance of a lifetime and you cannot afford to let the opportunity pass.

HOME CIRCLE.

BE TRUE.

To be true to the best
That is in us, nor falter nor fail in the test,
Let whatever may come, this is measurement just
Of the sum of our life; to keep safely in trust
All the good that we have, and to answer at length
For our being and doing, the weakness or strength
Of our hope and our help in the varying strife:—
There is nothing besides in this problem of life.

—From "Geraldine."

Our Homes.

There exists a very beautiful ideal of what home should be, but somehow men and women have fallen into the habit of showing the world their best side; of exerting themselves to be amiable and agreeable to people who care the least for them; while to those to whom their interest, honor and happiness are of vital concern, they display all of their most unholy and disagreeable traits.

Some men use their homes as escape-valves for all the ill humor generated by friction with the world. It will not do to storm and fume at that, but at home—ah, there one has a right to do as he has a mind to! It is his home, and he is bound to have his own way there, which he undoubtedly could—only there happens to be one or more others there intent upon the same thing. And, by the way, this "having one's own way" is a very difficult thing in a world like this, where every life is so linked with every other life.

There are women, too, set down in the calendar of the world as patterns of amiability, whose home temper is a sad commentary upon the wisdom of the world's judgment! There are softly modulated and lady-like voices, the charm of the social circle, which in the privacy of their houses break out in irritating taunts and angry retorts. There are "very nice women" who destroy all the sweetness and blessedness of their household by loud and continual scolding, frettings and fault findings. There are brothers who are chivalrous and devoted to other people's sisters, but at home tease and trouble their own. There are charming young ladies, fancied by some infatuated young man to be angels, who are stubborn, self-willed and indolent at home, where they should be most agreeable. The true meaning of home is not a place to go only when you feel hungry and cross; where you can wear your worst coat and your worst temper.

The home is undervalued, and its sweetness and sanctity highly desecrated; it should correspond with the beautiful ideal one, which we all venerate, where all baser passions are subdued and controlled by sweet affection, tenderness and patience. It is where the wife prefers to stay above all other places; a place that is never lonely to her, for the innumberable blessings that hover around it; where the shadow of solitude is lighted by the halo of quiet love. When the hearth is always bright, and the rooms tidy and cheerful, and where the wife spends her "afternoons," and the husband his "evenings." These are the shrines to which the absent and weary will turn with longing for rest and peace.—Selected.

The Immanence of Jesus.

We never grasp Christian truth in its wholeness until we recognize a historic and an immanent Christ—a Christ who was born in Bethlehem and suffered under Pontius Pilate, and a Christ who still lives and reigns among men. In the economy of grace both have place and importance; we may not advocate the one to the exclusion of the other.

The Christian fathers were not wrong in defending the truth about the historic Christ in his birth, life, teachings, marvelous works, sufferings, death and glorious resurrection. These are fundamental facts. On this evidence the historic gospel rests. They show the entrance of the divine into the human. We are not wrong in celebrating the advent of the Divine Man, whose human birth marks a new stage in the progress of the race, a divine force in the evolution of human society. But glorious as are these historic truths of the humanity, they make but one hemisphere of God's gracious revelation to man. The divine is set over against the human. You may well believe Jesus came, and that he will come again in the last day; but you have the whole truth only when you believe in an immanent Christ who remains a pervading Spirit and Force among men.

Great as is the historic Christ who was born and died and rose again, greater is the glorified Christ who remains in society and in the individual soul to illuminate, and to convict of sin, righteousness and judgment to come. Christ went away, but he is also here. Though unseen, his power is everywhere felt, like that of gravity or electricity. He rose to reign in the heavenly places, but he rules not less in the souls of men on earth. The Comforter is the immanent Christ. He came to abide and to be in us. He is ever with the two or three as with the great assembly. He is here to comfort, to purify and edify. Greater is the immanent than the historic Christ. It was needful that he should go away from the visible that his power might be realized in the invisible; that he should disappear from the flesh that he might live and quicken all things by the Spirit.

The purpose of the Lord's coming in the flesh can be fully realized only by his coming into the soul. You may think much of his coming into Judea, without being saved; but his coming into the soul is attended with saving efficacy. To us Christ on the cross is less important than Christ coming into our life and experience. We have, as it were, got past the historic Christ, whose great record is stored up in the archives of history and stands proof against all doubters and revilers; but for us who live in the later days God has provided some better thing in the abiding presence of Jesus in human society. Jesus not only came, and will again come; he is here to remain. "Lo! I am with you all the days, even unto the consummation of the age.' —Zion's Herald.

Too Much Society.

To be isolated from society, to live almost entirely in one's own company, to interest one's self not at all in the affairs of others, is certainly a calamity. The baneful effects of such a life are not difficult to discover. They make people censorious; they keep them brooding over their own troubles and magnifying them; they cause them to minify the troubles and sorrows of others, of which because of their unfamiliar intercourse they are ignorant, and they develop oftentimes the bitter, sarcastic and unsympathetic spirit, which, but for this isolation, would have remained dormant. Such a life induces pride, self-complacence and a certain kind of self-love. A life of isolation from society is altogether undesirable.

But to live continually in society, to have no quiet hours or days, to be forever in the public, to be equally familiar with all those one meets, is also undesirable. To live thus tends to make life superficial, to debar one from the sweet pleasures of intimate friendships with a few choice spirits, and to develop a hollowness of heart and character. Such hollowness and lack of heart and sincerity are almost inevitable to those who live for and in society continually. To meet too many people induces the use of set phrases, the forced and studied smile, a superficial manner, and a very apparent lack of genuineness. Much better it is to follow Browning's advice,

"Best be yourself, imperial, plain, and true."

Every year as the season advances toward Spring we hear frequent exclamations of weariness and longings to escape from society from those who have been living in the whirl of it for several months. Such persons get to that point in which a quiet, reposeful life at home seems impossible. They speak truly when they say, "We have to go away, for there is no rest for us here." So hundreds leave the comforts and luxuries of their pleasant homes and journey hither and thither, to the south, to the west, to the north, or across the water, confessedly not to visit new scenes and enjoy new countries, but to escape from society.

When they are happily beyond the search and the demands of friends they rejoice with exceeding joy. They can then sympathize with Kinglake, the author of "Eothen," who, when he was enjoying a free, unfettered life in oriental lands, wrote humorously to a friend in London, "It is so sweet to find myself free from the trifle civilization of Europe."—Standard.

Grumbling at the Weather.

"It will be the weather which suits me, to-morrow," said, in effect, that contented individual, the Shepherd of Salisbury Plain, "because it will be the weather the Lord sends" This cheerful Christian philosophy we have had occasion to exercise during the inclement and uncertain weather which has prevailed for weeks, even April frowning at us behind stormy snow clouds and chilling us to the marrow, while March and February were for the most part bitter and unkind.

But what good does it do to grumble at the weather? One might as well be patient and serene, if for no other reason than that the weather is quite beyond one's sphere of personal control. It is ordained for us by the power which ordains the stars in their courses, and no amount of fidgetting and complaining on our part will change the state of affairs. All that grumbling does, be it hot or be it cold, is to make ourselves and others uncomfortable. The petulant mood also lowers our mental tone and makes us less able than we otherwise would be to go about our daily duties.

Grumbling at the weather sets a bad example to children and others who regard us as in a way patterns of behavior. It is childish conduct and unworthy "grown-ups," and yet even while I say this, I feel that I am libeling childhood by my use of the adjective. Children are natural optimists, who take the weather as God sends it, just as did the Shepherd, and we teach them to grumble by our own fretfulness.—M. E. S.

A Good Bargain.

At a temperance meeting where several related their experience, a humorous Irishman who spoke was acknowledged to be the chief speaker. He had on a pair of fine new boots. Said he:

"A week after I signed the pledge I met an old friend and he says, 'Them's a fine pair of boots you have on.' 'They are,' says I, 'and by the same token 'twas the saloon-keeper who gave them to me.'

" 'That was generous of him,' says he.

" 'It was,' says I, 'but I made a bargain with him. He was to keep his drink and I was to keep my money. My money bought me those fine boots. I got the best of the bargain, and I'm going to stick to it.' "

Fidelity in trifles and an earnest seeking to please God in little matters is a test of real devotion and love. Let your aim be to please our dear Lord perfectly in little things, and to attain a spirit of child like simplicity and dependence. — Jean Nicolaus Grou.

Some people take a spell of sulks, become gloomy, morose and long-faced, and seem to think they have a case of religion, but sulks and salvation neither look alike, taste alike nor sound alike. —Christian Soldier.

Late Suppers.

The old tradition that to eat anything just before going to bed was sure to produce indigestion and render sleep impossible is now happily exploded. It is not good, as a matter of fact, to go to bed with the stomach so loaded that the undigested food will render one restless, but something of a light, palatable nature in the stomach is one of the best aids to quietude and rest. The process of digestion goes on in sleep with as much regularity as when one is taking violent exercise to aid it, and so something in the stomach is a very desirable condition for the night's rest. Some physicians have declared, indeed, that a good deal of the prevalent insomnia is the result of an unconscious craving of the stomach for food in persons who have been unduly frightened by the opinion that they must not eat before going to bed, or who have, like many nervous women, been keeping themselves in a state of semi-starvation. Nothing is more agreeable on retiring for the night than to take a bowl of hot broth, like oatmeal gruel or clam soup. It is a positive aid to nervous people, and induces peaceful slumbers. This is especially the case of cold Winter nights, when the stomach craves warmth as much as any other part of the body. Even a glass of hot milk is grateful to the palate on such occasions, but a light, well cooked gruel is better, and in our climate, during the cold months of Winter, should be the retiring food of every woman who feels, as many do, the need of food at night.—Canada Lancet.

A Sad Case.

A very sad case was developed in one of our police courts recently, when a woman was brought before the judge on a charge of drunkenness. About a year ago she commenced drinking, and by degrees sold every vestige of furniture and carpet in the house, to pay for the liquor she craved. When arrested, she was lying on a bare floor, in an almost nude state, so that the policeman had to wrap her in a blanket, before placing her in the patrol wagon. When brought into court she made a pitiful plea, as she clung to the railing in front of the magistrate's desk. She claimed that her taste for drink was acquired in her days of prosperity, through holding in her mouth the paper covers of preserve jars, which she had soaked in whisky or brandy, to prevent the fruit from molding. Her husband was a well-known mill worker, and had refused to give his wife money, as she spent it all for liquor. The family were once prominent and well-to do, in the locality where they live.

If arguments are needed against using liquors of any kind in cookery, here is a painful example of the results in one case. A thrifty home ruined, a young life blighted, and possibly a soul lost forever.—Temperance Tribune.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

DELICIOUS RAISED BUNS.—Use one quart of milk; boil one pint of it. Add to the whole quart a piece of butter the size of an egg, two-thirds of a cup of sugar and two eggs beaten together, one-half a cup of black currants, and one-half a cup of yeast. Let the mixture rise over night.

DELICATE CREAM BISCUIT.—Add to two quarts of flour one teaspoonful of butter or lard, one large teaspoonful of salt and two tablespoonfuls of yeast. Let it rise over night, and in the morning knead lightly and bake in a quick oven.

BREAD STICKS — These are made from raised bread dough, to which has been added the thoroughly-beaten white of egg. The proportion is the white of one egg to a pint of the dough. The addition of the egg renders the sticks crisp. They are baked in pans made purposely for them—pans with small troughs in which the dough is placed.

No man is so happy as a real Christian; none so rational, so virtuous, so amiable. How little vanity does he feel, though he believes himself united to God! How far is he from abjectedness when he ranks himself with the worms of the earth. —Pascal.

RAYNE—On Friday, March 20, at 6 A. M., at her home in New Orleans, Mrs. GEORGIANA JONES RAYNE completed her earthly pilgrimage. Mrs. Rayne was a native of Alabama, but was for many years a resident of New Orleans. Her father, the late Richard Jones, was a prominent and useful member of the M. E. Church, South; a man of sincere piety, superior abilities and marked usefulness as a local preacher. His memory is still cherished by the older members of our church in New Orleans.

When quite young Mrs. Rayne's own mother died. She was a pious and godly woman. About two years after Mr. Jones married a second time. Under the influence of her devoted and consecrated step-mother she grew to womanhood. The influences of her childhood and early womanhood were profoundly religious. As Mr. Jones most beautifully expressed it, she was "the child of two mothers' prayers." In 1867 Mrs. Jones died in the triumphs of Christian faith, leaving to her beloved and affectionate step-daughter the care of several brothers and sisters. To this charge she was faithful. By her constant care and fidelity she impressed her worth upon all who knew her.

In 1872 Mrs. Rayne was married to Mr. B. O. L. Rayne, of New Orleans, who still lives. For some months past Mrs. Rayne had been in poor health, but about a week previous to her death she suffered a stroke of paralysis, which proved to be fatal. Happily for all, during a week she retained consciousness. It was my privilege to be often with her during these days. Her communion with Christ was full of comfort. Free from fear, trusting and submissive to her heavenly Father's will, she waited for his decision. She gave her messages to the loved ones about her, and looked to the fringe of her soul. After some hours of unconsciousness she quietly breathed her last without a struggle. There remain to mourn her loss husband, four children, sister and brother, and a large circle of sorrowing friends.

For many years Mrs. Rayne was a member of the Methodist Church. She was a sincere and devoted follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. Through many sorrows and trials she maintained her faithful allegiance to her Lord. Her ideal of Christian character was very high, while her estimate of her own religious attainments was humble indeed. She seemed to be unconscious of the very virtues and graces in which she excelled. Her Christian courtesy and perennial kindliness found expression in many attentions to the sorrowing and needy. Her charity and benevolence were remarkable. Such a life as hers was the product of abiding convictions and prayerful relations to God. There was no exaggeration in profession or obtrusiveness in practice. My long acquaintance as friend, and over three years relation as pastor, impressed me with the abiding power of her life as one of those who do the will of God.

In every relation of life as daughter, wife, sister, mother, and sympathetic friend, she sustained an undeviating fidelity. Cherished memories of her useful life will be a comfort and inspiration to those who abide here. For her we feel sure that she is a partaker of the blessedness of those who die in the Lord; for those who yet remain in the flesh there is the anticipation of the reunion of the people of God in the light and glory of the divine presence. FRANKLIN N. PARKER.

SMOKEY—FRAN P. SMOKEY was born at Waterproof, La., May 15, 1862, and died at his home in Natchez, Miss., March 20, 1896. Almost his entire life was spent in Natchez, having been brought here by his parents when a child of thirteen months. He was married to Miss Augustine Beyrise, of Plaquemine, La., Feb. 25, 1884. Two children were given them to bless their home, but one was translated to heaven some three years ago. Mr. Smokey was an enterprising business man, energetic and persevering, and he built up a large business, and enjoyed a good degree of success in its management. With a quick mind and a strong will, he was a man of decided force; but he had a kind heart and a generous nature, and was helpful to those about him who needed assistance. He was a good son, an affectionate husband, a kind father, a faithful brother, and a true friend. These relations of life he filled well. He professed religion and joined the church when a boy under the ministry of Rev. W. L. C. Hunnicutt. For months past he seemed impressed that his time was short, and made sundry arrangements that seemed strange then, but are understood now. During his last illness, which lasted ten days, he frequently said that he would not get well. He provided carefully and tenderly for his wife and son, and gave specific directions concerning his funeral. He said he was not afraid, and when the time of his departure came he fell on sleep without a struggle. This occurred at 11 o'clock on Sunday morning. The following Tuesday afternoon he was buried from the Jefferson Street Methodist Church, the obsequies being attended by a large concourse of sympathizing friends. W. B. LEWIS.

HALL—J. P. HALL died March 26, 1896, and was buried Masonically at Long Town, Miss., where he had spent most of his life. He was about fifty-one years old.

Since he came into the church about eight years ago, he has been an exceedingly diligent worker. Part of the time he has superintended two Sunday-schools at the same time, and also worked as steward, or wherever the church needed him. He was thoroughly alive to every interest of the church. A more helpful and faithful friend a pastor never had. He always looked on the bright side of great undertakings, and saw in church work a privilege rather than a hardship.

He was strongly opposed to the drinking of spirits, even as a medicine, or the use of tobacco in any form. He gave to every good cause, and he plead specially for the heathen. His lowest standard of giving was a tenth of his income. As to doctrine, he was no bigot, but broad and liberal. While he had strong convictions, and stood by what he believed, he was tolerant toward those who differed with him. The one thing he insisted on was a pure heart and life. He professed sanctification about four years ago, and was an ardent believer in the second blessing. He lived all he professed. Though his pastor or others preached against the second-blessing theory of sanctification, he was the same helping, faithful, confiding brother. The influence of his holy life will be a savor of good throughout these borders for years to come.

W. M. YOUNG.

BIRCH—Mrs. C. A. E. BIRCH (nee Fletcher) was born Sept. 11, 1833, and died Sept. 14, 1895.

Sister Birch was first married to Mr. John W. Right, Jan. 10, 1852, who fell a victim of the late war between the States at Vicksburg, Miss. In August of the same year was born to them a son, who died in childhood.

She was married to Mr. W. R. R. Birch, Dec 17, 1867. To this union were born four children—three daughters and one son—all of whom are living.

Sister Birch joined the Methodist Church in October, 1862, under the ministry of Rev. W. E. Ballard, of sacred memory; was happily converted to God, and ever after lived a consecrated Christian life.

She was a very devoted wife, a kind and indulgent mother, a good friend and neighbor, loved and respected by all who knew her. She bore her afflictions with Christian fortitude, and died in full assurance of a glorious immortality.

Weep not, kind husband, loving children, and devoted friends, as those without hope. Live and work for God, and ere long there will be a happy meeting of husband and wife, children, mother and friends, on the sunny banks of sure deliverance, where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest, and where God has promised to wipe all our tears away. H. C. NEWSOM.

STUART—CHARLEY L. STUART was born Nov. 20, 1834, and died at Olive Branch, Miss., Feb. 5, 1896, after an illness of about three weeks.

He was happily married to Mary A. Odom, Nov. 13, 1860, the bonds of which union were strengthened with the years. He was a true and devoted husband, an upright and enterprising citizen, and an active Christian. He was unqualifiedly a Methodist; loved the doctrines, usages, and ministry of the church; was formally connected with the church during the pastorate of Bro. M. W. Monnell on this work, and was a faithful steward for circuit and district.

He was a man of faith, and believed that one's faith must be shown by his works; would say to a halting steward, "Brother, you lack faith in God." So he was servant of all through love, working for his church and with his pastor. Being faithful, he was ready when the Master came, and entered into the joys of his Lord. Because he is no more among us, a host of friends are sad, the Official Board is sorrowful, and the weeping wife is almost heart-broken. O God! pour in the oil of consolation into all these hearts!

TALLEY Resolutions of respect in memory of Bro. J. L. TALLEY:

Whereas, It has seemed best to our all-wise Creator to remove from our midst our brother, who departed this life at his home in Bossier parish, Nov. 5, 1895; And, whereas, He was the prime mover, and it being due to his efforts that this convention was brought into existence; And, whereas, He was for two years the honored and beloved president of this body; therefore, be it

Resolved, By this convention assembled, that we bow with humble submission to this will of Him who rules all things in accordance to wisdom and mercy.

Resolved, That we cherish the memory of our brother, and that we strive to emulate the good examples he gave us while he was among us, and that we endeavor to forget his faults, if any he had.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies and condolence to his bereaved family in their irreperable loss.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be tendered the family of the deceased brother, and that a copy be spread upon the record book of this convention, and that a copy be sent to the Baptist Chronicle and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

All of which is submitted.

HAND—One more name has been transferred from the roll of our Sabbath-school to the roll in heaven. Monday, April 6, 1896, God called home the spirit of SADIE HAND.

When we assemble on Sunday mornings we shall miss her bright presence. Always in time, and with her lesson well prepared, she will be sadly missed by her teacher and classmates. While our hearts are sad at parting, we can not mourn for her.

To her bereaved family we tender our deep sympathy and our prayers. As one by one the links of the family chain are severed here, may they be eternally riveted in heaven.

Offered in loving remembrance by her

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to May, 97. (A little later it will be June, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2.45.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

The U. S. Senate has accepted the Pere Marquette statue.

The General Conference of the M. E. Church is now in session at Cleveland, O.

General Fitzhugh Lee has duly qualified as consul general at Havana, and will proceed to his post of duty this week.

A fire at Cripple Creek, Colo., last week rendered thousands of people homeless. Property to the amount of $1,500,000 was destroyed.

The servant girls of Superior, Wis., are on a strike. They have a union 2,000 strong, and demand that wages shall be $15 a month all around.

Senator Pugh says if President Cleveland vetoes the Rivers and Harbors bill, it will be passed nevertheless by the necessary two-thirds vote.

The women of St. Joseph, Mich., captured the mayor the other day, and dragging him into a house, held him a prisoner for two hours until he promised to co-operate with them in certain reforms.

It is said that the ceremonies at the unveiling of Gen. Hancock's monument in Washington, on May 12, may have to be curtailed. The whole amount—$50,000 was used up in the monument, and nothing left for the expenses.

On Saturday the Naval Appropriation bill finally passed the Senate. The Upper House reduced the number of battleships authorized by the bill as it came from the House of Representatives from four to two, and the number of torpedoes was reduced from fifteen to thirteen.

FOREIGN.

A large list of butcheries have been committed in a small district near the city of Havana, Cuba, by the Spanish troops. Many victims were shot without any form of trial.

The latest news from Matabeleland is very encouraging. The Dutch and English there are fighting side by side, and the former are taking a leading part, owing to their knowledge of the native methods of warfare.

While the Shah of Persia was entering the inner court of the Shrine of Shah Abdul Azim, near Teheran, on May 1, he was shot and killed. The assassin was a member of a secret society, many of whose members had been put to death.

The guarantee protocal lately decided between Chili and the Argentine Republic has been signed. In addition, the treaty between Chili and Bolivia was ratified, the state of armed truce ceases, definite peace is settled, and by the arrangement all the former Bolivian coast becomes Chilian.

Field Marshal Lord Wolseley, commander-in chief of the British army, was a guest the other night at a dinner giving by the London Press Club. Lord Wolseley made a speech, in which he said he did not believe in the happiness of a nation that had no history. He did not hesitate to say he did not believe in universal peace.

It would be difficult to over-estimate the sensation which has been caused in England by the publication of the substance of the telegrams and documents which have come into the possession of the authorities of the South African republic. They establish beyond a possibility of a doubt that Hon. Cecil Rhodes, the ex premier of Cape Colony; Mr. Alfred Belt, a director in the British South Africa Company; and Mr. Rutherford Harris, secretary of the British South Africa Company, were privy to the movement against Johannesburg; and that the leaders of the movement counted upon their help and countenance to insure its success.

Impoverished Blood causes that tired feeling. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies, enriches and vitalizes the blood, giving new life and increased vigor and vitality.

"When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder," is a great League song. You can get it and 70 others equally as good, from different points of view, for 10 cents, in the new song book. If ordered within 30 days, even less: 50 copies for $3. Address, Lyman F. Jackson, Alexandria, La.

The experiment station attached to the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College at Starkville has done a great work in encouraging the growth of hay in that State. When it began its work in the premises the average yield in the State was but .83 of a ton per acre, whereas, last year, it was 1.95 tons, being 144 per cent. above the average yield of the northern and central States of the Mississippi Valley.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhœa. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

One of the health-giving elements of HIRES Rootbeer is sarsaparilla. It contains more sarsaparilla than many of the preparations called by that name. HIRES—the best by any test.

"The Open Gate" is beautiful, "Christ is All" equally so, and well-known. Both, and 70 other songs, words and music, manilla cover, for 10 cents in the new song book. Anyone of two dozen worth that amount. But if you order within 30 days, you can get 50 copies for $3, or 100 for $5. For Sunday-schools, Epworth Leagues and revivals. Lyman F. ONE GIVES RELIEF.

NO MATTER WHAT'S THE MATTER,

ONE OF THESE WILL DO YOU GOOD.

Rev. Frederic R. Marvin, long time pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Great Barrington, Mass., and at one time a practicing physician, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, says of Ripans Tabules: "The formula has long been in favor with medical men, and the method of preparation in the present form is modern and a great convenience. I always keep a vial of the Tabules upon my dressing table, and use them with confidence whenever occasion arises. For a disturbed condition of the digestive organs I know of nothing so good, and for an 'all-round' family remedy I do not believe there is anything better to be had."

TO MINISTERS

AND

Students for the Ministry

Under the will of the late L. C. Tiingerich, of Philadelphia, a large fund was provided for the free distribution to ministers of the writings of Emanuel Swedenborg, entitled "The True Christian Religion" and "The Apocalypse Revealed." To these, other donors have added "Heaven and its Wonders, and Hell," and "Life of Emanuel Swedenborg." All of these are handsome volumes, substantially bound in cloth. They are now offered FREE OF COST, except for postage, to the Clergy of America and Theological Students who are studying for the ministry.

It is because the donors of these books believe that there will be found in them a clear solution of all the difficult points of doctrine that disturb, perplex, and separate Christians from each other, keeping so many honest and sincere people out of the churches, and strengthening infidel sentiments, that they are so desirous of placing them in the hands of clergymen, whose office it is to teach spiritual truths and lead souls heavenward.

Arrangements have been made for the distribution of these volumes through the large and well-known publishing house of

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

Its Disintegrating or Solvent Power in Calculi.

Dr. W. H. Drummond, Prof. Medical Jurisprudence, Bishop University, Montreal, Canada: "In several cases of Urinary Calculi, vesical irritation, etc., recently under my care, I have administered Buffalo Lithia Water with wonderful success—and in one particular instance, when the patient was suffering most acute pain and distress, with forked urinary stream, and all the symptoms of a large Calculus, entire relief was experienced in eight days; the disintegrated portions of stone passing away without any difficulty. In this class of cases the Buffalo Lithia Water certainly has a remarkable effect in breaking up into debris the various masses of stone. It seems to me that a freer use of this marvelous water would obviate many a case of Lithotomy and Lithotrity."

Dr. J. T. LeBlanchard, Professor Montreal Clinic, S. M., S. N., V. U.: "I have used Buffalo Lithia Water in the most obstinate cases of Chronic Inflammation of the Bladder, in Stone of the Bladder, in Uric Acid Gravel, with the most efficacious results."

This water is for sale by druggists generally, or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles, $5.00, f. o. b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent free to any address.

Springs open for guests from June 15th to October 1st.

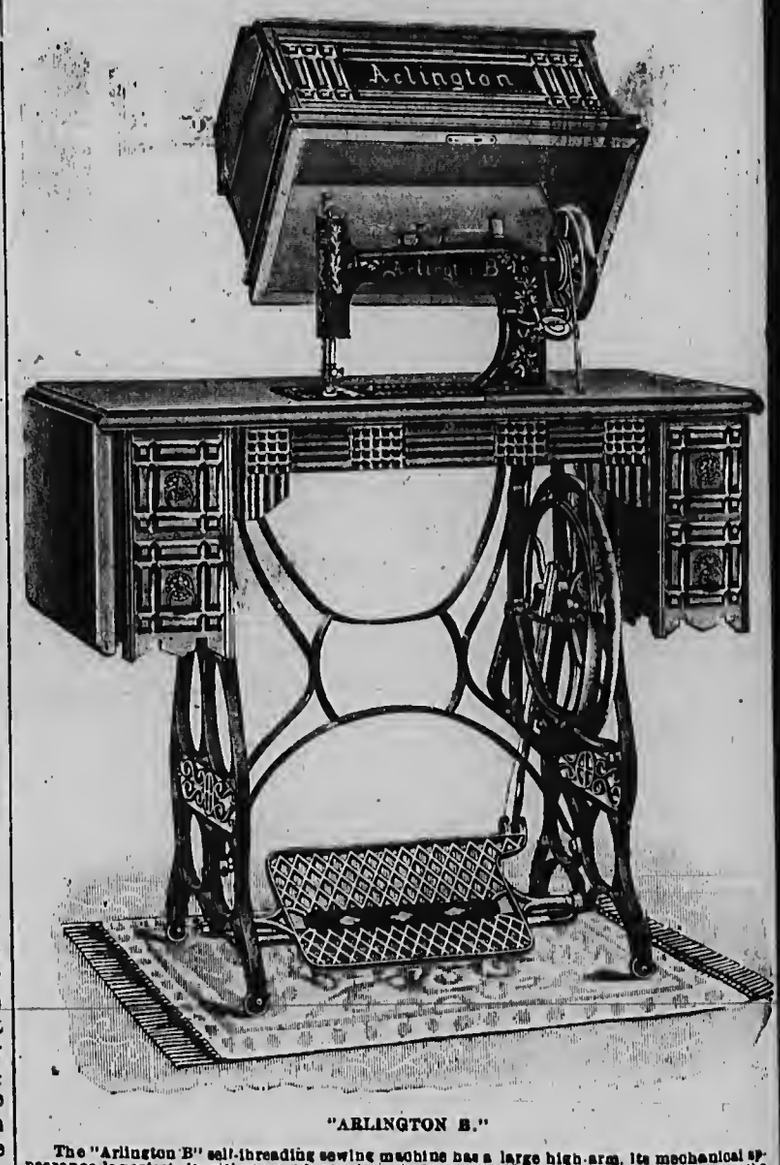
Our Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



"ARLINGTON B."

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take up, convenient foot-rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-oraider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned, and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearings polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—THE "ARLINGTON B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great strength; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $20.50, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to July, '97, and send us $18.50 additional, and we will send you the machine.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40.

YOU NEVER CAN TELL

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

You never can tell, when you send a word—
Like an arrow shot from a bow
By an archer blind—be it cruel or kind,
Just where it will chance to go.
It may pierce the breast of your dearest friend,
Tipped with its poison or balm;
To a stranger's heart in life's great mart,
It may carry its pain or its calm.

You never can tell, when you do an act,
Just what the result will be;
But with every deed you are sowing a seed,
Though its harvest you may not see.
Each kindly act is an acorn dropped
In God's productive soil;
Though you may not know, yet the tree shall grow
And shelter the brows that toil.

You never can tell what your thoughts will do
In bringing you hate or love;
For thoughts are things, and their airy wings
Are swifter than carrier-dove;
They follow the law of the universe—
Each thing must create its kind;
And they speed o'er the track to bring you back
Whatever went from your mind

The Vows We Take.

On entering the Methodist Church candidates take some very solemn vows in the presence of God and the whole congregation. These vows are of the nature of a covenant, an agreement, an obligation, an oath. We pledge ourselves to do certain things, to believe certain things—to perform our part of Christian and church obligation. All who keep these vows in whole, or in a good part, make efficient, useful and happy members of the family of God. Those who forget them, or ignore them, or break them, are neither true to God nor the church. Their lives are a reproach to religion and to the church. After assuming these vows, far too many claim the right to break them, and consider themselves aggrieved and greatly wronged if called to an account for it. Instead of living up to the rules of the church and to the vows voluntarily assumed, they want the church to come down to them, and conform itself to their way of living. All such persons are not in the kingdom of God, and they are nowhere near to it. They are in "the gall of bitterness and in the bounds of iniquity." They need to repent of sin, to come to God for forgiveness and to seek for regeneration—a new heart, that they may live new lives. This is the truth of the matter in plain English. Let us study these vows a little:

"Dost thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of the world, with all covetous desires of the same, and the carnal desires of the flesh, so that thou wilt not follow or be led by them?" Answer—"I renounce them all."

It might be well enough to pause on this a good long while in order to take it in. The fact is, it might be profitably studied word by word and phrase by phrase. It is not a mere form, a ceremony, but a solemn renunciation of the devil, his works, the pomp and glory of the world, and the carnal desires of the flesh. It is a solemn promise not to follow these things and not to be led by them. In a word, it is an entire cutting loose from the devil, the world and the flesh. That word "renounce" means a great deal. If one truly does this he does what he promises and vows he will do—he would be accounted a pretty perfect Christian from the first day. This, however, is only the negative, or renunciation, side of the Christian life. It is all about what we will not do—what we renounce. In a large majority of cases it would, if faithfully kept, result in a complete and radical change of life. If I renounce the devil, we part company. I am no longer his servant. He is no longer my master. I leave his service, go out of his service, leave his kingdom and no longer do his bidding. I renounce my allegiance to him. I have a blood-bought right to do this. No power in heaven, earth or hell can bind me to serve the devil if I do not choose to serve him. I renounce him.

More, I renounce all his works, sin in all its many forms. If profane or lewd, I quit it. If a drunkard or a drinker, I stop. If I play cards or dance, I quit here and now. If I lie or steal, I give them up. If too hasty and hot of temper and tongue, I quit that too. I'll show that I have renounced the devil by doing none of his works. This is the only way in which I can possibly show that I have renounced him, finally and forever. I mean exactly what I say: "I renounce him and all his works."

If I run after the fashions and the fads of the world; if I am proud, haughty and vain; if I read those books and sing those songs that do not tend to the knowledge and love of God; if I attend theaters, shows, horse races and card parties; in a word, if I run with those who serve the devil, I am either following or being led by the devil, his works, or by the carnal desires of the flesh. If I do any of these things, I am not keeping my vow—am not doing what I so solemnly promised to do. If I do any of these things and the world judges me to be a sinner and servant of the devil, it judges me correctly, for I have lived unto God and in the presence of the whole congregation. I have neither renounced the devil nor his works. I am living in sin and serving the devil just as I did before I made this vow and pledge.

This is a solemn and a very serious matter. It becomes all of us—all who have joined the church—to pause and think of these things carefully and prayerfully. GILDEROY.

Correspondence.

Some Words from Bro. Nance.

[We are permitted to give to our readers the following extracts from a letter to a friend in Shreveport.]

We had a lazy six-days' run from San Francisco to Honolulu, that paradise of the Pacific where it never gets cold nor hot, where cocoanut-palms and bananas flourish, and all manner of gorgeous foliage, plants, and flowers. It was a June day, that fourth of February we spent on the island, hospitably entertained by Rev. Frank Damon, of the Chinese Presbyterian Mission.

Religious work flourishes at Honolulu among the Chinese, Japanese, and Portuguese, who make up, perhaps, more than three-fourths of the population.

We were nearly two weeks going from Hawaii to Japan. I was very thankful to escape seasickness entirely on the Pacific, on the beautiful Inland Sea of Japan, and on the Yellow Sea coming on to Shanghai. Reaching Yokohama in the evening, Feb. 17, after some hours steaming in sight of low-lying cliffs, with the beautiful cone of Fujiyama dimly outlined above the clouds in the distance, we cast anchor and waited for morning to go ashore. Here I bade good-bye to the good steamer "Coptic" and the friends of the voyage, and, after two days of sight-seeing at Tokio, Kamakura and Yokohama, took a Japanese vessel for Kobe. I spent a few days there and at Tudotsu, visiting mission stations further down the Inland Sea at Hiroshima and Iwakuni, rode back 200 miles by rail through a snow-storm to Kobe, and thence went to Kyoto, the ancient capital. Here, in company with our Dr. Newton, I spent two days visiting the various places of interest—temples, palaces, bronze, porcelain, lacquer, and silk stores and factories, and the Doshisha University, a Christian institution founded by Joseph Neesima, a native Japanese.

I hope you will not think that I have been merely seeing sights, for, aside from using the opportunity to get some adequate idea of oriental life and mission problems, I have embraced such opportunities as have offered to preach the gospel, whether in America, on the sea, or in Japan.

Arriving at Shanghai, March 10, I went with Bro. Reid to the Shanghai District Conference, held at Sung Kong, thirty or forty miles distant. This was my first experience in a houseboat, which is the all but universal means of travel between cities here. These boats are built with three—more or less—small rooms, and are propelled by oars worked at the stern on the principle of a fish's tail. They usually carry a sail, which can be used only when the wind is astern, or nearly so, as the boat draws so little water that it is difficult of management. Sometimes the boats are towed by long lines, several coolies pulling at once. You may imagine the comfort of such travel when I tell you that with an unusually good crew of four coolies I was from eight o'clock Wednesday evening till 2:30 Saturday afternoon coming from Shanghai to Soochow, a distance of eighty miles.

There is much talk of a railway between these two cities, and inasmuch as Soochow has been recently opened up to foreign trade, and the Japanese are already beginning work on the silk factories in their concession, it is not at all unlikely that we will have a railroad before many years. Already there are several steam tugs which pull half a dozen houseboats back and forth between Shanghai and Soochow.

Soochow is a large city, and one of the handsomest in the Empire. It has been called the Paris of China, and it is said that the fashions originate here as at the French capital. This was news to me, as I was under the impression that fashions never change in China. There are said to be a million and a half people inclosed by the twelve miles of walls that surround us here. The surrounding country is low and flat—only fifty feet rise between here and Shanghai, which is barely above sea level. The soil is exceedingly rich, and is cultivated carefully in small patches like gardens, though not so diminutive as in Japan, where everything is on a very small scale.

There are two other missions in Soochow—Northern and Southern Presbyterians. We all work together in perfect harmony. Our mission work in most of the places I have visited is in a very flourishing condition, the demand for workers being everywhere beyond our power fully to meet. Immediately after the war with China the prospect in Japan was rather gloomy, owing to the intense national feeling, which tended to take the form of contempt for everything foreign; but since the Corean fiasco there has been a change for the better, and in the capital itself I was told that there is hope of a great revival.

In China the results of the war are seen in a widespread desire for modern and Western knowledge of all kinds. Every mission school that teaches English is crowded, and in some cases foreigners are paid handsome sums to teach English a few hours each day to the children of wealthy Chinese.

At Sung Kong I had the pleasure of dining at the home of a wealthy silk merchant, whose son was educated at our Anglo-Chinese College, Shanghai. This young man, just my own age, has the entire management of his father's patriarchal establishment, and is in hearty sympathy with all he knows of the West, including Christianity, but has not felt that he would publicly avow his faith. He is a representative of a considerable number of intelligent young men who have been convinced by their education, and by recent events, that the old order—religious, civil, educational—must go, and who only await the time when they will be the heads of their families to come out publicly as champions of a new order, modern, enlightened, and Christian.

At our Central Church, in Shanghai, I met such a young man. He is now one of the staunchest of our three hundred members there, the president of the Epworth League. Soon after the death of his father, a silk merchant of considerable wealth, he joined his Christian mother, and now the family are a unit for Christ and a new China.

Our Anglo-Chinese College opened after the new year with full classes, and has been turning away students who could not be accommodated. Buffington Institute, here at Soochow, has a good enrollment, and we could not accommodate many more with the present teaching force. Nearly half of the students are Christians, and a large number of the remainder are probationers. At First Church here there have been large congregations both Sundays since I came, and the interest seems to be permanent.

My own work for some time to come will be limited to the study of the language. Every day I meet my native teacher for three hours' study in the morning. In the afternoon I take recreation, and study at the same time, by making incursions into the city, usually taking some Gospels or tracts to sell. It is a very slow and laborious process, but it is the preparation for the work of a lifetime, if God will. I rejoice that he has given me the privilege of serving him in this great and needy field. The greatness of the need is appalling, yet I have faith in God's promises, and believe that the prayers going up from the hearts of the workers will result in others being called to help us. I am sure you will join us as we pray the Lord of the harvest that he will send forth laborers into his harvest.

This leaves me in the best of health, and enjoying the blessing of the presence of the saving Spirit.

Increase of Crime.

In a recent address in Chicago, Ex-President Andrew D. White, of Cornell University, on "The Problem of High Crime in the United States," presented some startling facts to prove that more murders are committed in this country than in any other country in the world, and that murderers are less frequently and less surely punished here than in any other country.

Statistics, he said, showed that since 1889 there had been a remarkable increase of murder. In that year there were 3,567 murders, but in 1895 there were 10,500 murders. In other words, in 1889 there were fifty-eight murders to every million persons; but in 1895 there were 115 murders to every million.

Executions of murderers had decreased in like proportion, as in 1889 one murderer but of forty-five was executed, while in 1895 but one murderer in every seventy-four was executed. Lynchings, on the other hand, had greatly increased. Murder had increased 59 per cent., while the population had increased 25 per cent.

"If all murderers in that time were locked up," said Mr. White, "there would be 43,000 of them; but, in fact, but 7,351 homicides are incarcerated."

Another great defect in our present system was, that through long determent convictions lost much of their deterrent effects. This was so much the case that an Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court had said recently: "The taking of life for the highest crime, after due process of law, seems to be the only way of taking life to which the average American has objections."

"This is true," said Mr. White, "and the reason for it is that there is no longer righteous indignation over crime, but in its place exists nothing but maudlin sorrow and sickly pity for the criminal.

"The tendency seems to be, especially as regards murder, not to make justice easy and speedy, but to make legal proceedings a game in which the chances shall be mainly on the side of the criminal. The evolution of chicanery has become immense; facilities for retrials, appeals, escape, and pardons, have gone on increasing."

The speaker, continuing, declared that "another cause for the steady increase of high crime is the careless, culpable, even criminal, exercise of the power to pardon by the governors of our States."

"It is the general custom to assign young and inexperienced men to the prosecution of murder cases. This is wrong. It is a crying shame.

"The criminally weak good nature of the general mass was never so strikingly displayed as in the case of 'Bat' Shea, who so brutally murdered Robert E. Ross. Although at the trial trustworthy witnesses swore that they saw him kill Ross, it took more than two years to bring him to justice, and he nearly escaped. Twenty-five thousand persons petitioned for his pardon, 3,000 followed him to his grave, and $600 worth of flowers was on his coffin."

Mr. White declared that another reason for the increase of crime lay in the criminal education that was so widespread among children. Illustrated newspapers, dime novels, posters for sensational theatrical productions and plays, in which the solvent of every important crisis was the pistol or the knife—all these, he declared, caused youthful minds to turn to crime.

"And now," said Mr. White, "what are the remedies? First, more attention to elementary instruction as to morals in our schools, both religious, public, and private; second, let our pulpits preach righteousness; third, constant effort towards creating a better sentiment through the press; fourth, repressive laws, carefully made and vigorously executed, regarding the educating the minds of youths in obscene books and sensational papers; fifth, all universities should establish a course of instruction dealing especially with problems furnished by insanity, inebriety, and crime, with practical examinations, under the supervision of a professor, of almshouses, jails, asylums, penitentiaries, and prisons; sixth, prisons should be remodeled; seventh, all places known as contributing to crime should be dealt with sharply and decisively; eighth, habitual criminal acts should be passed; ninth, a system of indeterminate sentences should be inaugurated, and no criminal turned loose on society until he has clearly shown himself fit for liberty; and, tenth, a better public sentiment for holding everybody to account.

"Some would abolish capital punishment and substitute imprisonment for life. Statistics show that even in the worst cases this means no more than ten years."—New York Herald.

One of the most ominous signs of the times is the great lack of scriptural knowledge in our land. We are convinced that there is, comparatively, a greater lack of biblical knowledge in our own than in any other Christian country. In the land of Luther the Bible is known far better than it is here; in England even the common people have an extensive acquaintance with the Holy Book; while in Scotland the peasant is fully as familiar with the Bible as the preacher is, though he may not understand it so thoroughly. But here in America the great masses of people are fatally unacquainted with the sacred Scriptures, and as far as we can see the evil is growing worse every day. No one who has had large opportunities for observation will for a moment think of denying this statement.—Ram's Horn.

I find the great thing in this world is, not so much where we stand, as in what direction we are moving. To reach the port of heaven, we must sail sometimes with the wind and sometimes against it; but we must sail, and not drift, nor lie at anchor.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

A SONG F R EVERY DAY.

BY DORA REED GOODALE.

The world's a cheery place
For those with hearts to win it;
Thank God, there's not a human face
But has some laughter in it!
The soul that comes with honest mirth,
Tho' health and fortune vary,
Brings back the childhood of the earth,
And keeps it sound and merry.

The plodding world's an eager place
For those with will to do it;
Where all are bidden to the race
Let him who dare a refuse it!
The simplest task the hand can by,
The dullest round of duty,
Knowledge can amply glorify,
And art can crown with beauty.

A busy, bonny, kindly place
Is this rough world of ours,
For those who love and work space,
And fill their hands with flowers
To kind and just and grateful hearts
The present grace is given
To find a heaven in themselves,
And find themselves in heaven!

The Bearing of the Minister in and Out of the Pulpit.

The term "minister," taken in an ecclesiastical sense, is suggestive of many things. First, the calling is from the highest authority; the work the most sacred and important to man; hence the bearing of the minister in the pulpit should correspond to the sacredness of the calling. The pulpit should be ascended under both a deep sense of dependence upon God and weight of message to be delivered. Reverence and humility should be the most prominent characteristics in the bearing of the preacher. He should seek to be perfectly natural; use no affectation, mimic no man in voice or gesture, and especially avoid sepulchral tones. Hardly anything detracts so much from a sermon as the affected, sanctimonious voice in delivery. All drawling in utterance should be avoided. Clear, distinct enunciation should be practiced. The sermon should be neither too slow nor too rapid. The language should be chaste; slang should especially be avoided. No compromise with the hustings in language can be justified by the minister of the gospel. The minister should make no effort at display. He should not be dogmatic or presumptive, but persuasive. Being an "embassador for Christ," he should manifest the spirit of Christ.

For the hour of service everything ought to be pre-arranged and mapped out in the mind of the preacher, so that there may be no blundering or hesitating in the conduct of the services. It is too late to study a sermon in the pulpit. The minister should enter the pulpit "as a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." In dress the minister should always be neat, but not odd or dudish. The posture of the preacher while preaching should be erect, not pompous; easy with grace in movement, as the occasion may suggest.

THE BEARING OF THE MINISTER OUT OF THE PULPIT.

The minister must be the same character out of the pulpit as in it, his conduct only differing in that he is practicing and trying by example to have others carry out the doctrines he preaches. It has been said of some preachers (to their shame), when they were in the pulpit, it looked as if they ought never to come out; and when they were out, it looked as if they ought never to go back in it.

These censures have been provoked by the preachers condescending to the level of the worldly, unregenerate, in ungodly conversation, low jesting, telling smutty yarns (which should be beneath the dignity of any gentleman, much less a minister of the gospel), rushing into politics, arguments over political questions, embarking in speculations, and a seeming effort to promote the interests of the world more than the church of God.

Out of the pulpit, as well as in it, the minister must be as "wise as a serpent and as harmless as a dove." In visiting from house to house proper times must be sought, so as to give just as little trouble as possible. A wise minister will accommodate himself to the circumstances of those he visits, never embarrassing anyone by making unreasonable demands. Many times in the rural districts the people will be somewhat embarrassed, but the wide-awake preacher will not be slow to help remove the embarrassment in order that he may minister to them in holy things. No pastoral visit is complete without prayer when the circumstances will justify. In visiting preference should always be given to the sick and decrepit. Here much prudence is necessary. One should never go to the bedside of the sick with a gloomy face, unless it is to witness the death of the sinner who refuses to repent. The minister should go with a bright face, a heart full of love and cheer, promises from the Bible upon his lips. When an opportunity is afforded he must have prayer, and he should pray especially for the sick, suiting the prayer to the necessities of the case. In visiting the family of a deceased person the minister must show sympathy and offer condolence, or his visit is a failure. The minister must be exceedingly discreet in the burial of the dead. He should be careful never to say more than the character of the dead will truthfully justify. Sometimes it may happen that the friends of the dead will expect the preacher to make a good character and hold it up before the people at the grave. This is unwarranted. The dead must make their character while living; then the minister and friends can rejoice in prospect of a joyful reunion. Widows and orphans must not be overlooked. They need his godly advice and encouragement. Jesus said, "He that would be chief among you must be servant of all." The minister must not "offend one of these little ones." Of course, it is expected that the minister will maintain good conduct while in the homes of his parishioners. How must he conduct himself on the streets and in public generally? We answer, with equally as much purity of character as anywhere else, not excepting the pulpit or the room of the sick. Christian gentility and cordiality of manner should be the outflow of the minister's heart everywhere. Speedy acquaintance is necessary to speedy success, and all acquaintances made, whether with his own membership, other denominations, or sinners, should be made with the same gentleness of manner. Meet all of these characters afterward as cordially as circumstances will allow, never toadying to any, whether he be rich, honorable, or dictatorial. The minister must not compromise his Christianity or calling either on elections, reunions, political meetings, Christmas holidays, or any other public gatherings. His Christian influence and steadfastness is as valuable to him there as anywhere else, and it may be worth more to others there than anywhere else. All doubtful amusements should be discouraged and avoided. Never witness anything purposely he could not give hearty amen to; no kind of game, play, or fair that he has reason to believe is immoral or tends to dissipation.

It would be well for the preacher not to chew or smoke tobacco. If he has unfortunately fallen into the habit, he ought not to chew or smoke in public. Many a father is trying to keep his son, or sons, from the use of tobacco, who will fail if his pastor chews or smokes before his sons. The boys think whatever the preacher does is right, and it ought to be so; hence no minister is justifiable in leading off any boy into habits detrimental to his well-being. A minister should never practice in private or public criticising, or speaking disparagingly of his fellow-ministers. A preacher's word doth eat as a canker. Ministers have "all been called by the same Spirit, and all baptized into one body, and that body is Christ." The Golden Rules must be observed. Charity is a golden virtue. The minister must maintain it, or his usefulness ceases. Men will differ.

Finally, impartiality will be as hard to maintain as any other duty in the category of ministerial duties. Men will differ with the preacher and with each other, and each will want to relate his grievances. The preacher doesn't want to hear, but how to keep from it, and not take sides, or express preferences by look or act, and show no impartiality, is a trial of discretion few preachers have attained to.

As to etiquette, the minister need not make much calculation. He must be a man void of feelings, or they will be bruised once in a while. This is a very informal world, and a great many informal things are expected of the minister. He is expected to know everybody, everything, and to know the way to every place, and to be at every place at the same time. If he doesn't, he is censured by the lukewarm; also expected to agree with every crank that accosts him (expected, I mean, by the crank). He must learn to endure all these unreasonable exactions, and keep his tongue inside his teeth. No use to cast pearls before swine. Pray for them, work for them, and God will.

The Heroism of the Insignificants.

The love of admiration and praise is a native instinct of the heart. Christ never sought to crush it out, but to transfer its aim from man to God, thus securing to our legitimate desire of these rewards fitness and eternity, by preferring honor of God rather than men.

The brilliant hero's task receives its ample meed of visible praise, but the drudge, the obscure, the unnoticed, have the hardest battle, because there are no soaring aspirations, no cheering applause, to lift them to their labor. The tread-mill of daily duties, the endless chain of monotonous toil, the absence of variety, oppress the spirit, fret the heart, shatter the nerves. Not far away lives a little woman and her needle; three dependent on the results of her sewing. Frail, wan, worn, she is patiently stitching the threads of her life into the garments she is making for a pitiful sum; self-immolation on the altar of low wages, that her bairns may live. Yet a heroism is hers as true as ever charged the rampart's height, or wrested a flag from the enemy's mast.

These petty duties, like swarms of flies, flock in to annoy and distress the housekeeper; this circling around, always coming back to the point you started from, without a murmur or complaint; this fidelity in a narrowed sphere, so essential to the comfort, peace and helpfulness of the home, deserves the garland of gratitude, the crown of praise. We revere in our heart these heroes and heroines of the chimney-corner, the small variety store, the wayside farm, who have no poet to crystallize their unselfish deeds into pendants of beauty; but the world allows them to drop into oblivion's grave; but God forgets them not, and the recording angel treasures them up in heaven's savings bank.

The world's idea of greatness is to be ministered unto, but the Christ-ideal is not to be ministered unto, but to minister. "It is more blessed to give than to receive," said the divine Jesus, because it is like the quality of mercy, "it is twice blessed; it blesses him who gives and him who takes." We strike a vital point of the gospel if Christian greatness hung on the accounts of lineage, favorable environment, mere mental endowments; then Christianity could not be all men's gospel, for all men can not be highly born, wealthy and learned. Therefore, it proves its divinity by its adaptiveness to all classes, conditions and circumstances of men, because none are too poor, despised, humble, as to unfit them for service, and none too great that can not find occupations for the grandest powers and faculties of his mind in rendering service to God and man. Love the motive power, service becomes love in potent action. Now, as all men have the capacity to love and serve, therefore the gospel is humanity's gospel.

The glowing summit of right-living is to serve others in the spirit of vicarious self-sacrifice. The perfection of a noble life is self-devotedness to the needy. All that is permanent, benevolent, gracious in the world of thought to-day had its genesis in the law of self sacrifice. Inspiring literature, uplifting arts and sciences, the progress of religion, the glory of martyrdom creating freedom of speech, liberty and truth, costs the brain, heart, sinews of the world's best and bravest. Self-denial is the price of the noblest deeds and words. The proof of Christ's divinity is the incomparable completeness of his character, foundationed in the universality of his sympathies, his disinterested devotedness to men, irrespective of color, class, or creed. He gave the insignificant life a redeeming dignity by teaching, if we be faithful in few things, we shall be rulers over many things. He honored the heroism of the insignificants, and immortalized the home-circle of Lazarus, the widow's mite, Mary's gift; taking these weak things of earth to confound the mighty, using them as jewel settings to flash forth lessons of sympathy, winsomeness and comfort to the ages. He may use our little lives to save souls if we will but lie in the hollow of his hand.

A Past Trip and Some Future Ones.

Early in March a week was spent by me in Woodville. My domicile was at the parsonage with Bro. B. F. Lewis and his good wife, where Bro. J. A. Bishop and his better-half also sojourn. Everybody was kind to me, and listened attentively and patiently to my lengthy discourses on missions and other topics. Good subscriptions was secured to cover the assessments for foreign and domestic missions, church extension, and ministerial education. My visit was thoroughly enjoyed. I hope it may not be my last visit to Woodville. The Lord willing, I will meet many of the brethren at Bethel Camp Ground next Summer.

By way of Baton Rouge and New Orleans—where I enjoyed the hospitality of my friends, E. A. Dicks and wife, formerly of Natchez—I went to Bay St. Louis, where my home was in the parsonage with Bro. N. B. Harmon. The rains interfered here, as in Woodville, with our services; yet I preached several times, and lifted the collection for foreign missions. And there I saw a wonderful sight: a people struggling to build a church for themselves, and yet pausing in the work long enough to build a mission chapel for the benefit of the laborers at the canning factory. God will surely bless such people very abundantly.

From "the Bay," Bro. Harmon and I went over to Long Beach, where I preached three sermons on missions, but took up no collection. One night was spent in Pass Christian at the home of Bro. J. N. Ware.

This was my first trip to the Seashore. I am convinced that Long Beach and Bay St. Louis ought to be separate pastoral charges, for each is sufficient for all the time of one energetic pastor, especially if Pass Christian is ever to be looked after by a Methodist preacher. We own two fine lots in Pass Christian, and need an elegant house of worship built there. We have already lost too much time. I hope to make another visit ere long.

To Presiding Elder Weems I now return thanks for the privilege of preaching on missions before his District Conference at Edwards, and to the brethren for their patient attention.

On the third Sunday in April, Bro. M. L. Burton and I exchanged pulpits, and he presented the claims of our prospective Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home to the Methodists of Wesson, and I presented to his congregation the subject of missions at home and abroad.

At the Brookhaven District Preachers' Institute, at Hazlehurst, the following Wednesday, I preached at some length on "God's Purpose and Our Duty."

My itinerary for May and early June is as follows: The third Sunday in May at Sweet Water, on the Caseyville circuit; Tuesday, 26, Enterprise; Wednesday, 27, Qaitman; Thursday, 28, Waynesboro; Friday, 29, State Line; Sunday night, 31, Moss Point; Monday and Tuesday, June 1 and 2, Ocean Springs and Biloxi; Thursday, June 4, Osyka; Friday, June 5, Magnolia (if agreeable to the pastors).

From the reports of seven of our presiding elders (one not heard from) for the first quarter, it appears that Shubuta headed the list of contributors to foreign missions. Bro. D. P. Bradford is the faithful pastor of that clever people. Camden circuit, under the lead of Bro. R. A. Breland, followed close after with liberal offerings for foreign and domestic missions. Several districts reported no missionary collections during the first quarter. The seven presiding elders who reported are confident the second quarter will show better things.

Importance of Answering Letters.

Promptness in the work of to-day is the basis of character and the key which unlocks the door of success. Procrastination—the stumbling-block, over which a multitude fall, and wonder why they are so far behind in the race of life. Among the first lessons taught by the mother to her little children should be the lesson of punctuality. "Duty first, and then pleasure." This short life of ours is made up of little things—little duties—which, in the aggregate, determine our destiny for time and eternity. Each day marks a record in the history of each life, and no one can escape or put aside its responsibilities.

The men and women who exercise the greatest and most lasting influence over humanity are not always those who have received the "five talents," but those who, in every avocation, whether small or great, are found prompt and faithful in the discharge of duty.

Now, as the strength of any organization depends largely upon individual effort and unity of purpose, and the need is greater as the work extends and increases, the importance of immediate attention to letters received, bearing upon the interests we have so much at heart, is clearly manifest.

During the year, and before each annual meeting, our corresponding secretary writes to the various auxiliaries throughout the State for information concerning the strength and progress of their several societies, or on some important measure or plan in connection with the work to be done. Her zeal is often rewarded by silence, and the whole work retarded by the neglect and indifference or thoughtlessness of those to whom she has applied. These things ought not to be so among Christian workers. True kindness should prompt a response. When a friend gives to us—for awhile—his time and thoughts and good wishes, courtesy not only demands an acknowledgment, but friendship appreciates the favor and impels us to return it. This law of politeness, so universally recognized in social life, is the back-bone of trade, both commercial and political. Suppose a merchant receives a letter, asking for immediate information concerning his prices and articles in stock, or a prospective voter asks by mail a favor of some politician, just before election time, would either delay to reply? Would not the return post bear from both merchant and politician a most elaborate and polite response? Most assuredly. If, then, the selfish interests of every-day life and the laws of society require this consideration one towards another, how much more urgent is the requirement for the promotion of good works!—works, the value and durability of which we shall learn only in eternity.

The fact that our Parsonage and Home Mission work has succeeded far beyond our most sanguine hopes, the efforts of our women blessed beyond measure, does not excuse a single worker from bearing personally her own share of responsibility. Each one is responsible for the good left undone, or the evil that may be averted. Each one must prove a help or hindrance in the great battle for right, either by striving to put aside the difficulties of the way, or placing therein the stumbling-blocks of neglect and indifference.

Capitol Street Church Auxiliary (Jackson), Mrs. T. Lawson, corresponding secretary: "As the new corresponding secretary for the new year just entered upon, I take much pleasure in writing to you, to furnish you with a few items regarding our little auxiliary. Though we are but a small, weak body of missionary workers, we desire your interest and prayers. Last year all money raised by our society amounted to $126.30. We numbered then only 20. With the beginning of the new year we had several accessions, which makes our membership now about 25. The average attendance at the monthly meetings is very good, and the interest manifested gives us hope that a good work will be accomplished by us this year. Our efficient president, Mrs. F. West, deserves much credit for the earnest efforts she puts forth to keep us, her members and subordinates in office, inspired with interest. I am sorry to say we have only 9 subscribers to the Woman's Missionary Advocate, but trust in the course of a short time we may have the number increased. It is a very helpful and interesting periodical, and I wish all of our members would avail themselves of the opportunity of gaining so much useful information regarding our various mission fields. Pray that we be not like the wicked and slothful servant, but be up and doing, working faithfully and untiringly in the Master's vineyard."

Mrs. Chatfield, corresponding secretary, Mississippi Conference: "Mrs. Trueheart writes me the W. H. M. will convene Friday, June 5, at 4 p. m. Bishop A. W. Wilson will preach the annual sermon. Mrs. Buhler, secretary of Baltimore Conference Society, requests me to say that visitors who wish to attend can be comfortably located near the church at $1 or $1.25 a day. Her address is 1606 Q street, Washington, D. C. Those wishing to go should write her at once, that homes may be secured."

Our Conference annual meeting, to be held at Natchez, beginning June 26, is drawing near. Let us observe the following in finance report: "Realizing the imperative importance of representation in this body as a means of building up our work, and by this means of increasing our revenue, we recommend that each auxiliary, both adult and juvenile, raise and set apart a fund for the purpose of sending a delegate, and the necessity of sending a delegate to be pressed upon them." "For the publication of the Minutes, all auxiliaries with less than fifteen members (assessed), fifty cents; from fifteen to twenty-five members, $1; all over twenty-five, $1.50, and that all young people and juvenile societies pay half as much as the adult auxiliaries." We were pleased to have with us last year Norman Guice as a representative from Natchez Trueheart Torch-bearers, and representatives from five other juveniles. Let prayer be offered that all delegates to the next annual meeting be wisely chosen and well prepared.

From Mrs. Trueheart's report: An auxiliary organized at Winifred; 10 members. Corresponding secretary Scarritt Bible and Training-school: Rev. John D. Crymes, $10; Mrs. E. J. Davis, $2. In receipts for April and May, 1895, Miss Mattie Dunlap, $40.

The Better Way.

The grand object of revival effort is soul-winning. But this object is not likely to be accomplished when the main reliance is placed in the power of the public religious service. In the course of a revival service the point is sometimes reached where the public service becomes a mighty power to win hearts to Christ. But a powerful pastor supported by fervent singing, prayer, and testimony may often be unable to realize the power which melts and subdues the sinner's heart. There is a better way. It begins in and it consists in the quest of individual souls by individual Christians. Corporate or congregational action can never take the place of this. The wise pastor will have in his memorandum the names of those who are most likely to be saved, because their salvation is specially sought by his devoted members. When these people who have been prayed for and labored with are brought into the congregation by their Christian friends, they come in a susceptible spirit. The friends also come in a deeply prayerful and anxious spirit. Under these circumstances sermon and song and prayer and testimony become things of power. Only when evangelistic services correctly presuppose these individual labors and interests may they be expected to bear great fruit. Therefore let every Christian, in the fear of God and the love of Christ, undertake the rescue of some sinner. As soon as a pastor knows that a large part of his members are thus engaged fervently, he knows that the revival in his church is a fact already; and he can announce special services with much assurance that the church will be graciously revived and increased.—Methodist Herald.

Till a man has learned to be happy without the sunshine, and therein has come capable of enjoying it perfectly, it is well that the shine and the shade should be mingled so as God only knows how to mingle them. To effect the blessedness for which God made him, man must become a fellow-worker with God.—George Macdonald.

A Word for E. M. F. College.

It has been my good fortune to visit this college several times within the last few months, and enjoy and appreciate the systematic management and supervision of its gifted president, who seems to have been born and fitted up for the place. My daughter has been in that college for two consecutive years, and I feel safe in saying that she has never before been enabled to prosecute her studies with such success. Bro. Holloman is a wise, prudent, Christian gentleman of the highest type. The girls who love him most know him best.

Sister Holloman is a lady of extraordinary mental brilliancy, affectionate, tender, yet firm with the girls committed to her care. It is always a treat to be associated with such a lady whose piety and energy prepares her to march shoulder to shoulder with her husband and in every department of his college work.

Miss Moffat, of Mobile, Ala., is an experienced teacher, with rare educational gifts, which point her out as a model instructor.

The Bible is the leader throughout the college work. Thank God for institutions of learning that do not only acquaint our children with text books, but with Christ the Lord.

All the faculty seems to acquiesce with their leader in his arduous labors to build up the college. As to its location, it is high and healthy. The sewage plant, and the fine water works sending pure spring water to every residence in town, and its zealous men and women dead to the world and alive to God, pushing the battle for Christ and his kingdom militant, all gives tone and character to the college. May it live long to bless the fair daughters who may enter its walls, and may it always be under the leadership of a T. B. Holloman, and we shall see a halo of intellectual light circling within its walls and flashing intelligence through her student body throughout and beyond the borders of the grand old State in which it has been located.

Great Opportunity to Make Money.

I have had such splendid success that I can't help writing to you about it. I have not made less than $5, and some days $15 to $25. I am really elated, and can't see why others do not go into the Dish washer business at once. I have not canvassed any; sell all my washers at home. They give such good satisfaction that every one sold helps to sell many others. I believe in a year I can make a profit of Three Thousand Dollars and attend to my regular business besides. When a Climax Dish Washer can be bought so cheaply, every family wants one, and it is very easy selling what everybody wants to buy. For particulars address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. I think any lady or gentleman, anywhere, can make from $5 to $10 a day. I would like to have your readers try this business and let us know through your columns how they succeed. The best thing about it is the Climax Mfg. Co. do not ask for any pay until you have the Dish Washers sold.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. B. T. Crews: "The good people I serve remembered the parsonage with an Easter offering that showed their love and appreciation for their preacher and his family. We thanked God, and are drawn closer to these kind people, and shall labor to make them richer in spiritual things. We have had seven net gain since Conference. I am working and praying that this may be the best year of the three. We have an excellent Epworth League of nearly 50 members that promises much good to the church. Pray for God's blessing upon us in our work."

Rev. C. W. Huff, Nicholson, Miss., April 29: "The following is our report for April: Traveled 175 miles; preached eleven times; made 20 pastoral calls; conducted one Sunday-school service; a number of prayer services; received one young man into the church on profession of faith; baptized one infant, and officiated at one marriage occasion. Pray for us."

Rev. A. D. Miller, Hermanville, Miss., April 5: "We have just closed our second quarterly meeting for Hermanville circuit, Vicksburg district, Mississippi Conference, and we certainly had a good time. Bro. Weems, our presiding elder, was at his post, and while not very well did his duty faithfully, preaching three very fine and instructive sermons to the edification of the people. He is certainly adapted to the presiding eldership. The Board of Stewards did nobly, and the people relieved our necessities for the present. Many thanks, and may God graciously bless them all. The lines have fallen unto us in pleasant places and we have a goodly heritage."

Rev. M. M. Black, Wesley Chapel, Natchez, May 5: "On April 17 we concluded a ten days' meeting, which resulted in a goodly number of conversions, three accessions to the church, and a general reviving of the membership. Presiding Elder L. S. Jones was with us six days, and preached with much power and earnestness. Valuable assistance was also rendered by Bros. B. F. Lewis and W. B. Lewis. Since Conference we have received 18 members—11 by certificate and 7 on profession of faith. Ten members have been lost to us by removal. We have had four persons to withdraw on account of failure to comply with the requirements of the Discipline. We feel devoutly thankful that the Lord is blessing our ministry here. At least ten persons have been converted this year at the regular preaching service. It is no unusual thing at our Sunday night services to have a number of penitents at the altar. We have a flourishing Epworth League, numbering 30 members, most of whom are active workers. Nearly all our Sunday-school pupils are members of the church. Fifty-three dollars have just been expended in having the chapel painted inside and outside. Some new gas burners have recently been put in, and we think we now have one of the neatest and most attractive churches in the State. About one-half of the assessments for foreign missions and Conference claimants has been raised. The other collections are considerably behind hand."

Rev. J. E. Buck, Pastor: "Hebron circuit, North Mississippi Conference, maintains its former record for generosity and kindness to the preacher and his family. Almost every day brings some new expression of appreciation. Our people may not be as spiritual as those in other charges, but no people excel them in point of liberality. Spiritually, they are rapidly improving. Our predecessor, Bro. D. W. Babb, did four years' hard service here, and his work will tell for good in eternity. I consider that the grubbing and seed sowing were done by him, preparatory to a great harvest. May the Master aid us in harvesting every unsaved soul in this charge this year in the garner of God! This is a God-favored country. In its formation God evidently had in view the happiness of man. The rich prairie soil, healthfulness of the climate, and accessibility to the purest of water by means of artesian wells, make this the most desirable country under heaven. Taking advantage of these, men have and do yet accumulate fortunes, provide for their temporal comfort, and enjoy this life to the fullest extent. But the great mistake many have made heretofore is that they have not stopped long enough to give glory to God, their benefactor—to return to him the gratitude of their hearts for these benefits. And consequently God has recently laid his afflicting hand heavily upon many homes, and the death angel has crossed the threshold and claimed a number of our purest and best. Result: some have already signified their purpose to consecrate themselves and their all to God, others are under conviction, and a sense of seriousness is observed everywhere. Surely this country is at a crisis. If the people yield, God can and will save them all. If they will not, a hardness of heart and a reprobacy of mind will be their future state here, and death and misery in eternity. Our women are the salt of the earth. No truer, more loyal and devoted Christians are found anywhere. And many of our men are brave and true and spiritual, but a large per cent. are inclined to worldliness and devoted to money getting. Our Sunday-schools are largely attended, and are progressing finely. Prayer meetings are feasts of richness and power. Children's Day will be duly observed. May the Lord help us to make this the great year in the history of this charge!"

Rev. W. D. Bass, Daugherty, I. T., May 4: "I will assist pastors in revival work in this country until Summer, and reach home by latter part of July. As I frequently receive calls from the brethren of my home Conference, I wish to say to them that it would be a better plan for those who wish my assistance to write me at once at Corinth, Miss., and thus save the expense of crossing the country so often. I will begin with Bro. Rogers, at Walthall, Miss., the first of August. Remember, I only wish to help those who actually need local help in leading souls to Christ. My labors in this Indian Mission Conference have been quite fruitful during my rounds over here. Have had hundreds of conversions and additions, and the good work goes on. I have enjoyed preaching the blessed gospel of Christ to some of the best stations and poorest circuits of the Conference. See here, Mr. Editor, I notice that Bro. McIntosh, a member of the Annual Conference in North Mississippi, is itinerating or evangelizing (whichever you choose to call it) across the boundary line in Phœnix City, Ala., while I, a member of the Quarterly Conference in North Mississippi, am localizing in the Territory, which is also over the boundary line. What is the difference? What is it in Methodist preachers anyway that moves them over land and sea on the shores of time so much? The only answer I am able to give is, 'It is the Lord.' And where he leads we will follow. Just so a man keeps the laws of his church, and does not conflict with the rights of others, I think he has the right to preach the gospel wherever opportunities are afforded and circumstances will allow anywhere this side of the moon. John Wesley, with all of his love for system, said, 'The world is my parish.' And Christ, with all of his love for souls, said, 'Go ye into all the world.' And I am glad our blessed Christ, through the instrumentality of his church, is marching on from conquest to conquest, and by his ministers—whether itinerant, local, or evangelist—he will spread his kingdom from shore to shore. Now, a word with reference to the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible, bourgeois type, and the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for only $4 45. In this arrangement the good editor simply proposes to sell the Bible for fifty five cents less than the regular retail price, and give a year's subscription to the ADVOCATE. I sell this Bible over here, without the ADVOCATE, for $5 each. Every Methodist family in Mississippi and Louisiana should take the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE; and since both ADVOCATE and a fine Bible can be had now for less money than the publisher's retail price for the Bible, everyone who is not a subscriber should become one at once, and thus make a little investment that they will never regret. Those who want a Bible for themselves or children will not have a better opportunity in a long time. May God reward your liberal offer, Doctor, with a great harvest!"

PUBLISHER'S NOTICES.

Holman Bible at $1.25.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to May, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to May, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt-letters on the outside of the book.

TO MINISTERS AND Students for the Ministry

Under the will of the late L. C. Jüngerich, of Philadelphia, a large fund was provided for the free distribution to ministers of the writings of Emanuel Swedenborg, entitled "The True Christian Religion" and "The Apocalypse Revealed." To these, other donors have added "Heaven and its Wonders, and Hell," and "Life of Emanuel Swedenborg." All of these are handsome volumes, substantially bound in cloth. They are now offered FREE OF COST, except for postage, to the Clergy of America and Theological Students who are studying for the ministry.

It is because the donors of these books believe that there will be found in them a clear solution of all the difficult points of doctrine that disturb, perplex, and separate Christians from each other, keeping so many honest and sincere people out of the churches, and strengthening infidel sentiments, that they are so desirous of placing them in the hands of clergymen, whose office it is to teach spiritual truths and lead souls heavenward.

Arrangements have been made for the distribution of these volumes through the large and well-known publishing house of

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY,
715 and 717 Market St., Philadelphia

To whom all orders for the books must be sent, accompanied by the postage, and a statement that the applicant is a minister, or student for the ministry, as follows:

An Apparent Snub.

According to the Associated Press reports, Dr. J. C. Morris, our fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the M. E. Church, received scant courtesy at the hands of that body. He arrived at noon on Monday, and was assigned to his home without its being known that he was a representative of the M. E. Church, South. No one called on him or showed him any attention. That night he delivered his address in which he asked for the appointment of three Bishops, three ministers and three laymen to confer with a similar commission already appointed by the M. E. Church, South, with reference to federation. The papers state that when he delivered his address it was not known that he was our fraternal delegate. This we judge to be a newspaper mistake. He surely would not have had a place on the programme otherwise than in his official capacity. But, however that may be, when it was ascertained on Tuesday morning that he had left the city Monday night, a resolution was introduced by Dr. J. M. Buckley expressing regret at the apparent lack of courtesy, and inviting him to return in order that the Conference may have opportunity to retrieve its mistake.

The Woman Question in the M. E. Church,

During the first week the General Conference, now in session in Cleveland, spent a large part of its time in discussing the woman question, despite the fact that the vote of the Annual Conferences had been adverse to the admission of women. A compromise was finally agreed upon. The four woman delegates now present are allowed to retain their seats, but this is not to be regarded as a precedent for other General Conferences. The question of the admission of women is to be submitted to the Annual Conferences again. A three-fourths vote of all the Annual Conferences and a two-thirds majority in the General Conference will be requisite to their admission as a permanent feature of church polity.

Sunday-School Union.

The forty-ninth anniversary of the Methodist Sunday-School Union of this city was celebrated last Sabbath evening at Carondelet Street Church. The spacious auditorium was well filled. The service of song was excellent. A well-written essay was gracefully read by Miss Elise Ahrens. The anniversary address was delivered by Rev. H. H. Ahrens. It was thoughtful, well-prepared, appropriate. There were also several appropriate juvenile recitations. The banner was awarded to Morgan Street Sunday-School for the best average on all lines. It is worthy of special mention that the total enrollment exceeds that of last year by one hundred and eighty, notwithstanding the fact that one mission school has been abandoned. Quite a number of mission schools are reported, most of them in fine working order.

The True Knowledge of God.

There is a difference between knowing a man by sight, and being intimately acquainted with him; so also there is a vast difference between knowing about God and knowing God. We all know of the existence of a good many people, prominent or otherwise, with whom, however, we are not acquainted. We see them frequently, perhaps, in the street, in the market place, or in public assemblies, but, having no dealings with them, we are never introduced. We may in various ways learn a great deal about the habits and character of men and women about us, and still never really know the persons themselves. The same may be true of our relation to God.

The majority of men in this Christian land recognize the fact of God's existence, and have a tolerably clear and full knowledge of his nature and the requirements of his law. While the masses are acquainted with what the Bible teaches concerning God and the way of salvation, they are far from having a saving knowledge of the truth. It by no means follows that the man who has the most orthodox views concerning Christianity is the best Christian. A good artist can paint a fair portrait of a man whom he has seen but a few times. We may be able to describe accurately the personal appearance and traits of some person with whom we are not on speaking terms.

To make a spiritual application, those who study the works of nature ofttimes become deeply impressed with the matchless power and wisdom of God. In contemplating the visible creation, we may exclaim with the Psalmist: "The heavens declare the glory of God: and the firmament sheweth his handiwork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night sheweth knowledge." We may be filled with a sense of awe at the sublime manifestations of God's power in the mighty cataract, the snow-capped mountain, or in the vast expanse of old ocean. We may know as much as a Newton or a Faraday concerning the laws God has ordained for the government of the material universe. Notwithstanding all, we may be destitute of the true knowledge of God, which consists of conscious acceptance and constant communion with him. It is not enough to recognize God as the Creator and Preserver of the universe, and as the Author of all law and virtue. We must know him as the loving Father who has pardoned our sins, even ours, and made us heirs of eternal glory with Christ.

Those who do not see God in Nature or learn about him by studying the Scriptures are at times forced by the Spirit operating upon their hearts to recognize the fact of God's existence, and of their responsibility to him. Clear and deep as may be the conviction thus produced, such conviction is not the knowledge that saves. The man who is at outs with his neighbor has as little to do with him as possible. In like manner, those who have not made peace with God try to act as if there were no God. But let danger and distress come, and then they are found calling upon him.

Formal acquaintance with a man can not be counted real friendship. We meet people every day with whom we exchange casual greetings, and then pass on, thinking no more about them. So it is with many people who profess to be acquainted with God. They call upon him in the sanctuary on the Sabbath, they become outwardly his friends by joining the church, and observing the forms of religion, without ever opening to him the door of their hearts. The society acquaintance who, for form's sake, makes occasional short calls is not a real friend. The visits we appreciate are from persons who thoroughly understand and appreciate us. There are people who, because of prejudice, or for some other reason, will not let anyone be on familiar terms with them. Is it not true that many a professing Christian will not cultivate more than a formal acquaintance with the blessed Master? Church members are willing to receive Christ as an occasional visitor, but many do not want him as a constant guest.

The Master will not abide where he is unwelcome. To have him constantly with us we must prepare for his coming by putting away every sin and abomination, and then treat him courteously every day and hour. The Master will soon depart from us if we insult him by sinning—and not repenting, or if we slight his wishes in seeking to gratify our own.

Real friendship means far more than being on speaking terms with a fellow-man. I may know a great deal about my neighbor, and speak to him every day without being his sincere friend. As the basis of all true friendship there must be love, sympathy, and confidence. Without these none of us can ever hope to know our fellow-men in the best sense. No man can fully understand another, and at the same time be his enemy. There is no insulator so perfect as hatred. We reveal our deepest thoughts and feelings and highest aspirations only to those who love and appreciate us. Love not only keeps us from doing that which would wound the feelings of a friend, but also causes us to do all in our power to please that friend. The Master says to his followers: "If ye love me, keep my commandments." And again, "If any man love me, I will manifest myself to him." As Dr. Joseph Parker has well said: "Where love is wanting, all is wanting. Love is, so to speak, the faculty by which we apprehend God, without which we can never know more of him than that he is a dread mystery. Nor need it indeed appear strange that love is the only interpreter of God. In all our education and intercourse we find again and again that love sees farthest, hears quickest, feels deepest.... Like ever goes to like. He who loves the devil the most, knows most of the devil. The law is impartial. To love is to know; to love is to have; to love is strength; to love is life."

The man who serves God out of fear, or merely from a sense of duty, can not be said to know him in the true sense. The saving knowledge of our Lord brings, not condemnation, but sweet peace. To know God in his forgiving, renewing, sustaining power is to have heaven in our hearts. Eternal life is then a present, as well as a looked-for blessing.

The lives of few men will bear close inspection. We are often disappointed at the discovery of faults and imperfections in even our best friends. The world's greatest heroes have displayed many ignoble traits, and so we shrink back from knowing men too well, lest our idols be rudely shattered. But where is the man whom the knowledge of God has disappointed? Who that has learned Christ has not found him the chiefest among ten thousand, the one altogether lovely? They who are taught of God rejoice in his love, and ever long to know more of him. The nearer we live to Jesus, the dearer he becomes to us. If so be that we have "tasted the good Word" of Life, then indeed we "count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus our Lord," and "press toward the mark for the prize of our high calling of God."

NEW BOOKS.

GOD SPAKE ALL THESE WORDS. By James H. Brookes. Sold by Rev. J. W. Allen, D. D., Presbyterian Board of Publication, 1516 Locust street, St. Louis, Mo. Cloth, 75 cents; paper, 40 cents.

This book is by the well-known writer of evangelical literature, Dr. James H. Brookes. The preface announces the occasion and purpose of this publication: "This little book contains the substance of a few addresses recently delivered in the course of pastoral service. Many desired to have them in more permanent form, and subscriptions were made to pay for an edition of 4,000, before the work was published. It is now committed to the favor of God, with the prayer that he will be pleased to own it, however unworthy, as an attempt to defend the supernatural origin and inerrant inspiration of his holy Word."

This book is a very practical one. The author points out the supernatural quality of the Book by calling attention to its unique conception of God, its elevated morality, its marvelous unity, its prophecies, its history of Christ and other features which mark it as the Book of God. His positions are set forth largely in the terms of Scripture; the book fairly bristles with citations from the Bible. The best thing which can be said for this book is that it abounds in apt and pointed quotations from the Scriptures.

Dr. Brookes holds to the theory of verbal inspiration. He supports this view from the Word itself. It is a book calculated to help some who may be troubled about the questions involved and confirm those who have no doubts. On page ii an error of citation appears, a quotation is assigned to Hebrews, when it should be Habakkuk — this, probably, a misprint.

F. N. PARKER.

STORIES OF MARY; OR, EVIDENCES OF MARIOLATRY By Prof. F. A. Wagner. Price, 15 cents. John F. Rowe, publisher, Cincinnati, O.

This is a neat, paper-bound book of 208 pages, showing the superstitions errors of the Roman Catholic Church. It is creditable to say this work is free from abuse or slander, but all the arguments are proven from the most reliable Catholic authorities.

Notes from Centenary.

The seventy-first session of our college is nearing the end, and the church may wish to know something of the work done. We have gone along steadily since last September with our regular routine without interruption from any cause. We have not had a single case of disorder. In the main, our students have been diligent and faithful, and many of them have reached high grades in their work. We have some who are drones. We have no geniuses among our students, but we have many busy workers, and that beats genius every time. The best of all is, we have had a fine revival in the college. About twenty-five of the students have professed religion. This work was carried on at the college alone by the students, assisted by the professors and our pastor, Bro. Foster. Think what an influence that will be throughout the State when these boys go home to spend vacation!

Now, let every preacher in the Louisiana Conference begin in earnest and carry on with zeal a Summer campaign in the interests of the college. The preachers can give us a full school if they will. If they can, the responsibility is on them. If they do not, they will be held accountable.

C. W. CARTER,
President.

Centenary College, Jackson, La., May 11.

International Arbitration.

An important National Conference was held in Washington, D. C., beginning April 22, to consider the subject of international abitration. It was largely attended and was participated in by many distinguished personages. Resolutions were passed deprecating war as a mode of settling international disputes, and recommending the establishment between the United States and Great Britain of a permanent system of abitration. A committee was appointed to convey to the President of the United States a memorial urging the taking of such steps on the part of this country as will further the purposes in view. The New York State Bar Association has outlined a plan for an international tribunal or court of abitration, which was so far approved by this conference as to be presented to President Cleveland by a committee appointed for the purpose. The movement in favor of international arbitration is enlisting the best sentiment and thought both of this country and England. With the strong trend of sympathy in this direction there is good reason to hope that these two great English-speaking nations may set to the world an example of the use of judicial instead of coercive measures as a method for settling international differences.—Exchange.

In the Living Present.

A Presbyterian preacher in Chicago, Rev. John Rusk, has scandalized the Christian church by inviting Ingersoll to occupy his pulpit. The notorious blasphemer chose as his text a sentence from Shakespeare, "There is no darkness but ignorance." He reproduced his well-known platitudes. Said that ignorance and fear had produced and maintained religion. Fear of heresy trials kept preachers from abandoning stereotyped orthodoxy.

Thos. Dixon, Jr., the ecclesiastical freebooter, has published a book, in which he tries to prove that in New York, and other large cities of our Union, Protestantism is gradually decaying. The increase of church membership had not been commensurate with the increase of births. Episcopalianism enjoyed seeming prosperity, but it was because of its identification with the world. Roman Catholicism, too, was losing hold on the masses. We take time to breathe. It is evident Mr. Dixon judges the churches by himself.

Le Figaro, of Paris, laments the decline of Renanism. Once an acknowledged authority, loved and respected, but now neglected. The Parisians cared not for dead lions. Renan was, perhaps, himself responsible for this neglect. M. Le Roux had at one time brought his children to the great skeptic, asking if he should raise them according to his teaching, to which he had promptly replied: "Pooh! pooh! Do as everyone else does."

The Westminster Review, spectacled and with wise visage, discusses the necessity of a titular designation of unmarried men. At present, married and unmarried, all are called Mr. In the case of women we had properly Miss and Mrs. Unmarried men should be called Master. Well, in Kentucky unmarried men and loafers are called Mr. When married, if not tramps, they are colonels.

We deem it not progress that at present six thousand women are employed in the Treasury Department alone at Washington. Thirty years ago not one woman was employed there. This only proves that thirty years ago society was in a healthier condition than at present. At that time women were the happy queens of happy families. Now, male and female bachelorship is sadly increasing.

Newspapers—good, bad, and indifferent—multiply. In every case it is to supply the long-felt want, not to gratify vanity. Already we have in the United States 20,000 periodicals. The employees on same receive annually eighty-three million dollars. The paper consummated costs fifteen million dollars. Advertisers and readers pay for same. The latter, though, not one-fourth.

Prof. Schreeder, in a lecture delivered in Washington, D. C., indicates threatening danger. Inveighing severely against the American Protective Association, intimating that said organization is armed, with the avowed purpose of vanquishing Roman Catholicism, he assures that Catholic Unions have not looked idly on. They, too, are organized and armed, ready for bloody encounter. That they are ready to shed the last drop of blood for the maintenance of their liberty, etc. ICH DIEN.

A brother writes us that he heard a Methodist preacher state that the Christian (Campbellite) Church has a larger membership than the M. E. Church, South. That Methodist preacher needs to read up. The following are the lastest statistics: Christians, 923,663 members; M. E. Church, South, 1,379,928—a difference in our favor of nearly half a million. The M. E. Church has a membership of 2,629,985. Add the membership of the other branches of Methodism in the United States, and you get a total of running far up into the millions.

Denmark's police, when they find a drunken man in the streets, summon a cab, place him inside, and drive to the police station, where he is detained until sober. Then he is driven home, the police never leaving him until he is safe in his family. The cabman then makes his charge, the police surgeon his, the constables theirs, and this bill is presented to the proprietor of the establishment where the culprit took his last and overpowering glass. This system is tending to reduce the appalling drunkenness which formerly prevailed in Copenhagen.—Peninsula Methodist.

Intercourse with all nations and with one another is increasing day by day. We mix with one another more largely than ever we did before. It is quite certain that all the families of the earth are beginning to be stirred by a sense—not always plainly expressed, but nevertheless constantly showing itself both in word and deed—that God has made of one blood all mankind, that all are brothers in the truest sense, that all owe duties one to another, and that among these duties there is one that rises to the highest point, the duty of making known to those who have not known it yet the story of the cross.—Lord Bishop of London.

The Douglas Square Meeting, conducted by Rev. C. H. Ellis and H. N. Harrison, which began April 26, closed Sunday night. The results were encouraging, as seen in the fact of a sustained and increasing interest to the last service. Penitents were forward at every service, and quite a number professed faith in Christ. About thirty gave their names to be received into the M. E. Church, South, and organized into a class in connection with Dryades Street Church. An effort will be made to secure a suitable lot, and, if secured, a temporary building will soon be erected. This is an important point, and should be held, and the good begun work should be pressed vigorously.

Here and There.

I wish, through your kindness, to speak to our people of some matters that I think of importance.

First of all, I wish to speak of our State Epworth League Conference which will be held at Crystal Springs, July 23-26. We are very anxious to have a full attendance at this Conference. We have secured, I believe, the best rates from the railroads ever given to a religious gathering in the State. One fare, with a maximum of $5 from all points on I. C. and Y. and M. V. railroads, and assurances that other roads will do as well. This meeting ought to mark an epoch in the work in our State. Dr. Schell will be there. Jno. R. Pepper will be there, besides the noblest and best of Mississippi's sons—than whom the world has no superiors—including Bishop Galloway, Steel, Black, Marrah, Watkins, Standefer, and others too numerous to name here.

I have just had the pleasure of attending the Texas State Conference. The Texans do everything on a large scale. They had an attendance of near ten thousand. The crowds were too large to get the best results from a meeting of that kind. Everything was so well arranged, however, that the very best work that could be done under the circumstances was done. The program was unusually good, presenting a veritable "feast of fat things."

Quite a number of the leaguers went on an excursion to Monterey, Mexico, stopping on the way to visit the seminary at Laredo, where we found several Mississippi girls—teachers in this school the good women have. We were specially interested in the work at Monterey. Here we have a nice church building—said to be one of the handsomest Protestant Churches in the Republic. The Rosebuds have a school here also. Our people in Monterey were greatly encouraged by the visit of the leaguers. I'll not say anything about my experience in trying to talk to the Mexicans Sunday night through an interpreter. I'll let Dr. Pinson tell about that.

I found that everywhere the leading people were pleased with the educational outlook in Mississippi. The Law Department, with Hon. Edward Mays at its head, together with the reputation for excellent work which Millsaps College is getting, will attract the attention not only of Mississippi, but of the entire South.

The marked forward movement of Grenada Collegiate Institute is gratifying to its friends everywhere. Bros. Malone and McIntosh are displaying wonderful executive ability in their management of this institution.

Epworth College is by its name, and Dr. Steel's connection with it, taking a firm hold in the affections of the young people everywhere. While Standefer is not so widely known, he is equally as popular where he is known. With the splendid corps of teachers already employed, Standefer as president, Steel to lecture on the great poets, and Baskerville on English, Epworth College offers advantages for young ladies equaled by few schools in the South. The indications are that the attendance will only be limited by the room the management can command.

The Delta was never in a more promising condition. Religiously, we are doing well. Several new churches are now in process of erection. We dedicate one next Sunday on Belen circuit. This church was built by one man, Mr. W. T. Dickerson, and will be presented by him to the M. E. Church, South, next Sunday.

Several of the brethren are holding meetings this week with fine interest. Everybody is delighted with the idea of having the next session of our Conference at Greenville.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

BY REV. R. H. WYNN.

Prayer Meeting Topic for May.

CHRIST IN SOCIAL RELATIONS.

SUNDAY, MAY 17—CHRIST AS HOST. (John vi, 5-12; xiii, 4-12; Luke xxii, 8-15; xiv, 12-14.)

The topic for last week was Christ as a guest, and this week we see him in the reverse relation of host. In the references given we have (I), the wonderful scene of the feeding of the five thousand; (II) and (III), two scenes connected with the last passover feast of Jesus with the disciples, and (IV), Christ's teaching on the subject of hospitality.

PRACTICAL THOUGHTS.

(1) Christ will bountifully supply our spiritual needs.

(2) "His blood may be but a drop, his death but a brief transaction, but their efficacy can be reproduced for all the multitudes of all generations, and feed even our souls with eternal life." (Whedon.)

(3) Christ, as host, sets the example of giving thanks before eating.

(4) Wastefulness is condemned by the example of Christ in gathering up the fragments.

(1) We are not privileged to be the guests of Jesus in a literal sense, as were the twelve, but we may hold rich spiritual communion around the table which he has spread for us.

(2) In the incident of the washing of the disciples' feet, the willingness of Christ to serve his disciples is shown, and the obligation of Christ's disciples to serve one another.

(3) True humility is manifest, not in an outward refusal of the service of Jesus, as in the case of Peter, but in a silent submission to his service, with an inward consciousness of great unworthiness.

(4) If we do not consent to accept the service of Christ's death, we can not be made clean.

(1) In our hospitality there must be present the spirit of benevolence.

(2) The reward of ordinary social hospitality is narrow, but the reward of benevolence to the poor and the helpless (charity and help work) is from God, and is eternal.

NOTES.

The Union Epworth League will meet Thursday evening, May 14, at Louisiana Avenue Church.

We have this week a literary program for the month of May, prepared by Rev. J. M. Henry, and we hope to be able to furnish one each month from some source.

Leaguers find more difficulty in operating the Literary Department than either of the other two departments. This may be due to some extent to the fact that the reading course has not been adopted; and this again, it may be to the fact that there is very little taste for literary work among the leaguers. It may, however, be due in some measure to the fact that stress has not been laid on the work of this department in the column devoted to the League in our papers? We rarely find there a program of exercises for the literary meeting.

The first thing necessary to make a success in the Literary Department is a determination that it shall succeed. The chairman should be intensely interested and determined to avail himself of every help that will make his department attractive. With him should be associated persons imbued with the same spirit. Then there should be no mistake about the nature of the meeting; it is in no sense a prayer meeting. But in the Christian sense a literary and social meeting, than which no field affords a more suitable occasion for young people to form friendships, sealed with the eternal bond of love and comradery.

Again, it must be kept in mind that all programs furnished in this column are intended more as suggestions than to follow literally. Modifications must be made to suit the local League. According to the capability of the member of the local chapter, the work may be more or less elaborate; however, attempting to secure the best that the League is capable of every time. Let the meeting be punctual, and not too long.

The following is submitted as an outline program. It will require from forty-five minutes to one hour to carry it out properly. If it is followed it will cover the entire course of study, allowing the League to devote three meetings in the month to the literary work and one to the business meeting. The program may be made a little fuller, and literary meetings held every two weeks, and still accomplish the work.

I.—Devotional—Hymn; prayer; Scripture lesson to consist of a verse of Scripture recited by each member. Each member to select his own verse without reference to what is selected by anyone else.

II.—Reading by member of the League—Chapter I. of "Landmarks of Church History;" music; solo.

III.—Reading from "Eminent Methodists;" music.

IV.—Recitation, "The Call of the Christian," by J. G. Whittier; music.

V.—American Literature. Chapters I., II., III.

Write the following questions on slips of paper, each slip containing one question, and distribute to the members of the meeting. Let the leader call for the answers in the order of the numbers, and let the holder of the question reply. In order that this may be successful each member should have a copy of all the questions the week before. Each question will suggest something else, and so call forth additional replies.

1. What does American literature mean?

2. Give name and extent of the three periods of American literature.

3. What was the nature of the writings of the first period?

4. What, where and when was the first book printed in America?

5. Give name, location and date of founding of first three colleges in America.

6. Who was author of the following:

"Zacchens he
Did climb a tree
Our Lord to see"?

7. Name the most noted poet of the first period of American literature.

8. What was the first book published in America?

9. In what language was the first Bible printed in America?

10. Give six points concerning the boy, Jonathan Edwards.

W. F. M. S.

Visitors and delegates to annual meeting of Mississippi Conference, W. F. M. S., to convene in Natchez, June 26, will please send their names to Mrs. Jno. A. Guice as soon as possible. Every auxiliary is earnestly requested to send a delegate. In order to secure reduced railroad fare, it will be necessary for everyone coming to get a certificate from office of purchasing ticket. Reduced rates can not be secured unless as many as fifty tickets are purchased.

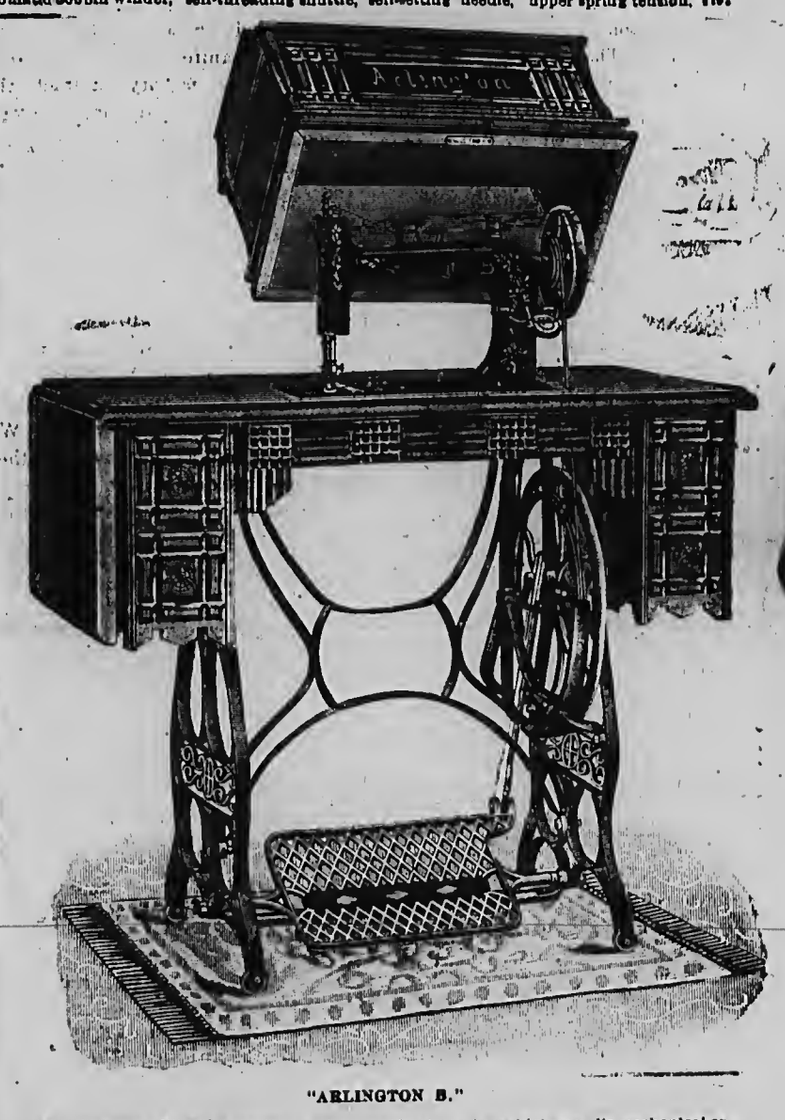
Our Machine Offer.

New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



"ARLINGTON B."

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high-arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take up, convenient foot-rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-braider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned, and protected by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearings polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—The "ARLINGTON B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great strength; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $20.50, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to January, '98, and send us $18.50 additional, and we will send you the machine.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40.

TELL ME SO.

BY LILIAN WHITING.

If you love me, tell me so;
Wait not till the Summer glow
Fades in Autumn's changeful light,
Amber blonds and purple night;
Wait not till the Winter hours
Heap with snowdrifts all the flowers,
Till the tide of life runs low—
If you love me, tell me so.

If you love me, tell me so,
While the rivers dreamy flow
Holds the love-enchanted hours
Steeped in music, crowned with flowers;
Ere the Summer's vibrant days
Vanish in the opal haze;
Ere is hushed the music flow—
If you love me, tell me so.

If you love me, tell me so;
Let me hear the sweet words low!
Let me now, while life is fair,
Feel your kisses on my hair;
While in womanhood's first bloom,
Ere shall come dark days of gloom,
In the first fresh dawning glow—
If you love me, tell me so.

Health and Mentality.

BY N. N. RIDDELL, PH.D.

"A sound mind in a sound body," is an old maxim, but is as true to-day as when first uttered by the sages of antiquity. In our mad rush for wealth, learning or fame, amid the diversity of opinions among physicians, physiologists, hygienists, mind healers, and Christian scientists, there is, perhaps, no subject of such vital importance, that receives so little careful, unbiased, intelligent investigation and consideration as that of the relation of health to mentality. Very few find time or have the opportunity for thorough investigation of this subject, so that the great majority, even among intelligent people, are quite unable to appreciate the influence exerted by the various states of health over mental manifestation.

It may seem like an exaggeration to those who have never studied this question carefully, yet those who have will concur with us in saying that quite as many are deficient in energy, emotion, animation, ambition, decision, power of concentration, perception, memory, morals, or individuality of character, from indigestion, a torpid liver, poor circulation, or shattered nerves, as from lack of brain development, or native ability.

Men are everywhere wishing they had more of brain power, wanting to increase their mental caliber, regretting that their brains are not better developed in this way or that, as though brain development was all that was necessary to produce energy, business sagacity, will power, mental genius or moral stability. Business men are compelled to constantly resort to the memorandum, and daily lose opportunities to have made a turn because they did not think till the opportune moment was past; students pore over their studies for hours to master the lessons that should be learned in one fourth the time; professional men complain of having so much on their minds that they are unable to give due attention to anything; thousands constantly labor under a cloud of discouragements, while others are so constantly wanting in energy as to be constitutionally tired; all of these mental defects and peculiarities are usually attributed to their brain developments, whereas the truth is that quite as many suffer from these mental defects from the lack of good digestion, rich blood, strong circulation, pure air and sound nerves, as from the want of brain development.

A large brain of excellent proportions and of splendid organic quality, that draws its sustenance from a weak body in which one or more of the vital functions are but partially performed, will be able to accomplish far less than a much smaller brain that is thoroughly supplied with rich pure blood, that has been completely oxygenized. The power of cerebration or brain action, which is the measure of mentality, is determined quite as much by the health of the nerves, the quality and quantity of the blood that passes through the brain, as by the amount of gray matter. While it is true that without gray matter there will be no mental manifestation, and that the amount of the one is the measure of the other, it is equally true that unless there is an abundant supply of well oxygenized blood the gray matter will soon lose its power to generate thought. Strong, vigorous circulation, arising from good digestion, healthy nerves and deep breathing, is the basis of physical energy. That dull, heavy, listless feeling, that constitutional weariness that impedes the progress of so many students, business and professional men, is more often caused by a torpid liver and a poor circulation than by a lack of development at the base of the brain. The weak, effeminate, undecided, vascillating way not unfrequently met with, is more often the result of dissipated nerves than a deficiency of that part of the brain that gives rise to courage, firmness and dignity.

Many a student struggles throughout his entire college years, barely able to pass his examinations, and envying his more brainy classmates their superior powers of perception and memory, never suspecting that it is his non-hygienic living that causes his mind to be thus dull and his memory so unretentive.

Impure blood, freighted with an excess of carbon, causes his brain to burn and steam, but it does not think. A proper diet, composed mainly of cereals and fruits, with an abundance of pure water and pure air, would increase the mental capacity of a very large per cent. of college students from a quarter to a half, and cause them to congratulate themselves on their keenness of perception and accuracy of memory.

Ministers, especially those who aspire to pulpit oratory, suffer perhaps more than any other class from not giving the matter of vigorous health due consideration. With many the entire week is spent in the preparation of their sermons; everything must be written out in detail, and then committed to memory. By Sunday they have a well-prepared discourse, without any vitality or mental vigor to give snap, animation or pathos to its delivery. Their well-rounded, carefully constructed sentences fall as gently on the half-sleeping congregation as Autumn leaves after a frost, while their thrilling appeals, that on their first conception seemed pathetic enough to melt a heart of stone, have so lost their ardor as to fail even to warm the conscience or quicken the sensibilities of their auditors. The good man sinks into "blue Monday" and tries to decipher why his Sunday's efforts were not better appreciated, and wonders at the hardness of men's hearts, that they are not more moved by such eloquent presentation of the gospel. These disappointments that are no less real to the congregation than the pastor, are not so often the result of a lack of power as of not knowing how to use it. One-half the time spent in study, in mental and spiritual preparation, the other half in physical preparation, would produce far more effectual sermons and satisfactory results.

A thorough training of the chest muscles, so as to completely inflate the lungs, good digestion, pure blood, and a strong, vigorous circulation, would add very largely to the average pastor's power to move the people.

Business men fail quite as often from eating too rapidly and thereby producing dyspepsia, from smoking too many cigars and shattering the nerves, or from dissipating their forces and destroying their capacity to do business, as from lack of native ability or the fluctuations in trade. Very few persons will ever know what their mental capacity really is, for very few live sufficiently in keeping with the laws of health to allow the brain to do its best. It is impossible to make anything like a correct estimate of our capacity to work, do business, think, study, enjoy, be good, or do good, until we have learned the laws of health and know how to apply them, to meet the requirements of our physical and mental peculiarities.—Health Culture.

Out-of-Door Manners.

A true gentleman is not only a gentleman when in the drawing-room, or parlor, but wherever he is. He behaves himself in a refined manner on the street, in the park, on the ball field, etc. And so likewise a true lady is a lady under all circumstances.

There are certain out-of-door manners that should be carefully observed. A glance at them: Except when it would necessitate the lady's walking where it would be disagreeable or awkward, as in the mud, the gentleman should pass to the right. It is a lady's place to recognize a gentleman first and bow; then is he to raise his hat and not before. Only on the Continent does the gentleman bow first. When walking with a lady the gentleman should carry her packages; he should relieve her of all the burdens he can. Except in the evening, or in the case of the aged or infirm, or for the sake of protection, a gentleman should not give his arm to a lady. In the day time it is no longer good form for even a man and wife to walk arm-in-arm. A gentleman may escort a lady on each arm, but a lady should never take the arms of two gentlemen at the same time. The inside of the walk is to be given by the gentleman to the lady accompanying him. In changing to the inside, as on a corner, the gentleman should always pass behind the lady; but if they are walking arm-in-arm they need not change if a change in direction brings the lady on the outside.

No gentleman or lady will stare about in the street, look after people who have passed, laugh aloud, call out, or be in any way conspicuous. No gentleman will hang around corners, or lounge on the steps of hotels, staring at passing ladies and making remarks about them. A lady's street dress should be as modest and quiet as her behavior. By wearing such a habit she will attract less attention from the vulgar.

Doors should be opened by gentlemen for ladies and held open until they have passed in. There need not be acquaintance to warrant this; and the lady should bow and smile to the gentleman who thus shows her courtesy, and the gentleman should recognize her thanks by raising his hat. Like courtesy should be extended even by strangers to ladies leaving or entering, in a crowded thoroughfare, a car or omnibus; they should be assisted by gentlemen over muddy streets and across streets where many vehicles are passing. But when the help has been given all intercourse should end, except where there is an acquaintance.

No gentleman will smoke in a lady's presence. It is rapidly growing to be poor form to smoke at all on the street. A gentleman accompanied by a lady should always lift his hat when he bows; a gentleman bowing to another gentleman accompanied by a lady should do the same. A bow should always be returned. The hat should be raised by the hand further away from the person to whom the bow is made.

Lack of Ease in Conversation.

There is one great reason for this lack of conversational power: in too many cases the art is never practiced inside the home circle, writes Louise Royle in The Ladies' Home Journal. No attempt at pleasant converse is ever made save when visitors are present; the various members of the family may gossip a little, or discuss purely personal affairs, but they make no attempt at entertaining talk. In point of fact, the art of conversation is like a game of battledoor and shuttlecock, one needs the quickness and dexterity of constant practice. In many busy households the only general gathering of the family is at meal time—a time above all others when worry should be banished, if only for the sake of physical comfort. Yet this is the very time when the mother will complain of domestic worry, the father of business cares, and the daughters of shabby frocks.

All this should be changed; it ought to be a rule in all households that disagreeables are to be banished at mealtime. If complaints must be made let them come at a proper time, but do not imperil your digestion by eating while you are in an irritated and discontented frame of mind. Pleasant talk relieved by an occasional laugh will be more beneficial than pounds of pills. In the household there should not only be an avoidance of unpleasant topics, but an attempt to find agreeable ones. Each member of the family should come to the table prepared to say something pleasant. Any bright little story or merry joke, or any bit of world's news that will loosen the tongues and cause animated talk—how it will increase the brightness of the working day! There need be no profound discussion—it should be just lively touch and go talk.

Answering Prayer.

A story is told by Evangelist Brown, of a prayer meeting held in Chicago, when some one asked prayers for a widow and three children on the West Side who were starving to death, and then knelt down and offered a long prayer for them. Others were perhaps ready to fall in line, and go on in the same fashion, when a business man called out,

"I will give five dollars, what will you give?"

And in a minute or two he had thirty dollars, and had jumped on a street car and started off to succor the suffering ones.

A son of a father who prayed the Lord to supply the wants of the destitute and needy, offered to answer that prayer, if he could only have his father's pocket book and grain bin to do it with.

One wealthy man desired the prayers of a congregation for a little church which was in want of funds. The leader of the meeting inquired what was the amount desired, and when the few hundred dollars needed was named, he replied,

"If I were you, I would not trouble the Lord about so small a matter as that."

There are many people whose prayers, like all the rest of their religion, need to be translated into acts. They may love the Lord with all their hearts, but they do not love him with all their strength. The Lord would have us serve him with our strength, our muscles, our hands as well as our feelings and emotions. Emotion is good, for it brings practical results, but steam spent in whistling never drives the engine.—Selected.

A California School Board found that for some reason the boys in the public schools at Santa Ana were nowhere nearly as proficient in their studies as the girls, and an investigation was instituted to discover the cause—whether the boys were being neglected by their teachers, or whether a lack of discipline was chargeable with the fact that the boys were not doing well. The investigation was had, and it was found that 90 per cent. of the boys between the ages of 12 and 15 years who attended the public schools smoked cigarettes. The investigation did not require to be pushed any further. It is sufficiently well-known that cigarette smoking blunts the intellect as well as undermines the constitution, and if 90 per cent. of the Santa Ana boys stay with the habit 90 per cent. of the Santa Ana boys will be failures in life, and no help for it. The Board could have said that if a weak-minded youth at school adopted cigarette smoking he would graduate an imbecile.—Picayune.

A boy was told to open and shut gates to let the teams out of an iron mine. He sat on a log all day by the side of the gate. Sometimes an hour would pass before the teams came, and this he employed so well that there was scarcely any fact in history that escaped his attention. He began on a little book on English history that he found on the road. Having learned that thoroughly he borrowed of a minister Goldsmith's "History of Greece." This good man became greatly interested in him, and lent him books, and was often seen sitting on the log, conversing with him about the people of ancient times. Boys, it pays to use your leisure hours well.—Exchange.

She Wanted Love.

A kind-hearted, sweet-faced woman called one day to see a little maid, whose mother was dead, and who had been placed in the poor-house. She carried a present with her, but before giving it she asked, "Now, dear, what would you like best?" The little one looked up wistfully, and then shyly said, "I would like to sit on your knee for a minute, as if I were your little girl."—Exchange.

Every man's own besetting sin is the tempest. You love God; you walk upon the sea; the swellings of this world are under your feet. When your heart fluctuates with the desire of sin, call on the divinity of Christ, that you may conquer that desire.—Anselm.

In Memoriam.

JOSEPH WALTON DRAKE was one of those rare spirits that heaven now and then lends to earth to teach, in object lesson, the supreme possibilities of human nature, under grace, here and now. It would be difficult for his closest friend to name a fault in him.

The following is from the pen of his uncle, Rev. J. P. Drake: "Walter was a marvel to us all in his infancy, and this early prophecy of a good, sweet and useful life was never to know disappointment. From infancy onward I have never seen his equal for excellence of character. I was closely associated with him until he reached ten years, and thence onward, seeing and hearing from him at very brief intervals. I had the pleasure of receiving him into our church in 1878, when he was just nine years old. He came forward like a true man, when there was no excitement, no special revival, and gave his heart to God. Just when he felt the conscious change I do not know. He seemed to me one of those rare cases of conversion in infancy, as he appeared always so nearly perfect in deportment. His character was so completely rounded that I can hardly point to any one quality as prominent. Fidelity to every relation, as son, school-mate, friend, teacher, brother, in the family and the church, marked his daily walk."

Tributes to his great worth and true nobility of character have come from the different fraternities of which he was an honored member; the alumni of his cherished "alma mater," who ranked him as easily first on the honor roll; the university law class, whose "bright particular star" he was; the church, through her Official Board, her Sunday-school and Epworth Leagues.

His mother writes: "In looking back over his life, I can not recall a day that Walter was not a comfort and joy to me." Life is worth living if it can issue in such a glory as that—to say nothing of eternal issues.

His coming to Macon proved a blessing to the community and to the church. He was punctual in attendance on all the duties of his private and official relations to the church. Only for cause was he ever absent from his place. His love for the church was so conspicuous as to draw on him the watchful and critical eye of the world. A sporting character said of him: "As you know, men of my stamp set a watch on the most active church workers, to see if we can catch them by any means. Well, we have, you may say, had a spy on the track of J. W. Drake by day and by night; but let me tell you, for these years we are unable to point to a single flaw in his Christian walk. He is pure gold! No stain on his escutcheon! We find no fault in him." He was the very soul of honor. Between him and any and all unfair methods there was no commerce. He was as brave as the bravest, but gentle as the gentlest.

He was the second son of Rev. Wm. Winans and Mrs. Alice Gorton Drake, and was born in Greenville, Miss., May 14, 1869. His father, dying in the prime of his useful life, he with two brothers were left to the care of a noble and heroic mother. The mother's impress for good made young Walton earnest, brave and strong. "I owe all, under God, to my dear mother," he would often say. His literary and classical course was taken at Centenary College. Just as he had turned his seventeenth year he was graduated with the honors of his class. His law course was prosecuted at the University of Mississippi, and here, as at Centenary, he was the first honor man in a class of more than ordinary ability. He was easily the first in all contests for worthy honors.

He died of pneumonia, after a brief illness, April 5—Easter. All that prompt attention and eminent medical skill could do—all that importunate, intercessory prayer could do—was done to arrest the fatal malady, but in vain.

His words of sweet submission in this hour are comforting and reassuring. The divine hand always guides to the best issues. He was ready and willing to obey the command, Go or stay. At his request his pastor reads a lesson, comments, and leads in prayer. "Those are beautiful truths; love them much." Not a cloud was in his spiritual sky; not a fear broke the spirit of his hope and love! The only regret was in leaving his loved ones—a mother and two devoted brothers, Rev. B. M. Drake, of Emory and Henry College, Va., and Rev. Wm. Winans Drake, of Crowley, La., who were with their mother to comfort and be comforted in their great sorrow. The large concourse of people in attendance on the funeral services attended his popularity and worth in the community. Stores were closed in respect to his burial hour. All felt a sense of personal loss. While we are sad, and "mourners go about our streets," our beloved Walton is sphered and throned amid the eternal felicities. Farewell, brother; we shall meet and resume our delightful themes some bright day! T. W. DYE.

OBITUARIES.

PETERS—Died in Sabine parish, La., April 22, 1896, VAN PETERS, who was born Jan. 23, 1840, making him at his death fifty-six years two months and twenty-nine days old.

Bro. Peters was first married to Miss E. J. Francis, Feb. 19, 1863, with whom he lived till the twelfth day of July, 1882, when she died. To this union ten children were born—six boys and four girls—four of which had preceded their father to the better land. On Feb 27, 1884, he was again married to Miss Nettie McIlwain To this union four children were born. All are yet living.

He united himself with the Methodist Church at Prospect, the second Sunday in November, 1869, with which church he held his membership till death.

Bro. Peters was a Master Mason, and was buried with Masonic honors in the Ft. Jessup Cemetery. Thus another good man and Mason has been called from our ranks; we trust a polished stone, fit, squared and prepared for that building, that house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

The writer visited him as his pastor in his last sickness, and while he suffered much, yet he endured it patiently, and expressed himself as being submissive to the will of the Lord.

He leaves a wife and ten children, with many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. May the Lord bless them in their bereavement! JOHN FRANKLIN, P. C.

WHITE—Died at Bentonia, Yazoo county, Miss., at his brother-in-law's, W. A. Cannon), JOHN H. WHITE, of paralysis, March 31, 1896. Bro. White was about forty-six years old at his death. In 1849 he married Miss Georgia Ann Erly. There were born to them two daughters, both of whom are still living, his wife having died in 1873, from which time he lived, first with his daughters, and then with his sister, Mrs. Cannon.

About the year 1872 he joined the M. E. Church, South, at Shady Grove Church, near Energy, Miss. Being unsettled, he never moved his membership.

It was my privilege to be intimate with Bro. White, and I can truthfully state I never knew a more conscientious Christian gentleman. It is generally conceded that he was the best and most devoted Christian in Bentonia We hereby tender our sympathy to the surviving friends and relatives.

F. M. WILLIAMS.

Satartia, Miss.

WACTER—ADELIZA WACTER was born Jan. 26, 1842, in Amite county, Miss., and was married to Mr. Howell Johnston, in Hillsboro, Miss., in 1855. She was the mother of seven children, five of whom are living. She joined the Methodist Church soon after her marriage, and died in peace April 22, 1896, at her home near Morton, Miss. She suffered much for several months, and was comforted by the kind ministrations of her children and friends, but most of all by the presence of the Holy Spirit. She was willing and ready to go and be with her Savior in heaven.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

An English company is to be organized with a large capital to develop the gold mines of North Georgia. The gold ore of this belt assays low, is sulphuretted, but the new chlorination process is cheap.

Colonel A. T. Bliss, of Saginaw, Mich., owns about 130,000,000 feet of fine oak timber in Arkansas, about eighty miles from Hot Springs, and it is his intention to organize a company and manufacture the timber.

It has been discovered that George Francis Dillon, a Catholic priest, of Pittsburg, has been married since last November to a Miss Donovan, formerly a telegraph operator at Braddock, Ct. They were married by an Episcopal minister at Cumberland, Md

The General Assembly of Louisiana was organized on Monday, with Hon. Albert Estopinal, of St. Bernard, in the absence of any lieutenant-governor, as president pro tempore of the Senate, and Hon. S. P. Henry, of Cameron, as speaker of the House. The counting of the gubernatorial vote will take place on May 14.

Charles B. Rouse, of New York, who is rapidly becoming blind, has offered to give a million dollars to anybody who will cure him. He refuses to be made the subject of experiments, and furnishes a blind substitute for the operator to prove his skill on. So far the substitute remains blind. A hypnolist is about to take him in hand, and says that he can cure him.

The case of the men captured on the filibustering schooner "Competitor" by the Spanish gunboat, and, according to dispatches, sentenced to death in Cuba, excites much interest in Washington. The captain of the expedition is said to be a native of New Orleans. The government has made representations to the Spanish government that the men were not tried in conformity to the requirements of the treaty between the two countries. A commutation of sentence has been asked for.

FOREIGN.

It is said that the late Baron de Hirech left the bulk of his property, amounting to several million pounds, to the Jewish Colonization Society to continue its work.

It is said that the three Irish societies in New York have notified President Kruger of the Republic in Africa that they stand ready to back him in a fight with England with 100,000 armed men.

Li Hung Chang, when he was received by the Czar the other day, presented him with the order of the double dragon on behalf of the Chinese Emperor, and on his own account gave him a couple of bronze vases over 2,000 years old.

The Duke of Sermonita repudiates the idea that the Italian government had the intention of abandoning Massowab, and intimated that the Italians would hold Kassala so long as the interests of the Anglo Egyptian expedition to Dongola demanded it.

German women are agitating against some of the clauses in the new Civil Code which affect their position, and a protest giving the details of their objections has received 60,000 signatures. The signatories point out that while the Penal Code makes a woman for violations of the law in strict equality with men, she fails to obtain from the Civil Code the same protection as the other sex.

Methodist Board of Missions.

The Board of Missions of the M. E. Church, South, has finished the consideration of the appropriations for missions and decided upon the following:

Brazil Mission Conference, $30,300; China Mission Conference, $26,029; Japan Mission Conference, $28,132; Central Mexico Mission Conference, $23,377; Mexican Border Mission Conference, $14,000; Northwest Mexican Mission Conference, $11,250; Indian Mission Conference, $16,888; Pacific Conference, $3,088; Los Angeles Conference, $4,350; Columbia Conference, $2,792; East Columbia Conference, $2,792; Denver Conference, $4,817; Montana Conference, $3,435; Western Conference, $1,689; New Mexico Conference, $4,440; Florida Conference, $2,000; Western Virginia Conference, ———; German Mission Conference, $2,412; expenses, $16,500; total, $197,491.

The collections for foreign missions for 1895 under the assessment of the Board of Missions amounted to $240,802 and by the Woman's Board, $70,348, a total of $311,151.

Every one gives it the highest praise. H. Gradel, Druggist, Walnut and Allison Sts., Cincinnati, O., says this of his trade: "I sell my share of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and my customers that have used this preparation speak of it in the highest terms."

Address Changed.

My address is Lafayette, La., and not New Iberia, La., as appears in Minutes of the Conference, which was due to my neglect in not complying with Bro. Sawyer's request, as made in the Advocate in the early part of the year. Any mail addressed to me at New Iberia will be received about the first Sunday of every month, as I make my monthly rounds; but I prefer the brethren to address me at Lafayette. Important letters awaited me at New Iberia which were not answered in time owing to misdirecting of them.

H. W. Wallace.

Money Made in a Minute.

I have not made less than sixteen dollars any day while selling Centrifugal Ice Cream Freezers. Anyone should make from five to eight dollars a day selling cream, and from seven to ten dollars selling Freezers, as it is such a wonder, there is always a crowd wanting cream. You can freeze cream elegantly in one minute, and that astonishes people so they all want to taste it, and then many of them buy freezers, as the cream is smooth and perfectly frozen. Every freezer is guaranteed to freeze cream perfectly in one minute. Anyone can sell ice cream and the freezer sells itself. My sister makes from ten to fifteen dollars a day. J. F. Casey & Co., 1143 St. Charles St., St. Louis, Mo., will mail you full particulars free, so you can go to work and make lots of money anywhere, as with one freezer you can make a hundred gallons of cream a day, or if you wish they will hire you on a salary.

A leading infidel, in giving his reasons for not believing the Bible, uses the following language: "We all know that it is full of inaccuracies and falsehoods. For example, in one of the gospels we are not told that Joseph was the husband of Mary, while we are carefully informed elsewhere that he married the daughter of Potiphera, the priest of On. I don't want to pin my faith to any of the statements of such a book." And he is a fair sample of his tribe.

"I'll Go with Him All the Way" is one of the songs that sings itself into hearts. You can get it and 70 other songs for 10 cents, in the new song book to be issued soon. Every body in the Epworth League and revival meetings, every child that can read in Sunday-schools ought to have a book. If ordered within 23 days, they can have them—50 copies for $3, 100 for $5. Lyman F. Jackson, Alexandria, La.

An Important Office.

To properly fill its office and functions, it is important that the blood be pure. When it is in such a condition, the body is almost certain to be healthy. A complaint at this time is catarrh in some of its various forms. A slight cold develops the disease in the head. Droppings of corruption passing into the lungs bring on consumption. The only way to cure this disease is to purify the blood. The most obstinate cases of catarrh yield to the medicinal powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla as if by magic, simply because it reaches the seat of the disease, and by purifying and vitalizing the blood, removes the cause. Not only does Hood's Sarsaparilla do this, but it gives renewed vigor to the whole system, making it possible for good health to reign supreme.

A Cook Book Free.

"Table and Kitchen" is the title of a new cook book published by the Price Baking Powder Company, Chicago. Just at this time it will be sent free if you write a postal mentioning the Christian Advocate. This book has been tried by ourselves and is one of the very best of its kind. Besides containing over 400 receipts for all kinds of pastry and home cookery, there are many hints for the table and kitchen, showing how to set a table, how to enter the dining room, etc.; a hundred and one hints in every branch of the culinary art. Cookery of the very finest and richest, as well as of the most economical and home-like, is provided for. Remember "Table and Kitchen" will be sent, postage prepaid, to any lady sending her address (name, town and State) plainly given. A copy in German or Scandinavian will be sent if desired. Postal card is as good as letter. Address Price Baking Powder Co., Chicago, Ill.

A Good Mood.

Tired Husband—"I've had a terrible day at the office, and I'm mad clear through."

Wife—"Now would be a good time for you to beat those rugs."

"The Bonnie Blue Flag" is an inspiring air. You will love it more as wedded to a Methodist battle-song in the new song book. On the opposite page is, "Salvation's Rolling On." These and 70 other songs can be had for 10 cents, and the former nowhere else at any price. If ordered within 23 days, 50 copies for $3, 100 for $5. Lyman F. Jackson, Alexandria, La.

HAD I BUT KNOWN.

Had I but known that nothing is undone
From rising until setting of the sun,
That full-fledged words fly off beyond our reach,
That not a deed brought forth to life dies ever;
I would have measured out and weighed my speech,
To bear good deeds had been my sole endeavor—
Had I but known.

Had I but known how swiftly speed away
The living hours that make the living day,
That 'tis above delay's so dangerous slough
To hang the luring wisp-light of to-morrow;
I would have seized time's evanescent now!
I would be spared this unavailing sorrow—
Had I but known.

Had I but known to dread the dreadful fire
That lay in ambush at my heart's desire,
Where from it sprang and smote my naked hand,
And left a mark forever to remain;
I would not bear the fire's ignoble brand,
I would have weighed the pleasure with the pain—
Had I but known.

Had I but known we never can repeat
Life's Spring-time freshness or its Summer heat,
Nor gather second harvest from life's field,
Nor aged Winter change to youthful Spring;
To me life's flowers their honey all would yield,
I would not feel one wasted moment's sting—
Had I but known.

The Dramatic Character of "Post Oak Circuit."

One of the greatest (perhaps the greatest) characteristics of "Post Oak Circuit" is the exquisite dramatic character of the work. Its really wonderful merits in this regard will probably never have due recognition. Its scenes are in the calm, "sequestered vale of life." Its personages do not move on an awful and august stage, where "swelling scenes" occur. There is nothing in it that can properly "roar in the index and thunder in the climax." There are no kings nor warriors, great statesmen nor orators personated; no wars, nor grand nor historic events commemorated. But one had as well say Hogarth was not a great artist, because his canvas does not teem with kings and lords and ladies, and gorgeous costume and trappings of court. You can't expect to make a great hero out of a church steward, and the King-Cambyses vein would be monstrous.

The author of Post Oak has not only to portray his personages, but even to invest them with interest by his art of delineation; hence, if one fails to see the greatness of the artist in the work, he will miss the true greatness of its intellectual side. Shakespeare made Shallow and Simple, Dogberry and Dame Quickly interesting, as well as Hamlet and Othello, King Lear, Richard III., and many more. And, doubtless, it was as great a triumph of genius to create the characters, and sustain the keeping of the former, as the latter. And Post Oak is dramatic in that it is not a mere succession of forced or uncommon events. There are no grand occasions; there are only homely joys, home-bred content, and sorrows; but, as in the drama of real life there is no such thing as pure tragedy, so comedy brings its sad side, and Post Oak is chequered with the vicissitudes of real life—not a series of comical episodes and strained situations. The tragical does not interfere with or distract the movement. Lamb makes a fine point of this in Shakespeare's Hamlet, instancing the grave scene; so Bishop Keener's—the death of the preacher's baby—emphasizes things.

Then there is another great reason why "Post Oak Circuit" will never receive proper appreciation of its great dramatic character, and that is, that it involves such a wide reading of dramatic and critical literature to estimate the book at its proper value in the regard in question. To commend the book properly would take a large book, and this would only entertain a very few people. The world at large is like the individual who wondered why the great painter bestowed so much care in imitating the buckle of a shoe in a great painting with such painstaking fidelity, and the painter's reply—pingo in eternum—is all folderol to this great money-hunting, utilitarianism-sodden world. Forsooth, why should the mass of the world care whether a few obscure church stewards and some insignificant preachers and negroes are portrayed to the life or not? But Bishop Keener need not worry. His book is, to a few readers, "the abstract and brief chronicle of the time." He "holds the mirror up to nature; shows virtue her own feature, scorn her own image, and the very age and body of the time his form and presence." That is Shakespeare's own definition of true dramaticism in Hamlet's "advice to the players." And the regard of a few appreciative judges "will outweigh a whole theatre of others." And I advise anyone who wants a standard—the great standard now of all great critics—to read Hamlet's definition of the true requisites of a drama. It will inevitably open his eyes to a greatly increased appreciation of the dramatic merits of the little book, "Post Oak Circuit." He will see its characters were not made "by one of nature's journeymen, who imitates humanity so abominably," but by a master. And, while on Shakespeare, one is reminded to bring home a thought that in his dramas the man Shakespeare—his character—is not seen at all. The thought—not exactly as applied by myself—is Coleridge's. It would be saying too much to claim that the characters of the great dramatist are always in strict keeping. But I can not now tell in any one where you can claim that Shakespeare speaks from the standpoint of his individuality. This, which is the distinctive characteristic and the rare and crowning excellence of the drama, is precisely the antipodes of most other literature, where the heart and disposition of the author appear in the work—"the ethic effect," as Aristotle calls and stresses it, which, as Sir James Mackintosh puts it, is "the transpiration of character." One might overwhelm the reader with authorities on this point, but I will only quote another, Emerson, who makes "an autobiographic basis" the test of good literature. In other words, the true author is a self-revealer.

Now, let some one tell me where he sees the man, Bishop Keener, obtruded on the stage in "Post Oak Circuit." I mean, of course, after he passes into the dramatic plane or sphere, and quits the first person—the ego.

Now, while some dramatists have immortalized themselves by one or more characters of their plays, you will find most of their characters false, or caricatures. To defend this view would require a long disquisition. But surely every reader must be familiar with Macaulay's criticisms of Dryden, of the dramatists of the "Restoration," of Byron, Sheridan, et al.; how all the characters have the same voice, but with different masks. Just now we remember his criticism of Sheridan, where the footmen are as witty as the wits and courtiers. And he emphasizes the point by differentiating him from the dramatic instinct of Shakespeare, who could have made all his characters as witty as Falstaff, Prince "Hal," and a few others; only it would not have been—nature! (Of course, the reader will not be misled by remembering the "fool," or "king's jester," who was a wit or wag by brains and vocation, and who flourished in a certain bright era, like the improvisator in Italy, the harper and troubadour elsewhere.) This criticism of Macaulay is not original. One can find it in almost all the great critics—Dryden, Addison, Sam Johnson, Hazlott, Lamb, Schlegel, Coleridge, Hallam; dear only knows how many more—to say nothing of Edinburgh and London Quarterly reviewers. And the most amazing thing is, that while many of these great critics could tell you of the great necessity, indispensable demand, for dramatic keeping, none of them could observe it. Look at Addison; and he wrote Cato. See Dryden, a great critic. See how unnatural the characters in his plays! Behold Sam Johnson!—and he wrote the tragedy of Irene. Another is Lamb, and he wrote dramas. Then there is Lessing and Coleridge. All failures as dramatists, though greatest of critics. If some one asks why this failure of great critics to conform to their own canons, the answer is, partly, out of the domain of analysis. The dramatic power is a prerogative of genius, working by intuitions, accomplishing results by inspirations,

"Quick and eager visitings
Of thoughts that lie beyond the reach," almost of speech.

As the poet or the bird sings, so the dramatic writer creates his characters. We know somewhat that enters into this power: The vivid imagination, the creative faculty, the capability and secret of self—transmigration into another personality—which imports self-effacement, the gift of sovereign reason and common sense to observe the proprieties. Further we need not to go, except to say that there is an almost unlimited demand upon versatility or pliability of imitation, or the capacity of being any character he attempts to personate.

That so many fail shows that this dramatic genius is the rarest of human gifts. Great scholars, great critics, great statesmen, great lawyers, great orators, have all tried and failed. Some partially succeed, and then lapse. They are in character in one act, and out in another. They have no continuity of true personation, as though a mimic were successful in part of his imitation of tones, and failed in another. S. N. V.

The Vows We Take.

The second vow we take in joining the Methodist Church is a profession of faith in the fundamental and cardinal doctrines of God's Holy Word. It is called the "Apostles' Creed"—that is to say, it is a brief, yet comprehensive, summing up of what the apostles clearly and plainly taught. This form, or formula, is very old. It can not well be improved upon. Nearly every word of it is accepted, held and firmly believed by every Christian man and woman under the sun. It contains nothing that is not essential to sound doctrine and indispensable to personal salvation. A plain and unmistakable "thus saith the Lord" can be given for every word in it. It contains no controverted, theological questions—none that are controverted by Protestant Christians in this country, and only two minor points controverted by Roman Catholics and Catholics generally.

This confession, or profession, of faith has nothing in the world to do with questions about baptism, orders, ordinances, election, reprobation, the final perseverance of the saints, apostasy, or anything of that kind. It is broad, general, and includes the common and fundamental items of the Christian faith. It is the creed of Christianity and of Christendom. There is not a member of any church in this country who does not believe every item herein expressed. Every member of the Methodist Church should commit the Apostles' Creed to memory. Here it is: "Dost thou believe in God the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth? and in Jesus Christ, his only-begotten Son, our Lord? and that he was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary? that he suffered under Pontius Pilate, was crucified, dead, and buried? that he rose again the third day? that he ascended into heaven, and sitteth at the right hand of God the Father Almighty, and from thence shall come again at the end of the world, to judge the quick and the dead? And dost thou believe in the Holy Ghost, the church of God, the communion of saints, the remission of sins, the resurrection of the body, and everlasting life after death?" Answer, "All this I stedfastly believe."

This is your profession, or confession, of faith in the presence of God and the whole congregation. If anybody asks you what you believe, it is full enough to repeat this. Hold it in your mind, and it will save you from many a blunder, error, and trouble. In order to be stedfast in this faith, it would be well for you to take it item by item, and back it up and buttress it on all sides by plain passages from God's Word. This will tend to make of you an intelligent Christian, strong in the faith, rooted and grounded in the doctrine of God, and ready to give a reason for the hope—faith—in you.

The several items in this creed are infinitely more important to you than to be posted on controverted questions, or to be well up on scriptural and theological puzzles. It is in this faith and on this profession that you are baptized. "Wilt thou then be baptized in this faith?" Answer, "This is my desire." This creed and the Twenty-five Articles of Religion are two entirely different things. They are not in conflict, not contrary, not contradictory of each other; but this creed is the creed of Christendom, and the Articles of Religion the creed of the Methodist Church. Of course, you will want to know what doctrines the Methodists hold and teach. It will require time, thought, reading and hard study to get well up and strong on all these points. What you gain, little by little, and by dint of hard study, will fully repay you for the labor expended. The great thing is to be growing in grace and in the knowledge and love of God. These things will not come to you by inspiration, nor by revelation, but by constant, prayerful study of God's Word and good books, and by the enlightening influence of the Holy Ghost. It is well for young Christians to know that the wisest men do not know everything that is to be known, and that all of them come into their present state of knowledge in the way here indicated. If you strike a knotty point, a hard question, go to your pastor, or some one older and wiser than yourself, and ask for help. Do not be ashamed to do this. Do not be timid about it. Your pastor is there for this purpose, and nothing will give him more pleasure than to help you.

GILDEROY.

In the Living Present.

Habitual humor deprives of confidence. Thomas Jefferson, at the time but little known, and not Benjamin Franklin, whose fame was already cosmopolitan, was chosen to write the Declaration of Independence. The representatives of the colonies feared Franklin's humor. The society of humorous persons is desired; but they are despised, nevertheless. Abraham Lincoln paid the usual penalty of being a humorist. His admirers could frequently not tell whether what he said was intended as serious or humorous.

A foreign paper assures that carrying out the motto, "De mortuis nil nisi bene," leads to prevarication. In this the Christians followed the heathen custom. The Greeks had their panegyrics, the Romans their laudatio. The Egyptians excelled all in praising the dead. In funeral orations, as on all other occasions, the truth should be upheld. To do otherwise is rank hypocrisy.

Professional humorists do not attain to old age. It is erroneous to suppose that constant merriment filled their soul. The reverse is true. It is well known that they are acrimonious pessimists. The constant friction between the seeming and the deeming wears them out prematurely. The editors of Puck and other humorous papers died young. So did Bill Nye.

We laughed at Dean Swift's conception in Gulliver's Travels of bottling up sunlight for future use. Now, a writer in Cosmos says that it has been discovered how to conserve sunlight in phosphorescent bodies. But the process is very expensive. This will prevent utilization.

The negro problem will solve itself peacefully. Many of our sable inhabitants emigrate to Northern climes. Pennsylvania, Illinois, and the District of Columbia are specially chosen as a place of residence. It is well. Our country is large enough to absorb them without social injury. Many of their former haunts in some Southern States are being occupied by Western and European immigrants.

With the exception of Queen Victoria, all European potentates are early risers. Emperor William is ready for work at five o'clock. An hour later are King Humbert of Italy, King Oscar of Sweden, and King Charles of Roumelia. All attend to their correspondence early in the morning. Laziness and crime question the truthfulness of the old adage, "Early to bed and early to rise, makes a man healthy and wealthy and wise."

The Waldensians, principally at home in the mountain fastnesses of Piedmont, Italy, are devoid of aggressiveness. Are not stronger now than fifty years ago. Of pastors, evangelists, teachers and colporters, they have now only 130. The membership numbers 25,000, though the average attendance on divine service during last year was less than one-third of that number. Contributions for all purposes amount annually to about $15,000. JEH DIEN.

The Sunday Law.

MR. EDITOR: I think with Rev. Jno. B. Kent and yourself that the friends of the State Sunday law should be actively at work. During the last two sessions of our Legislature we have had to send committees from the Sunday Rest League to Baton Rouge to counteract the efforts at repeal of the enemies of the law. Some time ago the Liquor Association of this city gave notice through the city press of their intention to have the Sunday law repealed by the present Legislature. The Sunday Rest League are alive to the situation, and have called a meeting for Wednesday next to take needed steps to preserve the law as it is. I think the preachers throughout the State can help save the Sunday law by at once writing themselves, and getting other influential men in their bounds to write also, to the members of the State Senate and the House of Representatives who have been sent from their section of the State. The good people of Louisiana should promptly let their law makers at Baton Rouge understand that, while it is not enforced as it should be in some quarters, they believe that the Sunday law should remain as it is. To abolish this law would give Louisiana the shameful distinction of being probably the only State in the Union without such a statute. The law is a good one, and no State has one more liberal in its provisions, for while it protects the hard-working, laboring and useful classes of our population in their rightful enjoyment of the day of rest, it only takes one day in seven from those who are engaged in the nefarious business of drunkard-making.

The liquor dealers are naturally those who are moving for its repeal, and they should not be allowed to prevail, for six days in the week are surely sufficient for the work they do in debauching the manhood of our State.

Mr. Editor, please publish a short heading for an appeal to the Legislature, and urge your readers to cut it out, and, pasting it at the top of some sheets of foolscap, circulate it for signatures, and forward promptly to their members of the Legislature for presentation to that body.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

May 15 1896.

FORM OF PETITION.

To the Legislature of the State of Louisiana:

We, the undersigned citizens of ——— parish, State of Louisiana, respectfully enter our protest against a repeal of the Sunday law now on our statute books.

An Observer's View.

Last Wednesday I boarded the Texas and Pacific train, intent on a canvassing tour in the interest of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. After a smooth run of some eighty-three miles I reached the town of Plaquemine. Here Bro. H. S. Johns and his estimable wife gave the writer a warm welcome. What a relief to get away from the dust, din, and dense atmosphere of the city, and roll rapidly through fields green with corn and cane! What an immense amount of land is devoted to the culture of these cereals in Louisiana! It is worth to remark that while traveling through this stretch of country I did not notice one badly tilled plantation. I concluded the politicians were not altogether ruining Louisiana after all. Bro. Johns' charge is progressing as things of this sort usually progress in Southern Louisiana. A man has to row up stream, walk up hill—in fact, he is opposed by all the antagonizing influences known in the moral and spiritual universe, in the average town, small and great, in Louisiana. If you don't believe it, try it for sixteen years, as I have, and you may do better than I have done. In order to relieve the pressure, Bro. Johns has invested in a small telescope, and, as opportunity affords, gazes at "heavenly places." He gave me a chance to gaze, too. We saw Jupiter and his moons; Saturn set slantwise in space, held by a ring; Mercury and one beautiful fixed star, which burned and flashed like a huge topaz; twin stars and tridets, with streaming nebulæ, thrown in for lagniappe. It was immense. If you want a new sensation, get a telescope. There are more things in heaven than you dreamed of. It is to be sincerely hoped that the fell power of Romanism does not reach the "fairer worlds on high" to blight and dwarf the souls of men.

On Thursday I stopped on my return trip at the bright, neat little town of White Castle. The rotund form and genial face of Bro. C. C. Wier makes a man feel good to see. A fine spirit pervades the entire place, and an air of general thrift and prosperity abounds. Mr. Bowie's mill and factory at this place is one of the largest in the State, and gives employment to numbers of men. The church here is increasing, and the pastor seems to exert a fine influence among the people. I enjoyed the hospitality of Dr. Pierce and his good wife; also spent the night with Bro. R. H. Williams. The kindness of these people is much appreciated. I secured several subscriptions for the ADVOCATE while among them.

VIATOR.

American Bible Society.

The stated meeting of the Board of Managers was held at the Bible House on Thursday, May 7, 1896.

The secretaries reported to the Board that the aggregate issues for the year ending March 31, 1896, were 1,750,283 volumes, being an increase of 169,155 volumes over the issues of the year immediately preceding. This striking fact was also stated, that for the first time in the society's history the aggregate number of volumes circulated abroad during any single year exceeded the number circulated in the United States. In China alone nearly 400,000 volumes were issued, and the entire circulation in foreign lands amounted to 890,150 volumes.

WORSHIP EVERYWHERE.

BY JOHN ELLERTON.

Behold us, Lord, a little space
From daily tasks set free,
And met within thy holy place
To rest awhile with thee.

Around us rolls the ceaseless tide
Of business, toil and care;
And scarcely can we turn aside
For one brief hour of prayer.

Yet these are not the only walls
Wherein thou may'st be sought;
On homeliest work thy blessing falls,
In truth and patience wrought.

Thine is the loom, the forge, the mart,
The wealth of land and sea;
The world is of science and of art,
Revealed and ruled by thee.

Then let us prove our heavenly birth
In all we do and know;
And claim the kingdom of the earth
For thee and not thy foe.

Work shall be prayer, if all be wrought
As thou would'st have it done;
And prayer, by thee inspired and taught,
Itself with work be one.

A Letter to Young Preachers.

MY DEAR BRETHREN: I feel called to write this letter to you, not that my course is commendable, but for the opposite reason. I was robbed by the late war of the benefits of even a moderate education. Soon after the war I was converted and called to the ministry. I entered at once into active work, with but little preparation. The field was then white unto harvest, and laborers were few, and those few were sowing and reaping almost without money and without price. My labors in the beginning of my ministry was confined to the rural sections of our country. Success attended my efforts. I passed successfully all the examinations, and was ordained elder by our sainted McTyeire. How I passed the examinations, having so little knowledge of the prescribed course of study, I do not know; but I passed. That I have been from a child a reader of almost everything at hand, all who know me will bear testimony: but that I have never been a student, I, of all others, am painfully conscious.

I have been honored by my Conference, advanced by the powers that be, filling some of the best appointments in the districts in which I served, occupying positions on Boards and committees, and last, but not least, filling for years next to the highest office in our church, and all the while I have been hampered, handicapped, and embarrassed by my lack of knowledge. A constant reader, getting a smattering of everything, but absolutely knowing nothing, I have been timorous, shrinking, skulking. Where I should have been confident, courageous, and brave, called into responsible positions by my brethren, who have measured my ability by my zeal in the cause nearest my heart, I have trembled, agonized, and wept under burdens which have well nigh crushed me to the earth, and which have robbed me of sleep, destroyed appetite, and sent me with enfeebled and quivering frame before vast audiences to fill important houses, conscious only of my unfitness for the position occupied.

And now, near the end of an eventful journey, I lift up a warning voice to my young brethren in the ministry, admonishing them to avoid the mistakes which I have made. And, first of all, do not rush presumptuously into the pastorate without the necessary fitness of knowledge. You may possess every other qualification in an eminent degree, but, if lacking in this, you will be hampered and embarrassed in your work from the beginning to the end; and a mistake here may, and doubtless will, be fatal to your usefulness and happiness through your whole life. Therefore, use your natural gifts and graces in a circumscribed sphere, holding in obeyance the call to the pastorate until you have acquired the knowledge necessary to give you success in that greatest of all offices. Seek preparation for this life-work in the very best school accessible, and if your circumstances are such that you can not avail yourself of the advantages of a good school, then procure the books necessary to your equipment, and employ every available moment of time and every possible aid until you can, at least, with the assurance of knowing in part, enter into your life's work with a vigor of which you will be a stranger if you make the mistake of entering into the work unprepared; and I would admonish my young brethren, whose zeal has led them into the active work of the pastorate poorly equipped for the work, not to squander their time, talents, and natural gifts, nor waste their energies and resources in dipping into every conceivable subject. Desultory reading is infatuating and almost profitless, and is, therefore, to be depreciated next to not reading at all. Both are destructive to the powers of the mind, and belittling to the attributes of the soul.

And, again, I would admonish you against the indiscriminate purchase of books. Purchase a book for what it will be worth to you primarily, and, secondarily, for what it will be worth to others, when you have made it yours in a three-fold sense—i. e., gotten it into your hands, head, and heart; and in this sense, my brethren, be sure to possess a Bible. In order to self-protection and preservation, turn a deaf ear to book and newspaper agents, for if you listen to them, you will soon have your library crowded with useless lumber and worthless trash, and your table covered with periodicals whose chief stock in trade is a record of crimes from the highest seat of State to the lowest slums in back-alley; and if you are not cautious, you will be led almost imperceptibly into worse than to a waste of time in reading this damning record. One good reliable secular paper, if there be such in this year of grace, will be sufficient to post you in all that is necessary for you to know, from the highest positions in life to the lowest stall of degradation. And as to politics, you will be compelled to listen for hours to its discussion by men every whit as wise (at least in their conceits) as those who write upon the subject.

Bidding everyone of you God-speed in every effort to store your minds with useful knowledge, I am,

Your friend to the last, S.

Reply to "Gilderoy."

I've just finished looking over my first lesson from Bro. "Gilderoy," my good teacher.

Now, my brother, I did not feel that you had treated me discourteously, and am sorry I made that impression on your mind; so we will be friends and brethren when this school is out. But, say, my dear teacher, haven't you changed the question? We started out on the question of sound doctrine, did we not? And I see in this article you say you did not wish to controvert the question of shouting. Now, I have been satisfied all the while that you were sound on the question of shouting, and, of course, a voice, tears and shouting, all combined, have nothing to do with sound doctrine, either for or against; so I only made the assertions to which you refer, that you might make the points clear. Your criticisms were so worded that it was rather difficult for one to determine, who was not well acquainted with you, as to which side you were on; but you are clear in your statements now; pupil and teacher's together. I hadn't thought at all that either one had anything to do with sound doctrine.

Now, I believe you've reached the proper solution, and I like your answer to my question, for I have thought all the while the trouble was with the pupil, and not the doctrine, for Paul says in Rom. i, 16: "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." So it's the power of God accompanying the pure gospel when preached, and brings deliverance through faith to the penitent sinner who is regenerated. This we understand to be an instantaneous work; hence the correctness of my quotation from Hebrews. The Word of God is quick and powerful; quick to unfold to man the fact that he is a sinner, and as readily offers the remedy; so, comes vested with power to relieve the burdened heart. Therefore, we should expect immediate results from the pure gospel preached in power and demonstration, and I think if my teacher will read the critical commentary, he will find after all that I'm not so badly mistaken in my application.

Now, he asked me to turn to some unabridged dictionary and look at the word "quick." I have done this, and find that either Webster is wrong, or your pupil is right, in the meaning of this word. We both give the same definition, so I find a dictionary indispensable in the right use of words. My teacher says I should not be used by words; but, if we could let the Word of God use us some time, wouldn't we likely accomplish more? I think I have this word, perhaps, in the right place.

Lastly, he says: "Knowledge of doctrine is acquired just as any other kind of information is gained."

Now, my teacher will have to give a little more light on that point to his pupil. The illiterate may obtain salvation without a long process of development, I think. If not, how about the case of the thief? Yesterday a thief; to-day he goes to paradise in company with his Lord. Oh, for faith to believe that we may be saved from our sins immediately!

Now, I believe in development and growth, but I do not understand how we can grow into grace. We may grow in grace.

Now, my teacher has not said that we could grow into grace, but that it takes time, hard work, deep thought, to understand the doctrines of God's Word. I want to be careful in my statements, so as not to hinder, but help the sinner. This slow process may be true in reference to the natural man, but the gospel, in its power, has to do with the spiritual man, and is, therefore, quick in its process of developing a sinner into a saved man. Then he may go on to perfection—yes, through eternal years, perhaps.

Now, if I'm not correct in reference to the saving power of the gospel, will my teacher please make some quotations from the Bible to show me that I'm not in harmony with God's Word? That is next.

Now, we're together in voice, crying and shouting, and I think will be on sound doctrine soon. Let us praise the Lord for a gospel with power sufficient to save a sinner now.

W. J. O'BRYANT.

The Necessity of Hope.

There is not a living man who does not desire to make his life happier and better. Hope, in spite of our evil inclinations and desires, leads us to look beyond this world of sorrows and tears to a home that is immortal and fair. Worldliness may for awhile drown out consciousness, and hush into stillness the earnest convictions of the heart and mind; yet in our heart of hearts there remains a longing which no earthly thing can satisfy. We are by nature beings of hope and trust, and nothing short of heaven and eternal rest will satisfy our weary, sin-sick souls.

It is our nature, I say, to hope and trust, and endeavor by all means possible to make life a success and a blessing. He that has no hope has no God, no future, no heaven. This life is all. Death ends all. The grave covers the last vistago of human life. No resurrection of the dead, no life everlasting. All is annihilation, all is gloom, impenetrable gloom. Silence, eternal silence. No tongue to ever speak again, no ear to ever hear again, no eye to ever see again, no feet to ever walk again. Man silenced forever. No mother will ever kiss again the dimpled cheeks of the darling babe torn by death from her bosom. No child shall ever hope to meet again that father and mother they once loved so well. No, none of us will ever meet again. We will fall into a dreamless sleep that will kiss our eyelids down, and command us "to silence and pathetic dust."

Such is the thought and belief of those who have no hope, and are without God in the world. What horrible thought, what horrible belief! Nothing to inspire one, nothing to encourage one, and nothing to brighten the pathway to the tomb. What a boon, then, is hope amid such darkness and superstition! Is it not then the anchor of the soul? Is it not the eye of faith, guiding man from the darkness and gloom of earth to the mansions of the pure and blest? How pleasant then to hope, to look beyond this weary vale of tears to the glories and beauties that be in the heavenly valleys beyond. Well has Dr. Samuel Johnson said: "It is necessary for us to hope, though hope should always be deluded, for hope itself is happiness, and its frustrations, however great, are not less dreadful than its extinction."

But there are times when we who hope doubt; hours when the soul is dark and clouded; hours when sorrows like billows roll over the soul and shut out the little light within. It is then in such hours that the soul feels its weakness and its despondency, and longs to seek comfort and happiness in communion and fellowship with God. How sweet and pleasant then, in such times, to look beyond self, to think of God, to think of eternity, to think of the rest God has prepared for those that love him; to sink out of self into Christ, to enlarge and expand our views, and to meditate earnestly upon the great things of God; to believe that Jesus is the way, the truth and the life, and that "whosoever believeth in him, though he be dead, yet shall he live, and he that liveth and believeth in him shall never die." Or like David say: "Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God." VERITAS.

Indifference of the Church.

Is our church doing all in her power for a rapid development of her fields? I grant you that our Conferences are making noble efforts in appropriations to redeem these fields, but among great masses of our laity there exists simply a sentiment of indifference to the welfare of these fields around their doors. There is a stigma upon the very work itself, and a disposition to relegate it to the care of untrained preachers. Infants are expected to extirpate fossilized heresy and to locate and vanquish errors that have been entrenched for ages. And the man who is sent to these works is regarded as a weakling—a sort of a student, looking out for a better position, and who may be criticised for having little enough sense to drag his family into the work.

Merciful Father in heaven! If we possessed the inspiration of St. Paul, the exegesis of John Wesley, and the wisdom and eloquence of our greatest Bishops and doctors, could we not gloriously bestow it all upon these immortal souls? A correction of this error in public sentiment would result in a glorious reformation in home mission work. Zealous churches contiguous to these fields can do much to stimulate them and, at least, relieve the pastor who is found hauling his corn in a buggy and "living in paper socks."

In conclusion, I will say: This circuit embraces about four hundred square miles of good country, and is in prime condition for development. By dint of great sacrifice we have been enabled to move into a newly built parsonage which is only half completed. We have yet five churches to build. We have preached in cold weather to shivering congregations, when the wind whistled through the building that had neither window nor door shutters. Some of our faithful people are doing all in their power to remedy these matters, but we need help.

I make this proposition to the Conference, the Board of Church Extension and the church at large: Help us on our feet; then assess us, and I can safely guarantee that the money will be forthcoming.

Discovering Evil and Good.

When a man goes seriously and practically about doing good, he is apt to discover a great deal more evil than he ever dreamed of. Active goodness uncovers evil, and so makes an apparent increase of it. But there is another side to the case—doing good always brings unknown good to light. A man who does not care, knows little of the suffering of his neighbors; as soon as he begins to care, he is amazed at the amount of that suffering. When, however, he undertakes to relieve distress, he finds other good men of whom he knew not, to help him; and every great heart has always found other great hearts to join in the ministry of charity. — Western Christian Advocate.

Truth has a heart, and only heart can find it. What we understand by dogma to-day is what is left of some holy old vision, but with all the original heavenly light died out of it. It is truth's body, but in which the warm currents of truth's blood no longer circulate. The theologian constructs his system of theology out of truths that have ceased to beat, very much as the botanist constructs his herbarium out of dead flowers. All the theology that is in the church to-day is in the Epistles, but it is not there as theology. So all the bone dust that is in our grave-yards to-day was once in society, but it was not there as bone dust.—Dr. C. H. Parkhurst.

Daily Opportunities.

Every day brings with it many opportunities to learn truth, to shun evil, to do good, and by these means to lay the foundations for a true spiritual life in ourselves, and to assist others in doing it; many occasions to do our work. Let us do it while it is day. Let us do it better than we have ever done it before. Let us accomplish more. Let us grow to a riper age, to a fuller spiritual stature, that when the day is done we may all be able to say, in the language of our great Exemplar: "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do."—Selected.

It is said Columbus, nearing the shores of the new world, believed the story which the waves and skies brought him—that land was not far away. Birds came near and floated on the mid air, and at last perched upon the masts and twittered their praise of the shore. Berries were seen in the sea and were caught up from the wave and eaten by the happy sailors. Land was nigh. That is a picture of Christian old age. The heavenly shores are near enough, so that the rich fruits of the other world are within reach of the weary mariner. Angels of hope and benediction come to the souls and flutter over the tired life, and ride home to land with the creaking old ship. May God help us all to such an old age as this!—Chicago Tribune.

He who never connects God with his daily life knows nothing of the spiritual meanings and uses of life; nothing of the calm, strong patience with which ills may be endured; of the gentle, tender comfort which the Father's love can minister; of the blessed rest to be realized in his foregoing love, his tender fatherhood; of the deep, peaceful sense of the infinite One ever near, a refuge and a strength.—Archdeacon Farrar.

Christianity has no more precious possession than the memory of Jesus during the week when he stood face to face with death. Unspeakably great as he always was, it may be reverently said that he was never so great as during those days of direct calamity. He triumphed over his sufferings, not by the cold severity of a stoic, but by self-forgetting love.—James Stalker.

If you should wish to be miserable, you must think about yourself—about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay to you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you, you will be as wretched as you choose.—Kingsley.

Only they whose faces shine with the glory of some inspiration which lifts them out of themselves shall ever do abiding work in this earnest world, and themselves shine in the memory of those who come after. To "press toward the mark of the high calling" is the secret of all true success.—Rev. H. W. Foote.

"Worried In."

"I am so glad to find you interested in our society and such an active member," said one friend to another as they walked home from a monthly missionary meeting. The first speaker had just returned after a long absence, to find her neighbor re-enforcing the old "stand-bys." "How did it happen?" she asked. "You used to feel that duties at home were too pressing to let you go to meeting."

"So I did," replied the new member, "and I would have rested calmly in that belief until this time, I suppose, if our president had only been willing to let me alone. But she wasn't willing, and she wouldn't do it. She was an embodied Lookout Committee, all herself, and she seemed to be always on the lookout for me, to invite me to the meeting and ask me to join the society. I told her over and over that my children were small and I could not, in conscience, leave them to run to meetings, and that my home cares were legion. But she kept on with her plea of 'just one hour a month,' and kept telling me about the work of the society and explaining that they needed help, and that I would enjoy it, and all that, till I declare, I had no peace of my life. She fairly worried me into the meeting, and I consented to go just to get rid of her."

"Are you vexed with her for being so persistent? Are you sorry you began? What makes you keep on?" the questions came eagerly.

"Indeed, I'm not vexed, and I'm not sorry, and I can't help keeping on," came the no less eager answers. I found that my children were better without me one hour a month, and that I was far better fitted to teach and care for them, and I loved to do it as never before, after I knew of the ways of heathen mothers. Blessings on our president who kept at it until she worried me into so helpful a meeting."

ONE WHO HEARD THEM.
— Review of Missions.

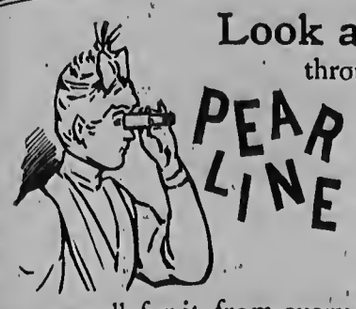
But the flowering gardens of Mexico and the fruit-bearing fields of Brazil and China make us anxious about the future of "those women who labor with us in the gospel." All who have observed the wonderful increase of missionary intelligence, the quickening of the missionary conscience at home, and the increased faith and efficiency of our workers abroad by the presence of and companionship of the appointees of the Woman's Board can not but feel anxious upon the slightest evidence of abating zeal or subsiding interest.

It is to be feared that this, in common with all new movements, profited at first by the romance, the novelty, of the work. Men, alas, had been playing at missions for a century with unsatisfactory results. The women, feeling that they had been brought to the "kingdom for such a time as this," entered upon the task with the enthusiasm born of a new emotion, and unappalled by the magnitude or difficulty of the task, went to work in the Spirit of their Master, creating by their enthusiasm the conditions of their own success. But the wearing off of this novelty is in danger of leaving the movement without sufficient resources to fulfill the promise of its earlier years.....

A glance at the reports of the society for the past three or four years show a falling off of the receipts which, after allowing for the financial stringency, is by no means assuring when we consider that out of 800,000 women in our communion only a paltry 32,358 have been enlisted in this great work in seventeen years; and what is still more suggestive, the income of the society, which showed an average yearly increase of $6,297.32 for the first twelve years of its history, has during the last five years suffered an average loss of $1,447.42. This, too, in the face of the fact that during the years from 1890 to 1895 $107,580.78 was collected for the Training-school, nearly all of which was collected between the years 1888 and 1892. It is significant, too, that these were the years the society enjoyed by far the largest income it has ever known.

One thing now seems certain: If the noble work in the foreign field is to continue to grow, there must be intelligent and constant attention given to the work at home.

May I be allowed to suggest the propriety of placing in the field a able, cultured, consecrated woman with ample salary, who shall begin a campaign of education, digging deep and "laying the foundation on the rock" of God's truth. I am sure the immediate results would more than repay the outlay, and the future would vindicate the wisdom of the course by deepening and broadening the stream of Christian beneficence, and those sands not now enlisted would learn the joy of the "Last Beatitude": "It is more blessed to give than to receive." I would not suggest this at the expense of the Foreign Office. The secretary must be kept in Nashville. The society now has such an one in that peerless woman, whom all Kentucky and the South honors and loves, Mrs. S. C. Trueheart; but a field secretary is a necessity if the society is to have a foundation on which to rear the structure that is to mark the return of the church to the Christian idea of the federation of "all flesh" in the kingdom of God. These observations, suggested by a glance at the history of the society, are submitted in the humble hope that they be of profit to some to the glory of his name.—Rev. G. W. Young, Nashville Advocate.



Look at Pearline

through the wrong end of the glass, if you will; make all its labor-saving, money-saving qualities appear as small as you like; cut them down one-half;—and still there will be left a place for it in every home and an urgent call for it from every bright, progressive woman.

To sell Pearline, it isn't necessary to exaggerate its virtues. Perhaps that couldn't easily be done. But even without telling of them all, there's enough to prove it the easiest, quickest, safest and most economical thing you can use, in all washing and cleaning.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 458 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

Waste Places.

I am aware of the fact that there are many neglected places in my own native State (Mississippi), and I know of some such places personally myself in the bounds of North Mississippi that do not have the gospel of Jesus Christ, simply because they are too poor to pay for it. I do not wish to be understood that they are too poor financially; only as a consequence of spiritual poverty. The places I allude to, for the most part, are in those communities found in the rural districts, where churches have not yet been organized, and houses of worship erected; or in many cases where they have been abandoned by pastors to whom it seemed that they had to give their time and attention to those places or communities that would take more interest in religion in the way of supporting the gospel with their means. I would not censure an innocent pastor at all. I am not writing on that line nor for that purpose, for God knows only the desires, burdens and delicate responsibilities of a good, faithful pastor; and it is a great hindrance to any man to have to give his whole time, care, love, labor and attention to a people or community of people, and then not to receive of them carnal or temporal things according to the instruction of God's Word, and thus realize that he is appreciated by those whom he serves. The Bible is as clear on the doctrine that they who preach the gospel shall receive a support in temporal blessings as any other plain truth taught in Revelation. But I started out to write in behalf of "neglected places," and as I have first not failed to call attention to some neglected pastors, I will now proceed.

Isaiah said, "The wilderness and the solitary places shall be glad for them, and the desert shall rejoice and blossom as the rose; it shall blossom abundantly." If those waste places were looked after more than they are—especially when they are densely populated—and the gospel preached, and sinners converted, and societies organized, and houses of worship erected, and the people educated to support the gospel and then placed under pastoral care, many such places would soon become prominent and important points on circuits.

These places will never convert and organize themselves into churches. Like all other people, they will have to be saved and lifted by the actual preaching of the gospel. Think for a moment of a vacant place, or, at least, unoccupied territory by the Methodist pastor, within horseback reach of a circuit; and in hundreds of such cases there are school-houses with a half dozen or a dozen of Methodist members — or would-be members—if they have preaching, and could soon be brought into circuit recognition. Methodism always blossoms when the seed is planted. But how are those neglected places ever going to be worked up and saved if they are not looked after? And who will look after them if the ministers do not? And where is a more suitable class of ministers to do this work than the Methodists?

Brethren, in the name of Christ, look clear through this important matter and imagine yourselves standing before the Master at the judgment bar, when all things will be brought into account.

I believe in our foreign missionary work with all of my heart. I could not believe in Christ and the gospel without believing in the conversion of the heathens in foreign lands, and I thank God the walls of opposition are falling flat to the ground, doors are opening, and the kingdom is coming. I feel to praise God for all of these blessings on our foreign fields. Now, don't you think we should give our attention to the poor at our doors, and to those who need our immediate attention at home, and thus carry on the good work at home and abroad too?

How often have I heard it asked, "Why don't the evangelists go into the waste places and work among those that have no preaching?" And some say, "They want to go where the best churches are organized, and where they can get the largest crowds." To this question that some ask I would answer that "evangelists" are only local ministers, and the common-sense local preachers are endowed with a degree of modesty, and hence only go where they are invited, just like other preachers who are trying to do good. And in our earnest endeavors to lead as many to Christ as is possible we like a good large crowd in common with zealous itinerants.

I especially ask presiding elders and pastors of North Mississippi, in my home Conference, to search out those needy, out-of-the-way, unoccupied, school-house places that are pretty well populated, and that they would like to see built up, and write me about them. At the same time give me names and postoffice address of leading persons in such communities who would be likely to co operate with me—say, the names of two or more persons of each place of postoffice where attention is needed, and they will soon hear of one evangelist having conversions and getting a support too—in waste places.

My excuse for this communication is because it is the sincere desire of my heart to work where work is most needed, in the salvation of sinners—not for the want of invitations to towns. I have had more than I have been able to meet. Those needy places to which preachers have an opportunity of calling another's attention to shall have, or as many of them shall have my attention as is possible after I shall have met all previous engagements. And I will put the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE among them, too, and sell some Bibles. Try me.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. T. Murrah, Durant, Miss., May 6: "Our church has enjoyed a very gracious meeting of ten days. I was assisted in the services by Revs. T. W. Lewis, of Grenada, and O. L. Savage, of Cockrum. Bro. Savage was called home in the early part of the meeting. Not, however, before he had brought us under great obligations to him for his valuable services in song and religious talks among the people. Bro. Lewis came Tuesday, April 14, and stayed to the close. The congregations were large, serious and attentive. The preaching of Bro. Lewis was of a very fine order. For clearness of conception and direction of utterance I never heard this series of sermons surpassed. He does not draw and entertain by novel methods. He preaches the gospel of Jesus Christ. In preparation his pen, like Paul's, is 'dipped in the ink horn of his own heart.' He stands before the people as a messenger of the church and the glory of Christ. He is richly endowed with that peculiar something called 'magnetism.' He is well equipped both by nature and grace to attract souls to the kingdom of Christ. The numerical results of the meeting were small; the spiritual and reviving influence on a cold and indifferent membership are beyond human computation. Durant is like a great many of our towns; has a large 'honorary church membership' Their conduct and tastes do not indicate a change of heart. They are familiar with the name of Holy Spirit, but are strangers to his regenerating power. We would like to see you, Mr. Editor, in this part of the ADVOCATE's territory."

Rev. G. W. Gordon, Columbus, Miss, May 6: "Columbus circuit is moving along nicely. Our second Quarterly Conference was held last Saturday (May 2). Rev. R. A. Burroughs was at his post and delighted our people by his preaching and the ease and thoroughness with which he looked after the various interests of the church. The work made good financial report—about $269 having been raised, and besides about $300 for the building of new church. Sunday-schools are taking on new life. There are five Sunday-schools in the charge, and we are organizing for the observance of Children's Day in all of them. The indications are favorable for a glorious revival throughout the charge. Pray for us."

Rev. A. W. Langley, P. C, Grenada circuit, North Mississippi Conference, May 6: "Our old historic Spring Hill Church, on this work, is being torn down. The old house has stood the storms of nearly fifty years. In the cemetery near by, among many other good and faithful followers of Jesus, sleeps some of the prophets of the Lord of long gone-by years. Among them Joseph Travis — 'Uncle Travis' he was called here—whose name is associated with the early history of Methodism in North and South Carolina, as well as here in the west. How sad that no marble slab marks the resting-place of one who did so much for the salvation of men. Here, too, is the grave of John F. Markham, of our Conference, than whom we never had many greater preachers. While the servant of God rests from his labors, many of us still feed upon those logical, strong and earnest sermons he used to preach. By the middle of June we are to have erected a new and beautiful temple of worship on this consecrated spot where the pioneers of this country tented and worshiped long before the old house was built The material is also ordered and a contract made with the same builder for a new and complete house of worship at Sparta. Bethel, built but a few years ago, is being painted inside and out. These new buildings and repairs done, no charge in our Conference composed of small town and country appointments will have better and more beautiful houses of worship than the Grenada circuit. Our parsonage, located here in the town of Grenada, has also been considerably repaired since Conference. Our second Quarterly Conference is just over. Bro. Morehead, as usual, was in his place preaching and presiding as a man of God. His sermons on the occasion will certainly produce fruit, especially the one on Sunday. His coming is looked to with much interest by the people here, having been their pastor for a term of four years in the past. We are much indebted to the good people of Grenada for help in our church-buildings. Bro. M. G. Dubard has manifested as much interest in our parsonage as if it had been the home of his own pastor."

PUBLISHER'S NOTICES.

Holman Bible at $1.25.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to May, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on account of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES.

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e.; up to May, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2.45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

At Abbeville.

By invitation of the pastor, Rev. S. B. Beall, we went to Abbeville, La., last week, on a lecturing expedition. This was our first trip to that section. Abbeville is a very pretty little town of about 1,500 inhabitants. The country around is a lovely region, and has a glorious future before it. It has the natural resources to make it one of the garden spots of the land, but is retarded in its onward march by the character of its citizenship, a large percentage of which belongs to that non-progressive class for which South Louisiana is famous. In "the good time coming," when American Protestantism shall have superseded Creole Catholicism as the dominating element, and when Louisiana shall have made some much-needed reforms, legal, social, and political, this region will become one of the most prosperous in the South.

Bro. Beall is in clover. He has fine congregations, and is exceedingly popular in the church and out of it. The people are taking good care of him, not only paying him a fair salary, but doing a great deal for him and his family that is not counted as quarterage—an example worthy of imitation.

During our stay in Abbeville we were royally entertained by Bro. Frank Wall and his estimable wife. We also enjoyed the hospitalities of Bro. and Sister Beall at the parsonage. We had the pleasure of meeting Bro. Beall's father, Rev. W. T. Beall, of Moss Point, Miss., who, with his wife, was on a visit to the preacher son.

Rev. Dr. Morris.

On all sides the reception of Rev. Dr. Morris, the fraternal messenger of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to our General Conference, at Cleveland, will be deplored. It was one of those unfortunate things which sometimes occur to mar the dignity and beauty of great occasions. We are sincerely gratified that the Reception Committee and the General Conference hastened to express their regrets, and invite the return of the fraternal messenger. But we can not refrain, in noticing such a passing event, from believing that some of the blame must attach to Dr. Morris himself. There is no excuse for his keeping himself incognito. It was easy for him to have made himself known to any one of the hundreds of delegates he saw around him. Above all, it would have been pertinent for him to have addressed a note to Bishop Bowman, the senior Bishop, or to the secretary of the Conference, informing them of his arrival, and of his mission to the Conference. As it is, Dr. Morris, it seems to us, has placed the two great churches, which were so kindly feeling their way toward each other, if not in a new state of unpleasantness, at least in a state of awkwardness towards each other. But certainly grace is at high tide just now in both these churches, and the incident, while regrettable all round, should not for a moment cause a ripple on the flowing tide of fraternity.—Western Advocate.

Is There a Second Probation?

There is a notion current in the world that men after they die are to be given another chance to repent and be saved. The wicked wish to believe this, and with many the wish in due time becomes father to such a belief. The sinner is always ready to find an excuse for putting off the day of repentance. Even those who believe firmly that our probation ends at death often live as if there were no hereafter. If the generality of men could be convinced that our destiny is not fixed irrevocably by our conduct in this world, the effect upon morality would be disastrous. We do not know of any false doctrine that is more mischievous in tendency than the one under consideration. Sin is rampant enough as it is. If in the face of repeated warnings that we are to be judged according to the deeds done in the body, men are guilty of all manner of wickedness, to what extremes would they not go, were the notion to become generally current that repentance and salvation are possible to the disembodied spirits? The conviction that we are to be saved in heaven or lost in hell according as we have lived righteously or unrighteously in this life is one of the greatest possible blessings to humanity. Belief in a second probation is the twin sister of universalism, and the parent of unbridled licentiousness.

Few indeed of those who profess to believe in a second probation are bold enough to say that the Scriptures teach such a thing. Knowing that their theory will not hold water when tested by the Word of God, the advocates of this belief harp much upon the goodness of God, and the great injustice of condemning men for the few sins they commit during this short life.

Let us notice briefly some of the many passages in the Bible that plainly contradict this error. In the parable of Dives and Lazarus, we are told that the rich man having lifted up his eyes in hell, being in torments, cried out to Abraham: "Send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my parched tongue." There is no request that he be removed from the place of torment, nor even the slightest intimation that such a change could be effected. Poor Dives realizes that he is lost forever. If any such hope still lingered in his breast, the reply of Abraham extinguished it, for to Dives he said: "Between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: so that they which pass from hence to you can not; neither can they pass to us that would come from thence." Again, Jesus, in speaking of the final judgment, says: "The hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation." Not a word is here said about the possibility of post mortem repentance and conversion. In exact accord with the teaching of the Savior are the words of St. Paul respecting the judgment: "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." Time and again in the New Testament death is referred to as a sleep, thus conveying the idea of an unchangeable, non-active condition of the soul after its separation from the body. Nowhere in the Bible do we find a promise that affords the least shadow of hope to those who die unrepentant. The exhortation, "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life," teaches in unmistakable language that human probation ends with this life.

To the objection that an infinitely just God would not condemn men eternally for the sins committed during such a limited probation, we answer: If there is to be any probation at all, it must be limited. An endless probation would amount to nothing. Furthermore, we assert that there can be no such thing as holiness apart from the undergoing of a test or trial which involves the possibility of sinning. A probation which could not eventuate otherwise than in the production of goodness would be but a farce. Unless man is a free agent, having power to choose either good or evil, he is a mere machine in the hands of God, and whatever goodness or virtue he may exhibit is necessitated, not voluntary. Since, then, we are either righteous or sinners by choice, for no man can say that he is compelled to sin, and since God has given us full knowledge of the fact that this life is the time of our moral probation, where is the injustice in condemning the unrepentant?

It is a slander upon God to say that he created hell, and that the punishment of the sinner is due to his arbitrary will. Just as water seeks its level, so the sinner consigns himself to the abode of the damned, and his sinful character keeps him there. The wicked bring punishment upon themselves, for it is character that makes men happy or miserable. As Milton says:

> "The mind is its own place,
> And of itself can make
> A heaven of hell, a hell of heaven."

The reason of the separation at death of the holy from the unholy is to be found in human character. The righteous love God, and go to him; the wicked hate God, and love iniquity. Hence they go to their own place. As Dr. W. F. Tillett, of Vanderbilt University, has well said: "It is not the place that makes hell, it is the people there: it is the wicked character of those who are there. The future punishment of the sinner, therefore, does not mean confinement in a certain place of misery from which, if he could escape, he would be happy; but it means a state of misery inseparable from his wicked character, which misery would not be diminished, but rather increased if the sinner were in the immediate presence of God and the holy saints and angels. The vulgar idea of heaven and hell is, that the one is a place of happiness and the other a place of torment—and that if perchance a sinner should get into heaven, he would be happy; and that if a saint should get into hell, he would be miserable—in short, that it is place, and not character, that determines future weal and woe."

Would a rake or a gambler be content to be constantly in the company of devout Christians? Does the inebriate love to associate with the sober and industrious? You could hardly inflict greater punishment upon men of loose morals than to limit them to the company of the pure and the good. As a rule, lovers of worldly amusements feel ill at ease when in the company of the positively religious. The habitual pleasure seeker is not apt to enjoy himself at a prayer meeting. No little truth is there in the old saying that "birds of a feather flock together." You may furnish a hog the finest pen and the cleanest bed of sand to be had, but his hogship will not be at ease until he can root in filth and wallow in the mire.

If men find little pleasure in the knowledge and service of God here in this world, how can they expect to enjoy themselves in heaven, his immediate dwelling-place? The things that we love most here determine our fitness either for the joys of the saints in glory or for the woes of the finally lost. If communion with Christ be not our chief joy now, it can not become so by our entrance into another state through the operation of death, for there is nothing in the nature of death to work a change in human character. Transferring an eagle from a cage to the free air does not change the eagle nature. It only gives an opportunity for the exercise of his powerful pinions. The laying aside of the body does not bring about the regeneration of the soul any more than the breaking down of prison walls means the reformation of the escaping inmates.

It might be thought that after death the sinner would see his mistake more clearly, be sure to repent. But we assert that even the torments of hell are powerless to change character, for the reason that the sinner who up to the day of his death has not repented, has become so confirmed in evil habits that his character is fixed. We might suppose that the convicted criminal after having served out his time in the penitentiary would never be guilty of crime again. The fact is, however, that the man who has been to prison once is almost sure to go there again. It is stated on good authority that a larger proportion of ex-convicts are arrested for crime than of any other class of persons. Punishment, then, does not reform men. Rather does it harden them in evil. Its aim is the prevention of crime, rather than the reformation of character.

Again, we must remember that God's supernatural influences are limited to this life. While upon earth the sinner has every incentive to righteousness that the infinite wisdom and goodness of God can provide. He has the preaching of faithful ministers, the pleadings of faithful friends, the warnings of God's Word, and the wooings of the Holy Spirit to lead him to repentance. If he heeds not these, there is nothing beyond the grave to influence him to love righteousness. In hell there are no churches, no Bibles, no prayers, no sermons, no spiritual influences. "If the tree falls toward the south or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth there it shall be."

Bishops' Address.

Many of our readers we are sure will be pleased to have the opportunity to read the following extract from the address of the Bishops to the General Conference of the M. E. Church now in session at Cleveland, Ohio. In view of the radical utterances of the press on the subject it is gratifying to learn from such a source that the church is better pleased than ever before with the itinerant system.

"We congratulate you and the church you represent that our peculiar polity has received another four years' indorsement as God's plan for the working of the Methodist Episcopal Church. As we strive to find out the wishes both of the churches and of the preachers, as we endeavor to take these two interested parties into our councils, it seems to us that both are more trustful of the system and its administration than ever before. In over 50,000 appointments during the quadrennium, the cases of friction and discontent have been extremely few. Both preachers and people have been loyal to the itinerant system and co-operative therewith.

"The people recognize that the system of regular annual appointments gives them a stated pastor all the time without long intervals of anxious seeking after supplies, and that it economizes the resources of the church by obviating the necessity of one church bidding against another, to offer a man a higher call than the place he now fills. The preachers recognize the fact that it gives them regular work, and a salary without anxiety, during the whole period of their effective strength. And both churches and pastors see that in these regular and necessitated changes the able and young ministers have facilities to rise to positions of greater usefulness.

"We do not recommend any material change in the time limit, or in the mode of making appointments; but suggest that your wisdom might provide some method by which, under ample safeguards, the pastoral term might be extended to meet very rare cases of manifest and grave emergency. And we do earnestly pray that our itinerant system, so venerable in its history, so illustrious for unparalleled success, so dear to millions who have been saved under its operations, and so manifestly owned of God for the conversion of the world may not be subjected to subversive utterances from platform or press, nor be handed over while yet so virile and strong to the dissecting tables of doctors who are not yet wise from experience nor philosophy, but that it may be held by you in grateful reverence and handed down in unimpaired efficiency till God's church militant be merged into the church triumphant."

A New Book.

THE WITNESSES TO CHRIST, THE SAVIOR OF THE WORLD. Lectures delivered before the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University. By Alpheus W. Wilson, D. D., one of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Barbee & Smith. Price, $1.

In this volume we have the first course of lectures delivered on the Cole Foundation. It is to be hoped that these will set the standard high for all that are to follow. In the book now before us we have great elevation of thought combined with profound spiritual insight.

The Bishop discusses his theme in six lectures, with the following titles: I. The Inadequacy of Human Testimony. II. The Conjoint Testimony of The Father and The Son. III. The Testimony of the Works. IV. The Witness of the Scriptures. V. The Testimony of The Spirit. VI. The Testimony of the Church.

The first lecture is very suggestive along lines of current philosophical thought. It is profound, but not obscure. The second, third and fourth lectures deal with more complex subjects. The fifth and sixth lectures are simpler in statement, and exhibit phases of thought more within the range of the average reader.

Taking the lectures as a whole, there are certain characteristics which can not fail to make their impression upon the careful reader. One remarkable feature is their cumulative power. The book leaves you with a consciousness of the greatness of the person of Christ. You find that even though the first pages of the lecture may be abstract, or, indeed, obscure, yet the conclusion or summing up is luminous, and at times eloquent. It would be asking too much to expect simplicity of statement in discussing such a subject as, "The Conjoint Testimony of The Father and The Son." The very nature of the subject compels an entrance into the innermost relations of the Christian doctrine of God. But even here are many passages of singular power and penetration.

The Bishop's literary style is not easy. He intimates in his preface that it is difficult for the extempore speaker to adjust himself to the conditions of written discourse. This fact is manifest to some extent in reading the lectures. But, notwithstanding this, the careful student will be richly repaid for whatever effort he may make in following up the lines of thought pursued in the lectures. Every now and then we come across a sentence rich with the deep things of God and radiant as a jewel.

Personally, these lectures have been suggestive and helpful. I most sincerely recommend them to those interested in this great theme.

A Unique Reference Book.

To say that it contains information of nearly universal interest, and that is, practically, obtainable by most readers nowhere else, is but the simple truth concerning "Alden's Living Topics Cyclopedia." The second volume, extending from Boy. to Con., contains the latest facts concerning the nations, Brazil, British Empire, Bulgaria, Cape Colony, Chile, Chinese Empire, and others, and concerning three States, California, Colorado and Connecticut; also concerning six large cities, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Charleston, Chicago, Cincinnati and Cleveland. The facts are commonly from one year to five years later than can be found in any of the leading cyclopedias, and commonly a year later than the 1896 almanacs and annuals. We name only leading titles; besides there are hundreds of others, all of them "living" topics. One wonders how busy seekers after knowledge have got along without such an up-to-date cyclopedia. The whole series of six handy volumes is to be completed during the year, and at the surprisingly low cost of $1.50 to $3 for the set, with liberal discounts for advance orders. Specimen pages may be had free by addressing the publisher, John B. Alden, 10 and 12 Vanderwater street, New York.

The United States Supreme Court has sustained the decision of the lower court in regard to separate cars for whites and blacks. It is not unconstitutional for a railroad to provide separate cars for the races and require each race to travel in its own car. However much he dislikes it, Jim Crow must now travel in a gang to himself, if the railroad company says so; and in this latitude the railroads will say so.

General Conference Notes.

Bishops Bowman and Foster have been placed on the superannuated list.

After it had been decided that they had no constitutional right to their seats, the four women in the Cleveland General Conference voluntarily withdrew.

The Committee on the State of the Church recommends that all licensed preachers, even though unordained, shall have the right to perform the marriage ceremony.

The Cleveland General Conference, after balloting several days, on Tuesday elected the following Bishops: Dr. C. C. McCabe, of New York, and Dr. Earl Cranston, of Cincinnati.

Dr. J. C. Morris accepted the invitation of the General Conference to return to Cleveland. He put in his appearance on Monday morning. He will doubtless be lionized this time.

NOTES.

Bishop Duncan has lost a grandchild.

Rev. F. S. Parker, of this city, will preach the commencement sermon at Belhavon College, June 7.

J. E. Collins, of St. Louis, has made a bequest of sixteen thousand dollars to the M. E. Church, South.

Dr. J. W. Lee delivered the annual address at the commencement of Scarritt Bible and Training-school, May 18.

The P. and H. M. Society at its recent annual meeting decided to establish rescue missions in Dallas and San Antonio.

The Nashville press speaks in high terms of the Cole Lectures of Bishop Galloway. They will be published soon in book form.

The Texas Advocate reports that Mrs. Sophia Porter, of Denison, Texas, has given ten thousand dollars to Southwestern University.

Dr. J. B. Walker is quite sick at the residence of Mrs. E. A. Carre in this city. His numerous friends will pray fervently for his recovery.

The College of Bishops reversed the ruling of Bishop Wilson in the A. C. Bane case, relative to the right of an itinerant preacher to locate in a vote of 7 to 2.

Rev. John P. McFerrin will preach the commencement sermon for Dr. Price, Nashville College for Young Ladies, May 24. Rev. Collins Denny, D. D., will deliver the address, May 27.

Dr. Lafferty breaks over all conventionalities and nominates Dr. Hoss for Bishop. Now, let Dr. Hoss nominate Dr. Lafferty for editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, and he will be even with him.—Holston Methodist.

Mrs. F. A. Lyons, of this city, has been elected a member of the Central Committee of the Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society. Sister Lyons has been an active worker in the P. and H. M. Society from the beginning.

R. H. Woodward Company, Baltimore, Md., announce a new book, "Story of Spain and Cuba." This book is written by Mr. Nathan C. Green, the well-known author and former resident of Cuba. It is beautifully illustrated with nearly 100 engravings, and is sold by subscription.

The dram drinker is apt at saying tea and coffee are stimulants, and that those who use them are on a par with the liquor consumer. But, did coffee or tea ever make a husband beat his wife, stain his hands with blood, or dishonor his own name? Does the mayor have to issue a proclamation on election day, closing the coffee houses from fear of riot.—Ram's Horn.

The eighth International Sunday-School Convention will hold a four days' session in Boston, beginning June 23. Every State and Territory is entitled to representation. About two thousand delegates are expected. The delegates will receive free entertainment. Louisiana is entitled to thirty-two delegates and Mississippi thirty-six. Railroads will give reduced rates. An excellent programme has been arranged.

A pastor writes to the Christian Standard as follows: "For almost a year I have been laboring on the question of introducing our church literature into every family, and have made almost no headway until I resolved to make a radical move, as I can not hope to develop this church spiritually and permanently unless my people read. I announced from the pulpit without consultation with any one, that I had begged and pled in an off-hand way for subscriptions, and that I now, upon my own responsibility, proposed to order at once The Standard for one year for every family represented in the church, and that I would pay for it myself, unless the church saw fit to help me. I am determined to place this church under conditions that if it fails I can say with Paul, 'You are without excuse!'" This pastor will succeed.

What of the Night?

From Japan come cheering words from our workers. The church at Tadotsu "is in good condition." At Kwanonji a man and his wife, "in earnest and not afraid of persecution," have determined to risk all for Christ. Meyers is encouraged, hopeful, full of faith.

Davis is rejoicing at Uwajima, the fruit of his labors now beginning to show. "Some are seeking to know more of this doctrine, while others have declared their intention to become Christians."

Tague, of Iwakuni circuit, is preaching "to good congregations at the chapels." Recently he "visited the island of Ostuma, preached the gospel where it had probably never been heard before, and placed a tract or portion of Scripture in nearly every home of the 60,000 inhabitants of the island." May they prove to be "leaves from the tree of Life."

Hager is in charge of Oita circuit, entering hopefully and with brightening prospects upon the work of the year. Mrs. Hager has organized at her home a Sunday-school, now numbering forty pupils.

Mosely is presiding elder of the Matsuyama district. Recently he dedicated a new church; another is in contemplation. From notes of exceeding interest sent to our Mission Rooms here are some gleanings: "At 4 points chapel preaching has been regularly done; and in several instances new chapels, or other places where preaching services are held, have been added during the year." Visiting with Meyers, a farm village near Tadotsu where lived a member of Tadotsu Church, service was held at the house. "Among the dozen of men, besides women and children, who came and seated themselves on the matted floor was an old white-headed man who had been attending the services held there before. . . . He had been worshiping at one of the great temples of Japan, located not far away, for so long a time that he did not believe he could break himself of the habit. But.....this old man has since been baptized and received into the church."

The presiding elder of Kobe district, Bro. Towson, writing to our Missionary Secretaries, says: "Among those added to the church the proportion of adults, men and women, has been larger than usual. One of this number was a judge of the Court of Appeals who, after becoming a Christian, resolved to resign his position as judge and become a self-supporting evangelist. The district has made considerable advance financially.....The church in Kobe has assumed the entire support of its pastor,.....the first self-supporting church in Japan Mission Conference.

"Up to the present the work in Osaka has been carried on in rented houses.....But early in the year, through the kind efforts of Dr. Morton, Secretary of Church Extension, and the consecrated liberality of two California ladies, sufficient funds were sent us to purchase an eligible lot, amply large for church and parsonage purposes. At this date we have about half the amount needed for the church, and we hope that during this year we will be able to erect it.

"Spiritually the year has been one of progress. Marked outpourings of the Holy Ghost have attended the work in several places.....Our District Conference was a remarkable occasion.....Thus far Japanese Methodism has been kept doctrinally pure, and there have been no divisions among us. But the times are perilous, and much prayer is demanded. No human instrumentality can save the day in Japan. We need a revival of the Holy Ghost power among us—a burning, sweeping revival—a time of the power of God."

From Japan, as from China, comes the cry for more men. The men can be found—are offering. Where is the consecrated money? Who will send those who stand ready to go? If all our charges will meet the assessment in full, the Board of Missions can send the needed men—some of them at least. Oh, for a revival of obedience to Christ's command!

WM. H. LAPRADE.

The Holly Springs District Conference.

The twenty-sixth session of the Holly Springs District Conference was held at Byhalia, Miss., May 1-3, 1896. The chair was occupied by the faithful presiding elder, Rev. J. D. Cameron, D. D., quite to the pleasure of all present. The attendance was very good, specially so with the preachers; not a single pastor absent. Facts were presented in the reports from the work that indicated that there was room for more improvement on some lines; also that success of a considerable degree had attended the labors of the year. Altogether there was much to encourage. Two failures were noticeable: that few of our people have family altars, and the majority of them do not take their church papers.

The devotional exercises were all good. The preaching as done by Bros. Roberson, Murrah, Oakley, Davis, Cameron, Malone and Fly was of the best kind. The Conference was indeed a pleasant one socially, and abundantly profitable spiritually. Dr. Murrah gave a fine address in the interest of Millsaps College, and Dr. Malone acquitted himself well in favor of Christian education and in behalf of Grenada Collegiate Institute. Both these institutions are doing well, and give promise of exertiug a powerful influence in making the future of our State a bright one. Let us stand by them in their efforts. Bro. Bachman was present and magnified his office. Bro. Worsham was a fine host, and all the members will be glad when it is possible again to enjoy his attentions and the abundant kindness and royal hospitality of the good people of Byhalia.

CHRIST IN SOCIAL RELATIONS.

SUNDAY, MAY 24—LESSONS IN SOCIAL LIBERTY.

(Eccles. v. 4, 5; Matt. 21, 18-19; Luke xv. 1-4.)

I.—THE OBLIGATION OF A VOW.

The topic for next week presents the practical subject of vows and church relations; the first of the references given above is on the subject of vows, and would, therefore, seem to belong properly to the next topic. To consider the subject of vows, from the Mosaic or Hebrew standpoint, is, however, an excellent study preparatory to what may be more properly called Christian vows.

It may be seen that the principles of the Mosaic vow are similar to those of the Christian vow.

From very early times, the Hebrew was in the habit of making vows, and the practice of making certain kinds of vows was a feature also of ancient pagan religions, and, under the laws of Moses, this custom was regulated and given its proper place as a religious act. (See Genesis xxviii, 20-22.)

These vows were usually expressions of gratitude made by the individual to God for special blessings, and consisted of the consecration of property, etc., to him. (For a complete classification of consecration vows, see Leviticus, chapter xxvii.) There were also vows of abstinence, coupled with special self-consecration, as the vow of the Nazarite. (See Num. vi, 1-21.)

The following characteristics of the Mosaic vow may be noticed:

(1) The vow, being made to God, was on that account of a most sacred character.

(2) As to the making of a vow there was liberty, but binding obligation as to its fulfillment; and, hence, says our author, "Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow and not pay."

(3) Rash vows were discouraged.

(4) The payment of vows was a public transaction.

(5) Nothing vowed to the Lord could be impure.

II.—THE PEOPLE'S CAPRICIOUS ESTIMATE OF THE CHARACTERS OF JOHN THE BAPTIST AND CHRIST.

The people declared that John was a demoniac rather than an inspired messenger of God, because he was austere in his habits, having little to do with social relationships; and the same people maligned the character of Christ, because his nature was joyous, and because he hesitated not to accept the hospitality of all classes.

(1) Christ's example does not shut us out from social pleasures that are pure.

(2) Opposition to Christian truth is always childish in its arguments, and inconsistent with itself.

(3) The children of wisdom accept Christ's teaching and habits of life as the highest possible ideal of human attainment. "Wisdom is justified of her children."

III.—THE SOCIAL LIBERTY OF CHRIST.

Christ's liberty to override the social customs of his people, and which liberty he continually exercised, was the carrying out of the great purpose of his life in ministering to the needs of the lost and fallen. When the Pharisees and scribes murmured because he associated with sinners, he uttered the parable of the lost sheep to justify his action, and this parable was followed by the parables of the woman who had ten pieces of silver, and the prodigal son, which illustrate the same idea.

(1) Christ's disciples should possess an intense sympathy for the fallen, and are at liberty to come in social contact with them, that they may save them.

NOTES.

We would like to have some very brief letters from Leagues in Mississippi and Louisiana.

We helped to reorganize the Epworth League in Covington on Wednesday evening, May 13.

Let every League in Louisiana be represented at the approaching Conference, and every League in Mississippi at the Conference which will be held in Crystal Springs a little later.

The Indestructible "Maywood" BICYCLE

THIS $75.00 COMPLETE BICYCLE

WITH COUPON.

The Most Modern, Most Reliable, Most Durable AND STRONGEST Wheel on Earth.

PATENTS { Feb. 24, 1891 Oct. 3, 1893 Jan. 21, 1806 / Mar. 17, 1891 Jan. 1, 1895 Others Pending.

A Bicycle constructed of material that is solid, tough and wiry; that is simple in construction, easily taken apart and put together again, has few parts, is of such wiry material that its parts will hold together even in an accident, no hollow material to be crushed in by every contact; a frame that cannot possibly be broken; a frame so simple that its adjusting parts serve as its connecting parts; a one-piece crank in place of a dozen parts, always ready to give reliable and rapid transportation.

SPECIFICATIONS AND DESCRIPTIONS.

FRAME.—Improved Double Diamond. What is a Double Diamond Frame? Simply a true truss in every direction for strains that occur in Cycles—the outline of two diamonds in its makeup. The frames are constructed of ⅝-inch cold rolled steel rods, the toughest and strongest metal for its weight known, and the parts are joined together with steel and aluminum bronze fittings in such a manner that it is impossible to break or any part to work loose. A marval of novelty, simplicity and durability, the greatest combination of ingenuity in bicycle mechanism,—to build a frame without brazen joints and tubing, as you know that frames continually break and fracture at brazen joints, and tubes when they are buckled in cannot be repaired. We guarantee our Double Diamond Frame for three years. You cannot break it. Standard size steering head and wheel base, ball bearings both ends of head.

WHEELS.—28-inch front and rear, warranted one-piece wood rims, best quality piano wire spokes and brass nipples, large barrel hubs, fitted with "Arlington" hose pipe, Morgan & Wright "quick repair," or some other first-class pneumatic tire.

PATENT INTERLOCKED CRANK AXLE CASES AND BEARINGS.—Indestructible ball bearings throughout, with 148 hardened steel balls. Crank shaft bearings are fitted with our patent ball cases, which are interlocked and support each other and cannot possibly come apart while in use. Are neat and cover the bearings completely. It has been an acknowledged fact that crank axle bearings are susceptible of improvement, as threaded cones or crank axles are continually crowding or working loose. We save this entire nuisance by having no threaded parts whatever, but a clever device in frame for adjustment. Our invention is most perfect in simplicity and must be seen to be appreciated. The sprocket and chain are on the inside of the frame and ball bearings. Great value is gained by this arrangement, ease of running, double wear saved, positive never loose bearings, freedom from contract with chain and sprocket, smooth outward globular ball bearings, less friction and lost motion, hence greater speed. Then with the jointless "one-piece crank," feet, ankles and trousers are free from injury.

ONE-PIECE CRANK.—Our great achievement; by its application we put two cranks, two pedal axles, two keys, six screws, six nuts and four washers all in one piece. From 50 to 100 per cent, of all trouble to Bicycles is from cranks working loose and pedal axles that break from clamping connections. They get loose no matter how much pains is taken to key and tighten them. This is caused by too many parts, and it is entirely saved by our device, which is but one piece and made from rough rolled steel rods, impossible to break. It has been proven that when other cranks break from accident, our one-piece crank will hardly bend. But if bent any person can easily straighten it with a large wrench, and without removing it from the frame.

CHAIN.—Humber block pattern, best quality hardened. SPROCKET WHEELS.—Best drop forged steel. REACH.—Shortest, 28 inches; longest, 37 inches. GEAR.—64 or 72, as specified.

FRONT FORKS.—Indestructible. Our fork crowns are simply a section of gun barrel steel turned up to size, then bored and bent, forming a perfect fork crown that cannot be surpassed for strength and beauty, also giving a support to our solid cold rolled fork rods that just limit the necessary amount of springiness required in a front fork and which can only be obtained by the use of our forks and crown.

HANDLE BARS.—Reversible and adjustable, a marvel of simplicity, readily adjusted to any position desired, with best cork or composition handles. In buying a Bicycle it is always a vexed question whether you want dropped or elevated handle bars. If you wanted one kind you could not have the other. Our handle bar enables you to have either at will. Will furnish Ram's Horn handle bars if preferred.

SADDLES.—Gilliam, V. & F., Reading, or some other first-class make.

PEDALS.—Rat trap, rubber, full ball bearing.

FINISH.—All parts are enameled with our own special enamel, rubbed down and baked, giving it a handsome black, glossy appearance. All bright parts are heavily nickle-plated; these, with the jet black glossy parts, give a handsome appearance which cannot be excelled.

ACCESSORIES.—Each "Maywood" Bicycle is furnished with leather tool bag, containing pump, wrench and patent oiler.

WEIGHT.—According to tires, pedals, saddles, etc., from 27 to 30 pounds.

The "Maywood" has successfully passed through the experimental stage. During the past three years we have put out over 5,000 "Maywoods," placed in the hands of riders of all classes and widely distributed through the country. Expert riders and clumsy riders, heavy men and light men, on smooth roads and on rough roads, have given this wheel every conceivable test, proving it to be the best wheel on earth for every day use, a wheel that can be constantly used over the roughest and hardest roads without showing weakness and the constant necessity of repairs. Its construction is so simple, its vital parts so strong, that the possibility of breakage is reduced to a minimum.

A PRICE THAT WILL REACH YOU.

Do not imagine because it is not high priced it is not high grade. We do not use expensive hollow tubing, besides, we belong to no Combination or Trust. We own every patent, pay no royalties, manufacture the entire wheel ourselves and are satisfied with a reasonable profit, employ no expensive racers, but depend upon the good common sense of the American people to appreciate a good thing when they see it. We can afford to make the price we do for we expect to sell ten "Maywoods" to one of any individual make sold. We simply say that the "Maywood" is a perfect Bicycle, containing more originality and genuine points of excellence than can be found in all other machines bunched together.

CASH BUYERS' UNION. EVANSTON, ILL., January 20, 1896.

Messrs:—In regard so "Maywood" Bicycle, I will say that I have found it to answer all purposes as guaranteed. Last summer I rode one from Chicago through Michigan, Canada, and all over western New York and northern Pennsylvania. Notwithstanding the fact that I rode it over all kinds of roads and in places where many more expensive wheels would not have stood the test, it is still in good condition.

ODE ON SOLITUDE.

Happy the man, whose wish and care,
A few paternal acres bound,
Content to breathe his native air
In his own ground.

Whose herds with milk, whose fields with bread,
Whose flocks supply him with attire,
Whose trees in summer yield him shade,
In Winter fire.

Blest, who can unconcernedly find
Hours, days and years, slide soft away,
In health of body, peace of mind,
Quiet by day.

Sound sleep by night; study and ease,
Together mixt, sweet recreation;
And innocence, which most does please
With meditation.

Thus let me live, unseen, unknown,
Thus unlamented let me die.
Steal from the world, and not a stone
Tell where I lie.

The Art of Overlooking.

BY JULIA H. JOHNSTON.

The discriminating art of forgetting is invaluable, but the art of overlooking may take precedence, even over this distinct aid to happiness. It is well to put aside the annoyances of by past time, the dropping the remembrance of disagreeables, but it is better still to pass them by in the beginning without taking them up. Prevent the impression, and there will be no occasion to erase it. A mollifying ointment is good for a hurt, but better no hurt in need of healing.

Do not dwell upon unpleasantness long enough for it to take a place in the convolutions of the brain. Do not scrutinize what is unseemly, obnoxious or disquieting, if nothing is to be gained by it save a disturbing memory. Don't stop and stoop to examine displeasing things along the life-path. Keep the eyes at higher levels, and overlook the thorn-hedges at the sides, taking care to keep the middle of the track, so as not to brush against them.

Even the excellent people that one meets constantly are sometimes rather trying. Some of them are positive and persistent in opinions which we, in our wisdom, know to be wrong, of course, though, strangely enough, our convictions fail to be convincing to them. Our way is crossed, when there seems to be no need for it; small domestic calamities are legion; carelessness is actually culpable, and a moment's thoughtlessness may cost great inconvenience; yet, after all, these things, either in themselves or in their consequences, are not vital. If no principle is involved, let them pass. Do not mark the day with futile struggle to mend them, nor the morrow with their memory. If they can not be righted, nor even resisted, never mind them. This one bit of advice is so hard to follow that it will be good discipline for a sensitive soul to practice the precept. Even disappointments and hindering interruptions, the resolute sunshine seer, will not lay to heart, but will look over and beyond them to the next bright thing to be seen.

Sometimes the mere recognition of a thing seems to give it force and form, therefore do not notice the apparent slight, the covert criticisms, or the tokens of impatience. Overlook, also, the little inadvertence, the unintentional mistake, and the small disaster that can not be retrieved. To take note of such things brings confusion to others and discomfort to one's self. The spirit that is too acutely observant is unquiet and overburdened. The constant accuser, who calls one to account for every slip, and demands endless explanation, is a very uncomfortable sort of a friend. Overlook the unmeant offense, and with no chance to fester in the memory it will leave no scar behind.

It is amazing how the vexing things of the moment, that seem to grow large while we look, sink into insignificance by and by. Why give them an opportunity to disturb the present? Gauge them sensibly, by the measure certain to be applied in the moment of calmer afterthought, and forbear the excited protest, forego the resentful expression. One can not always be sensible, say you? Well, one can at least emulate the example of the old lady who was "determined to endeavor to try."

A discriminating observer of the "method" of a mother who trained a large and very energetic family—a diverse and tumultuous set, indeed—said that one secret of the marvelous success was the "judicious amount of letting alone." The mother never brought on a controversy, or clash of wills, when, by prudent overlooking and good management, matters would presently right themselves.

Some people, it is true, have a happy faculty of overlooking, but all may attain a certain facility, through love which "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, and never faileth." An "art," we know, thanks to our bulky "Websters," is knowledge applied to practical purposes. It is aptitude, skill, dexterity, acquired by experience. What hourly opportunities common life affords for such acquirements! The art of overlooking may not belong to arts liberal, polite or fine, but is a kindly and useful one for every day. Cultivate it in life's intimate associations, and thus forestall, in a measure, the need of the art of forgetting.—The Interior.

Advice to a Farmer's Boy.

A young man writes me that he is unmarried, and would like to get into some other business than farming, and wishes to know what I would recommend.

In reply, I would say that it would not be wise for me to give specific advice on such an important matter without knowing the qualifications of the person making the inquiry. If he was brought up on a farm, understands the business, and is physically able to work, his chances for success are probably as good in farming as in any other pursuit. There are fewer failures among farmers than in any other calling, and I believe there is more comfort and happiness on the farm than in the store and shop.

Nevertheless, if my young friend positively dislikes farm life, and can not get interested in it, he had better pull out and try something else. If he is now on the home farm, conducted by his parents, perhaps if he he allowed to have a share in the business, even though a small one, and given a chance to get a foothold for himself, he will be satisfied and content to stay on; and this is a subject that father should take into consideration. If the conditions are such that there is no room for him there—and I know this is often the case—then he had better try something else.

If he has neither trade nor profession, nor the time, means and inclination to go through college or serve an apprenticeship to a trade, and has a strong desire to be a merchant, then I should advise him to go into a store, preferably near home, and learn the business. In seeking such position, do not be particular about the salary; find a place with an honest man, even if the pay be next to nothing, and devote your services to his interests rather than your own. Make yourself so useful to him that he can not very well get along without you, in which case the salary will take care of itself, without any boosting of your own. Be diligent, be honest, be willing, be polite, be faithful in every detail, just as though the business belonged to you.

Do not drink, do not smoke, do not flirt, keep the heart pure and the body clean, read good books, go to church, never listen to or tell coarse stories, be obliging, keep busy. Follow this up, get married as soon as you can find a girl better than yourself and have a sufficient income to support her in comfort—not luxury—and your success is one of the certainties of the future.

In the language of a noted divine: "Set yourself earnestly to see what you were made to do, and then set yourself earnestly to do it."—Farm Journal.

Can Not Afford It.

Two young men met with cordial greeting, just ahead of me. One stepped out of a saloon, picking his teeth in leisurely fashion. The other was on a brisk walk to his lunch.

"What business takes you into a saloon?" asked the brisk walker of his friend, jocularly, yet with a touch of seriousness.

"I have been going there for my lunch lately, and you get more for your money there than any other place I know; oysters, celery, bread and butter and coffee, anything else you want, as far as I can see, and all for a quarter!"

"With beer and whisky thrown in ad libitum, I suppose," said the other, drily.

"Y-e-s," said the saloonist, slowly, "but you do not need to take those unless you want them. You just come in with me some day and try it!"

"Thank you," replied the other, with sober earnestness, "I can not afford to lunch in a saloon, neither would I suppose you could!"

With this they passed beyond my hearing.

Can not afford to lunch in a saloon! I should say not. It may seem to be a stroke of economy to get as much as possible for twenty-five cents, yet it might prove costly economy. Even if a man does not indulge in the drinks so generously thrown in, he puts himself on a level with those who do, in more ways than one.

He "sitteth in the seat of the scornful," he deliberately subjects himself to a morally unwholesome atmosphere, and what sensible, level-headed business man would not feel his confidence waning, to see a young man daily enter or leave the place?

No, young man, however strong you may feel yourself to be, you can not afford to tamper with that little bait which the devil has hung out for the unwary: "The best lunch in town for a quarter." You would not take the very best if you knew it was poisoned, would you?

As they passed out of sight I watched the tall well-knit figure of the anti salooner, so full of the best energy and earnestness of manly life, and I longed to hear such words as his every day of my life, to see many such noble and brave men who not only realize that they themselves can not afford it, but do not fear to say the same to a friend.—Observer.

Cheap Novels.

A boy returned from school one day with a report that his scholarship had fallen below the usual average.

"Well," said his father, "you've fallen behind this month, have you?"

"Yes, sir."

"How did that happen?"

"Don't know, sir."

The father knew, if the son did not. He had observed a number of cheap novels scattered about the house, but had not thought it worth while to say anything until a fitting opportunity should offer itself. A basket of apples stood upon the floor, and he said:

"Empty out those apples, and take the basket and bring it to me half full of chips."

Suspecting nothing, the son obeyed.

"And now," he continued, "put those apples back in the basket."

When half the apples were replaced, the son said:

"Father, they roll off; I can't put in any more."

"Put them in, I tell you."

"But, father, I can't put them in."

"Put them in! No, of course, you can't put them in. Do you expect to fill a basket half full of chips and then fill it with apples? You said you did not know why you fell behind at school. I will tell you. Your mind is like that basket. It will not hold more than so much, and here you have been for the past month filling it up with chip dirt—cheap novels."—The Bombay Guardian.

Making the Angels Happy.

A touching little incident is related in connection with the recent death of Phillips Brooks. The Bishop had for a long time paid some little attention to the five-year-old daughter of one of his parishioners, and the little one always expressed her delight when in company with her mother she met him on the street.

The day of the Bishop's death the mother came into the room where the little one was playing, and, holding the bright little face between her hands, said tearfully, "Bishop Brooks has gone to heaven."

"O mama," was the answer, "how happy the angels will be!"

Effects of Cigarettes.

Some definite facts and figures showing the exact effects of smoking cigarettes have at last been obtained by a scientist who has experimented upon young college students. This scientist is Prof. H. C. Bumpus, professor of comparative anatomy at Brown University.

The student to be experimented upon, lay down on a couch, and his right arm, which was bare to the shoulder, was extended upon a low table, with the palm of the hands upwards. Professor Bumpus then took a narrow strip of bamboo about three feet in length and very light. Upon one part of the wrist, over a bone and in a place where it would be steady, a cork was fastened. To this the bamboo strip was affixed. Another cork was placed on the wrist directly over the vein where the pulse beat is most easily felt. The end of the bamboo strip rested on this second cork, and it rose and fell with each pulsation. This motion was plainly visible to all of the class of Brown University students who surrounded Professor Bumpus during his experiments. The first record taken was the normal pulse of the student on the sofa. This fluctuated from sixty-two to sixty-seven a minute, rising in one instance to seventy-one. The total beats of the normal pulse for five minutes was three hundred and thirty-two, or an average of sixty six and two-thirds.

The student on the sofa then began to smoke a cigarette, "inhaling" the smoke, as do nearly all cigarette smokers. His pulse immediately jumped up. The first minute it reached seventy-five, which was a higher record than any normal pulsation could show for a single minute. During the first five minutes the pulse fluctuated from seventy-one to seventy-seven a minute. The total for the whole five minutes was three hundred and seventy-six. This showed that cigarette smoking made a normal pulse which averaged sixty-six and two-thirds a minute jump to an average of seventy-five and one-fifth beats a minute.

Upon a second trial, and after waiting three minutes, his pulse went up to eighty-three, making a total of three hundred and ninety-six, on an average of over seventy-nine for five minutes.

A third trial was then taken after the student had smoked two cigarettes. His pulse by this time remained steadily over eighty.

In one instance it reached the extraordinary height of eighty-nine beats a minute. The total for five minutes was four hundred and twenty beats—an average of exactly eighty-four beats a minute.

It will thus be seen that the normal pulse of the student, lying upon a lounge and unaffected by cigarettes, averaged sixty-six and two thirds beats a minute, and that after smoking two cigarettes it reached the average of eighty-four beats a minute. The cigarette smoking had added more than seventeen beats a minute to the normal pulse, an acceleration of almost twenty-five per cent.

Each beat of the pulse could easily be counted by means of the rising and falling of the bamboo strip, and Professor Bumpus held a watch in his hand while one of the Brown University students made the record. After this practical exhibition of the exact physical effects of cigarette smoking, the popularity of cigarettes has rapidly declined at Brown University.—New York World.

THE CUISINE.

CONDUCTED BY L. A. B.

SOUR-MILK BISCUITS.—Sift a quart of flour with a teaspoonful each of salt and baking soda; flour or butter a baking-pan, and see that the oven is hot; wet the flour with a pint of sour milk or enough to make a soft dough; shape the biscuits quickly, put them into the pan, and bake them in a hot oven for about twenty minutes.

The small red radishes make pretty ornaments for the table, used either as garnishes or served alone in small dishes. To prepare them cut off the roots close, and with a sharp knife pare the radish upwards from root to stem, but do not remove the paring. The knife of course can only take up a narrow portion at a time, and each cut resembles much the petal of a flower. Let them crisp in water, and lay in a pretty glass or china dish with cracked ice.

Fits Cured

From U.S. Journal of Medicine. Prof. W. H. Peeke, who makes a special study of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any living Physician; his success is astonishing. We have heard of cases of 20 years' standing cured by him. He publishes a valuable work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his absolute cure, free to any sufferer who may send their P. O. and Express address. We advise anyone wishing a cure to address

MRS. IPSY M'RAE.

A life of practical godliness, full of bright Christian service, is ended on earth. The loyal friend and diligent worker, with open hand clear insight, and resolute will, has passed from human sight, but not from memory. Though Sister McRee is gone, her noble life is still a power for good. By it many are being helped in the way of righteousness. Beautifully blended in her life were all the exalted virtues of true womanhood. While bright and cheerful by nature, there was a glow of candor in her words and a rigid honesty in every expression of her life which added attraction to her strong character. She loved her church, understood its doctrines and polity, and could give a reason for the hope that was hers, and found her chief delight and happiness in working for her Master. Her work, in song, in Sunday-school, in revival in church building, and on the highway was unto the Lord, "and I will abide a monument to her self-denial, liberality, and consecration." Her faith was simple enough to take God at his word in everything. She never questioned the divine promises, and if at any time these promises seemed about to fail she would, as I have heard her express it, "swing out on Jesus," and she always found him "all and in all" to her. If clouds came upon her spiritual sky, she never doubted God's love and care, but with scrutinizing heart-searchings she sought for the cause in her own heart.

She adorned the various relations of life as wife mother Christian. Her married life was happy. As a wife she was true and devoted. Those beautiful intuitive qualities which make of two lives a perfect harmonious sphere a congenial union, rich in love and mutual faith, were inseparably united in her conjugal relation. As a mother, she was gentle and affectionate. As a friend, she was sincere and constant. As a neighbor, she was kind and thoughtful. As a Christian, she was consecrated and zealous. Her genial Christian hospitality was known far and near. Her home was the home of the preacher of every denomination, who received alike a cordial welcome to her board.

During the last months of her life she was severely tried and sorely afflicted, but the fiery trials did not consume her. The dross was consumed and the gold refined. Her last illness was long and painful, but she never murmured. She adorned the grace of God by her beautiful patience and submission. Her matured faith, so strongly riveted in Christ while in health, did not fail her in her struggle with "the last enemy;" so, as she passed down into "the valley of the shadow," she found communion with the presence of God. Hence, as the day, freighted with its perfume of flowers, so her life went out, distilling in its dying the aroma of faith and love.

I add this simple bit of biography: Epsy Leach was born in the State of Virginia, March 30, 1822. She came to Mississippi with her parents in 1823, and lived for a while near Monticello; then removed to Copiah county. She was converted and joined the Methodist Church in 1836, at Old Sweet Water Church, under the ministry of Rev. Hervey Mullins, a noted evangelist of his day. In February, 1839, she was happily married to Mr. David McRee, who preceded her to the home of the soul about two years. God blessed this union of hearts with seven children, four of whom are living to imitate the godly example of their sainted parents. She died at Caseyville, Miss., her home, Oct. 5, 1895, in the seventy-fourth year of her age, honored and loved by a multitude of friends. Loving hands laid her body gently in the grave near the church, and by the side of her husband, to await the resurrection morn. She is remembered by what she has done. B. F. JONES.

ROBERTS—Died at Trenton, Miss., May 1, 1896, the lovable little girl of Mr. and Mrs. John Roberts.

Little ETHEL, the bright, winsome child, who by her artless ways, wove herself into the meshes of the hearts of all, lies still in the cold embrace of death. The solemn dust unto dust and ashes unto ashes, as was intended to be said over the little mound in the churchyard, the sunshine, which, as were but yesterday, played in and out of the windows so merrily and bright, seems but a mockery today. The wind, which but lately seemed burdened with joy, and came softly whispering of pleasant dells, of flowery banks, to-day seems strangely sighing. It has changed its joy to sorrow; yet God, in his infinite mercy, who doeth all things well, saw fit to remove the little jewel of earth from the arms of loving parents to the shining courts of heaven, where there shall be no more death, no more pain, no more parting. May he who holds the power of life and death in his hands help the much-bereaved parents to be resigned to do his will! His sickness was of short duration, but intense pain was endured. She was first taken with measles, followed with flux, which soon removed her from the stage of action and transplanted her in the heavenly world. With all that tender hands could do, with the assistance of our untired and patient help of Dr. Patten, no relief could be given. But she is at rest, thank the Lord! He is gone to prepare a place for us. May God bless the bereaved! J. H. FOREMAN.

MINNIE PEARL MILLER, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Jere Miller, was born Dec. 7, 1883, and died at the home of her parents, in Pearlington, Miss., March 4, 1896.

Pearl's illness, congestion of brain, was brief; her death sudden and unexpected. The circumstances under which Pearl died were peculiarly sad. She was the pet of the home, particularly of the father. Her death occurred in the absence of Bro. Miller, and the interment a week previous to his return home.

Pearl was loved not only at home; she was loved by all who knew her.

Though of Baptist parentage, Pearl was a bright and earnest member of the Methodist Sunday-school. She was punctual in attendance, and was an earnest student.

In Pearl's character we know of no flaw, and our confident belief is that she has found a home with God.

May the Holy Spirit comfort the sadly bereft family, and may God help them to earnestly persevere until they, with Pearl, find sweet rest in his embrace! A FRIEND.

Baptist Record please copy.

HARPER—EUNICE BELL HARPER was born Nov. 21, 1894, and died March 7, 1896.

Our little darling came to brighten our home but a short while; then the little voice was hushed, and all was still; then her soul took its flight to the heavenly home, where no evil thing cometh to despoil what is fair. Why should we grieve for our loved one when she is so happy there? We have only a while in this stormy world to fight; then the shadow of death to pass; then we join our loved one where it is forever bright.

Dearest loved one, we have told thee in thy prayerful grave's embrace; but thy memory will be cherished till we see thy heavenly face. Thou art gone to the grave, but we will not deplore thee, when God was thy ransom, thy guardian, thy guide. He gave thee, he took thee, and he will restore thee, and death has no sting, for the Savior died.

HER MOTHER.

ORENDES—Mrs. MAGGIE ORENDES, an excellent Christian woman, passed away from earth to glory after a long illness of three months' duration. She was born Dec. 10, 1866, and died April 30, 1896, aged twenty-nine years three months and twenty-one days.

She was converted and joined the Methodist Church during a revival meeting held at Polkville under the pastorate of Rev. C. McDonald, since which time she has lived a consistent Christian life.

During her long and painful sickness she was never known to murmur or complain at the providence of God.

She leaves a husband and four children, and a host of friends, to mourn their loss. They mourn not as those who have no hope. May God bless their lonely home!

J. H. FOREMAN.

CARTER—RUTH POWELL, little daughter of T. M. and Mattie I. Carter, was born Dec. 21, 1894, and died April 11, 1896, in Herriston, Miss.

A beautiful flower has ceased to bloom on earth. Oh, how fair and beautiful it was! All who knew her said little Ruth was an exceptionally bright child. A sweeter disposition and a more loveable little creature we never knew. She was the pet of all, and the idol of papa and mama, being the only one. She was baptized by the writer of these lines April 14, 1895, and seemed almost as near as though she were our own. Though so young, she was especially fond of hearing her mother sing, "The Home of the Soul," and would try to sing it after her. To which home we point the bereaved parents, where they can meet one another again. JOHN W. CRISLER.

MCNEIL—The following resolutions were adopted by the Quarterly Conference at Old Crystal Springs, May 2, 1896:

Whereas, It has pleased the all-wise God to take from us our brother, friend and co-worker, Rev. J. W. MCNEIL, and while we bow in reverence to the will of God, we deeply deplore our loss; therefore, be it

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. McNeil the church has lost one of its faithful ministers, generous and liberal supporters, and a tireless worker.

Resolved, That, as a minister of the gospel he was earnest, faithful, and true. As a man, he was honest, upright, and true—true to his country, his church, his family, and his God. He was a safe counselor, a watchman that was wide awake, a Christian gentleman whose virtues are well worthy our emulation. Around his family circle there is a vacant chair, in his church an empty pew. In the field of labor he who was is not, for the Master has said, "Come up higher."

Resolved, That our loss is his eternal gain.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathies to the bereaved family, and that they be sent a copy of these resolutions.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes; that a copy be sent to the Crystal Springs Meteor; also that a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

GEO. W. HIVELEY,
INA B. ROBERTSON,

SWAYZE—Resolutions of Fordyke Sunday-school, Yazoo county, Miss., in memory of Mr. BURWELL K. SWAYZE:

Whereas, Death has removed from our association our beloved friend and brother, B. K. Swayze; And, whereas, He was one of our most highly esteemed members, Fordyke Sunday-school feel it their duty to pass resolutions to his memory. We sense with sadness and solemnity as we are called upon to note the vacancy left by the transplanting (to a heavenly home) this noble soul.

Resolved, That by the death of Burwell our school suffers a great loss of one we loved. His burial in the solemn hush of a Spring-time noon spoke of the love and reverence of a large community.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved parents, brothers and sisters, and pray that the Spirit of God may fill the vacancy in their hearts.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our Minutes, and a second be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

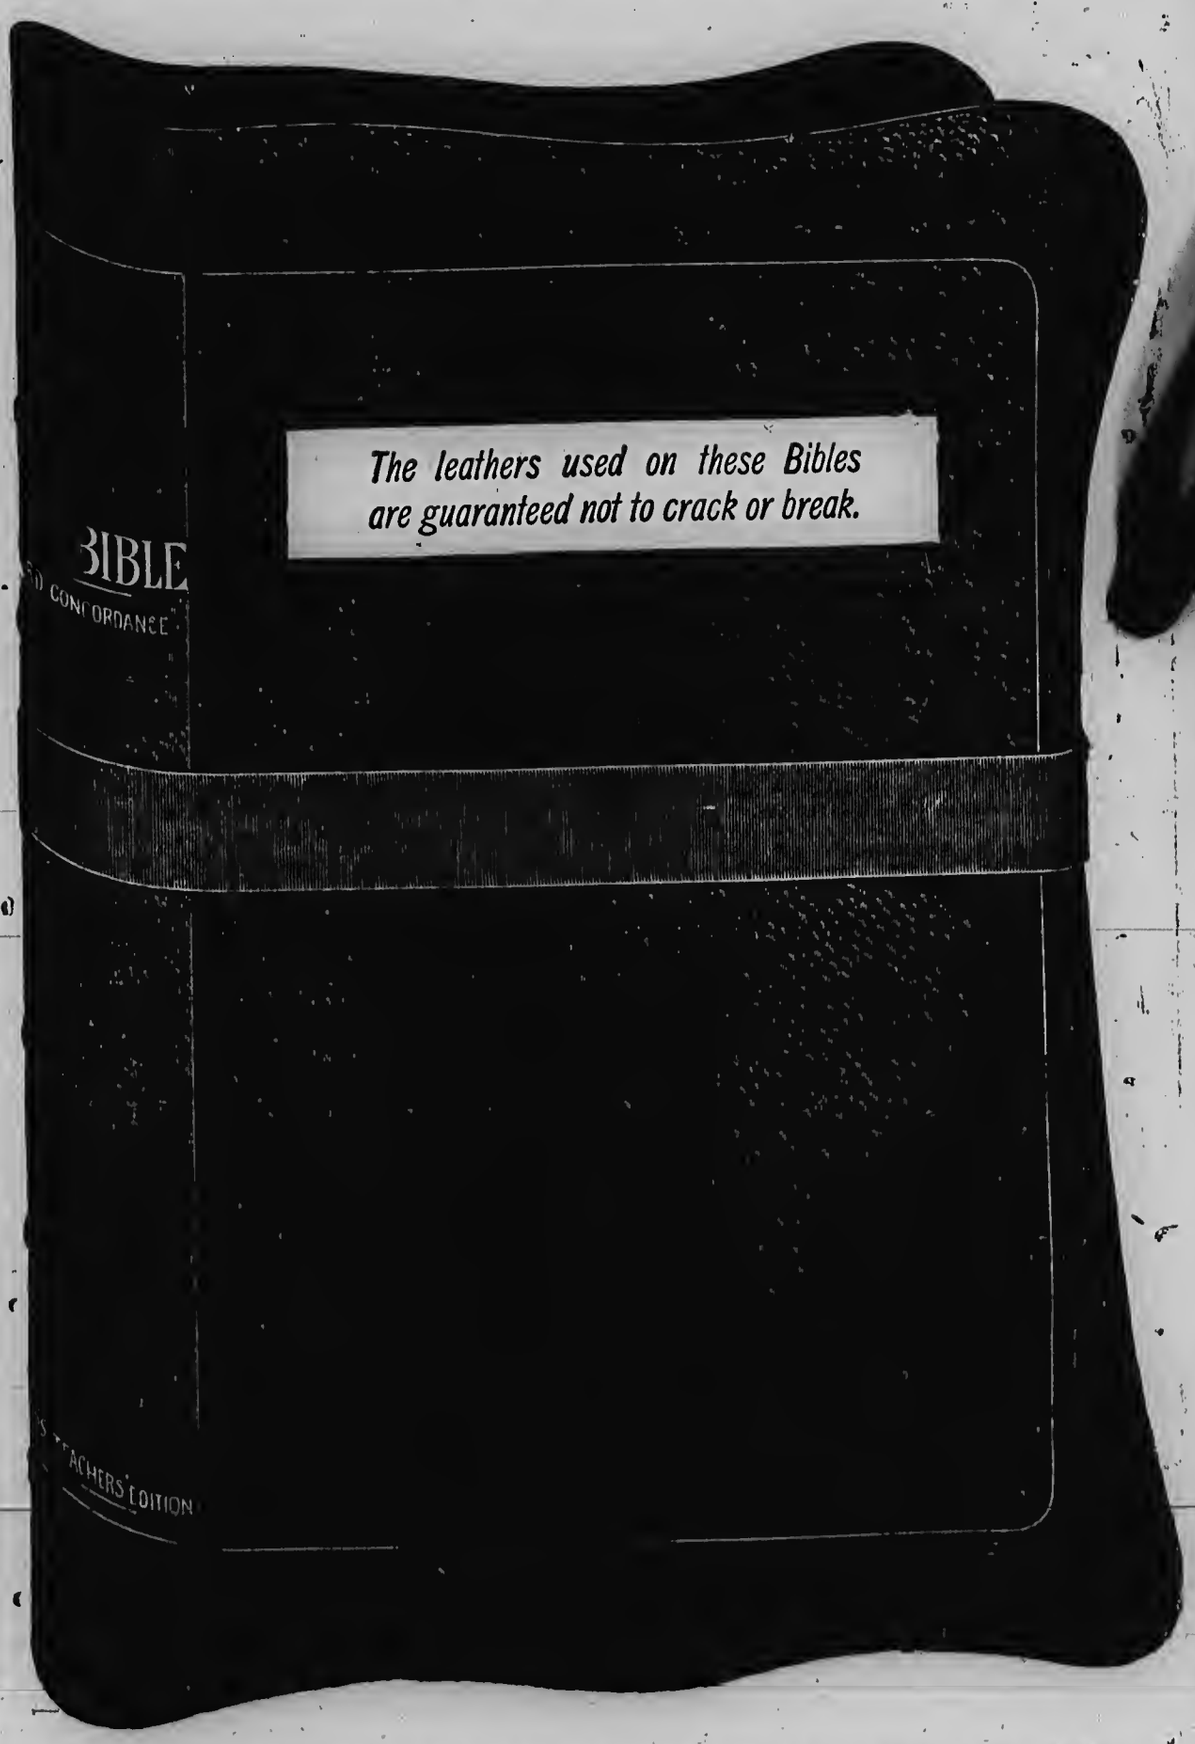
Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"



We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1.75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to pay your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to May, 97. (A little later it will be June, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2.45.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Five or six towns in Kansas were almost totally destroyed by a tornado. Many people were killed or injured.

A cyclone struck Sherman, Texas, and vicinity last week, and much property was destroyed and many lives lost.

The Illinois Humane Society has decided that it is injurious to babies to give them rides on bikes, and has forbidden the practice, declaring that it will prosecute every man that does it.

A New York police captain named Carpenter has been sentenced to $1,500 fine and three months' imprisonment for taking a bribe. He owned up to having received $1,000 from a liquor dealers' association.

The Senators and Representatives sent to the Louisiana Legislature by the Citizens' League, of this city, who voted to go behind the returns of the vote for governor, were tendered a great reception here on Saturday night.

Arcola, Ill., has organized a "Black Cap Club." It is a secret organization, and its object is to prevent negroes from settling in the place. There are no negroes there, two, who attempted to live there not long ago, having been run out in short order.

Murphy J. Foster, of St. Mary, was inaugurated governor of Louisiana for the second time, and Robert H. Snyder, of Tennessee, was inaugurated lieutenant-governor, on Monday, in the presence of a vast multitude, who saw them take the oath of office, as administered by Chief Justice F. T. Nicholls, of the Supreme Court.

Last week the new battleship "Oregon," built on the Pacific coast, by the Union Iron Works, of San Francisco, was given an official speed trials and succeeded in breaking all records for speed in the battleship class of vessels. The speed secured was 16 78 knots per hour, which means that the great warship traveled over the course at a rate of more than 19 miles per hour.

All of the papers connected with the trial of the men captured on the "Competitor" will be duly imparted to the United States government, which has instructed Mr. Taylor, the United States Minister at Madrid, to ask for the record in the case. The American note was friendly, but firm in tone, and said that the United States did not object to a trial by the ordinary military courts, subject to the guarantees supplied by treaties.

FOREIGN.

The British "flying squadron," which made so much talk a few months ago, has been broken up. Seven of the vessels have been ordered paid off and laid up at the navy yards, and the other five have been attached to other squadrons.

The remarkable activity in the bicycle trade during the past six months is causing an industrious revolution at Birmingham, England, and other centers. Thousands of skilled mechanics have deserted the gunmaking and other industries for the bicycle factories, where they are working double time and are earning big wages.

Colonel Segura, at the head of a column of Spanish troops at Ciego Montera, between Santa Clara and Cienfuegos, has been engaged with a force of insurgent calvary said to number 2,000 men, under Carnello and Zaya, forming the escort of Maximo Gomez. After a two hours' conflict the insurgents retreated, leaving many wounded behind them.

The German clergy, Protestant and Catholic, are thoroughly aroused in consequence of Emperor William's telegram regarding Dr. Stoecker, the ex-court chaplain and Christian Socialist leader, which was published with his majesty's consent. This message was almost brutally brusque and read: "The clergy must not meddle with politics, because it is no concern of theirs."

Some Changes of Program.

Tuesday night, May 26, at Winifred (Winifred) near Matherville, Clarke county. Wednesday night, May 27, at Shubuta. Other appointments for Waynesboro, State Line and Moss Point remain as stated. Bro. T. W. Brown will make appointments, June 1 and 2, for Ocean Springs and Biloxi to suit his convenience.

By cordial invitation of Presiding Elder Simmons I will spend July 3-5 at his District Conference at Decatur, Miss.

It was at the home of Bro. Henry Ware in Pass Christian that I had a brief and enjoyable visit last month.

T. L. MELLEN, Sec., etc.

Sunday-School Conference.

The Sunday-school Conference of Durant district, North Mississippi Conference, will convene in Sallis, June 11, at 8:30 A. M. The following is the program:

1. What Constitutes a Well-Organized Sunday-school?—M. T. Baswell, J. F. Wilburn.

2. The Superintendent: His Duties and Rights—W. J. Morris, E. W. Burton.

3. Qualifications for a Teacher—Prof. N. G. Campbell, J. G. Hamilton.

4. How to Build Up and Hold a Class in School—Prof. W. H. Smith, R. E. Wilburn, Dr. Henry Christmass.

5. The Object of All Sunday-school Work—Prof. Williams, E. V. Huston, J. G. Ervin.

6. General discussion of all questions pertaining to Sunday-school interest, the whole Conference taking a part. A sermon at 11 A. M. by W. J. O'Bryant.

Friday, at 8:30 A. M., the District Conference proper will convene. Pastors will have their reports ready to hand in the first session, made out on the blanks prepared by Bishop Hargrove. Take time, and do not guess at the items. J. C. Park will preach at 11 A. M.

Saturday afternoon the ladies of the district desire to look into the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary work in the district. Let the charges all send some ladies to the meeting. We very much desire to see an increase of interest in this important branch of church work. We invite ladies from abroad.

J. H. MITCHELL, P. E.

The crisis has been passed, the General Assembly of Louisiana has refused to go behind the returns, and Murphy J. Foster has been declared the duly elected governor of Louisiana by a majority of 26,078. The vote on the question of going behind the returns was on the adoption of a minority report of the Committee of Tellers, and Senator Howell put the motion very clearly that yea meant going behind the returns, and nay not to go behind the returns. The vote stood 48 yeas to 86 nays.

TEAT—MASSEY.—In the Methodist Church, Slate Springs, Miss., May 6, 1896, at 8:30 o'clock P. M., by Rev. H. C. Morehead, Miss Florence, eldest daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Massey, of the North Mississippi Conference, to Mr. Thomas H. Teat, of Slate Springs.

SINGERS AND ARTISTS GENERALLY are users of "Brown's Bronchial Troches" for Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, and Throat Irritations. They afford instant relief. Avoid imitations.

Ice Cream Now Made in a Minute.

I have an Ice Cream Freezer that will freeze cream perfectly in one minute; as it is such a wonder a crowd will always be around, so anyone can make from five to six dollars a day selling cream, and from ten to twenty dollars a day selling Freezers, as people will always buy an article when it is demonstrated that they can make money by so doing. The cream is frozen instantly and is smooth and free from lumps. I have done so well myself and have friends succeeding so well that I felt it my duty to let others know of this opportunity, as I feel confident that any person in any locality can make money, as any person can sell cream and the Freezer sells itself. J. F. Casey & Co., 1143 St. Charles St., St. Louis, Mo., will mail you complete instructions and will employ you on salary if you can give them your whole time.

The Judge of all the earth will do right. No human being will suffer more than he deserves, or more than his own conscience will recognize as just.—Charles Hodge.

Songs—New and Old.

There are some songs in use to-day that our great-grandparents sang with delight. The great-grandchildren of the present generation will sing them with equal pleasure. Three dozen of them are in the "new song book." As many more songs of recent fame, selected because worthy of place, will also be found in it. One-half of the latter have become famous; the other half deserve fame, and (except, of course, 10 original ones, of which we can only say, "You may judge") will doubtless secure it. In all, 70 songs. Seventy good songs at 10 cents is a better bargain than 280 at 35 cents, of which only about half will ever be of use to you. Better get 4 books in 2 or 4 years, and 280 good songs, and always have new ones—always be up to date. If you order within 16 days, you can have 50 copies in manilla cover for $3, or 100 for $5. They will cost $7.50 per hundred after that. Lyman F. Jackson, Alexandria, La.

Popular with the Republicans.

The old reliable Texas and Pacific railway will be the "popular route" for the great National Republican Convention at St. Louis, commencing June 16. No effort will be spared to provide for the comfort of all who use this line. Special trains will be run, with elegant day coaches and chair cars, and Pullman Palace Sleepers, and you will be wise to send in your name now for necessary accommodations, as the attendance promises to be the largest for any convention yet held.

Tickets will be sold via the Texas and Pacific railway at rate of ONE LOWEST LIMITED FIRST-CLASS FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP on June 13, 14 and 15, good until June 21, 1896.

For tickets, sleeping-car accommodations, or any further information, call on nearest Texas and Pacific agent, or GASTON MESLIER,

Buffalo Lithia Water Spring No. 2

IN GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.

JOHN V. SHOEMAKER, A. M., M. D., Professor of Therapeutics and Materia Medica, and Clinical Professor of Skin and Venereal Diseases, in the Medico-Chirurgical College of Philadelphia, etc., in an article published in the New York Medical Journal, reported the following case:

SUB-ACUTE GOUT IN THE FINGERS AND TOES.

"Mr. R. S., aged 53 years, a merchant, presented himself with Gouty deposits around the small joints of his fingers and toes. In the affected articulations there were also impairment of motion and a moderate degree of inflammation, with pain and tenderness. There was no fever. He had never had an acute paroxysm of Gout, although of gouty family. He was ordered an aperient now and then, with a restricted diet and BUFFALO LITHIA WATER the latter in five-ounce quantities four times a day. This was followed by the disappearance of all the symptoms of gout, at least for the present."

This water is for sale by druggists generally or in cases of one dozen half-gallon bottles $5 00 f. o. b. at the Springs. Descriptive pamphlets sent free on application.

SPRINGS OPEN FOR GUESTS FROM JUNE 15TH TO OCT. 1ST.

WHICH ARE YOU?

BY ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

There are two kinds of people on earth to-day—
Just two kinds of people—no more, I say.
Not the rich and the poor—for to count a man's wealth,
You must first know the state of his conscience and health;
Not the humble and proud—for, in life's little span,
Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man;
Not the happy and sad—for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.
No! the two kinds of people on earth that I mean
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.
Wherever you go, you will find the world's masses
Are always divided in just those two classes.
And, oddly enough, you will find, too, I ween,
There is only one lifter to twenty who lean.
In what class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?
Or are you a leaner, who let others bear
Your portion of labor, and worry, and care?

The Dramatic Character of "Post Oak Circuit."

(Concluded.)

We have remarked how difficult it is to be dramatic; to dissociate or eliminate self from the characters. Let me give an instance or two. To illustrate the point of individuality, Charles Lamb says of Ben Jonson: "Epicure Mammon is the most determined offspring of its author. It has the whole matter and copy of the father—eye, nose, lip, the trick of his brown." It is just such a swaggerer as contemporaries have described old Ben to be. Meercraft, Bobadil, the New Inn, have all his image and superscription. Lamb calls the migration of self, in speaking of Chapman, in contrast to Shakespeare: "He could not go out of himself as Shakespeare could, shift at pleasure, to inform and animate other existences," etc.

I have noted how many great writers and critics have dismally failed in the attempt to create characters true to nature. I have alleged how signal the characters in Post Oak are in dramatic keeping. Therefore, lest I may seem dogmatic, I will give some definitions of what it is to be dramatic. By these anyone familiar with Post Oak will be able to appreciate better the rare excellence of the work. Most all critics (except the French) make Shakespeare the model and ideal of the dramatic. They compare with and test by this standard.

Here is a magnificent delineation or statement of dramatic power from Lessing, the great author of that great work, Dramaturgie: "To transfer oneself from the point of view of a narrator into the real standpoint of each personage; to let passions arise before the eyes of the spectator in lieu of describing them, and to let them grow up without effort in such illusory continuity that he must sympathize whether he will or no—this it is which is needful, and which genius does, not without knowing it, without tediously explaining it to itself, and which mere cleverness endeavors in vain to imitate."

"To invent according to nature" is a definition of genius, according to Hazlett, and Shakespeare therein excels.

(Post Oak seems to be a history, and the Bishop has been denounced as a narrator of real events.)

Again, he exhibits the species through the individual. Another test: "The characters in Shakespeare do not declaim as pedantic schoolboys, but speak and act like men, placed in real circumstances, with real hearts of flesh and blood beating in their bosoms. No two of his characters are the same, more than they would be in nature." (Hazlett.)

Then Pope says of Shakespeare: "He is not so much an imitator as an instrument of nature, and it is not so just to say that he speaks from her as that she speaks through him. His characters are so much nature herself that it is a sort of injury to call them by so distant a name as copies of her. * * * Every single character in Shakespeare is as much an individual as those in life itself. It is as impossible to find any two alike, and such as from their relation or affinity in any respect appear most to be twins will, upon comparison, be found remarkably distinct."

Schlegel says: "The distinguishing property of the dramatic poet who is great in characterization, is the capability of transporting himself so completely into every situation, even the most unusual, that he is enabled, as plenipotentiary of the whole human race, without particular instructions for each separate case, to act and speak in the name of every individual. It is the power of endowing the creatures of his imagination with such self-existent energy that they afterwards act in each conjuncture according to general laws of nature."

Nothing, however, is more foreign to Shakespeare than a certain anatomical style of exhibition which laboriously enumerates all the motives by which a man is determined to act in this or that particular manner.

Now, let no one suppose that the characters which Shakespeare has so thoroughly delineated have not a number of individual peculiarities;" but they are "not merely personifications of naked general ideas." They possess a significance which is not applicable to them alone.

There is much (very much) more that ought to be said as to the dramatic traits of Post Oak, but one must forbear. One might well linger over the reason why so few great writers succeed, even tolerably, in being dramatic. I think the great reason to be the itch for the projection or transfusion of self (oftener, perhaps, than the lack of imagination). Vanity! vanity! The author can not abnegate self-delivery. He thinks the characteristic or mental gift of which he is so proud would grace any character. I have noted the "learned sock" of Ben Jonson. Everyone knows the fireworks of Sheridan's wit; his witty lackeys and footmen. These ignorant, unlettered fellows are delivering themselves in their various scenes. The author has a sparkling conceit coruscating in his brain. He puts it in the mouth of some of these dullards, and utterly mars the harmony of the dramatis personæ. All talk Sheridan; none footmen and lackeys. He could not engender with Simple and Shallow as Shakespeare could.

But no matter about further whys and wherefores. "Post Oak Circuit" will be found to be one of the most dramatic of books. To be sure, "the little fishes never talk like whales;" but, when it comes to breadth of personation, fidelity of dramatic keeping—vraisimilitude—naturalness of movement, never flagging, never hurried, emphasis of plan, emphasis and beneficence of denouement, "Post Oak Circuit" will be discovered, to the eye of well-informed criticism, one of the greatest books in the language. As you can not fight a great battle on a petty area, as you can not have a great epic without a great theme, so you can not have much "pride, pomp and circumstance" in the ignoble (from a worldly view) and petty sphere of commonplace. But the violet is perfect, although in lowly fragrance, just as much as the rose, that "rears high its flourished head." And the diamond is as true a gem in "dark, unfathomed caves of ocean" as though it flashed on the breast of beauty.

The Vows We Take.

The last vow in the baptismal formula is one of deep solemnity and of vast importance. It concerns the religious life, and it commits one to God and his service for all time. It should not be lightly taken, and it should be sacredly kept.

"Wilt thou then obediently keep God's holy will and commandments, and walk in the same all the days of thy life?" Answer: "I will endeavor so to do, God being my helper."

The will and commandments of God are the rule, and the only rule, for Christian living. It is folly to talk about being religious when there is no earnest effort to keep the commandments. The only proof of love is obedience. Everything else goes for nothing where filial obedience is not found. The Ten Commandments contain the sum and substance of our duty to both God and man. The ten were compressed into two by our Divine Master. There can be no excuse for not knowing our duty to God and to our fellow-men. These two commandments, on which hang all the law and the prophets, are so short, so simple and so reasonable that a child, or half-witted man, may know them. The principle of religion is love to God and man, and the expression of it is obedience to God and doing unto others as we would have others do unto us. Less than this is below the divine standard, and more than this is not required of anyone. A diligent and prayerful reading and study of God's Word will characterize all who are anxious to know and do his holy will. Indeed, where there is no love for the Divine Word there can be no real and genuine love for the good Lord. If one does not love the Scriptures, he may be sure he does not love the God who inspired holy men to write them. The religious life is not sustained by bread, but by the Word of God. The Word of God is meat, marrow and fatness to the human soul.

The answer to this question, or vow, "I will endeavor so to do, God being my helper," is very expressive and impressive. God honors every honest, earnest endeavor of every sincere human being. He has pledged himself to help us in every effort to do his holy will. He will be as good as his word. For the asking we may have the Holy Ghost to dwell in us constantly to guide us into all truth, and to bear constant, direct witness with our spirits that we are heirs of God. There need be no doubt as to where we are and what we are. It is our privilege to know that we are alive unto God. Having this life in us we may continue to have it more abundantly as long as we live in this world.

All who join the Methodist Church make this vow and promise: "Will you be subject to the discipline of the church, attend upon its ordinances, and support its institutions?" Answer: "I will endeavor so to do, by the help of God."

Those who take this vow and make this promise should not begin by objecting to the discipline of the church. They should not refuse to be subject to it, nor get into a huff and act ugly if they are held to it. This vow and promise, voluntarily and solemnly made, should be faithfully and earnestly kept. Not to do so is to sin against God and the church, and against one's own soul.

It is the duty of every member of the church to attend upon all the ordinances of the church, unless providentially hindered. This promise includes public preaching, the prayer-meeting, the Sunday-school, class and experience meetings, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, Epworth League meetings, and any other religious services. If this vow and promise were faithfully kept, our churches would be crowded with worshipers at every service. Our weekly prayer meetings would be full, interesting, and a great blessing. Some persons, after making this promise, rarely attend upon any of the ordinances of the church. They lie unto God and in the presence of the whole congregation. They promise to support the institutions of the church: the publishing interests—House and papers—missionary enterprises, educational institutions, church extension, Parsonage and Home Missions, Sunday-schools, the ministry, the Conference claimants, and to build and keep up houses of worship. If this promise were faithfully kept by every member of the church, according to the several ability of each, the church would prosper and grow as it never has done before in the history of our world. A failure to keep this promise is the main cause of our leanness and barrenness now. Far too many make this promise in the presence of God and the whole congregation, and then go right out and object to every institution and enterprise of the church, and support none of them, neither with money nor with words of encouragement. Such persons are weights on the wheels of our Zion, and hinderances to the progress of the church. All such are breaking, not keeping, a solemn vow made under the most impressive circumstances. Shame on all such!

GILDEROY.

In the Living Present.

Depreciation of what others are or do is an ugly disease. May have its seat in the head, temperament, or heart. Usually in the latter. Causes putrefying sores, such as envy, bitterness, wretchedness. It is contagious, deadly.

Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, is reported to have lost his fortune—a million and a half dollars—by unfortunate speculation. And nobody cries. Is not speculation a species of gambling? Inordinate eagerness to increase our possessions exposes to many dangers.

Mr. Moody is reported to have said: "The gulf between the church and the working masses is growing deeper, wider, and darker every hour." If true, it is indeed lamentable. The working people received Christ's teaching gladly. Christianity ennobled work. But the pulpit's chronic denunciation of opulence has created hatred of the wealthy. Hatred is a dangerous leaven. Socialism is a product. Poverty is life's greatest blessing. Individual effort for its riddance has led to nearly all discoveries, inventions, social progress.

"In our country socialism, though under different appellatives, is rampant. But in a socialistic paper which fell into our hands occurs this paragraph: "In the law of the opulent appears the commandment, 'Thou shalt not steal!' We need not say that the claim of divine origin of same is preposterous. That fable was invented by the wealthy in order to secure their possessions."

Alfred Austin, the new poet laureate of England, assures that though he had been originally a Roman Catholic, he is now an agnostic. Even as an agnostic he had his doubts and misgivings. That makes him a skeptical skeptic.

Methodist growth is immense. A delegate at the General Conference in Cleveland received a telegram from a preacher in Maysfield, Ky., that he had baptized on last Sunday the quintet of hearty children to which a Methodist lady of that place, Mrs. Oscar Lyons, had recently given birth. At that rate Methodism will soon acquire ecclesiastical monopoly.

In Boston a burial insurance company has been organized. Patrons pay in monthly installments until the sum of fifty dollars has been completed. For this the company will furnish, at the time of death, an imitation rosewood coffin, elegantly finished, hearse, six carriages, and a preacher of the denomination designated. Everything in fine style.

"The Failure of Protestantism in New York City."

The above is the title of a book recently published by Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr. We give below a few extracts from it. If these statements are incorrect, they can easily be disproved, and will lie. If they are correct, then there is certainly room in the great metropolis for the Salvation Army and many other evangelistic agencies.

"This little book says and proves that Protestantism is a failure in New York. Three answers have already been hurled at my head by the theological grannies in this neighborhood. 'You are an infidel!' 'You are a sensationalist!' 'You are a failure yourself!' Quite true, dear grannies, from your point of view. But the answers are irrelevant.

"I might be an infidel with full-grown horn, hoof, and tail, and still Protestantism be a failure in New York, or I might be supremely orthodox, and still Protestantism might be a failure in New York.

"Then, suppose I am a sensationalist. What of it? The most sensational discoveries of this city have all been simple facts. A statement may be sensational, and yet it may be a fact.

"Again, it may be true that I am a failure. This is not an answer.

"Is Protestantism growing stronger in New York? Some contend that it is. Nothing could be more absurd.

"The following table shows the apparent gain in church membership during the last decade in leading Protestant Churches:

	1885	1892
Baptist	13,669	14,641	increase	975
Methodist	12,588	14,140	"	1,552
Presbyterian	20,308	24,737	"	4,429
Lutheran	14,000	13,375	decrease	625

"How long will it take these churches to take the world at this rate? Are they holding their own?

"The Baptists increased 975 during the seven years, 1885 to 1892. The normal birth-rate of their membership, 13,669, should have given an increase by birth of more than 3,500 during this period, their accessions from other Baptist Churches more than balancing their death-rate. The Baptists, therefore, managed to hold about one-fourth of the children born into their homes. Is this 'holding our own'?

"The Methodists increased 1,552 during these seven years. The birth-rate should give the Methodists in this time about 3,521. So our Methodist friends, with their matchless zeal, managed to hold nearly one-half the children born in their homes. Is this 'holding our own'?

"The Presbyterians increased 4,429 during these seven years. Their normal birth-rate should have given them an increase of 5,684. So our Presbyterian friends, with their enormous wealth and prestige, peculiar to New York City, massed in their 81 churches, managed to hold about two-thirds of the children born in their homes. Is this 'holding our own'?

"The Lutherans, with 14,000 members in 1885, show an actual decrease in roll of 625. Their birth-rate should have given them 3,920 increase. They have not only failed to hold their own children, but have lost 625 of the older ones. Surely this is holding our own with a vengeance.

"But these figures do not tell all the pitiable story. Everyone knows, who knows anything about the history of New York churches, that the rolls are not kept to-day as they were twenty or thirty years ago. Then church enrollment meant a pretty accurate summary of the members on the field; now some of our churches keep even the dead on their rolls. One of these mushroom records collapsed the other day by a fire, and out of a roll of over 4,000 there could not be found 200 members! This is undoubtedly an extreme case, but it is to the point. There are actually fewer Baptists in New York to-day than there were twenty years ago; there are fewer Methodists than there were twenty years ago."

Seeing Motes.

President Whitsitt, of the Baptist Theological Seminary, having announced it as a recent discovery of his that Roger Williams was baptized by sprinkling, a number of Baptist preachers have been savagely attacking him through the press. The Biblical Recorder, a Baptist paper, pays its respects to this tribe in the following language:

"There are some preachers in the Southern Baptist Convention who would rather attack a brother whom the convention has honored with confidence and position than to preach the gospel. They seem to spend their days looking for motes in the eyes of their brethren who have received recognition. Take, for instance, the case of President Whitsitt, of our seminary. He made a discovery in history—a discovery which affects neither the glory nor any considerable claim of the Baptists; and he waited years before announcing it. Now, when he does, here come the low-aimed attacks upon him, bigoted in the narrowness of their views as they are senseless in their purpose: unbrotherly in every sense of the word. Men who wouldn't know a historical point if they should run upon it, are rushing into print with articles sent broadcast to all the papers at once, after the manner of the message to Congress of the President of the United States."

Mean men are, somehow or other, interesting studies. A gentleman who is intimately associated with the business ends of a great many religious weeklies, is sending out the following epigram on the subject of "mean men": "A man may use a vest on the back of his neck for a collar button; ride on the back coach of a train to save interest on his money until the conductor comes around; stop his watch at night to save the wear and tear; leave his 'i' and 't' without a dot or cross to save ink; pasture his mother's grave to save corn; but a man of this kind is a gentleman and a scholar compared to a fellow who will take a newspaper, and when asked to pay for it, puts it into the postoffice and has it marked, 'Refused.'" Mid-Continent.

Christian England laughed when Sydney Smith sneered at William Carey as a "consecrated cobbler," going on a fool's errand to convert the heathen. Carey died, aged seventy-three years. He was visited on his death-bed by the Bishop of India, the head of the Church of England in that land, who bowed his head and invoked the blessing of the dying missionary. The British authorities had denied to Carey a landing-place on his first arrival in Bengal; but when he died, the government dropped all its flags to half-mast, in honor of a man who had done more for India than any of her generals.—Herald and Presbyter.

There was never a time when money was given so lavishly for the cause of education as at present. Week after week our exchanges teem with accounts of donations ranging from a few hundred dollars to many thousands. One paper of last week reports the following: Harvard, $100,000, from an unknown source; Barnard, $100,000, from Mrs. Brinckerhoff, of New York; Vassar, $100,000, from J. D. Rockefeller; University of Pennsylvania, $200,000, from A. C. & Thomas McKeane, Philadelphia; Northwestern University, $215,000, from Wm. Deering, of Evanston, Ill.

THE SACRED CHAMBER.

BY LELIA A. GOLDSWORTHY.

There is in every human heart
A holy inner chamber kept,
Too sacred e'en for mortal eye:
'Tis there we've prayed and toiled and wept

Our dearest friend we may not take Into this quiet chamber's hush
Though light as sunshine were their step
Their fond some bud of hope would crush.

These hearts not seen by mortal ken,
Are watered oft by falling tears;
And brightest rays of heaven's light
Settle on them to dispel our fears

No window from this chamber deep
Opens to earth's wild storm and gale;
One opens wide toward heaven above,
And faith's eye sees within the vail.

Taking Up the Cross: or, An Exchange of Crosses.

The village of Blank was situated back from the great highways of the country. Its trade and commerce were sustained by slow plodding teams along country or dirt roads. No railroads brought to it freight and travel. No waterways gave it communication with the great busy world abroad. The people maintained good schools and bore some marks of intelligence and cultivation, yet in these respects they were not equal to the centres from which they were removed, and their advance along these lines was at a slower pace than at places near and within the great thoroughfares of culture and progress. The cause of religion, in keeping up the churches and supporting the ministry, notwithstanding regular services and prayer and class meetings, seemed at a lower ebb and to make slower advances than any social interest of the town.

About the time our history of Blank village begins a young man, a mechanic, who had recently married, came to the place to ply his avocation, and, as good Christians ever do, he and his wife at once handed in their church certificates. Their promptness on all church occasions and their readiness in all church work brought them early into notice. Two years had not passed until he was made steward. He had been impressed in the class meeting and other service where talks from the members were called for. Two ladies (Sister Smith and Sister Jones) had especially interested him in their complaints of the heavy cross they had to bear in talking before a company. In his first attendance on these exercises he was drawn in sympathy towards these good women. He thought being made steward would bring him into more direct communication with these women, and it would be a means of grace to his soul.

When the Board of Stewards for the charge wanted to assess this appointment one hundred and fifty dollars, the other two stewards from Blank village arose in strong protest. The young steward thought it ought to be so. It cost any of them five or six hundred dollars to live, and he did not see how the preacher could live on less than they did. The report was, "He'll not get it." But, encouraged by the new steward, the Board made the assessment. The old stewards told him petulantly that "as he wanted a big assessment, he might raise the money;" they "were out of the job." The young man worked diligently in the church and out of it, but at the end of the year he found a discrepancy between the amount raised and the amount to be paid. He had paid what he thought was a lawful part of his income, yet thirty dollars was wanted to pay the preacher. He made a nice calculation of his income that year, and felt in his heart he could and would foot the bill. Though he was poorer than most of his members, he had paid four times what any of them had paid. He gave a check on the merchant who held his funds for the thirty dollars, thus paying half the amount for the entire church. About the same thing occurred the second year. During this time the new steward had visited more than once these good sisters who so regularly took up the "sore" cross of talking in public. Sister Smith had come into her husband's inheritance of a large property. She urged that she could not pay more than five dollars. She "must take care of what the Lord had given her." Sister Jones had come into quite an estate by the death of relatives. Her husband always paid five dollars. She could not pay any more. She "must take care of what the Lord had given her."

To the new steward these answers had come to appear about as stereotyped as their talks in meeting had appeared to strike him of late. They always succeeded each other; sometimes one would speak first, sometimes the other; but when one spoke the other was sure to follow promptly. Their talks were always prefaced with a great someness of words, such as, "It is always a sore cross for a woman like me to talk in public, but it has been laid upon me by the good Lord and I must carry it." Their experiences were so near the same that they used about the same words throughout.

It was wearing towards the close of the third year. For a series of weeks their experience meetings had been unavoidably suspended; but the time came when the membership again met, and as was desired by some, there was a large turn-out, nearly every family being represented.

After preliminary services, and persons were called on to bear testimony for Christ, Sister Smith arose with the same "sore cross" she had been carrying so long, and was promptly followed by Sister Jones who had a "sore cross" just like it. At the end of this talk there was almost a painful silence. The new steward slowly arose, and delivered himself in words of the following sense: "Brethren and friends, I have not been engaged in the cause of my Master as long as some of you, but I have tried to do my duty and be faithful to my profession as best I have known how. Since coming among you I have learned to love the church more; but what has troubled me most of late is what I have heard about the cross. I am sure we have not had a meeting of this kind without a cross, and a "sore cross," being brought to our attention. I have carefully studied the matter, and prayed over it, and think I have learned what cross it is I have been carrying, and am satisfied now that some of us here have the wrong cross. It is no cross for me to speak out in meeting; but when it falls on me to pay half of the entire amount of supporting the gospel among us, when there are ten families among us worth twice the amount, I do not, can not take up this cross any more readily than some of you take up a 'sore cross' of which you complain. Some of you could carry the cross which I have been bearing for years with far greater ease than I can sustain it, while I am sure I could carry the cross which some of you speak of with an ease in which I could exercise charity towards you with much greater ease. I am positive of one thing, and that is, without some rearrangement of our crosses, some of us will fail of an abundant reward in heaven."

Not another word was said. The silence that followed justified the leader in dismissing the congregation. Without another word each one went to his own home in silence, carrying his own thoughts with him.

During the week there were some quiet consultations, two and three together. On Friday evening as the new steward — the mechanic — was passing the home of Sister Smith on his way from his shop to his own home, Sister Jones from the verandah called him in. For more than an hour he sat in earnest consultation with the two ladies. What was said seemed never fully reported, but when the new steward settled up with the preacher at the end of the year he paid him fifty dollars surplus. From that time on the assessment on Blank Church was two hundred dollars.

Pessimism vs. Truth.

"The truth, the whole truth," is not what is always desired or most appreciated. We love to think well of self and to have others praise us. Criticism, though just, and reproofs, though beneficial, are rarely very acceptable." Paul found such a course to be very objectionable to the Galatians, and therefore we hear him asking the question, "Am I become your enemy because I tell you the truth?"

"Faithful," says Solomon, "are the wounds of a friend;" but how much disposed is human nature to demur to such faithfulness!

In the eyes of Ahab the faithful Prophet Micaiah was a veritable pessimist. "He never prophesies any good for me."

Because the anxious, burdened, honest Jeremiah could see no hope for his wicked country and could offer no words of cheer, he must be counted as an enemy.

He who wept over Jerusalem, and would have sheltered her from her impending destruction, was cast out as a deceiver of the people—too pessimistic to look on any but the gloomy side of affairs.

Such is human nature as displayed from righteous Noah to this good day. No cause with which we have to do must receive any adverse criticism. I have known a faithful pastor to be branded as a "crank" or "fanatic" because he dared to mourn over the unfaithfulness of his people. Sometimes the brother is "gloomy," "morbid," "sour," when perhaps he is drawing only a faint picture. He is a pessimist, and needs to turn the other end of the glass, is the verdict of his critics. It is not infrequent to hear and read of our wonderful missionary development, and when compared with the facts and figures of thirty years ago there is cause of congratulation; but when compared with our marvelous increase in members and ability to support this greatest work of the church, our contributions are but a bagatelle and should cause us to blush with shame. The recent reports of our Missionary Board allow of no ground for boasting.

Our Church Extension Boards are doing much to build up the waste places, but what of the pitiful collection of two thousand dollars or less from a membership of 40,000—five cents per member! The price of a stick of chewing gum or glass of soda!

Of late much is being made of our great Epworth movement. We have glowing reports from all quarters, and yet what are we doing with this mass of developed material? Here and there a report comes which is like an oasis in a great desert, but really little has been accomplished in proportion to what might have been expected.

While our Sunday-school work is worthy of great praise, and in no wise to be disparaged, should Robert Raiks take a tour of our American towns and cities his heart would sink within him as he would see the crowds of young men gathered upon our street corners and the scores of children in our homes who spend the Holy Sabbath as though it were a gala day. Clarion notes would doubtless sound forth from the Gloucester journalist in behalf of our neglected children.

I write these words not in complaint, nor in the spirit of pessimism, but that we may see the truth as it is and gird up our loins to the work committed to our hands. To Methodists above all others have been conceded the obligations to make advance movements on all these lines. To meet these obligations and expectations demands that we be not only fertile in plans, but vigilant in executions—doing whatsoever our hands find to do with all our might.

A Treatise on Missions.

(Read by Miss Mattie Ahrens at Carondelet Street Church on occasion of the forty-ninth anniversary of New Orleans Sunday-school Union, Sunday, May 10, 1896.)

The mission cause reminds of the duel between Goliath and David.

1. Goliath defied Israel. He deemed himself superior to any of Israel's hosts. The same do Mohammedanism, Buddhism and Brahminism. They sneer at our attempts of bringing the gospel to their votaries. They hold that both in morality and devotion they are not inferior to Christians. Many in our own country hold similar views, saying that money spent for foreign missions is cruel wastage.

2. In volunteering to enter into combat with Goliath, he met with difficulties. His own brothers called him impertinent and proud. Our difficulties in bringing the heathen to Christ are great and numerous. Lack of money is the chief one. Only few contribute towards foreign missions. The Mission Boards of our own church and other churches report inadequate means to carry on the Lord's work. Another difficulty is the open hostility of the heathen. Not a few have been massacred while engaged in their evangelistic work.

3. David's outfit for combat is very suggestive. Saul thought that David ought to be martially attired, armed with appropriate weapons. Only a sling and five smooth stones from a near brook he employed. But his strength lay in his trust in the Almighty. "And he to the Philistine braggard, "I came to thee in the name of the Lord of hosts." In converting the heathen we employ only the gospel. Question the wisdom of paying school teachers and physicians with missionary money. We are to preach the gospel. "It will prove a leaven which will season the whole lump."

4. David's victory was complete. Soon Goliath lay weltering in his blood. The giant had been overcome. The same will be the result of faithful missionary work. The heathen will be secured as the Master's inheritance. As the blowing of the ram's horns caused the walls of Jericho to fall, so the preaching of the gospel will win all mankind for Christ.

Correspondence.

Bro. Futrell's Appeal.

We have now been in this beautiful and picturesque little city nearly a month, and I believe I never had a more rapid recovery of health—i. e., considering that my poor health had become so nearly, if not completely, chronic. I've been able to preach nearly every Sunday, and sometimes twice, and this morning I actually went upon the Gothic roof of the new parsonage Bro. W. B. Smith is building, and nailed on shingles till dinner. When this parsonage is completed I believe we will have but two or three charges unsupplied in this Conference. In this regard our preachers are well fixed.

When we reached here we found our pastors here—two of them, endeavoring to supply the gospel to these two counties—with the presiding elder (Rev. H. S. Shangle), all much concerned over the fine opening offered to secure a fine $9,000 school property for about one-third its value. Feeling that I would be compelled to rest from pastoral work for a few years, and perhaps permanently, and having control of sufficient funds, I have purchased it, and hope to do much good with it. But I find that in order to accomplish the greatest good, as well as to make it yield the best revenue, I need—yea, must have—boarding facilities. So I want to appeal to my old Mississippi friends, not for a gift, but for a loan, or for the investment of small sums in the school. I could get the means here if I would make the school purely secular, but I want to run it for Christ and the church; so, brother, sister, if you have a few hundred dollars, or even one hundred—yea, even fifty dollars—which you wish to put into a safe investment, and at the same time where it will be doing great good, let me have it. I will issue shares or take it as a loan. I would prefer the latter, as I have no doubt of its early return. I already have several applicants for board. "Why did the people sell?" They are Seventh-day Adventists; opened the school four years ago, and the first year success was so surprising they became aggressive, pushing their peculiar tenets, and they soon ran down to less than one hundred pupils, and as they had built beyond their means they found themselves unable to continue.

I have been surprised at the cordial greeting given me by people from all over the contiguous territory. Locally, our territory is all of Coos and Curry counties and that part of Douglas watered by the Umpqua river. Get your maps and see. The population here has more than doubled since last census. More than 200 families have come into a few miles of this place since I came here; and as the best coal mines of the West are being rapidly opened, this promises to be quite a populous district very soon. And while we do not aspire to the greatness of South Africa or Alaska in our gold mines, yet I know of three men who have taken out from $200 to $400 per week for quite a while in one of them.

Brother, sister, gentle reader, if you can do anything now, in July, or even in October, let me know at once. But if you don't mean business, don't take my time, labor, and postage. Well, yes, write me for old friendship's sake; but send a self-directed envelope and stamp, for though two or three cents is not much, yet several of them counts to a Western preacher.

The Sunday Law.

The Sunday Rest League of this city issues the following appeal to the people of Louisiana:

"The Sunday Rest League in Louisiana appeals to the good people of the State, at this peculiar juncture in its history, with entire confidence.

"The argument is so manifold, the lines of suggestion are so abundant from every point of view, that a vast deal of pertinent matter must necessarily be omitted in a brief popular address. In this instance the attention of the public will be invited to only two considerations of paramount importance. In the first place, the Day of Rest is pre-eminently and peculiarly the people's day. It is, therefore, the most unique and supremely beautiful expression of modern civilization. In the other days of the week the world is governed by its task masters. But on the Day of Rest the relations of capital to labor are temporarily dissolved. The working man has become a resting man, with everything that rest implies. His wife, his children, now behold him in the essential dignity of his freedom, and he thinks of himself as a citizen of the world, and no longer as the servant of the shop.

"This is a teeming thought, and if it were fully developed it might supply a sufficient refutation to all the heresies of socialism. It is a sublime consolation to remember that after all, the work of the world can be done in six days; that once in every seven days the world can hold still, remember and reflect. The selfishness of a perverse humanity would deny this opportunity to the toiling masses, the subtle sophistry of greed would suggest innumerable specious objections; but the growing enlightenment of the world more and more demonstrates the importance of a hebdomadal day of rest to the physical well-being and moral dignity of human nature.

"No man can take up this line of thought without being impressed by its consequence. In the order of nature, in the inevitable course of business, some must follow and some must lead, and the awards of fortune must often appear quite disproportionate to trials endured and service rendered. Then how sweet the Sabbath silence when the whirling wheels are stopped and the clanging hammers hushed in the name of humanity, and all the tyranny of superior strength is for a season quelled. On that Day of Rest the poorest man recognizes his freedom and enjoys his independence. The despotism of capital grows primarily out of the physical necessities of human nature, and when it is conceded by public opinion and determined by law that six days out of seven are enough to meet all the demands of food, raiment and shelter, emancipation has been achieved, and space has been won for free development of the human spirit. A perfect day of rest would be a complete answer to socialism; because it would involve a thorough readjustment of the relations of capital and labor upon a basis of absolute justice. There is no space here for the further development of this thought, but it is submitted in the hope that it will fall as good seed upon good ground, yielding thirty, sixty and an hundred fold.

"In the second place, the Day of Rest is essentially and primarily a family day. Under the inexorable exactions of a complex industrial system, constantly growing more complicated, thousands of men—many thousands—have only one day in the week in which they can cultivate the acquaintance and enjoy the society of their wives and children. They come home at night weary and worn; they are compelled to return to their work before the family is well awake. If it were not for that one day of rest they would have no real family life. The case is even sadder than that. There are loving mothers who have but one day in the week to give to their children. But home is the social unit. Society is not a mere aggregation of individuals; it is a congregation of homes. Therefore every consideration of sympathetic humanity and of enlightened statesmanship claims a day of rest in the name of 'Home, Sweet Home,' the only sound organic call of a pure and noble public life.

"The Sunday law in Louisiana was not hastily passed. It is an expression of centuries of ripe experience and mature thought. Its enemies are the enemies of order, peace and social happiness.

"The opposition to the Sunday law pretends that in principle it violates individual liberty, as though the working man, whose family depend for bread upon wages received, is in a condition to debate questions of social right with the unscrupulous employer, who would exact from him the utmost which physical endurance can possibly be made to yield. The object of this law was to give a day of rest to men and women who labor, and its enemies are the vendors of intoxicating drinks, who desire its repeal for selfish greed, and would prevent a day of rest, no matter whose liberty is destroyed.

"The Sunday Rest League appeals on all these sacred grounds for the continued support of that patriotic and philanthropic majority which has hitherto upheld its hands and confirmed the success of its labors. Let no individual citizen, however humble; let no home, however lowly, be sacrificed to the luxury or the avarice of any class. Let the Sunday law remain on the statute books of the State, and let us meanwhile trust to the growth of enlightened opinion and the coming into power of more energetic officials for its more rigid enforcement."

Be a Sunshine Christian.

This is a weary, tired world; it hasn't much sunshine. About all there is comes from the great Sun of Righteousness, shining through the disciples of Jesus. There is much glitter, a good deal of burnished brass, but little real warm sunshine in the hearts of men, only as it comes from him. And this makes your duty clear—mine, too. Go out into the new year with sunshine in your soul, in your face. It is a libel on Jesus Christ to go about with a long face. "Why should the children of a king go mourning all the day?" True, why should they? Many of us have interpreted Christianity to mean a pious groan or a holy moan. An evangelist was holding meeting in a church where I was pastor; he was running things on the "sad" line; we felt bad in nearly every meeting; he did a blessed work—but we might have done double if we had learned a lesson a little girl taught me near the close of the meetings. She was standing in the hallway, talking to a companion of hers. Her face wore a troubled expression; she was on the way out of the meeting. "I am not going in there any more; aren't they awful sad in there?" And she went away. As I remember it now, we didn't win a child to Jesus in that series of meetings.

Put sunshine into your religion. No, no, that's wrong; if your religion doesn't put sunshine into you, quit it, and get another kind; you've got a spurious religion. I know a good man, but his face is hard and sour; he interprets religion to mean sadness; while everybody has confidence in him, nobody would think of getting some of his religion. He looks as if he lived on pickles and persimmons three hundred and sixty-five days in the year.

Ah, yes, Jesus was a man of sorrows; but he was always scattering sunshine into other lives. He came to take sorrow away; he drank the cup of humanity's sorrow that we might not need to drink it. "That my joy might remain with you, that your joy might be full." Fill up on his joy, and then go out into the world, scattering sunshine into other lives.—Exchange.

Various Forms of Worldliness.

It would be amusing, if it was not so sad, to see men in the church, who love money as they love their life, stern and severe in their condemnation of young Christians indulging in the dance and theatres. Not that the young Christians are to be excused for a moment. They are conforming to this world in a way that will bring dishonor to their Lord, and leanness and barrenness to their own souls. But the rich curmudgeon, who hugs his money to his bosom, as his darling treasure, is guilty of worse than worldliness; he is guilty of covetousness, which is idolatry, and which damns, unless it is forsaken, for "no covetous man.... shall inherit the kingdom of God."—Truth.

I wonder many times that ever a child of God should have a sad heart, considering what the Lord is preparing for him.—S. Rutherford.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. A. J. Notestine, New Iberia, La., May 19: "We closed a three weeks' meeting last Sunday. There were thirteen accessions to the church, and the membership revived to a degree that makes the prospect for a larger work in the near future quite promising. The collections ordered by the Conference are pretty well provided for. We thank God and take conrage."

Rev. B. F. Lewis, Woodville, Miss., May 18: "We have just closed a meeting of two weeks' duration in Woodville, conducted by Bro. C. L. Chilton, of Montgomery, Ala., which resulted in a great spiritual nplift to the church and community. There were both conversions and entire sanctifications. Bro. Chilton relies wholly on the Word and Spirit to do the work, he making but few propositions. The foundation being well laid, the after results can but be good."

Rev. T. G. Freeman, Sallis, Miss., May 16: "I am moving on about as usual on the Sallis circuit. Have collected and paid all the foreign missionary assessment ordered by the Conference. Have some money on the other collections in hand. Our District Conference of the Durant district meets at Sallis, June 11. Come to see us. We will be glad to see you. I think the ADVOCATE so much improved. I am glad to see it. Success to the ADVOCATE."

Mrs. Laura L. Chevalier, Superintendent, Vidalia, May 12: "A most delightful lawn party was given on Thursday night in the Court-house Square for the benefit of the Sunday-school, Methodist Church. It was quite a brilliant affair. The attendance was large, and the gross receipts aggregated about ten dollars. All the youth and beauty of Vidalia were in attendance, and none failed to enjoy themselves. Rev. J. White Davis preached in Vidalia on Sunday morning and night, May 10."

Rev. E. S. Lewis, P. C., Shaw, Miss., May 11: "We have just closed a very interesting meeting at this place. The church was stirred, and many of the irreligious were impressed for good. Rev. J. J. Brooks was with us a few days, and Rev. T. W. Lewis came and preached five days for us. The close, searching gospel, as preached by these brethren, will always tell upon the community. As a result of the meeting two young ladies joined our church on profession of faith, one by letter, and one joined the Presbyterian Church. We have received eleven since Conference. All the interests of the church are well up. Preacher's salary paid up to date; about $200 raised for improvements. The church property has been insured."

Rev. J. H. Foreman, Trenton charge: "Our second Quarterly Conference is a thing of the past. It was a time very much enjoyed by all that attended. Rev. W. W. Simmons, P. E., was present in the Spirit of the Lord, and in his sweet-spirited manner made the occasion a very enjoyable one. The Board of Stewards are still looking after the interest of the preacher. They reported $61 for preacher in charge; $10 for presiding elder; $43 on parsonage. We held our first Children's Day service yesterday, which was at New Prospect. A very large congregation present. The crowd was estimated at 500. Six dollars and fifty five cents was the result of the collection. We have had a Sunday school revival in this country. Our password is, 'Onward and upward.' We are determined by God's help to succeed. Pray for us."

Rev. J. H. Smith, Noah, Miss., May, 11: "As many of your readers know, at the last session of our (the North Mississippi) Annual Conference I was granted the privilege of resting for a year, that I might build up over an attack of typhoid-malarial fever. I have spent most of the time in Texas, at Galveston and San Antonio, and that delightful climate has acted like a charm on my tired, broken-down nature, and I return to Mississippi ready and anxious to enter again (in my usual way) in the battle of right against wrong, and propose to put in the time until Conference as best I can, and I take this means of announcing to the brethren that if any of them wish my services in meetings, they can address me at Noah, Miss. Kindly greeting to the brethren, and many thanks for their prayers and other kindnesses."

Rev. Ira L. Brown, P. C., Winnsboro, La., May 19: "I am in the midst of my second year's work at this place. We are moving along much better than during the year passed. The evangelist, Rev. M. M. Morphis, has been with us several days; he did good work. His sermons are very searching, go down deep into the heart and soul. One man said, 'He strikes me all over.' The two churches have had over thirty accessions, and the church members greatly revived. Our presiding elder, Rev. B. F. White, has just closed his second Quarterly Conference. We paid him in full up to date, and have a small balance to our credit. He remained with us several days preaching and visiting, and preached some practical, common-sense, soul-stirring sermons. Have sent you quite a number of subscribers for the ADVOCATE, but hope to send more, as I realize that the church paper is one of the preacher's best friends. It is a safe paper to place in the hands of anyone, which we can not say of many of our papers; also helps to get people interested in church work."

Rev. W. T. Currie, P. C., Montgomery, La., May 19: "We are having a glorious time here for the Lord. On May 8 I began a meeting here. Bro. Morrell, of Cartersville, Ga., came on the ninth. Up to date 57 have joined the church, with more to follow. The recording angel is keeping account of the conversions and sanctifications. I think there is something over 100 conversions, and at least 60 or 70 sanctifications—one of them a preacher, and 40 or 50 family altars erected. One brother called to preach. The oldest citizens say they never saw anything like it in all their lives. Bro. Morrell is saving souls. We go home from here to Saint Manrice; then to Ragan's Chapel. We are expecting great things from God. During the service one day a little girl thirteen years old went to her father and invited him to join the church, and he did so; then he brought her up and she joined. It was a grand sight. God is with us in great power. To him be all the praise! Glory! I am saved and sanctified."

Rev. G. A. Guice, Oak Ridge, May 19: "We have held Children's Day at two points on the work, Oak Ridge and Phœnix, and both days were a splendid success. The children performed their parts well; showing that careful training had been given them. The collections amounted to $24 80 for the two points. The church at Phœnix is doing some good work. They have spent more than $150 this year by way of improvements on the church and grounds. One lady in the abundant goodness of her heart has presented the church with a new pulpit, pulpit chairs, altar stands and carpet for the pulpit, and it is a handsome set. 'He that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully.' This is our first year on the Warren circuit, and many tokens of kindness have come to the parsonage, bespeaking the thoughtfulness of a kind-hearted people, and making us feel that, though among strangers, we were not without friends. We are praying for and expecting the baptism of the Holy Ghost for the work during the year, and we ask an interest in the prayers of the brethren, and especially the former pastors of the work, that we may not be disappointed. We have a ladies' prayer meeting at this place, in which many of the ladies are taking an active part. A Parsonage and Home Mission Society has also been organized, and we are expecting good things from those in the future."

Rev. Chas. D. Atkinson, Jackson, La., May 11: "I feel moved to tell you of our meeting held at Ethel station, which resulted in twenty conversions and sixteen accession to our church and one to the Baptist. We were helped in the meeting by Bro. A. S. Lutz, who preached in the power of the Spirit. The Lord has greatly blessed this meeting. One of the results of the revival is the organization of an Epworth League. Rev. J. F. Foster, of Jackson, visited us on Sunday—May 10—and organized the League with twenty three charter members. Heretofore this place has been a small appointment on this circuit; but everything bids fair to its becoming a live station, a 'city set on a hill,' a 'leaven' in this community. The work at Slaughter and Bentoville is progressing; each place has a flonrishing Sunday-school, and an Epworth League has been organized at Slaughter, which is doing good work on all the lines indicated in the constitution. A feature of the Literary Department has been to secure lecturers to address the League on live topics. Dr. C. W. Carter, president of Centenary College; Prof. Thos. Carter and Prof. J. M. Sullivan are among those who have delivered instructive, inspiring addresses. The people on the work have been very kind, having helped me by their prayers, consecrated lives and earnest work to promote God's kingdom. We are praying for a revival all over the work, and would ask all Christians to join with us at a throne of grace for this purpose."

Rev. G. S. Morehead, Tatum circuit, North Mississippi Conference, May 18: "The NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE is always a welcome visitor to our home. It does me so much good to read the letters of our pastoral brethren from their fields of labor. Thank God for such a church as ours. I am proud of its doctrines, all its regulations and rules. I am so proud of our noble preachers, such as Drs. Hoss, Black, Boswell, and all our consecrated Bishops. I'll never forget the preacher who started me out in life, in preparing myself for the ministry, Bro. J. J. Garner, of the North Mississippi Conference. When I was without money or anything, he took me to his house and gave me a home. He gave me a great deal of good advice which has been very helpful to me. Then I shall always think of the beloved presiding elder (Bro. J. W. Honnoll), who licensed me to preach. Thank God I have not regretted the hour that I began to preach the gospel of Christ. I am glad to see the older brethren manifest so much interest in the education of the young preachers. I am doing all I can to fit myself for usefulness. I expect to join the Conference next Fall if God spares my life. When we have such men at our shoulders as Dr. Sullivan, Cameron, Dye, Bell, Morehead, we have no fears. Mr. Editor, though I have never had the pleasure of meeting you, I love you because you are so kind to the young preachers in advising with them. I will be so glad when our District Conference convenes at Grenada, Miss., so that I can see you and all the preachers, presiding elder and Bishop Fitzgerald. I am moving along nicely with my work, considering my late start, and the money is very scarce in this region. But my people are doing well in supporting the ministry. I am learning how to press my claims when it comes to the collections of the church. Have gotten up the most of our Bishops' fund and our debt on our district parsonage. Brother, pray for me."

Holman Bible at $1 25.

By buying in wholesale quantities we are able to make the following reduction in our Emerald-type Holman Bible. This Bible we have sold heretofore at $1 50. We now offer it at $1.25 to those who pay their subscription a full year in advance—that is, to June, '97. We do not advise any person who has passed the meridian of life to get this Bible, on acconnt of the smallness of the print. For young persons, however, it will answer as well as the more expensive styles. It has all the helps of the larger sizes. Address

THE HOLMAN BIBLE IN THREE STYLES

$1.25, $1.75 AND $2.45.

We are now offering the Holman Self-Pronouncing Bible for $1.75 to subscribers who pay a full year in advance, i. e., up to June, '97. This Bible has all the Helps of the Oxford Bible, and, in addition to this, it gives the pronunciation of every proper name, not in an appendix, but in the book itself wherever the name occurs. This makes it by far the best Bible on the market. Everybody, whether educated or uneducated, needs help in the pronunciation of proper names, especially Bible names.

There is a demand for Bibles with larger type than is used in the Bible we have been handling. We have made arrangements to meet that demand. We have an edition of the Holman Bible printed in bourgeois type—the largest type used in Oxford Bibles. This Bible is bound exactly in the same style as our other Holman Bibles. Those who want this Bible must meet the requirements of our offer as to subscription, and then send $2 45 instead of $1.75. This is the best bargain ever offered in a bourgeois type Bible.

We sell our large-type Holman Bible to persons who are not subscribers for $5—publisher's price. Our subscribers get it on conditions specified in our offer for $2.45. The ADVOCATE and the Bible both cost only $4.45, while the Bible alone costs $5. See the point?

We have also an edition of this Bible in smaller type than our $1.75 edition, which we sell at the low price of $1 25. Read carefully our offer on the seventh page.

For twenty cents we will have your name engraved in gilt letters on the outside of the book.

Kosciusko, Miss.

We made a trip last week to Kosciusko for the purpose of giving a lecture. This was our first visit to this place. Bro. J. C. Park is in the midst of a very prosperous pastorate. He has large congregations; and the finances are in fine shape. Besides paying current expenses, a parsonage debt of several hundred dollars has been nearly extinguished. The foreign mission collection was taken a few days since, and the subscriptions exceeded the assessment by nearly fifty per cent. Quite a number have been added to the church, and there has been a decided increase of spirituality. The Epworth League is doing good work, and the Sunday-school is regarded as one of the best in the Conference.

We made headquarters at the parsonage. We also enjoyed the hospitalities of Sister Kelly. Kosciusko is quite a prosperous town, shipping perhaps more cotton than any town in North Mississippi.

Edward Booth Is Dead.

Edward Booth, one of the best known and most influential citizens of this city, died at his residence on Magazine street, on Friday, the twenty-second, in his seventy-second year. He was a native of England, but had been a resident of this city for fifty-three years. He took high rank as a business man, having built up by his own exertions a very extensive and prosperous manufacturing establishment. He was a man of first-class intellectual powers and of extensive information. He was a trenchant, forceful writer, and exceedingly popular and effective as a public speaker. Several times he held official positions. He served some years as a member of the City Council, and chairman of the Finance Committee, and in this position made a record for fidelity and efficiency unsurpassed in the annals of municipal government. He represented his parish at different times in both branches of the Legislature. He was also a member of the Board of Health at that critical time (1879) when it was to be decided whether or not New Orleans must be forever afflicted with an annual visitation of yellow fever. Through the labors of that Board, of which he was one of the leading spirits, science triumphed over disease. New Orleans has never had a case of yellow fever since. But, though he was willing to serve the people in an emergency public office had no attractions for him. Three different times he was offered a seat in Congress, but declined the honor. The mayorality of the city was also tendered him, but not accepted. He was a member of Felicity Street Church forty-eight years, and during all that time was the teacher of the Bible class—a position for which he possessed preeminent qualifications. He was one of the chief instrumentalities in the erection of the present elegant church edifice. His place in New Orleans Methodism will be hard to fill.

Aimless Living.

[illegible] into two classes—those who have definite aims and purposes, and those who live like Micawber, "waiting for something to turn up." Unfortunately, the latter class are largely in the majority. The aimless man, we may remark, never achieves true success. A huntsman is not apt to bring down game that he does not shoot at. Aimlessness is the mother of failure and discontent. The difficulty with most men is not so much that they are not industrious, as that they labor without any definite plans in view. The chief advantage of an education is that it enables its possessor to concentrate all his energies upon one thing until it is done. An uneducated man may be as wise and original as some other man possessed of culture. Yet he can not express himself so logically and coherently, because his mind has never been trained to habits of fixed attention.

What we call the great works of the world have been accomplished largely by the dogged determination of men of ordinary ability rather than by the efforts of genius. Samuel Taylor Coleridge, though a man of gifted intellect, lived an aimless life, and died without leaving behind any great literary monument. "He was always going to do something, but never did." He is said to have left behind him several thousand treatises on metaphysics and divinity—but not one of them complete. Not a few Christians exhibit similar weakness of character. People in whom there is not the bed-rock of a strong determination can never be built up into stable and stately monuments of truth and holiness.

While many in the lower classes are so situated as not to be able to choose their work, being under the necessity of doing whatevor presents itself, there would be fewer unemployed and wages would be better if the masses possessed technical skill of some kind. The man who can do one thing well will find employment where another who does many things indifferently will search in vain for something to do. The importance of sticking to one thing is a lesson that thousands never learn. The age we live in is one of specialization. Hence the man who does not fit himself for a special kind of work is at a great disadvantage. Says Bulwer: "No man is fit to win who has not sat down to think alone; and who has not come forth with purpose in his eye, with white cheeks, set lips, and clenched palms, able to say: 'I am resolved what to do.'" As Owen Meredith sings:

"The man who seeks but one thing in life, and but one,
May hope to achieve it before life be done;
But he who seeks all things wherever he goes,
Only reaps from the hopes which around him he sows,
A harvest of barren regrets."

The principle here stated holds true in religion as well as in secular matters. "A doubled-minded man," as the Scripture says, "is unstable in all his ways." It is folly to look for deep piety where there is the absence of clear-cut convictions of duty. The various churches of Christendom are full of people who aim, after a fashion, at being religious; but this purpose is vague and feeble. Consequently, they do not "bring forth fruit unto perfection." The true Christian is he who can say with the Apostle Paul, "This one thing I do." If God be not first in our affections, he will not dwell in our hearts.

Christians all realize that they ought to do good. Few, however, concern themselves about how they may be useful. Opportunities, instead of being sought, are waited for, and so the Lord's work languishes. Church members hope that in some way they will grow better, without aiming at the suppression of particular sins, or the cultivation of particular virtues. As if, forsooth, the Christian graces and virtues were attainable without special effort! In order to fight the good fight of faith, we need to know exactly what temptations are peculiar to us, what virtues we must cultivate most assidnously, what particular forms of Christian work we are best fitted for. There is abundance of power in the lives of individual Christians. The failure with the church is in allowing it to run to waste.

Again, definiteness of aim must be accompanied by earnestness, by passionate devotion to the work in hand. No man is likely to succeed who is not in love with his work. Well has it been said: "It is not so much the hours that tell as the way we use them." It is not enough that a man direct his attention to one thing at a time. It should have his whole attention. The man who works with all his might is the one whose work will command admiration. Nothing is so contagious as enthusiasm. "Better is it that the pot should boil over than that it should not boil at all." Dr. Arnot relates the following conversation as having occurred at a railway station between a farmer and a railroad engineer: "What are you waiting for so long? Have you no water?"—"Oh, yes, we have plenty of water, but it is not boiling." So in serving God there may be abundance of knowledge and right direction of effort; but without intense, boiling earnestness little good will be done. An orthodox faith and a splendid organization are splendid things to have; but they can not supply the place of that zeal which is born of the presence of the Holy Spirit. What wonderful power there would be in our lives, if they were animated constantly by the spirit of Brainerd's prayer: "Oh, that I were a flaming fire in the service of my God."

Earnestness is not everything, however. A man may be ever so zealous, and yet be wrong. Suppose a sick man believes over so firmly that poison is wholesome medicine, and he takes the poison: will his earnestness save him? The inquisitors of the Middle Ages were models of zeal; but the spirit of the devil, not the Spirit of Christ, possessed them. Many people have the fault of being zealous about trifles. The Pharisees were scrupulous to observe the minutiæ of the ceremonial law, but they overlooked the weightier matters of judgment and mercy. In this age some well-meaning, but misguided Christians speak out more loudly against the use of tobacco and the wearing of jewelry and bonnet feathers than they do against the horrible evils of drunkenness, gambling, and lewdness.

An aimless life is never a truly happy one. We are so constituted as to find our highest enjoyment only in the execution of some great purpose. The higher the ideal, the greater its transforming power. What Ruskin says of art is, in a sense, true of life generally: "It does not matter whether a man paint the petal of a rose or the chasms of a precipice, so that love and admiration attend on him as he labors, and wait forever on his work. It does not matter whether he toil for months on a few inches of canvas, or cover a palace front with color in a day, so only that it be with a solemn purpose, that he have his heart filled with patience or urged his hand to haste." No other form of happiness is comparable with that which comes from the supreme purpose to serve God. To love and serve God with all the soul, mind, and strength is to have fullness of joy. He who seeks to please God in all things finds him in all things.

"If thou canst plan a noble deed
And never flag till it succeed,
Though in the strife thy heart should bleed,
Whatever obstacles contend,
Thine hour will come, go on, thou soul!
Thou'lt win the prize, thou'lt reach the goal."

Whither Are We Drifting?

We have on several occasions called attention to the shameless desecration of the Sabbath in this city by the Romish Church and its adherents. It now becomes our painful task to chronicle the fact that Rome is not the only sinner in this matter. On Sunday, the seventeenth, a mammoth festival was given at the Fair Grounds in the interest of the Battle Abbey. The affair having been largely advertised, the attendance was immense, running far up into the thousands. There was a military display on a scale of immense magnitude, including a competitive drill and a sham battle. There was a circus and a dog show. There were refreshment booths where every variety of eatables was dispensed, from the most plebian sandwich to the costliest product of the culinary art. Of course, there were intoxicating drinks on sale; a New Orleans festival would be incomplete without that. There were phrenologists, fortune tellers, wheels of fortune, palmists, witches, and much more of the same sort. There was a comic art gallery. And to give dignity to the thing there was an oration by Judge Emory Speer, of Macon, Ga. All this on the Lord's Day for the purpose of raising money. And who attended? Romanists alone? Would that it were so. But candor requires a different statement. Rome was there, of course; but Protestantism sent her thousands to participate in this shameful desecration of the holy Sabbath. Protestant women—leaders in society—were active participators in the whole affair from start to finish. And Methodism was compromised in the person of the orator of the day—Judge Emory Speer, with whom we have a personal acquaintance. He is a man of fine attainments, both literary and legal. He is also an accomplished orator. He has filled the position of United State judge for several years. He is a Methodist, the son of a Methodist preacher, and has been, if he is not now, a leader in our Israel. How sad for such a man to use his talents and the fame which he has aquired in aid of such a God-dishonoring scheme! The speech he made must not be considered alone, but in connection with the whole festival of which it formed a part.

If men and women who worship at the altars of Protestantism can take part in such an affair as this, then what does Protestantism stand for? Of what use is our Bible? That this secularization of the Sabbath is steadily on the increase is apparent to all who keep their eyes open. In this latitude Sunday is the great day of the week for political campaigning. Candidates for offices of all grades, with very few exceptions, use the holy Sabbath just as they do any other day. Governors, Congressmen and United States Senators, as well as the smaller fry, make political speeches on Sunday, with the usual accompaniments. If they were all Romanists, this would not be strange. But many of them are Protestants in good standing in their respective churches — Methodists as well as others. Alas! alas! Whither are we drifting?

The Church and Intoxicants.

Here is what the Bishops of the M. E. Church have to say anent the liquor traffic:

"The church has no new word to utter, no new position to take in regard to those seductive, but deadly poisons that blight and destroy all that is great and holy in human life. The accursed influence of intoxicating drinks and drugs on every interest of man, the family, social life, politics, and religion, is earthly, sensual and devil-possessed. By the power of heredity it lays on children to the third and fourth generation the curse of physical deterioration, deficiency and idiocy. It hurries men into insanity with dreadful rapidity. The ideal legislation, the enactment of which is to be constantly sought, for the utter destruction of this monstrous crime, is total prohibition. And while we are seeking the enactment and enforcement of this ideal legislation, we must seek to annihilate this arch enemy by every available weapon. Any law that shuts the saloon on Sunday, or an election day, keeps it a certain distance from a church or school, that restricts the places where or the classes to whom this fiery death may be sold, should be executed to the full."

The Epworth League.

We commend to the consideration of Southern Methodists everywhere the following deliverance of the Bishops of the M. E. Church concerning the Epworth League:

"Among the great agencies for the increase of spiritual life we can not speak too highly of the Epworth League. In it are enrolled 1,350,000 of our young people organized into over 21,000 chapters. They are turning away from amusements of a pernicious character which are always the peril of advancing wealth and consequent idleness, and are facing earnest and intelligent work to bring this world to Christ. This vast army of young people is being trained by appropriate courses of reading, by 100,000 copies of the Epworth Herald issued weekly, by taking part in religious and social assemblies, and by personal work in the Department of Mercy and Help, to become active, intelligent, and devoted members of our own church. We especially commend the attendance of these young people on the public preaching services, because no devotion to any single department, however excellent, can be as productive of a well-rounded Christian character as attendance on all the means of grace.

"We are impressed with the importance of encouraging our pastors and young people to establish and maintain Epworth Leagues rather than other societies, in order that they may have the benefit of our literature and be trained to be loyal and intelligent Methodists."

General Conference Notes.

McKinley and Gov. Bushnell were introduced to the Conference and received a royal welcome.

Bishops Foster and Bowman are quite averse to superannuation, but they yield to the authority of "the powers that be" meekly and graciously.

Resolutions have been passed denouncing the sale of intoxicants in the Capitol at Washington as a national disgrace, and appealing to Congress to pass the pending prohibitory bill.

Hereafter graduates of theological schools who join the traveling connection will not be required to study the whole four years' course, but only that part of it not included in the college curriculum.

The effort to remove the restrictions against card-playing, theatre-going, dancing, etc., was overwhelmingly defeated, only about forty votes out of more than five hundred being polled in its favor.

Bishop Taylor, of the diocese (?) of Africa, is placed on the superannuated list. J. C. Hartzell has been elected Bishop of Africa. Dr. Mason takes Dr. Hartzell's place as Secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society.

The complaint of A. C. Bowdish against Bishops Fowler, Fitzgerald and Warren was not sustained, because of his transfer, nolens volens, from one Conference to another was not sustained, thus furnishing additional proof that Bishops have supreme authority in the matter of making appointments.

The election of General Conference officers resulted as follows: New York Book Agents, Drs. Eaton and Mains; Cincinnati Book Agents, Curtis and Jennings; Missionary Secretaries, A. B. Leonard, A. J. Palmer and Dr. Smith; Church Extension Secretaries, A. J. Kynett and W. A. Spencer, the present incumbents: Secretaries of the Freedman's Aid Society, J. C. Hartzell and J. W. Hamilton (re-elected); Secretary of the Sunday-school and Tract Society, Dr. J. S. Hurlburt; Secretary of the Board of Education, Dr. C. A. Payne; editor New York Advocate, J. M. Buckley; editor Review, W. V. Kelley; Western Advocate, D. N. Moore; Northwestern Advocate, J. B. Young; Pittsburg Advocate, C. W. Smith; Northern Advocate, J. E. C. Sawyer; California Advocate, Matthews; Southwestern Advocate, F. R. Scott; Epworth Herald, J. F. Berry; Household Herald, Slagle.

A political party would no more set up a known Sabbath breaker, or a gambler, or a profane swearer, or a whoremonger, or a rumseller as their candidate for office than they would set up the devil himself for President.—Charles G. Finney, in Lectures on Revivals.

We hear of faith cures at the time of their alleged occurrence. For they are sedulously trumpeted abroad. But rarely are the cases followed up to see whether the suffering is permanently relieved. Occasionally and incidentally we hear of relapses, and wonder what proportion of such cures are but temporary. In the Philadelphia Inquiror we find that the work of Schlatter, the faith healer in Nebraska, is equally unsatisfactory. The statement of that paper is that the "reputed cures effected by Schlatter, the healer, through the laying on of hands, have turned out to be no cures at all. When anything was really the matter with the workings of the physical machinery the distressing symptoms have returned."—Observer.

Until further notice we will send the ADVOCATE to new subscribers nine months for $1—cash in advance.

Moreover, we will give those who subscribe under this offer the benefit of our premium Bible offer, provided they send ten cents additional to assist in paying postage on the Bible.

TO AGENTS.

We make this offer to our agents. The three premiums to agents which were to be awarded July first will not be awarded until Oct. 15; and all subscriptions obtained under this $1 offer will count in the contest for these premiums together with the subscriptions obtained at the regular rate since Feb. 1.

The brethren doubtless remember what these premiums are: (1) A handsome parlor organ, which may be substituted by a church organ, if preferred. (2) A handsome gold-filled watch, guaranteed to be a perfect time keeper and to last twenty years, or if preferred an Arlington B. Sewing Machine. (3) A set of Clarke's Commentaries, with modern additions, durably bound in cloth. The largest number of subscribers gets the first; the second largest, the second; the third largest, the third. If the agent to whom the second premium is awarded prefers to do so, he can get instead of the watch or sewing machine, the Blickensderfer Typewriter by paying $10 in cash. This machine is a most excellent one, as shown by testimonials given elsewhere in this paper. Let all our preachers make this offer known to our people at once. Take notice that this offer is made only to new subscribers. We will make a liberal offer to our present subscribers within two or three months. Meantime, let all subscribers who are in arrears, pay up. The offer which we expect to make will not be available to those who are in arrears.

We will send a sample Bible for use in canvassing to those who desire it.

THE STORY OF METHODISM THROUGHOUT THE WORLD,

FROM THE BEGINNING TO THE PRESENT TIME.

It is a book which should be in every Methodist household. We are making it possible for anyone to afford it. The publisher's price is $3.50. We will send it postpaid for $1.50 to any subscriber who has paid or will pay to June, '97.

Children's Day Collection.

As treasurer of the Sunday-school Board of the North Mississippi Conference, I would make the following requests of my brethren:

(1) Please send in your Children's Day collections at once.

(2) Please send the full amounts collected, and let me make the division, as directed by the Discipline.

(3) Do not wait until Conference to send in your collections. We need the money now.

(4) If you have not observed the day, do so by all means.

Orphans' Day.

Amount previously reported	$172 80
Morton Sunday-school	3 10
Pelahatchie Sunday-school	2 50
Barlow circuit	7 25
Wesson (M. M. Evans)	20 00
Gallman circuit	20 00
Jackson—First Church	4 75
DeKalb	4 00
	$234 40

Comparisons are said to be "odious." Nevertheless, I will ask some of our brethren to look at the following: Jackson—First Church—has subscribed and paid, or raised in cash and subscriptions, $800. I will not say what Vicksburg, Meridian, Natchez, Yazoo City and other places have done; the people know whether they have been given an opportunity to give or not. Some of us only look after the big things. Some wait like the cowardly husband, till we can say, "Look! we killed a bear."

Bro. Gunning's article, some weeks ago, stressed a point well to look to. As pastors, it is our duty to offer our congregations the opportunity to contribute. Not one cent has been reported from the Enterprise district; four dollars from the Meridian. Utica is the only charge that observed the day so far as we know in the Vicksburg district. Moss Point the only one from Seashore. Three Sunday-schools from Brandon district (all on one circuit). Four charges from Brookhaven district; three charges from Jackson district. One brother (the Lord bless him!) said he was too busy saving souls to look after the Orphans' Day; two more forgot it, and another did not like the plan. Another said, I have been waiting, but no one has offered me any money, etc. Now, there are about fourscore and ten of us who have simply not discharged our duty. You will make all manner of excuse. That don't count for anything. If you will find a gentleman or lady, with the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ in their heart, who does not believe in the orphans' cause, then just send their pictures to J. A. Bowen, and he will preserve the same as a wonderful relic. If you won't take a collection, just tell your people about the work.

Yours fraternally,

M. L. BURTON.

A Justifiable Book,

Dr. Tigert says, is one that you "can not help" writing. The Doctor will accept an "amendment" in these words, I doubt not; "or one that actually and satisfactorily fills a place still vacant," commonly known as "a long-felt want." The "new song book," recently advertised in this paper, is justifiable on the first ground, and, we believe, is also on the last. The apparent need is: a song book that has enough usable songs to meet the requirements of revival and camp meetings, Epworth League Conferences, etc., and cheap enough to enable every person in the congregation to have one. Modern books seem padded to sell at larger prices. The "new song book" it is hoped will serve both purposes. First, because it has over 70 songs, each of which was selected for its usefulness, affording sufficient variety and number to meet the subject; second, because it is to be sold at 10 cents per copy, and $7.50 per hundred. Half of them are old, standard hymns, and half new ones, standards in our day, or destined to be. Words and music complete, manilla cover. For the last time we offer to all who order within 9 days from date of this issue, 50 copies for $3; 100 copies $5. Lyman P. Jackson, Alexandria, La.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Prayer Meeting Topic for May.

CHRIST IN SOCIAL RELATIONS.

SUNDAY, MAY 31—VOWS AND CHURCH RELATIONS.

(Matt. vii. 21; John xvii. 4; 1. Cor. viii. 13.)

I.—NO SUBSTITUTE ALLOWED FOR OBEDIENCE TO THE DIVINE WILL.

The Sermon on the Mount makes very clear the nature of the kingdom of Christ, and the indispensable condition of citizenship therein, which is conformity to the will of God, the Father, as revealed in the Son. No partial obedience will avail, neither can there be any possible substitute for obedience. There are many apparent qualifications for heavenly citizenship, but this is the only real qualification.

(1) Mere membership in the church is not sufficient. When a person joins the church, he voluntarily assumes the sacred vow of obedience to the law of Christ, and "Better is it that thou shouldest not vow, than that thou shouldest vow, and not pay."

(2) Ritualism is not sufficient. "To obey is better than sacrifice." "I will have mercy, and not sacrifice."

(3) A public profession of religion can not substitute its actual possession.

II.—CHRIST OUR EXAMPLE OF A PERFECT FULFILLMENT OF THE DIVINE WILL.

In his high priestly prayer, Jesus regards his redeeming work as actually accomplished, and from this point of view he says, "I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do." He voluntarily undertook to perform upon earth the will of the Father, and he was obedient—even "obedient unto death."

The disciples of Christ are also entrusted with a life-work, which they have voluntarily undertaken, and herein Christ is their continual example of faithfulness. At the end of life the faithful Christian may exclaim, with Paul, "I have fought a good fight," or, may even, without presumption, adopt the language of Christ, referred to above.

III.—OBLIGATIONS FOR OUR BROTHER'S SAKE.

Paul announces himself as ready to abstain from the use of meat forever, if, by so doing, he might save a brother from falling.

We may learn here that there are very important obligations, growing out of our vital relations to our brother Christians.

(1) We should have charity for what seems to us to be narrow-mindedness in others.

(2) We should be ever ready to make sacrifices of a personal nature, rather than to cause any person to stumble.

NOTES.

A good League was organized in Ponchatula, La., last week by Rev. J. M. Henry.

Bro. Foster organized a League in Jackson, La., on Sunday, May 10, with twenty-three members.

What a Woman Can Do.

I want my lady friends to know of the new field now open for them. In the past six months we have made a profit of $907.02 after paying all expenses. All our sales have been made at home, not having canvassed any. My official duties calling me away most of the time, I left the Dish Washer business in my wife's control with the above results. The business is rapidly increasing and will continue to grow until every family has a Climax Dish Washer. Not a day passes but what we sell one or two, and some days fifteen or twenty Dish Washers. It's easy selling what everybody wants to buy. You can wash and dry the dishes perfectly in two minutes. For full particulars address the Climax Mfg. Co., Columbus, Ohio. Get a sample dish washer and you can not help but make money. The Climax Mfg. Co. do not ask any pay until you have the Dish Washers sold. You may just as well be making $5 a day as to be doing nothing.

Notice.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference has been postponed one week, and will meet in Tupelo, July 4–7, instead of June 27–30, the usual time. This change is necessary in order to avoid a conflict with the Aberdeen District Conference, Bishop Fitzgerald having appointed June 25-28 as the time for holding that Conference.

A large delegation is greatly desired, and an attractive and profitable programme is being prepared. Rev. W. B. Burke, of China, will preach the annual sermon. Mrs. Addie Gordon Burke, of China, and Miss Viola Blackburn, of Mexico will also be present and deliver addresses. Our Machine Offer.

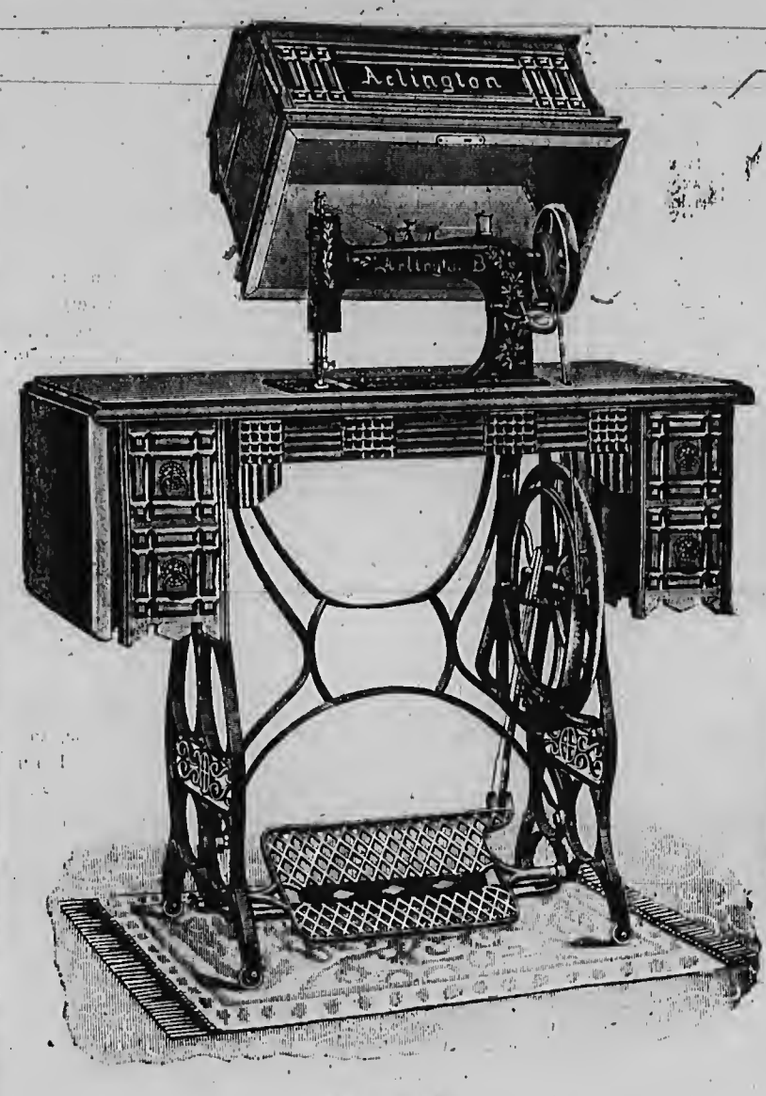
New Improved High-Arm "Arlington B" Self-Threading Sewing Machine.

A recorded certificate of warranty for 10 years accompanies each machine. The "Arlington B" is complete in every detail, combining all modern and late improvements, such as automatic bobbin winder, self-threading shuttle, self-setting needle, upper spring tension, etc.



"ARLINGTON B."

The "Arlington B" self-threading sewing machine has a large high arm, its mechanical appearance is perfect, its adjustment is absolute, positive take up, convenient foot-rest, with the best style furniture, either oak or walnut; in addition to which each machine is furnished with the best steel combination attachments free, as follows: One tucker, one foot ruffler, one set of plain hemmers (five different widths up to seven-eighths of an inch), one binder, one shirring plate and one under-oraider, packed in a handsome velvet lined case. It is also furnished with one foot hemmer, one screw driver, one wrench, one oil can with oil, one gauge, one package of needles, six bobbins and one instruction book.

THE HEAD is strong and substantial; has large space under the arm for handling bulky goods, is finely japanned, and processed by a hard finish. Has so few bearings and friction points that it is easily oiled and kept clean.

NEEDLE BAR is round, with adjustable bearings polished and fitted, insuring great wear, and can run a long time without oiling. It has a slack dip motion, relieving the strain upon the thread when the shuttle is passing through the loop. Using the adjustable take-up, controlling the threads perfectly on all grades of work.

IMPROVED AUTOMATIC BOBBIN WINDER which is so positive and reliable in its action that an imperfectly wound bobbin is an impossibility. So simple that a child can easily operate it. This valuable attachment renders possible a perfect control of shuttle tension.

SELF-THREADING—THE "ARLINGTON B" is self-threading, requiring no change from light to heavy work. Uses double thread, and makes the lock stitch.

THE NEEDLE is the same as used on the New Home machine, and is self-setting both as to height and position with reference to shuttle, with short blade and long shank, insuring great strength; finely polished.

SELF-THREADING SHUTTLE—A perfect steel cylinder shuttle with delicate and perfect tension, open at one end to allow the bobbin to be inserted without displacing any of the parts; runs loose in the shell without spring centre or point bearings, thus insuring an even tension; can be threaded in the dark, and easily understood.

LOOSE PULLEY for winding the bobbin without running the machine requires no change or adjustment, nor is it necessary to remove the work from the machine.

PARTS SUBJECT TO WEAR are made of the finest steel, case hardened, light and noiseless, and are very durable.

OUR OFFER.

To anyone, not now a subscriber to this paper, who will send us $20.50, we will send the machine and the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE one year. To old subscribers we make the following offer: Pay your subscription to January, '98, and send us $18.50 additional, and we will send you the machine.

We allow purchaser to test the machine for ten days. If at the end of ten days you are not satisfied, you have only to drop us a postal card, and your money will be refunded.

TO AGENTS:

We will send this machine free to any preacher or other person who will send us twenty new subscribers with the cash—$40.

ONE GIVES RELIEF.

NO MATTER WHAT'S THE MATTER,

ONE OF THESE WILL DO YOU GOOD.

Rev. Frederic R. Marvin, long time pastor of the First Congregational Church, of Great Barrington, Mass., and at one time a practicing physician, a graduate of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, New York, says of Ripans Tabules: "The formula has long been in favor with medical men, and the method of preparation in the present form is modern and a great convenience. I always keep a vial of the Tabules upon my dressing table, and use them with confidence whenever occasion arises. For a disturbed condition of the digestive organs I know of nothing so good, and for an 'all-round' family remedy I do not believe there is anything better to be had."

HOW MY BOY WENT DOWN.

It was not with a sword in battle,
It was not with a ship at sea;
But a fate far worse than either
That stole him away from me.
'Twas the death in the ruby wine cup,
That the reason and senses drown;
He drank the allurting poison,
And thus my boy went down;

Down from the heights of manhood,
To the depths of disgrace and sin;
Down to the worthless being,
From the hopes of what might have been.
For the brand of a beast besotted
He bartered his manhood's crown;
Through the gate of a sinful pleasure
My poor, weak boy went down.

'Tis only the same old story
That mothers so often tell,
With accents of infinite sadness,
Like the tones of a funeral bell.
But I never thought once when I heard it
I should learn all its meaning myself;
I thought he'd be true to his mother,
I thought he'd be true to himself.

But, alas for my hopes, all delusion!
Alas for his youthful pride!
Alas! who are safe when danger
Is open on every side?
Oh, can nothing destroy this great evil?
No bar in their pathway be thrown
To save from the terrible maelstrom
The thousands of boys going down?

A Good Man.

A good man! What a world of testimony and tribute is in that designation; a tribute earned, yea extorted and compelled as it were, by years of righteous living in the community. Is there as much holy ambition and striving for this tribute, and as much of imperious demand for it, as there should be? It often appears as if results were more considered than the springs of action, and that what passes for achievement supersedes or displaces the question of character. We are directed to the vineyard oftener than to the closet. We are exhorted rather to be "workers" than to be spiritually-minded. The more popular idea of discipleship is that of "holding the fort," or being an "armor bearer" and "marching on." Innoculated with the flattering conceit that each one's life is a "mission," and charged with the self-elating thought of a work to do for others, we are in danger of forgetting that life is also a training for ourselves and that each one's own character has need of cultivation. Philologists tell of the disappearance of once current words among certain tribes of men which has been always accompanied by a gradual disappearance of the ideas expressed by those words. There are certain words of the Christian vocabulary which almost seem to be going into desuetude. As we hear the addresses in the "grand rallies" of the Christian hosts and looks over the Christian literature of the day and catch the exhortations and appeals in religious meetings, we often feel like asking, what has become of the words pious, godly, devout, humble, spiritually-minded, etc. Have these old fashioned words to be remanded to the attic like antique hair-trunks and spinning wheels and other relics of the past?

The good man, the good woman—we want a larger number whom we can thus designate. It is not sufficient voucher of a church member to say of him merely that he is "bright" and "wide awake," or that he is a "worker;" that he "takes part in meetings," or trains in the good Reform causes of the day. But what is his life? his temper of mind? his daily walk? One's life is more effective than his speech, and when men take stock of him they reckon his deeds as dollars and his words as pence. The conscientious, spiritual-toned life, day after day, righteousness of character manifested at home, on the street, in social circles and in business—this is the odor of a sweet smell before God and man. And this is what tells in the eyes of the world.

"His strength is as the strength of ten,
Because his heart is pure."

—Mid-Continent.

Two sorts of Christians make most of the trouble in the church. They are like the waiters in a certain restaurant, who stumbled into each other and smashed some crockery. One was absent-minded and the other was cross-eyed. The cross eyed man said angrily, "Why don't you look where you're going?" The other retorted, "Why don't you go where you're looking?" Such people always run into each other—the man who blunders through life without looking ahead to see what influence his conduct may have, and the man who gazes fixedly at an aspiring height of ideal perfection without even starting out to reach it. —Selected.

Buying on Installments.

One of the most interesting phases of the commercial business of the day is the installment system as it prevails in most of the large cities of the Union. While this method certainly has its advantages, it may be questioned whether there is not in it an element which does a great deal of mischief and leads careless and thoughtless people into financial complications from which they may find it very difficult to escape.

It looks very alluring, this offer to furnish your house without a cent of ready cash, and many an ambitious young couple finds it impossible to resist the temptation to have as good as their neighbors, when it comes so easily.

The trouble is that they permit themselves to lose sight of the fact that all of these things must be paid for in due time, and that putting off the evil day does not by any means mean shirking the responsibility or making the payments less. Indeed, this installment practice is nothing more nor less than a mortgage which continually accumulates interest.

The householder may have idle days, sick days, unprofitable days and days when the outgoes are very far ahead of the incomes, but of this the installment system takes no heed whatever. The interest is at work steadily and untiringly. A mortgage never sleeps; the promise to pay works in darkness as well as in daylight, and piles up the obligations regardless of the ability of the victim to meet it.

People who buy on the installment plan should consider quite as carefully what the end is to be as though there were paying cash down.

One of the alluring advertisements of the day is to the effect that so many cents a day will buy so much. It looks like a very little, and the anxious purchaser, taking counsel of his desires, imagines that there will be no difficulty in paying such a trifle as that, so the purchase is made and all goes very well for a little while. Then there comes a dull time, and, in some way or other, in the agreement there seems to have been a clause entirely overlooked in the outset which exacts a certain rate of interest as a penalty for failing to meet the original obligation.

An Enemy of the Home.

It goes without saying that the saloon is a most deadly enemy of the home; the more it is decorated the more dangerous. To multitudes of our young men and to a vast number of the humbler laboring classes, the saloon becomes a chandeliered and crimsoned gateway to hell! But all the drinking habits are not formed in the dram-shop, or the billiard room, or the club house. A vast many take their first drink at their parent's table or at social parties in private houses. I once officiated at a wedding where there was a popping of champagne corks like a discharge of musketry. Not long afterward I was called on to labor for the reformation of a drunken son in that very family His parents had been his tempters. The father who puts a wine bottle on his table and the lady of the house who provides—from false slavery to fashion—intoxicating beverages for her guest are playing with fire. If anyone forms the drinking habit or is strengthened in such habit through their temptation, they are before God responsible for the fatal mischief wrought. As the total abstinence societies have declined and pledges to abstain have been too much abandoned, there is a perceptible increase of social drinking. Liquor on the table or the side board is often the first step to liquor in the club or the saloon or the restaurant. A family teetotal pledge hung on the wall would be about the most ornamental piece of furnitnre in many a dwelling.—Theodore Cuyler.

The wife of a Cincinnati clergyman traded a barrel of her husband's sermons recently for a new bread pan. Some time afterwards the ragman came aronnd again, and asked if she had any more sermons to sell. "Why do you want sermons?" "Because I did so well with those I got here a year ago. I got sick in the Summer, and a preacher in the country boarded me and my horse three months for that barrel of sermons, and he has since got a great reputation as a preacher up there. I will give you five cents a pound for all you have got."—Exchange.

The Dangerous Book.

"If, when I read a book about God, I find that it has put him farther from me; or about man, that it has put me farther from him; or about this universe, that it has shaken down upon it a new look of desolation, turning a green field into a wild moor; or about life, that it has made it seem a little less worth living, on all accounts, that it was; or about moral principles, that they are not quite so clear and strong as they were when this author began to talk; then I know that, on any of these five cardinal things in the life of a man—his relation to God, to his fellows, to the world about him, and the world within him, and the great principles on which all things stable center—that for me, is a bad book. It may chime in with some lurking appetite in my own nature, and so seem to be as sweet as honey to my taste, but it comes to bitter, bad results. It may be food for another, I can say nothing to that. He may be a pine, while I am a palm. I only know this, that in these great first things, if the book I read shall touch them at all, it shall touch them to my profit, or else I will not read it. Right and wrong shall grow more clear, life in and about me more divine; I shall come nearer to my fellows and God nearer to me, or the thing is a poison."—Dr. Robert Collyer.

Suffer the Children.

The brightest lights in the churches were converted in early life. Adam Clarke, the commentator, was converted at four years of age. His influence will shine in the moral heavens while the sun shines in the natural heavens. Alfred Cookman, the great revivalist, was converted at ten years of age. He will shine in the kingdom of God, as the stars in the firmament of heaven forever and ever, and thousands will rise in the judgment and call him blessed. Isaac Watts, the great poet, was converted to Christ at the age of nine years. The influence of this great man of God, in tuning the golden harps, will be felt through the endless ages of eternity. Robert Hall was converted at twelve. Jonathan Edwards at seven. William Penn at nine.—Harvester.

The Curfew.

We believe in the curfew. In many places it is being tried with gratifying results. Chief Sigwart, of Omaha, says: "The passage of the curfew ordiance has done more to keep the youth indoor at night than all the other influences combined could. The mere fact that such an ordinance exists is sufficient to suppress a big share of the viciousness practiced by the hoodlum element. They fear arrest and scamper home as soon as nine o'clock comes."—The Midland.

Souls are won by moral compulsion, not by physical. "I can not be in his society one hour without feeling that I am a lost man, without longing for a better life," said one of a friend eminent for his saintliness. Such is the power of holy personality. The touch of Shaftesbnry saved a discharged convict. "What did he say to you?" was asked. "It was not so much what he said, but he put his arm around me and said: 'Jack, we'll make a man of you yet.'" That personal touch, that tender love, compelled the convict to come in.

Christianity, if it means anything, means sixteen ounces to the pound, three feet to the yard, a just weight, and just measnre. It means honesty in all dealings, purity in all conversation, a charity as broad as the race, unflinching integrity, sympathy, humanity to man, loyalty to God.—Anon.

Beer.

It is a fact of common observation that alcohol, even in small doses, possesses the power of "breaking down human self-control to a most extraordinary degree." The use of alcohol is the exception, and the abuse of it is the rule, in human experience. Nine-tenths of mankind—I am almost ready to say ninety-nine hundredths—if they admit the smallest quantity of this poison into their system, will find themselves crippled in will power, so that inordinate indulgence becomes almost inevitable. In this regard beer comes within the limits of suspects, and justly so. Beer contains a minimum of alcohol; but that minimum is enough to kindle, in the great majority of organisms, a thirst which is sure to lead to immoderate indulgence. How many beer drinkers, do you suppose, keep themselves, here or anywhere else, within the strict limits of dietic law? Not one in twenty, perhaps not one in fifty. The overwhelming majority of beer drinkers in Bavaria, where beer is the purest and most innocuous, are intemperate in the use of it. Do I mean that every one of this mighty constituency of Gambrinus gets drunk? No, not that; but the great majority go beyond the bounds of utility, and, in the enjoyment of their beloved and so-called "innocent" beverage, get physical and mental damage of various kinds and degrees. Bavarian pathology shows a frightful procession of fatal maladies which are distinctly traceable to excessive beer drinking. A physician told me not long ago that he had assisted in a large number of autopsies, and had observed an astonishing proportion of fatty hearts. This in a great Munich hospital, remember, in an environment where the tall brewery chimneys outnumber the church spires ten to one, and where they boast, and truthfully boast, of brewing the purest beer in the world.

There is a form of physical indisposition not uncommon in the lists of Bavarian mortality, which goes under the name of schlag. Perhaps I should use a word slightly more emphatic than "indisposition," for this special phase of it generally kills. It is nothing more than the springing a leak of one or more blood-vessels in the brain, known among us at home, I believe, as apoplexy. This is a common form of disease among immoderate beer-drinkers, and most beer-drinkers are immoderate. Once in a while, in fact very often, I read in the German papers that, "in the inscrutable decree of God, Mr. So-and so has suddenly died of schlag." Now, if they would only confess themselves pagans, and write "Gambrinus," the divinity of beer, instead of the other name, I will write "Amen" under these obituary notices. Why do these rationalistic Teutons thus deceive themselves?

I have often, at home—that is, in my American home, for I have a Bavarian home as well—I have often heard the wish expressed that the drinks of Germany might, on the Western continent, get the upper hand to the degree of crowding out the dreadful curse of drunkenness—a wish certainly to be commended in the motive of it, but somewhat at fault as to the historical fact. Of drunkenness of the American type—that is, the congregation of devils bred by whisky and other distilled liquors—there certainly is not a great deal in Germany. But this is not to say that the "beer-drunk" does not prevail to an alarming extent, or that it is not a form of physical and mental insanity sad and shameful to contemplate. The beer-drunk is the great curse of the laboring class in Bavaria, and, I conjecture, likewise in Germany generally. It has been my wont for several years to be awakened out of sleep in the small hours of Sunday and Monday mornings by the insane howlings and wild songs of midnight revellers returning from beer cellars and gardens, where multitudes of them leave all, or nearly all, the earnings of the week, which should have gone to the support of their wives and children. This is a very sad condition of things to comtemplate in a civilized and Christian community, especially when one hears not the faintest suggestion from any quarter of an attempt at reform. It is a mistake to suppose that beer will not rob a man or woman of the use of reason, for I have seen it to do it many times. —Christian Register.

BEESON—Mrs. EVALINE LENORA BEESON (nee Collins), was born in Washington parish, La. May 25, 1826, and died April 16, 1896. March 25, 1847, she was married to Rev. B. A. Beeson who survives her. This happy union was blessed with seventeen children, thirteen of whom are left to mourn the loss of a loving and tender mother and, with the exception of one, were present at the funeral.

Sister Beeson was converted and joined the Methodist Church some time between 1856 and 1860 at Topisaw Camp Ground. Her service in the Master's vineyard was blessed, and God gave her his Spirit to witness with hers that her labor was not spent in vain.

During her last illness I was permitted to be with her some, and was comforted in having the pleasure of talking about the realities of our future home. Sister Beeson said that her way was clear and bright, and that she did not care to stay here longer. Although her suffering was very intense, yet she said that those last days were her happiest. Oh how sweet and what joy comes to a living soul to know that it is soon to be with God!

As a Christian she was faithful and true, scattering seeds of kindness and benevolence along life's pathway that will be blooming and ripening until eternity dawns, and the trump of God shall sound, and those that were brought to Christ through her influence will rise to call her blessed.

As a wife she was indeed a helpmeet, ready to share the trials conflicts and sorrows with her now grief stricken companion. Nearly a half century was spent together, but at last the union is broken; but it won't be long before they will meet again where parting will be no more.

As a mother, she was kind, loving, gentle and affectionate.

Truly, God is calling his children to himself. May the blessings of God rest upon the grief stricken loved ones!

B. W. LEWIS.

MAY—Mrs. RACHEL ANN MAY (nee Collins) was born in Pike county, Miss., May 21, 1839, and died April 6 1896. She was married to Enos D. May, who survives her Jan. 16, 1860. The Lord blessed this happy union with five children all of whom are living, and, with the exception were present at the funeral service.

Sister May's death was very sudden, going to sleep as well as usual, not to wake any more until eternity dawns and the trump of God is heard by those that shall take part in the first resurrection.

Sister May joined the Baptist Church in 1853, and in 1879 she united with the M. E. Church, South at Sartine, under the faithful ministry of Bro. Gillmore, where she held her membership until the day of her death.

As a wife she was all that the word implies—faithful and true, never willing to leave home without her companion. As a mother, she was kind and affectionate teaching her children to be the same.

Sister May leaves for her loved one a good name "which is rather to be chosen than great riches."

May the blessings of our heavenly Father rest upon the bereaved ones in comforting and consoling power, and lead them to that brighter world where parting will be no more.

B. W. LEWIS.

ROBINS—Col. JEFFRAH ROBINS was born in South Carolina, Aug. 9, 1811, and departed this life at his home near Guntown, Miss., Feb. 11 1896. Bro. Robins moved to Fulton, Miss., in 1836; was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, at that place about 1849. He moved to Guntown, Miss., and was one of the building Committee and also a trustee of our church at this place. He continued a faithful member till he received the summons to come up higher. Died in the triumphs of a living faith and gone to rest from the toils of life.

He was married to Miss E. H. Allan in 1854, with whom he lived happily till death. He leaves a wife and eight children, beside grandchildren and relatives and many friends, to mourn his departure. One of his children had gone on before, and awaited his coming.

An excellent lawyer, a Christian gentleman, a devoted husband, an affectionate father and a friend to the poor has gone to rest. He loved his church, attended upon its ordinances and supported its institutions.

We bow in submission to our Father's will. Our loss is his gain. His family has the sympathy of all. May the blessings of God abide with his wife and loved ones!

His pastor, JOS. W. THREADWELL.

Gunlowe, Miss.

KUHLMANN—DAISY, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuhlmann, was born March 5, 1886, and died April 7, 1896.

Daisy was a sweet little blue-eyed girl, loved and petted by everyone that knew her. Her illness was of short duration. Membranous croup did its fatal work quickly. Almost before the parents knew her dangerous condition little Daisy had to take her departure. Daisy was perfectly devoted to her father and mother. She hated so much to leave her parents. She appealed to them to the last to help her. All was done that could be for her relief, but to no avail.

May the angels encamp round about that sorrow stricken home, and help the family to bow with humble submission to the will of him that doeth all things well! May the peace of God that passeth all understanding comfort and keep the bereft ones from all harm, and at last in heaven save them! Amen!

HARVEY—RHEA HARVEY, the subject of this obituary, was born in Clinton, La. (East Feliciana parish), Aug. 27, 1843, and died March 29, 1896. His parents moved to St. Landry parish while he was quite a boy, where he spent the remainder of his life. He was left an orphan before he reached the age of fifteen. He was a farmer, in which he achieved considerable success. He left his family well provided for in this world's goods. He was married to Miss Ophelia Rogers in 1872. They lived happily together for twenty-four years. Through hardships, deprivations, failures and success he was ever faithful to his marriage vow, always performing the part of a faithful husband.

Bro. Harvey was a neighbor in the widest sense of that word. He was a man highly esteemed by all who knew him. He was a man that loved God and eschewed evil. I have heard naught against him. Black and white had but good to say of him. He owed no man; lived peaceably with all men. He was a member of the Baptist Church. No church of his faith was near him, consequently he attended our church all the time, and supported its claims. The strangest thing of his life was the deed that took him from us. He took his own life. He had not slept but one night of natural sleep since the first of December, 1895. No one but God knows how he suffered.

A good man is gone from us. We miss him so much. His eldest son, not of age, said: "I never heard him say a bad word, or speak ill of anyone."

May his life be relived by his sons! Four boys, two nice sweet little girls, devoted wife, and a host of friends were suddenly plunged into sorrow. We look up to God, and say, "Thy will be done in earth, not ours."

Children, look to Him who is a father to the fatherless and a husband to the widow. God bless the sorrowing ones!

W. T. WOODWARD, P. C.

JONES—Whereas, The reaper, Death, came to our brother and Sunday-school teacher, J. W. JONES, clipped the cords which bound the soul and body, bade life while in its prime to seek a peaceful close—thereby depriving our Sunday-school of one of its most zealous, efficient and energetic workers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Sunday-school deplore the untimely death of their brother, and feel that his loss is irreparable, as he was beloved and honored by all his colleagues for the zeal he manifested in promoting the cause of Christ in that part of God's vineyard.

Resolved, That we tender the bereaved family our sincerest sympathy in their sorrow, commending them to the God of their fathers, who is their father's God.

W. JAS. MCLEAN, for Committee.

Gloster, Miss.

KIDD—Whereas, Our lamented brother, L. M. KIDD, was for so many years an official member of the M. E. Church, South, occupying the position of Sunday-school superintendent, and for more than twenty years a steward, and his faithful and zealous performance of every duty imposed upon him by the church, always taking up his cross cheerfully on every line of church work, thereby leaving a good example to the younger members of the church; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Quarterly Conference of Ruston charge, that we recognize with grateful remembrance the faithfulness and punctuality of Bro. Kidd in all church work, his devotion to all the services of God's house, his devotion and fidelity to the church of his choice, his zealous and liberal support to the institutions of the church.

Resolved, That the church has sustained a great loss in the death of our beloved brother.

Resolved, That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved widow and relatives of the deceased, and we extend to them our sincere condolence.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication; also one to the widow of our brother.

WEST—Resolutions occasioned by the death of Rev. Dr. T. S. West:

Whereas, Our heavenly Father has called from our midst, in the strength of his years and in the height of his usefulness, our beloved brother and recent pastor, Rev. Dr. T. S. West; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Church Conference and congregation of the Capitol Street Church, that it is with no ordinary feelings of regret that we record our sorrow at his unexpected death.

Resolved, That while we doubt not that he has entered upon the enjoyment of perfect peace and rest, we can but deplore our immeasurable loss.

Resolved, Regarding it a high privilege to have known, heard and loved Dr. West as our pastor for three years, we will cherish the recollection of his many virtues and excellent traits of character as a precious legacy, and embalm the memory of his Christ-like and manlish life in the warmest affections of our hearts.

Resolved, That we believe it to be an honor to the human race and a credit to the Christian religion that they together produced a man who was so sunny hearted by nature and so heavenly minded by grace as was our beloved Dr. T. S. West.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions, with expressions of our sincerest sympathy, be conveyed by our secretary to the afflicted family of the deceased and the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Deafness Can Not Be Cured

by local applications, as they can not reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result; and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The measure of joy and peace and hope and faith which the sons of men enjoy is due to that far-off event in Bethlehem of Judea, which brought the Word to men in their own flesh, and made God and the race at one by the ministry of reconciliation. All hail to the child Jesus, our second Adam, who restores the hope forfeited by the first Adam!

The Holman Self-Pronouncing S. S. Teachers' Bible

Minion, 8vo. Divinity Circuit, Round Corners, etc.

CONTAINS THE FOLLOWING HELPS TO THE STUDY OF THE BIBLE.

Concordance, with Contexts, over 40,000 References; Index to Persons, Places and Subjects, 16,000 References; Scripture Atlas, with Index; Glossary of Bible Words; Bible Calendar; Summary and Analyses of the Old and New Testaments.

A Self-Pronouncing Dictionary of Proper Names and Foreign Words contained in the Bible, comprising about 3,500 words, giving the pronunciation, the meaning, and the location of the text where the word occurs for the first time.

Exhaustive Articles on Biblical History, Geography, Topography, Natural History, Ethnology, Botany, Chronology, Music and Poetry; a Complete Harmony of the Gospels, Tables of Parables, Miracles, Prophecies, Prayers, Money, Weights and Measures, Jewish Sects and Orders, etc.

TWELVE FULL-PAGE MAPS IN COLORS.

Every proper name in the text is syllabified and accented, and has the vowels marked according to the most authoritative modern standards of pronunciation. The text is in exact conformity with that of the world-famous Oxford S. S. Teacher's Bible. All the valuable "Helps to the Study of the Bible" contained in the Oxford Bible are retained.

The only Teacher's Bible with a self-pronouncing text. No similar Bible was ever obtainable heretofore; in fact, no publishers ever attempted its publication.

"The essence of fifty expensive volumes, by men of sacred learning, is condensed in these 'Helps.'"

We handle this Bible in three styles, as follows: Minion Type, $1 75; Bourgeois Type, $2.45; Emerald Type, $1.25. (The Minion Type is the one we have been offering at $1.65). In order to get any one of these at these rates, it is necessary to have your subscription a full year in advance, viz., to June, 97. (A little later it will be July, '97.) This offer applies only to those who have not had the benefit of any other premium offer. In such cases write us for special terms.

Notice that there are three sizes—$1.25, $1.75 and $2 45.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

Hon. Edward Booth, a Methodist of this city, and a distinguished figure in political affairs at one time, died on May 22.

President Cleveland has consented to deliver the oration at the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of Princeton College.

A tornado swept over the Northwest on May 25, entailing much loss of property and many lives in Iowa, Illinois, and Michigan. Whole villages were swept away.

Anton Funk, an old German of Houghton, Mich., undertook to drown himself in a tank of beer at a brewery. They pulled him out, but sixty barrels of beer had to be thrown away.

The women of Hindman, Ky., raided a still-house and dramshop with guns, ran off the proprietor and his patrons, and smashed the place, destroying all the liquor in sight, and ruining the still.

Mayor Jones, of Kansas City, has started a crusade against gambling, and declares that he will not let up until all the gamblers are driven out of the place, and games of all sorts, social and otherwise, stopped.

The Grand Commandery of Knights Templar, of Tennessee, has decided the manufacture or sale of spirituous or malt liquors is contrary to the principles of the order, and that all knights must drop such business or be expelled.

The Senate has passed the fortifications bill, and it is rather a remarkable fact that, although it carried less than five million dollars when it came from the House, it called for the expenditure of more than ten millions when finally passed by the Senate.

Mrs. Jefferson Davis and her daughter Winnie will hold a reception at the White House of the Confederacy at Richmond, on June 30, the day that the big Confederate reunion opens there. Miss Davis was born in the room where the reception will be held.

Rev. Samuel R. Fuller, the Episcopal minister of Malden, Mass., who was sentenced to suspension for two years for marrying while his divorced wife was alive, has refused to submit to the sentence, and renounced the ministry of the Episcopal Church. He will join another denomination.

The decision by the Supreme Court of the United States that the parties who made sugar in this country in 1894 under the provisions of the bounty law of 1890 have a just and equitable right to their proportion of the money voted to them by Congress is a deliverance of great importance. Some $5 000,000 will be distributed in Louisiana.

FOREIGN.

Li Hung Chang, the special envoy of the Emperor of China to the coronation of the Czar, will visit America.

Gen. Weyler, the captain general of Cuba, has issued a decree prohibiting the export of tobacco from that island.

The Czar and Czarina entered Moscow for the coronation on May 21. They were attended by a glittering retinue of princes and soldiers, making the most gorgeous procession witnessed in many years.

The war between Italy and Abyssinia is at an end. The Italian government has concluded a peace by agreement with the Emperor Menelik. According to this agreement, the Abyssinians have released all the Italian prisoners, and Italy has withdrawn from the province of Tigra and abandoned the protectorate over Abyssinia.

There was a public presentation of a portrait and addresses to Rev. Newman Hall on the occasion of his eightieth birthday in London, May 22. Lord Kinnaird presided. Mr. Gladstone, the Archbishop of York, the Duke of Westminster, and many other prominent people wrote to express their congratulations. An address from American friends was also presented.

Ice Cream Made by a New Process.

I have an Ice Cream Freezer that will freeze cream instantly. The cream is put into the freezer and comes out instantly, smooth and perfectly frozen. This astonishes people and a crowd will gather to try the cream. You can sell cream as fast as it can be made and sell freezers to many of them who would not buy an old style freezer. It is really a curiosity, and you can sell from $5 to $8 worth of cream and six to twelve freezers every day. This makes a good profit these hard times and is a pleasant employment. J. F. Casey & Co., 1143 St. Charles St., St. Louis, Mo., will send full particulars and information in regard to this new invention on application and will employ good salesmen on salary.

They that spend their days in faith and prayer shall end their days in peace and comfort.—J. Mason.

Popular with the Republicans.

The old reliable Texas and Pacific railway will be the "popular route" for the great National Republican Convention at St. Louis, commencing June 16. No effort will be spared to provide for the comfort of all who use this line. Special trains will be run, with elegant day coaches and chair cars, and Pullman Palace Sleepers, and you will be wise to send in your name now for necessary accommodations, as the attendance promises to be the largest for any convention yet held.

Tickets will be sold via the Texas and Pacific railway at rate of ONE LOWEST LIMITED FIRST-CLASS FARE FOR THE ROUND TRIP on June 13, 14 and 15, good until June 21, 1896.

For tickets, sleeping-car accommodations, or any further information, call on nearest Texas and Pacific agent, or

GASTON MESLIER,

Reunion United Confederate Veterans,

RICHMOND, VA., JUNE 30 TO JULY 2.

For this occasion the Texas and Pacific Railway Company will sell tickets from all stations in Texas and Louisiana at about ONE CENT PER MILE EACH WAY FOR THE ROUND TRIP on June 26 and 27, final limit for return to be twenty days from date of sale.

This will be one of the greatest assemblages of the old veterans in the history of the organization, and an exceedingly interesting programme has been prepared.

For tickets, sleeping-car accommodations, or any further information, call on or address nearest Texas and Pacific railway agent, or

GASTON MESLIER,
G. P. and T. A.,
Dallas, Texas.

Low Vacation Rates.

Effective June 1, 1896, and continuing until Sept. 30, 1896, the Queen & Crescent Route will offer low reduced rates for the round trip to all the prominent resorts in the North. Fine equipment, fast time, and close connections make this route the choice of Summer tourists. Full information with regard to rates, schedules and sleeping-car fares will be given on application to any agent of the Q. & C.

A quarter spent in HIRES Rootbeer does you dollars' worth of good.

"A Splendid Premium."

I have received the machine, and am highly pleased with it. I don't see how you can afford to give such a splendid premium for so small a sum. As long as this offer is open, there is no excuse for preachers' wives sponging on the sisters. They should go to work at once, and put the ADVOCATE in twenty homes, and secure the machine.

Yours respectfully,

MRS. J. C. MIMMS.

Bolivar, Miss., April 24, 1896.

The third annual reunion at the Shiloh battlefield will be held May 29 and 30. This will probably be the most interesting meeting ever held on the battlefield. The comrades living in Texas will send 10,000 White Cape jessamine flowers, to place on the graves of the 4 000 heroes who sleep in Shiloh national cemetery. There will be 100 young ladies—fifty from the North and fifty from the South—to place these flowers on the graves and plant a flag at each grave.

SOME TIME.

BY MRS. MARY RILEY SMITH.

Some time, when all life's lessons have been learned,
And sun and stars forevermore have set,
The things which our weak judgment here had spurned,
The things o'er which we grieve with lashes wet,
Will flash before us out of life's dark night
As stars shine most in deeper tints of blue;
And we shall see how all God's plans were right,
And how what seemed reproof was love most true.

And we shall see how, while we frown and sigh,
God's plans go on as best for you and me;
How, when we called, he heeded not our cry,
Because his wisdom to the end could see.
And even as prudent parents disallow
Too much of sweet to craving babyhood,
So God, perhaps, is keeping from us now
Life's sweetest things, because it seemeth good.

And if, sometimes, commingled with life's wine,
We find the wormwood, and rebel and shrink,
Be sure a wiser hand than yours or mine
Pours out this potion for our lips to drink.
And if some one we love is lying low,
Where human kisses can not reach the face,
Oh, do not blame the loving Father so,
But wear your sorrow with obedient grace.

And you will shortly know that lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift God gives his friend;
And that sometimes the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest boon his love can send.
If we could push ajar the gates of life,
And stand within and all God's workings see,
We could interpret all this doubt and strife
And for each mystery could find a key.

But not to-day. Then be content, poor heart!
God's plans, like lilies, pure and white, unfold;
We must not tear the close-shut leaves apart:
Time will reveal the calyxes of gold.
And if, through patient toil, we reach the land
Where tired feet, with sandals loosed, may rest
When we shall clearly know and understand,
I think that we will say: "God knew the best."

Preacher Talk.

The time will soon be here when the talk will come up about moving or retaining the preacher. The presiding elder will then hear it all, both good and bad, false and true, favorable and unfavorable. Along towards Conference letters will begin to pour in on the Bishop. Some men will not be willing to trust the presiding elder. Then some are sly in all they do. The preacher, however, must keep his mouth shut. It is un-Methodistic and unministerial for him to say a word. He must bear every man's censure, and reserve his own tongue and judgment. There are generally two sides to every subject, and often only one of them is presented. This is specially true in the case of Methodist preachers. It often happens that only one side—only one feature of the case—is heard. Of course, no real godly preacher, no self-respecting man, wants to go where he is not wanted. There may be good and sufficient reasons for his removal that are creditable to him. This often happens. A faithful administration of discipline, even faithful preaching of God's Word—both right in themselves—may stir antagonisms that will make it needful for the preacher to move.

Nearly every member in the church knows exactly what a preacher ought to be and how he ought to do. This kind of knowledge seems to be intuitive. It requires neither training, thought nor experience to know this. It is far easier to stand off and think, and say how some things ought to be done, than it is to lay hold and do them. This is true of preaching and of pastoral work. It is wonderful how many people there are who know exactly how preaching ought to be done. And pastoral work and visiting is a simple and easy matter to many people who have none of it to do. A preacher must fill the bill—fill every man's bill, and no two of them agree. One wants the preacher moved because he does not visit enough. He is a good preacher and a good man, but he does not get around among the people as he ought. It is comparatively a small matter to see town people in their homes. Many visits can be made in an afternoon; and, then, a call in town is a visit—half an hour a pretty good stay. In the country a call of that kind does not count. The preacher must spend the day, stay all night—take dinner, anyway. One has never been to see a farmer till he breaks bread with him. In town a pastor may make seventy-five or a hundred visits a month, but in the country twenty-five or thirty a month is pretty good work, unless he should do nothing but visit. Twelve times thirty makes three hundred and sixty. In the aggregate this looks large. This is one visit a day in a neighborhood twenty or twenty-five miles square—perhaps larger. In many charges this number of visits in a year will not take the preacher around once. Still he must be moved for inefficiency in pastoral work—visiting from house to house. Some good people are unthinking and utterly unreasonable on this subject.

Another common complaint is, that the preaching is not good enough—is lacking in thought and careful preparation. Often the same persons put in both complaints. They think a man could go all the time, be in company every day in the week, and then preach strong, thoughtful sermons on Sunday. There is not one preacher in a thousand who is mentally and spiritually vigorous enough, and who has resources enough, to preach strong, edifying sermons, and be in company all the time. Some people do not know it, but it takes time and hard work for the average man to get ready to preach. The great body of preachers are only average men. Those above average are few and far between.

Then, too, some people expect the preacher to please everybody and to offend no one. As for pleasing everybody, no man or woman under the sun can do that. It is utterly useless to try. A ministry that gives no offense is not worth much. It is in the nature of preaching to offend. It goes against the grain. Often the more faithful it is the more it offends and the larger the number offended by it. When loving, faithful preaching offends, one may know it is doing good. It is cutting to the quick. There is no offense hardly so grievous and so unpardonable as telling a sinner the truth on himself. He is always ready to say an "enemy did this," when in truth it was his best friend. The matter is always worse when the sinner is in the church instead of out of it. Somehow he thinks the church ought to shield him and to protect him against the faithful pastor and preacher. If it happens to be a rich and influential sinner in the church, he will make it hot for the preacher. Indeed, it is often better to move the preacher than to keep him in contact with this man. To return him means to keep him in hot water, and yet the preacher did right. This was true of Christ and his apostles, and it is true now. They gave offense and stirred antagonisms. The preacher attacks sin, and the sinner will fight back at the preacher. This may be taken for granted.

I have often thought that if the Bishop had the power to remove some laymen in some charges, it would greatly improve the work, and remove the cause for such frequent changes of the preachers. The preacher is moved, but the stumbling-block remains. The trouble is not with the man who goes, but with the one that stays. Some laymen seem to forget that they are under solemn obligation to conserve the peace and to advance the cause of Zion—as much so as the preacher. The preacher is often as much hindered by their antagonisms as by his own. I have known some cases where, if one layman had been moved, the removal of the preacher would not have been necessary. We do not elect pastors by a majority vote, but they are changed sometimes on a very small minority motion. A small minority may tie a pastor's hands and greatly hinder the efficiency of his ministry and success of the work.

This itinerant system is a delicate and difficult thing to manage. The Bishop and presiding elders have my sympathy and prayers. I am glad I am not in their shoes. These are not positions to be coveted. They do the best they can with the material they have in hand. Some of it is not good, some better, some best. Some charges are hard to please—an angel could not please them.

For my own part, I had rather take an appointment, and risk it, than to make an appointment and be responsible for it. I can do my best to do right, and if I do not fit, it may be as much the fault of the people as my own. The time to talk change or return will soon be here.

GILDEROY.

In the Living Present.

The Scottish Review assures that the plagiarist is usually a man of greater ability than the "literary detective." There is a great deal of unconscious absorption. Goethe, Byron, etc., admitted that some of their finest utterances could not claim originality. Uncouth writers have set forth grand thought. To re-express this thought by skillful writers is of benefit. The same as the conversion of the old gold in antiquated trinkets into fashionable jewelry.

A writer in Gunton's Magazine treats of the political revolution in our Southland. The shibboleths of the old parties were no longer dominant. A professional politician was considered a rogue. Populism had sprung up spontaneously. Though itself not faultless, it is the exponent of party revolt.

Mr. Gladstone discusses in the North American Review the nature of eternity. Doubts that it is the prolongation of time continued without limit. Time attaches only to our solar system. The computation of time entering into eternity impossible. The thought might be bewildering, but it is, nevertheless, true that time does not constitute an element of the hereafter. Conceive that with God a day is as a thousand years, and you are not far from a correct solution.

Protestantism had neglected necessary humanitarianism. The Salvation Army owes its existence to this neglect. But to praise the latter unduly, questionable. Humanitarianism is not Christianity. At any rate, the Salvation Army can not claim to be a church. It has no regularly ordained ministry, and disowns baptism and the Lord's Supper.

The Roman Catholic University in Washington, D. C., is a dismal failure. The edifices are vast and imposing. Money in abundance. But at present there are only one and one-half student to each professor. The historian Thorne succeeded in removing the nimbus which the regent of the institution, Bishop Keane, had thrown around it.

In countries where Roman Catholicism predominates—as, for instance, in Spain, Portugal, Italy, Venezuela, etc.—sixty per cent. of the inhabitants are analphabetes. In Protestant countries, on the other hand—as in Switzerland, Sweden, Denmark, England, Germany, etc.—only four per cent. can neither read nor write.

The leading Jewish rabbies in our country advocate changing their Sabbath from Saturday to Sunday. Observance of their Sabbath on Saturday entailed great pecuniary loss. Employees of their faith could not observe the day. The law of the land makes Sunday a day of rest. Thus a faithful Jew would abstain from business two days each week. A remedy inevitable. Already, to keep their children away from Christian Sunday-schools, the Jews hold Sunday-schools in their synagogues on the Lord's day. ICH DIEN.

The Mississippi Orphans' Home.

The outlook for our Orphans' Home is very encouraging. Wherever the preachers have presented the claims of the institution the response of the people has been prompt and liberal. This sort of benevolent work appeals to men. They think better of themselves for having contributed to such a cause, and honor the church which is engaged in it.

Indications of interest come from many directions. One lady gave the writer a heavy gold ring, the proceeds of the sale of which are to go to the home. A father and mother, whose little daughter has just died, have sent to our treasurer the sum of $5.50, which the little one had accumulated in her "sayings bank." How appropriate that the savings of this little girl should go into a treasury of an institution established for the purpose of taking care of little children!

The secretary of a Sunday-school Missionary Society writes to ask about the Orphans' Home, and gives us to understand that the monthly collections of the society will be given to the home. Pastors have written making enquiry about the enterprise, so that they can the more successfully present the cause to their people. So strong are the claims of the children that all the home needs is a fair chance before the people.

The Conference resolution to take up a collection for the orphanage passed without a dissenting voice, and an obligation was thus assumed which I trust will not be disregarded by our preachers. Don't forget the Conference resolution, brethren. Give the children a chance.

A. F. WATKINS.

The Advocate.

From my earliest recollections the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE has been one of my weekly visitors. I read it when edited by Bishop J. C. Keener, Bishop Linus Parker, and Bishop C. B. Galloway. These men have been and are now leaders of our Methodist host, and strong exponents of Methodist doctrine and polity. None of the above-mentioned editors ever gave us a stronger, purer, more aggressive paper than our present incumbent is giving us. We get our ADVOCATE from the office early Thursday morning, and do not lay it down until we have read everything it contains. We always find the paper inspiring and strengthening. Let all our pastors make an earnest canvass for it. Let them strive to put it in every Methodist home in the bounds of the three patronizing Conferences, and then Bro. Black can make it even a better paper than it now is.

Now, brethren, cease your complaining, and do your part in making our Conference organ the equal of any paper in our connection. If I am capable of judging the merits of a religious paper, the ADVOCATE is a good paper, and is growing better with each issue. The $1 offer ought to increase its circulation very much. Long live the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE!

Selections.

In the Ruts.

Nothing is more common than this, and nothing should be more carefully avoided. It is easier getting into the ruts than getting out of them. Many a wheel has been twisted, the shafts broken and the teamster vexed when an unsuccessful effort was made to leave the track.

Sometimes ministers get into the ruts. I once know a good brother who, when young, was quite successful as a preacher; but when advanced in life it made little difference what text he selected, or what subject he presented, he would invariably fall in the same train of thought. He had got into the ruts, and while it was the same "old story of Jesus and His love," his people tired of hearing it told in the same way every Sabbath. They desired, and sought, one that would bring out of the treasury of the Lord things new and old. And what is sometimes true of ministers is true of others. I once knew an elder—a good old man, who prayed every time so nearly in the same language, that when he got to the "young and rising generation," every one knew he was nigh to the Amen. He once visited with me a man who had a broken limb. After speaking to the man words of comfort and encouragement, I called upon the elder to pray. He began in the same old strain, and when he tried to pray for the poor fellow with the broken leg he stammered and fairly broke down. He was in the ruts.

This is sometimes a great hindrance to the advancement of the church. The members have got into a good easy way, and are content to keep it. They come as the people come, hear as the people heard, go away and are satisfied. Neither do they like to be disturbed. A little close preaching to such is not well received. It either produces no good effect in twisting and breaking the monotony, or wakes up feelings that are not altogether religious. Such persons need to be alarmed, and should inquire prayerfully as to their true condition and hopes. For this is not the way to follow Christ and honor their profession. Woe unto such as are at ease in Zion. If getting out of the ruts should shatter hopes, depress souls, require sacrifices and hard work, it is a good way after all. Walk ye in it!

Then, it is one thing to get out of the ruts and another to keep out of them. A team drawing a heavy load will always lean to the old track, because the going is easier. So with the followers of Christ there is a constant tendency to turn into the old, easy way. Vast multitudes would go to heaven "on downy beds of ease," while the Savior says: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, take up his cross daily, and follow me."—Herald and Presbyter.

The Better Way.

I am sure that I do not degrade a minister's work when I say that he is a part of the invested capital of the congregation to which he ministers. From a business point of view it is my duty to sustain and assist him in every possible way. The success of the church I delight to call mine ought to be a part of the success of my life. The hold which that church has upon the community affects in some measure the social standing of my family. If we are a united and enthusiastic people, other churches will know it and the city or town will feel our influence. No layman can afford to use his minister in any but the best way. Even if he is unsatisfactory, we need not and must not disparage him, for that is a reflection on our church. There ought to be a better understanding between the laymen and the minister. The Quarterly Conference is not the place nor the time for the presentation of personal differences. Let there be no underhand methods by either minister or laymen, but in an open and manly way let us deal frankly with each other and thus work together for the good of the church. To use a minister properly is not such a hard task after all. No sensible preacher asks for any more than is accorded to other earnest and successful men. He need not be petted, babied or flattered, but he needs honest commendation and the thoughtful attention which makes a man feel that his position and his work are appreciated not for what they represent, but for what they accomplish.

But suppose you have a minister who does not understand his business? His instruction ought to be easier than the church's destruction. Suppose he is cold and formal and unattractive? In that case thawing out ought to be chosen rather than the freezing-out process. But if he is willful and arrogant and conceited and indolent? He is unfortunate indeed who has all these weaknesses; but even then a brotherly admonition from one of his laymen will do more for him than the criticism of his presiding elder. Go to him first of all and ask him to try to improve, and then, if he tells you he will not, you have the satisfaction of trying to help do him a great favor. Honest face-to-face criticism from a representative layman has saved many a man's ministry. Criticism behind his back and underhanded methods to secure his removal may make him think that he is a martyr because of his piety instead of his willfulness, and only confirm him in his indolent habits which will eventually prove his ruin.—Zion's Herald.

Silly Sentimentalism.

It seems a horrible thing that a boy should be shut up in prison for life; and yet there is no doubt that this is what ought to be done with the three boy train-wreckers who were sent to Auburn Prison last Saturday. Boys who are capable of acts such as that committed by Hildreth, Plato, and Hibbard, are clearly incorrigible, and for the sake of other boys their punishment must be condign and awful. Only Hildreth, the ring-leader, has indeed incurred the life sentence; the two others were sentenced for twenty years each on two indictments; but the result is practically the same. There is no fault to be found with the sentence, but there is much to be said in deprecation of the way in which it was carried out. These three unfortunate boys, infinitely more to be pitied than if they had died in comparative innocence, were permitted to be a public spectacle, walking through dense crowds from the jail to the train, and again from the train to the prison; and kept busy during the railway journey "writing their autographs for sympathizing passengers in the cars." Is there any reason why boys, however bad, should be made worse by the foolishness of their guardians and the public? Does not common decency require that these awfully misguided young creatures should be sequestered from the gaze of a gaping public and the morbid influence of silly sentimentalists? No wonder they appeared unmoved by the execution of their sentence. Such notoriety as this is dear to the souls of such as they, and there are boys still at large, not yet criminals, but the stuff of which criminals are made, incapable of reasoning out the consequences of an act, or of imagining anything future, to whom the notoriety of a day like last Saturday would seem to be cheaply bought at the price of years in prison.

Especially with the hope of being pardoned out. Ah, there's the rub! "The boys did not seem downcast," writes a reporter. "The lad" (Hildreth) "hopes to be free in a few years," for his friends have promised to use all means to have him pardoned out. Alas! there is only too much reason in past experience to expect that they will be successful; that what now seems a horrible tragedy will be travestied into a yet more horrible comedy, the majesty of the law, the hideousness of crime, set at naught by a pardon utterly without excuse. For it is far past hoping that the wretched boy murderer will be made better by his imprisonment, that a few years in Auburn will see him achieve a character making him safe as a member of society. The only conceivable use of a sentence such as his is the safeguarding of society and the deterring of other boys from crimes similar to that which gained him this fearful future. And the slightest suspicion of unreality about the sentence surely defeats the latter end, just so far as it exists.—Evangelist.

MY DUTY.

Must I my brother keep,
An I share his pa'ns and toil,
And weep with those that weep
And smile with those that smile;
And act to each a brother's part,
And feel his sorrows in my heart?

Then Jesus at thy feet
A student let me be,
And learn as it is meet,
My duty, Lord of thee;
For thou didst come on mercy's plan,
And all thy life was love to man

What of the Night?

Bishop Keener has done much for the church of Christ. Probably he never wrought more wisely than when he established the Mexican Mission. From the first the Holy Spirit has borne testimony to the Word of Grace. Neither has the spirit of martyrdom been wanting, nor its occasion. Some have "resisted unto blood, striving against sin." Hear the cry of the watchmen from that land of dark Romanism:

"The following," says Rev. W. D. King, of Mexico City, "is an epitome of the year's work (in Puebla district), less the data of three Quarterly Conferences which I was unable to attend: Number of members received during the year, 100; number of infants baptized, 66; amount collected for all purposes, $761.39. Nearly every pastor's report made during the year contains the statement: 'The members are faithful.' This, the faithfulness of our membership, ..., is no small matter. In fact, it amounts to an inspiration to me, and gives me hopes for the future that I, perhaps, would not have otherwise—to know that our people generally throughout this Central Conference are with us, and remain with us, for no other consideration than Christ the Lord and his offered salvation..... I preach to nearly, if not quite, double the people now that I did when I first came on this district; and I am also firm in the conviction that the Lord will lead us on to further and greater conquests, if we will only follow."

From San Antonio, Rev. D. W. Carter writes of the Border Missions: "I held a meeting in Atoscosa county lately, which resulted in the addition of forty to our number..... and I am assured a large additional number will be received. At this place a layman of our church..... built a church at his own expense, opened it to the Mexicans..... and the result is, that his heart was gladdened by seeing so many of them brought to Christ.

"I also held a meeting at Gonzales, adding two to the church. I am now engaged in a meeting in a place where we have not a single member, but our congregation last night filled the house, and..... I am sure an excellent work can be accomplished. I am working here 'alone,' our Mexican preacher not being able to get here on account of having being severely hurt by some evil-minded person galloping by him one night on the streets of Corpus Christi, and striking him a severe blow on his right arm.

"At this place a brother who owns extensive lands is much interested in the Mexicans, and his influence is doing them great good..... Wherever our Americans Christian employers will show an active interest in their tenants they can easily open the way for them to their Savior.

"At Alice, Texas, I have secured lots and $50 for the erection of a chapel. Near Elmendorf we have received from a Mexican brother a gift of one acre of land, and have about $30 for building. At Gonzales all desirable building lots belong to the city. By a charter dating back to the days of Spanish control, they can not be deeded to anyone, but the mayor assured me that I could have a ninety-nine years' free lease of an excellent site for a chapel..... If I had $1,000, I could build and occupy five much-needed chapels in important places."

Brazil, with its mixed population of natives, Portuguese, Negroes and Spaniards, Romanist or infidel, is the key to the situation in South America. What about Brazil? Is the response to Protestant Christianity an encouraging one? Have our missionaries there any thrill of hope? Let us see.

Rev. E. A. Tilby, of Rio de Janeiro, writes: "Our growth has been both healthy and rapid; just such as to inspire the home church with confidence as to the future triumph of our cause in Brazil.

"That the home church may form some idea as to how the Brazilian Methodists appreciate these privileges in Christ, let me say that the per capita contributions by the members in the Rio district last year was a few cents over five dollars.....All our people contribute most liberally to the support of the native preachers.

"We have 47 members in the Rio English charge.....The spiritual condition of the church is good. The heavy incidental expenses of all our work in Rio are largely met by this charge. They enable Bro. Kennedy, the presiding elder, to make his rounds, contributing to his traveling expenses.

"We have—for city mission work—a good hall in a populous district. Our purpose is to establish similar mission halls in three other districts in the city. I am full of hope in regard to our work."

At Piracicaba is our oldest and largest native church in Brazil. Bro. Hamilton writes: "Our work here goes on slowly, but it goes on..... Our number is increasing; our membership counts considerably over two hundred, and we have a long list of candidates.....I have conversed with many influential and important men who declare that they are having nothing more to do with Romanism. Some declare themselves 'free-thinkers.' Others are inquiring after the truth. Some days ago I had the son-in-law of the President of Brazil in my study, conversing with him about the doctrines of the Scriptures, and showing him how he could study the Bible to advantage."

By every token God is moving the heart of the world to seek the truth. The ages have known no such opportunity as we have to-day. How the great heart of Christ yearns over these multitudes who are "as sheep having no shepherd!" The men are ready to go, and waiting, but the church, alas! is holding back from Christ the needed funds.

What He Said.

MR. EDITOR: In a recent issue of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE there was a statement that a certain Methodist preacher had said "that the Christian, or Campbellite, church had more members than the M. E. Church, South." That was a mistake, but this statement was made: that "McTyeire's History of Methodism" gave the membership of the M. E. Church, South, and the Christian Church as nearly equal. The contention was not the present membership of the respective churches in question, as we had no recent statistics at hand on that subject but what was given by the "History of Methodism," as recorded by H. N. McTyeire. I submit the following statistics in proof of my statement: Lay members of the M. E. Church, South, 894,132 (H. N. McTyeire's History of Methodism, page 687, edition 1884); Christian Church sittings, 865,602 (H. N. McTyeire's History of Methodism, page 688, edition 1884). Difference in favor of the M. E. Church, South, of 28,530. We never said there were more Campbellites than Methodists, but nearly as many, and we were right, basing our position on the above history. We were aware of the fact that the church had increased in numbers since the above authority was written; but as we did not have the statistics in reach of us, we used the above authority, which we had at hand. The reason that we made the statement as above was because a certain other Methodist preacher said that "when you came from the Campbellites to the Methodist Church there were so many more members in the Methodist than the Campbellite Church that the Methodists took but little notice of the change: but should a Methodist preacher join the Campbellites, they would rejoice and brag about it to a great extent." Please to publish this in justice to a Mellville and Its People.

One never knows what there is in a place until he knows its people and their ways of doing things. To the casual observer this little town lying cosily nestled against the railway embankment, and stretching along the shore of the Atchafalaya river, would seem a dull and prosaic place. But it has life, enterprise and movement about it, that can only be seen and known by careful, judicious inquiry. I do not think I overestimate it when I say its commerce and trade represent a capital of some $250,000 annually. Thrift and prosperity abound on every side. Its business is not monopolized, but everyone seems to have some kind of occupation. The neat little cottage homes that border the streets bespeak the spirits of their occupants. The old-fashioned leaven of generous, free hospitality permeates the entire community. These people are glad when you come, glad while you stay, glad to minister to your comfort while among them, and only sorry when you leave.

I can scarcely speak of individuals without being invidious. Bro. and Sister Peyton's home—what a haven of rest to the preacher! Bro. Peyton is mayor, steward in the church and leader of the orchestra at the school commencements. Almost everybody calls him "Dad," which means they esteem him highly. But don't you tell anyone I wrote this about him. Then right across the way is the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister Church. They are leaders and helpers in every good work. Then the Wordens. Bro. Jeff. is married and has a promising family. Frank is not—yet. But he is a jewel. I sincerely believe he enjoys helping in every good cause as much as anyone I ever knew. But I can not give a description of all. Dr. and Mrs. Tolston, who ungrudgingly give of their means to sustain the neat little Episcopalian chapel. Mrs. Thoms and her estimable sons and daughters, good old Presbyterian folks, who love the Methodist Church and help to support it, beside others I might mention; but space forbids.

I had the pleasure of witnessing the closing exercises of the school under the fostering care of Misses Thoms and Glaze. It reflected credit on all concerned. One feature was especially commendable. In the various recitations, tableaux, etc., there was nothing which would offend the most refined taste. On the whole, the pupils acquitted themselves admirably. The Methodist Church, under the guiding hand of that veteran preacher, Rev. J. M. Johnston, has a strong hold upon the people. He is looking forward to a gracious revival in the near future. May the Almighty Father reward his prayers and hope! The NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE is well patronized, and several new subscribers were added to the list as the result of my visit. Mellville Methodists believe in supporting the institutions of the church.

The Epworth Era.

At a meeting of the Holly Springs Epworth League, held May 24, the following resolution was unanimously adopted, with the request that it be furnished the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication:

Upon reading the decision of the Book Committee in regard to the discontinuance of the articles, "On the Wing," by Dr. S. A. Steel, we feel that the most attractive feature of the paper will be left out. These letters have been a source of great interest and improvement to both old and young. That we beg all Leagues to unite with us in pleading with the Book Committee to reconsider its action in regard to the publication of these interesting letters. That we consider Dr. Steel the "right man in the right place," and believe that the Methodist Church has not a more truly loyal supporter than our beloved General Secretary.

JOSEPH S. OAKLEY.

A Saiff of the Hill Breezes.

On Saturday, May 16, a run of eighty miles carried me out of the lagoons and over the hills to the unique town of Arcadia. Here I was domiciled in the pleasant home of Prof. R. A. Smith, president of the E. A. Seminary. I found that Prof. Smith and my father were members of the same secret fraternity at Centenary College in fifty-nine and sixty. They last met on a battlefield in old Virginia. Afterwards they were both severely wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, though at the time, and through the intervening years, each thought the other dead. Of course, my welcome was a hearty one. Thus Centenary, the war and a kind Providence had prepared at least one sympathetic auditor to encourage my maiden effort at preaching what is usually called "a commencement sermon." So the next morning we felt free to speak for about an hour to a large, yet patient, audience; and had the pleasure of preaching at night to about the same congregation.

E. A. Seminary is no quack college, but is a first-class preparatory school, devoted entirely to the work of Christian education. Prayers, good Methodist songs, and the Bible form a part of the course. Prof. Smith, while a good scholar, is also an experienced teacher, and is ably assisted by thorough teachers in his work. The department of music is under the management of Miss Rankin, of Tennessee; who is a niece of our Dr. Barbee. She teaches music, and then finds time to keep an Epworth League booming.

Arcadia is a new town of about a thousand or twelve hundred inhabitants. It is a great business center, and as free from malaria as the Rocky Mountains. Methodism literally runs the town. I found Bro. May, our preacher, wide awake, going ahead, and greatly beloved by his people. Whether Methodism is flourishing among the Louisiana lageons is a question to be answered by some more experienced scribe; but she is eminently adapted to the hill country of Arcadia. The spiritual atmosphere, like the breezes, is rare and refreshing. BILLY JOE.

Mrs. H. W. Foote, of North Miss. Conference.
Miss Pauline Stafford, of Mississippi Conference
Mrs E. R. Kennedy, of Louisiana Conference

The Woman's Parsonage and Home Mission Society of the Winona district convened in annual session at the Methodist Church, Winona, Miss., Wednesday morning, April 15, 1896. This is the first time this body has met separate and apart from the regular District Conference, and we feel encouraged over the success of the meeting. Quite a number were present for the opening service. Bro. Stone conducted the devotional exercises. District Secretary Mrs. Ellen K. Shivers called the meeting to order, and Mrs. G. B. Williams was elected secretary. Mrs. Shivers made her address, which was soul-inspiring and full of zeal in her own efforts, and an earnest appeal to all the members for more work and better work in the Lord's vineyard. The secretary called the roll, and the delegates responded with good reports, showing much interest and a real devotion to this important work. We have only six auxiliaries in the district. Four of them were represented by delegates. Carrollton sent a written report. Indianola is a young auxiliary, and has done a fine work in her own church, and has made some reports to the Conference treasurer. We regret very much that this auxiliary was not heard from at this meeting. The Winona auxiliary, with twenty members, has raised during the year from March, '95, to March, '96, for all purposes, $142.95, having sent $112.95 of this amount to Conference treasurer. The auxiliary was represented by Mrs. J. B. Stone. McNutt reported by Mrs. K. A. Jones: Twenty-three members; collected for all purposes, $63.95: sent to Conference treasurer, $4. Greenwood: Membership, 25; amount raised for all purposes, $243.50: sent $10 to Conference treasurer. Mrs. Fred Austin made this report and asked for ways and means of committee work, if any auxiliary was up on these lines, and invited the meeting to Greenwood next year. Black Hawk auxiliary sent Mrs. M. M. Purcell to represent them. Membership fifteen, three of whom are honorary members. Amount raised for all purposes, $31.05; sent Conference treasurer, $13.20. Mrs. Emma Buckley reports for Carrollton: Fifteen members; amount raised for all purposes, $103.85; $55.40 of this amount sent to Conference treasurer.

After the reports were all handed in Miss Mary Sweatman read a fine paper on "Influence."

The brethren were introduced, four of whom were present, and all made encouraging talks, wishing us God-speed.

Mrs. Shivers, in her address, spoke of Miss Elisabeth Streater, of Black Hawk, who is now at the Scarritt Training-school preparing for home mission work, and is trying to obtain a free scholarship for next year by securing six hundred subscriptions to the Evangel.

Mrs. Stone talked at length, explaining fully the "Myra Smith" scholarship, which North Mississippi has in hand, and to which we are devoting all our Pledge this year. She also explained Miss Streater's relation to the training-school, and urged on all the delegates the importance of obtaining all the subscribers possible, thus enabling her to get the free scholarship. She also called attention to the small amount of dues remaining in the Conference treasury, stating that so far we had only been able to help one parsonage this year.

If reports from other districts are similar to those of this one, the reason is apparent: keeping so much of the funds at home and remitting so little to Conference treasurer. Sisters, remember that only one-half of the amount sent to Conference treasurer is kept in our own Conference. Our contingent fund is so small and so little of it collected that it hardly pays expenses of the Conference.

Mrs. Shivers put in claims for Our Homes, the organ of our society. Every member ought to take this valuable paper and read it. We must do more work and better work this year.

Greenwood was chosen as the next place of meeting.

The program for the evening was full and highly entertaining, rendered by members of both the Foreign and Home Mission Societies.

We trust that these district meetings will prove a great blessing to church work.

District Secretary.
MRS. G. B. WILLIAMS,
Recording Secretary.

Selections.

About the Epworth League.

Is the Epworth League movement making Methodists? We are not looking for the denominational increment, but for that genius and spirit which have always characterized our Methodism. Are our young people putting the accent of a religious life where the fathers put it? Bacon said that if he desired to ascertain the future of England, he would gage the aspirations and purposes of her youth. Putting this correct test to the membership of our Epworth Leagues, what shall we say for the future of our Methodism in spiritual possibilities and power? Methodism has no right to exist if ever it ceases to be the great soul-saving institution of the world. Bishop Lightfoot wrote of "the lost secret of Christianity—the divine persuasion of human souls." Methodism, under the lead of the Holy Spirit, rediscovered this secret. We rejoice in the larger outlook which the Epworth League brings to our young people, and that they are brought thereby into closer touch with present-day problems and needs. But if in any degree this wider intellectual vision is being made a substitute for the power to divinely persuade human souls, then the loss is infinitely greater than the gain. The mother church of Great Britain has shrunk in membership the last year nearly three thousand souls. The editor of the Methodist Recorder, in treating the subject at length and with great frankness, finds the reason for this diminution in the fact that the denomination has been so busy doing so many other good things that it has slackened effort in doing the one thing needful—seeking the salvation of the unsaved. There is a lesson of warning here which should be heeded by our church. It is feared that our Epworth Leagues are being given so much else to do that soul-saving is becoming to them a lost spiritual art. Representative men in the church who travel as students and observers through all our borders, tell us with foreboding that there is an unmistakable drift in the Epworth League movement in this direction.

What shall be done to remedy it? The General Conference must study the subject with tender and prayerful concern. The management of the movement must be enlarged and made more representative. Aged men, but ever young in the glow of the spiritual life which burns within them, should sit in counsel with the elect young men to give direction to this organization. The whole church must adopt and put its spiritual seal upon this youth that has grown to such colossal proportions in a day.

And the men whom the church sets apart especially to direct and represent this movement must be men not only of brilliant parts, but of profound piety—men whose entire speech and manner shall carry to the multitude of our young people the very aroma of heaven. We are constrained to believe that no interest to which this General Conference shall address itself is so important and carries so much of the future in it, as the action which it takes upon the Epworth League.—Zion's Herald.

No Spiritual Debit and Credit.

Debit and credit accounts belong to the temporal and human. But a mode of action most common to any person is likely to give his mental method a set, or cant, which is in danger of unduly dominating the man. One whose chief interest is in debit and credit or in striking balances; or one who is "close fisted," and always thinking of the "return" he is to get before he is willing to exert himself; or one who depends upon apologies and reparations—such is in danger of carrying this ideal of world life and material values into the higher realms of his spiritual thinking—when he enters such realms. A pastor, some years ago, told his congregation that he had heard a parishioner confess how self-sacrificingly she had attended church every Sunday all through the cold weather, adding, as she spoke, "I hope it will answer." Evidently that woman's habit of thought was of debits and credits. God was to her little better than an accountant, and all she looked for was a balance in her favor on the great books of eternal life. But what a meanly temporal and mundane way is this to look at the spiritual and infinite! Nothing will "answer," if it is this sort of answering we are looking for. It is not so much the things that we do, as the love with which we do them, that God wants. How much of my duty may I safely neglect without endangering the moral and spiritual balance due me? One seldom formally asks himself this question, but he often asks it by his habit and attitude of thought and life.—Sunday-School Times.

There is food for thought in the following paragraph from a sermon by the late Bishop Phillips Brooks: "Every now and then a conscience among the men and women who live easy, thoughtless lives, is stirred, and some one looks up anxiously, holding up some of the pretty idleness in which such people spend their days and nights, and says: 'Is this wrong? Is it wicked to do this?' And when they get this answer, 'No, certainly not wicked,' then they go back and gives their whole lives up to doing their innocent little piece of uselessness again. Ah! the question is not whether that is wicked, whether God will punish you for doing that. The question is whether that thing is keeping other better things from you, whether behind its little bulk the vast privilege and dignity of duty is hid from you; whether it stands between God and your soul. If it does, then it is an offense to you, and, though it be your right hand or right eye, cut it off, pluck it out, and cast it from you."

When God has a great work for any one to do in the world, he usually gives him a peculiar training for it; and that training is just what no earthly friend would choose for him, and sometimes it is so long continued that there seems to us to be but little time left for him to work. We should not have led Moses into Midian to prepare him to guide a nation, and certainly we should not have left him there forty years. But God knew that the life of the humble shepherd, and in the desert, too, would best fit him to lead his people like a flock, and that he needed to be in that school no less than forty long years to be the truly meek Moses..... He must have long years of quiet, under the shadow of Sinai, for meditation on the character of God, before he could meet that God on the top of the mount, and there receive the lively oracles to give to us.—Mary Lyon.
